● We're an old Southern family, the L & N. And it's just natural that we have real pride in our home. Guess that's why folks feel so at ease and comfortable traveling with us.

Somehow everything seems familiar—the comfortable seats, so much like your own favorite chairs back home—the breakfasts of Old Southern ham, hot biscuit, fresh golden-center eggs, steaming coffee—the dinners, tender juicy steaks, Southern fried chicken, real cornbread, Pompano or other seafoods fresh from the Gulf Coast—all become memories of haunting goodness.

And then, when that pleasant, yawny tiredness comes—crisp, clean sheets, soft plump pillows—and deep, dreamless, restful sleep.

These and more you'll find in your "Home Sweet Home on Rails"—a home completely air-conditioned (except locals)—a home safer than your own—a home that costs only 1½c to 3c a mile to enjoy. May we have the pleasure of your company soon—the whole family? Any ticket agent will assist you.

● In 19 years, the L & N has carried nearly 200 million passengers and not a single passenger has lost his life in an L & N train accident. No wonder you feel completely at ease in your "Home Sweet Home on Rails!"

BUY RAMS EARLY COLLEGE ADVISES

Many Kentucky sheepmen make a practice of waiting until near breeding time to buy their rams, with the result that in many cases the rams do not have time to become accustomed to their new environment and be properly conditioned for breeding. Then, too, by waiting late they miss an opportunity to get the best rams. Rams are being rapidly picked up in Kentucky at the present time, according to Richard C. Miller of the College of Agriculture.

Farmers who plan to buy rams for use this year should visit some of the good purebred flocks and make their selections now. It is a good practice to see the entire flock, the ewes as well as the rams, before purchase is made. If there is evidence of foot rot or other trouble in the flock, selection of rams will help greatly to minimize foot trouble and other diseases which annually cost the sheep raisers of this State many thousands of dollars.

Rams that have been highly fitted for show or sale often prove disappointing as breeders. Such rams when purchased should be gradually reduced in condition by limiting the feed and providing plenty of exercise before the breeding season starts. It would be better not to buy them at all when rams in good field condition can be obtained.

Rams that carry a lot of last year's wool should also be discriminated against. Heavy wooled rams should be sheared out as soon as possible after purchase at this extra fleece saps the animal's vitality, lowers his efficiency and, in some cases, produces sterility. Farmers themselves can stop the practice by buying them on their merits and disregarding the blockier, more compact appearance brought about by the additional wool and condition.

Circular 285, "Rams for Commercial Flocks," can be had from county farm agents or by writing the College of Agriculture.

L. & N. RAILROAD TOPICS

The real costs of river transportation are generally higher than the railroad rate, asserts L. & N. Railroad President James B. Hill in the July L. & N. Employes' Magazine. In support of that view, he points to the Ohio River, which he says is one of the best projects of the Inland Waterway System. The Ohio, according to Mr. Hill, is 981 miles long and has 50 locks and dams, and was prepared for navigation at a cost to the tax payers of $136,309,260, or $138,941 per mile. Maintenance and operating costs in 1935, he says, amounted to $4,047 per mile. His figures were taken from the 1935 reports of the United States engineers. In comparison, he states that it cost only $64,682 per mile to build, and $1,633 per mile to maintain the L. & N. Railroad, which at some points parallels the Ohio River.

"Why," asks Mr. Hill, "should the taxpayer bear any part of the costs of river transportation for the benefit of private enterprise? Why should there be such discrimination against railroads which not only pay their own way, but heavy taxes on their enterprise? We cannot blame the coal, oil and steel companies for taking advantage of the gifts Santa Claus, the taxpayer, brings them. We only ask Santa Claus to become more sensible."

Some 1,500 employes of the L. & N. Railroad, and their families from many points on the system, attended the annual picnic of the L. & N. Veterans' Club at Fontaine Ferry Party, Louisville, Ky., Saturday, June 26, according to the L. & N. Employes' Magazine for July. The oldest guest was John H. Barrickman, retired general agent, Louisville, Ky., who boasted 58 years of active service second was E. C. Dyas, car repair foreman, Mobile, Ala., with 56 years behind him and still going.

A feature of the affair was the address of General Claims Attorney James J. Donohue, who explained the recently enacted Railroad Retirement legislation.

Three million miles in the cabs of locomotives without an injury is the record of L. & N. engineer James A. Bain, Louisville, whose retirement from active service after completing 55 years is reported in the July L. & N. Employes' Magazine.

The same publication also reports the retirement of Engineer Jack ayes, Nashville, Tenn., climaxing a 50-year stretch of service in engine cabs, 43 of which was as engineer. Mr. Hayes has gained nation-wide fame through daily-except-Sunday broadcasts of the Pan-American, crack L. & N. passenger train, over Radio Station WSM for the past four years.

The title of "Champion Suggestor" has been conferred upon E. Tyler Greeble, L. & N. Railroad conductor, Louisville, Ky., by the July L. & N. mployes' Magazine. Under that company's cash award system for suggestions received from employes toward more efficient operation and improvement of service, Mr. Greeble with 30 suggestions to his credit far outstrips any of his fellow workers; and he is the first employe to win more than one award, having received four.

• • •

A pigeon with a penchant for racing passenger trains is reported in the L. & N. Employes' Magazine This pigeon, owned by a Helena, Ala., family, joins the northbound Pan-American every day at Helena and flies alongside the locomotive cab until the train enters the tunnel four miles north of Helena. There the bird turns back to his home; and often, when he feels up to it, picks up the Azalean at Helena and races it for sometimes as much as 14 miles, almost to Calera. This has been going on for about two years and although the pigeon sometimes misses the Azalean he never fails to accompany the Pan-American from Helena to the tunnel.

HELP THE GOVERNOR FINISH THE JOB

Last Half of The Job is as Important As The First

Amazing progress has been made by the Chandler Administration in bringing good government to Kentucky.

The financial condition of the state is on the soundest basis in history.

Never before has a state administration accomplished so much in so short a time.

These accomplishments were made possible by the state legislature. It laid the foundation for improvement in government when it co-operated with Governor Chandler in passing laws he requested. The legislature gave the Governor the tools with which to do a spleedid job of statecraft.

BUT---

The Last Half of The Job is as Important As The First

Governor Chandler wants to finish paying the state debt.

He wants to complete the rebuilding of the charitable and penal institutions of the commonwealth.

He wants to extend the practice of building permanent, high-type roads and helping counties improve rural highways.

He wants to keep the state budget in balance.

He wants to continue the present generous support of public schools.

It is important to you that he be permitted to do the last half of the job as he did the first half.

Governor Chandler should be given a legislature that will co-operate with him in completing the fine job of governmental improvement. It is for the best interests of Kentucky and her taxpaying citizenship that a legislature be elected which will help the Governor finish the job which has been so splendidly started

Common sense, intelligent self-interest, patriotism dictates that the voters give the governor a legislature that will help him to continue his fine administration of state government.

Vote for a man who will co-operate with the Governor in his program so that we may obtain our share of the roads, bridges and other improvements for our county.

Vote for BEST and get the BEST

THE POWDER-KEG
J. E. Jones

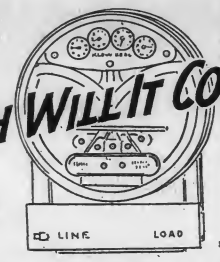
Washington, D. C.—One day recently a Congressman who was evidently distressed over the daily reports of "disorders, riots and bloodshed,' told the great body of which he is a member: "Hundreds of thousand of conscientious workers are forced out of employment and with the assistance demagogic politicians, unprecedented class strife is ever widening. We are veritably living on a political and economic powder-keg."

The daily news reports tell about employers sponsoring "back-to-work" movements, and of "labor leaders" who are urging workmen to strike and resist with force the efforts of their employers to keep their factories and establishments running.

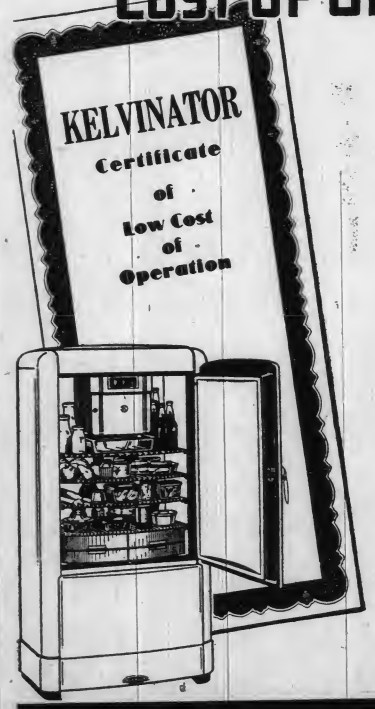
And anyone who looks squarely and fairly at the facts must draw the conclusion that the economic contest is just another chapter in the old struggle defined in the books "concerning the science of production, distribution and consumption of wealth." Everyone realizes that new economic situations have arisen out of the machine age, and the records of employment show that wages in great industries have been a live issue for over twenty years. In those years the average rate of pay for a day's work has multiplied rapidly, from two dollars and a half to five, seven and eight dollars, and more, a day.

The row between the two big labor organizations started boiling in the last Presidential campaign. Roosevelt and Landon were originally parties of the first part, but when the campaign was over John L. Lewis assumed that he and his organization had a lot to do with creating the landslide. Green and Lewis carried on their fight for domination of the union, and the C. I. O. movement inflated so fast with new additions to membership that it began to get out of control. If there had been no entanglements with the Roosevelt administration—no "taking sides"—the unions and the industries might have made substantial progress before now in adjusting their economic differences.

In all the struggles of the past there is always outstanding proof that employers and employes remained loyal to the American ideal and principle of working together for their mutual interests. They still are!



But in recent months there has been a lackadaisical atmosphere in high official quarters, followed by many instances of ignoring the public interests and welfare—in fact evasion of responsibility in enforcing the law. Under these conditions the industrial breach has widened.



Now, about that "powder-keg" mentioned in the beginning:

In view of the continued stifling of the powers of sheriffs, policemen, the national guard and the courts; due to interference from political on-highs, the analysis should be revised, something like this: 'We are veritably living on a political powder-keg that threatens our economic institutions."

MILK INCOME DEPENDABLE

Milk Industry Foundation Chart

Milk proved a more dependable source of farm income during recent years than most major farm products, according to the Federal Trade Commission's recent agricultural income study.

During 1932 when gross farm income sagged to its lowest point, dairy farmers received 54 per cent as much for milk as in 1929. Farmers received only 40 per cent of the 1929 total for livestock, 38 per cent for tobacco, 34 per cent for cotton and 29 per cent for wheat.

By 1934 when gross farm income recovered substantially, milk was well ahead of other major farm products with a gross of 64 per cent. Livestock was 51 per cent and wheat 45 per cent. Only one non-food crop was higher—tobacco at 78 per cent of the 1929 figure. Cotton was 48 per cent of the pre-depression income.

From 1929 to 1934, the average income to the producer from milk held up better than any farm product reported.

KENTUCKY FARMERS TO USE MILLION TONS OF LIMESTONE THIS YEAR

A statement from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture indicates that Kentucky farmers will apply a million tons of limestone this year. Reports of county agents show that 869,000 tons were used last year. This vast usage of limestone is one of the results of the national farm program.

Practically all of the farm land in Kentucky needs limestone, according to the college. As a rule, two tons to the acre is considered the best rate of application. Some highly acid soils may need three or four tons. Except in the Bluegrass region, the use of a phosphate fertilizer in connection with lime is recommended. In fact, on many soils lime alone is of little or no benefit. Phosphate is usually applied at the rate of 200 pounds to the acre.

The college, thowever, does not recommend the indiscriminate use of lime. Farmers are advised to make sure to what exetent their soil needs lime. This may be done by liming a strip across a field and then measuring results in yields; or by applying an acidity test of samples of soil.

Experments in Graves county showed that lime alone increased wheat yields three bushels to the acre; phosphate alone more than seven bushels, while lime and phosphate added nearly 13 bushels of wheat to the acre. For every dollar spent for phosphate 1.36 was was received, and for every dollar spent for both lime and phosphate the return was $1.45.

"I can only be a sister to you."
"Why—why—why—"
"Now don't stutter. Plenty of girls wouldn't even care to be that."

CLEVER KID

"I'm afraid that boy of ours lacks concentration."
"Oh, he has concentration enough, only instead of using it on his lessons he concentrates upon how to escape doing them."

INNOCENT IDEA

Mr. Bore—Might I hope that some day you'll be my wife?
Miss Sweet—My goodness! I can't see any harm in that.

What has become of the old-fashioned congress that used to adjourn when the notion struck it?

Few men are deliberately wicked. When the worst decide to do wrong, they first convince themselves that it is right.

Three purebred Jerseys of outstanding breeding were taken into Allen county by F. H. Brown at a cost of $700.

SOLONS URGE BRIDGES ACROSS OHIO RIVER

Washington, D. C., July 28—Two new Ohio River bridges were urged today by Senator M. M. Logan and Representative Beverly M. Vincent.

Senator Logan has urged the appointment of a bridge commission at Owensboro to construct a span at or near that city. The bill he introduced is a companion measure to the proposed span urged at Rockport by Congressman Vincent.

Both Mr. Vinctn and representatives of the Central States Highway Association have urged the erection of the bridge in visits to the Public Works Administration headquarters.

The bridge supporters said that the lack of a bridge at Rockport was diverting traffic from Louisville and Lexington to Indiana cities. A 45 percent grant was requested. The bridge was to cost they suggested $571,424.

9,000 MERCHANTS DELINQUENT

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 2—James W. Martin, Commissioner of Revenue, announced today that approximately 9,000 taxpayers have not obtained their store licenses for the 1937-38 fiscal year. This license tax became delinquent after July 1, 1937. The statute provides a 20 per cent penalty and 6 per cent interest for failure to file application and pay the tax before the due date and in addition, provides a fine of not less than $25.00 nor more than $1,000.00, for persons convicted of operating their place of business without the proper license.

Commissioner Martin indicated that he 9,000 delinquent merchants who secured their licenses last year had been amply notified that the tax was due, and said that the Department would soon start prosecuting all persons failing to comply with the provisions of the Store License Tax Act. He urged merchants to forward their applications and proper remittances to the Department of Revenue, Frankfort, Ky., at once.

STATE MAY EXEMPT FAIRS FROM TAXES

Frankfort, Ky., July 31—County fair operating on a non-profit basis and devoting 75 per cent of their receipts to payment of premiums are exempt from the state amusement tax, it was held by Atty.-Gen. Hubert Meredith in an opinion to the Washington County Fair Association, Springfield.

Mr. Meredith cited holdings of the Court of Appeals to the effect that fairs were educational institutions, and that was the only legal theory by which an appropriation of public funds could be justified for their support.

Last year, Atty-Gen. B. M. Vincent held the fairs exempt from the tax. Following his resignation Assistant Atty--Gen. A. E. Funk held them subject to the tax.

Boone County farmers are using approximately 7000 tons of agricultural limestone and 500,000 pounds of phosphate in improving their crops. Lime and phosphate are long time investments that bring returns over periods carying from five to twenty years.

LIMESTONE AVAILABLE TO LOCAL FARMERS

Every day more orders are coming in the County Agent's Office for pulverized limestone, according to David Colville, Assistant County Agent. The pulverizer operated by Orville Kelly is in the Hebron community at the present time. Approximately 600 tons have been ground in this community and there will probably be enough work to keep the pulverizer busy for at least two more weeks.

Every farmer who is interested in securing limestone this fall for benefit payments under ACP is urged to secure his rock as soon as possible and notify, Mr. Kelly or the County Agent's office. Every attempt is being made to make limestone available to every farmer in the county who wants to use it. Only three months remain to carry out Soil Building Practices under ACP for the 1937 program.

OPERATOR'S LICENSE ISSUED 1700 DRIVERS

Seventeen hundred automobile drivers had obtained their operator's license late Tuesday afternoon, according to A. D. Yelton Circuit Court Clerk. He also stated that there were still 800 drivers who had failed to obtain their license.

Many delayed purchasing their licenses until Saturday, thus causing quite a wait for many, as there were so many applied the clerks were unable to disposed of applicants as fast as they arrived.

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW

According to C. D. Benson, County Clerk, the votes will be counted Saturday night, and everyone should know just how the election will go by midnight. It has been the law in Kentucky for some time that the votes could not be counted on the same day of the election but since the repeal of this law, the officers will start counting votes just as soon as they can get organized after the polls close. Unless something unforeseen happens, they should be finished Saturday night.

It has been rumored that this law was changed so as to save many candidates an extra night's sleep, and there may be something in that.

CIRCUIT COURT CONVENES MON.

NO CRIMINAL CASES ARE ON DOCKET FOR THIS TERM—SHORT SESSION IS PREDICTED BY CLERK.

Circuit Court will convene Monday at 9:00 a. m. Judge Vallandingham will be on the bench as usual with Ward Yager, the genial Commonwealth Attorney at his regular post.

Circuit Court Clerk, A. D. Yelton stated that there were no criminal cases on docket for this session and that very few civil cases will be heard.

The session is not expected to last for more than three or four days, he said, unless other cases are placed on docket before the court convenes.

The August term of court is usually short, but it is very seldom that so few cases are up for trial. Farmers are very busy in their crops at this time of the year and those who are called for jury service are always glad to know that the session will be of short duration.

A NEW LEADER

The rise of Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, to the third most powerful position in the Government by virtue of his recent election as Senate Majority Leader, brings to the Roosevelt Administration a wholehearted and sympathetic worker. As long as the New Deal is carrying the torch of new freedom, it is only logical that it has chosen the Kentuckian as one of its torchbearers.

Jay Franklin sketched the phenomenal career of Senator Barkley in a recent column. He writes:

"Senator Barkley was born sixty years ago, come November, in rural Kentucky, the eldest of eight children. He worked his way through a little Methodist college, studied further in Georgia and at the University of Virginia Law School, and read for his bar examinations in the office of Judge W. S. Bishop of Paducah, Ky., the 'Old Judge Priest' immortalized by Irvin S. Cobb.

"In 1901 he was admitted to the Paducah bar, four years later he was elected prosecuting attorney for McCracken County, and in 1909 was chosen judge of the County Court. The great Wilson sweep of 1912 carried him into the House of Representatives, where he remained until his election as Senator in 1926. He was re-elected to the Senate in 1932 and will be up again next year. * * *

"He is an expert on parliamentary procedure and a member of three important committees—Finance, Banking and Currency, and Interstate Commerce—the work of any one of which is a full-time job. His name is not attached to any major piece of legislation, but he played an important part in the shaping of the N. I. R. A., the emergency banking act and all recent monetary legislation, not counting his work during his 14 years in the House. * * *

"He is a good orator of the old school and a good rough-and-tumble debater.

"Just to round out the picture, he is genial, friendly, an amusing raconteur, a fairly good golf player, a singer and widely liked on Capitol Hill. * * *

"Senator Barkley has made a lifetime career of congressional politics as another man might make a career of architecture, medicine or manufacture."

His position in the Democratic party parallels his political career. In 1919 he was Chairman of the State Democratic Convention in Louisville and in 1924 at Lexington. He was Delegate-At-Large at the San Francisco National Convention in 1920 and in 1924 in New York and again in Houston in 1928. At both Chicago in 1932 and Philadelphia in 1936 he was the Convention keynoter.

How Does One Speed a Lingering Visitor?

DEAR Mrs. Post: What is the most courteous way of telling formal acquaintances, who come to call and stay longer than expected, that it is necessary for them to leave? In the case I am referring to we hardly knew the visitors and did not know how to tell them that we had to dress and drive a distance through city traffic into the suburbs in order to keep a dinner engagement.

Answer: No question is so hard to answer as that of politely speeding a not departing visitor. And we are all of us apt to put those with whom we have an engagement to inconvenience because of the fear of being rude to a visitor in our own house. To glance at the clock and become restless is very bad. The way would be to say frankly, "I am sorry; I wish we could keep on talking but we must dress and drive to Suburbantown." Sometimes when time is really limited and someone comes, it is better to greet her by saying, "I am so glad to see you but I am very distressed to have to tell you that we have only a few minutes before we have to leave for the country."

Knives, Forks and Fish.

DEAR Mrs. Post: When fish is served at breakfast, are the medium sized knives used for eating breakfast proper, or should I set the table with the fish knives and forks?

Answer: Usually the regular breakfast knife and fork are used, but if you are having small bony fish and your fish knives are more practical, then by all means use them.

Guests Go First.

DEAR Mrs. Post: When I ask friends home with me to my apartment, after unlocking the hall door should I go first or let them go in first? And does the same answer hold for both women and men friends?

Answer: Unless it is necessary that you go into the apartment in order to turn on a light, you would open the door and stand aside for a woman to go ahead of you. A man would of course follow you.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for August 8

GOD FEEDS A PEOPLE.

GOLDEN TEXT—Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh from the Father. James 1:17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When God's People Were Hungry.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God Feeding His People.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Provides for Our Needs.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Supply Adequate for a Nation's Need.

Israel, led by God, is on a journey to the promised land. But to reach their goal they must pass through the wilderness. Not only are there weary miles to travel, but there are privations to be endured. Life is like that.

"People may be strong and hopeful at the beginning of a project, and most effusively and devoutly thankful at its close, but the difficulty is to go manfully through the process. Israel was in the desert, and never were spoiled children more peevish, suspicious, and altogether ill-behaved. If they could have stepped out of Egypt into Canaan at once, probably they would have been as pious as most of us; but there was the weary interval, the inhospitable wilderness! So it is in our life. Accept it as a solemn and instructive fact that life is a process . . . more than a beginning and an ending" (Joseph Parker).

Note how elemental are man's needs in the final analysis—bread and water. The very things we take almost for granted as we concern ourselves with life's weighty interests and profound problems become, if lacking, the only things that have any real meaning. And who is it that can provide them? No one but God Himself.

I. Bread from Heaven. (Exod. 16:11-20).

Observe first of all that this was a divine provision. There are responsibilities in life which we may bear—and must bear, but in the ultimate meeting of our real needs we must look to God.

Secondly, we note that it was a daily provision. What forehanded folk many of us are, and no doubt rightly so, for God puts no premium on improvidence. But once again we must recognize, as did Israel in receiving the daily manna in the wilderness that ours is indeed a moment by moment existence. We plan bravely for the next decade or the next generation, but as a matter of fact it can only come to pass "if the Lord will." Read James 5:13-17.

Finally, it was a limited provision—enough for the day and no more, except for a double portion on the sixth day, and none at all on the Sabbath. These provisions were made clear to Israel, and yet there were those who attempted to lay up for the morrow, and some even went out to seek manna on the Sabbath day.

We marvel at their stubborn obtuseness, but are we not often just like them. Some there are who are always expecting that the laws of both God and man should be set aside for them, but, mark it well, they ultimately come to grief. The spiritual application is obvious, and most serious. God has provided a way of redemption, and has made clear how man should and must relate himself to it. Folly it is to ignore God's plan.

II. A Rock in the Wilderness. (Exod. 17:3-6).

"And the people thirsted"—for the daily manna was not enough—they must have water. Needy, yes, constantly needy are God's children.

God always provides. There is a rock in the wilderness. But what pleasure does a murmuring people find in the rock when they famish for water? It is God's delightful custom to supply our needs in unexpected ways, by means which we do not understand. Even our physical necessities come from unthought of sources.

III. The Bread and the Water of Life.

Let us make certain that we do not miss the spiritual truth of our lesson which is revealed by Scripture itself. Paul speaks in I Corinthians 10:1-4 of this very incident in the experience of Israel, and says that they "did all eat the same spiritual meat and did all drink the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ." See also John 4:14.

Hungry and thirsty soul, you who are still unsatisfied after tasting all that life apart from Christ has to offer, will you not, just now, take him who is the living bread, and come to the Rock which flows with living water?

How to Keep Quiet

Character is revealed by small things; it is also hidden by small things. Speech often hides it, and again distorts it, for those who brand themselves by the pettiness of their conversation have sometimes unsuspected depths within; but the surest revealer of character is silence—intelligent silence.

Progress

No man who feels the worth and solemnity of what is at stake will be careless as to his progress.

Why Firestone STANDARD TIRES are EXTRA SAFE

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. By this process every fiber in every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber. This counteracts dangerous internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE because of the extra tough, long-wearing tread.

Firestone Standard Tires give you all these extra value features because they are first-quality tires built with high-grade materials and patented construction features. You SAVE MONEY because you buy this high quality and extra value at such low prices.

BILL COLLINS CHEVROLET INCORPORATED

BRASS TACKS

It is now time to dust off Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson and put them back in their tombs, omit all the fan fare of patriotic and sentimental drivel with which political speakers obscure the real issue and let us get down to brass tacks.

The real issue is: Do you want laws enacted favorable to yourself and your neighbor, or do you want laws enacted favorable to the distiller, coal mine owners, the race track people and other money interests? Are you going to protect yourself, or are you going to vote for the tobacco warehouseman and the Big Four tobacco companies to whom you are only grist to their mill?

The administration has not done one thing to merit our support, and persecuted anyone who did raise their voice in our behalf. Innocent men were fired simply because the man who sponsored them did not vote in the legislature to suit the administration. They do not say what they will do, but we know by experience, if they elect their man they will use his vote to keep themselves in power and their masters free from taxation. They offer no apologies, but come in on election day expecting to buy us with jobs and money, like so many cattle. All the resources of a great political machine and their allies and money interests are trained upon and being used against Paul Sidebottom, because he dared to vote the way we people who sent him to Frankfort, expected him to vote.

It is the duty of every citizen to absorb as much of that money and those jobs as he can, lest it influence some weaker brother. It is no sin to steal the ammunition of the enemy in battle, but it is a sin to destroy yourself with it.

Walk into the voting booth and vote against those who strive to place the burden of the cost of government upon the farmer, the small business man and the laborer. Vote for Paul L. Sidebottom, who will strive to carry out the pledge that the administration made to the people two years ago—to place ten cents per gallon production tax on whiskey and place the burden of the cost of government upon those most able to pay.

There are twelve senators running, dedicated to the same proposition as Paul, and if only four of them are elected, we can have this legislation enacted the very first term of the legislature. If Paul alone is elected, we will have to wait only two years until the present administration passes out of office—and Paul can, with the help of the new governor and his colleagues, restore the people of Kentucky to their rightful place as citizens, rather than the present condition, which is that of political slaves. You have the power, the right to vote, exercise it and go to the polls August 7th, and regardless of promises or threats, vote for the man whom you think will be best for you, for me, and for the people of Kentucky.

Judge N. E. Riddell For County Judge

The present condition of the Fiscal Affairs and the financial condition of Boone County is sufficient evidence that a good business man has been in charge and looked after the affairs of the County with fairness to all parts of the County and to all people in the County, the good financial condition and management of the county as a whole is shown by the following letter from the State Inspector and Examiner dated Dec. 6, 1936:

"I am enclosing a copy of my report upon a recent examination of the records, accounts and affairs of public officers of Boone County and in the yearly examination of the Counties of the State it is very seldom that we find as little to criticize and as much to commend as is revealed through our investigation of your County. I sincerely feel that the fiscal affairs of Boone County are exceptionally managed, the records show that your County has operated strictly upon a cash basis and has also lived within its income. I therefore consider your accomplishment in this connection an outstanding one.

"I want to express appreciation from this Department for the excellent cooperation that we have had in our work from Boone County Officials. The fine administration record that is being made by these officials is an encouragement and should be a helpful example for many other Counties to follow."

"Sincerely yours,
"Nat B. Sewell,
"Director of Post Audits."

The Fiscal affairs of Boone County are in excellent condition and are audited and checked annually by the State Department of Revenue by auditors sent to Boone County from that department. Boone County has no floating or current indetedness and has never had during the time that Judge N. E. Riddell has been in office. The audit made by that department for the last Fiscal Year is on file in the County Clerk's office and Hon Nat Sewell Director of Post audits in his letter dated December 6th, 1936 says:

"As a whole I sincerely feel that Boone County's fiscal affairs are exceptionally well managed. The public records covering the last year show not only that your county operated upon a strictly cash basis but has lived well within its income and conformed very satisfacorily to the requirements of the 1934 Budget Act.

"The policy of expending only such revenues as actually are necessary to carry out efficiently the essential functions of county government is a most commendable one that I should like very much to see enforced in every county in the state.

"Boone County is fortunate in having a Fiscal Court of only three members and this court is to be praised for only such meeting as actually are necessary for the transaction and consideration of the fiscal affairs that require the attention of the Court. The total cost of $186.00 for Fiscal Court meetings held during the past year is one of the lowest in the state. I am gratified to see that the members of that Court do not engage in any 'fudging' by making per diem allowances to themselves for so called "Committee Service as has been done in various other counties without justification.

"Nat B. Sewell, Director of Post Audits."

CANDIDATE FOR

STATE SENATOR

To the Voters of Boone County

As this primary election comes to an end, I want to take this opportunity of thanking the people of my native county for their kindness shown me during this campaign. I have carried on my campaign free from affiliating with any political group and if elected, promise to work for the best interests of the people of Boone and Grant counties.

I ask you to remember on election day to vote for a man from this district for the Kentucky Legislature, who is a DIRT farmer and who is deeply interested in the problems of the farmers, who comprise a large percentage of the population in these two counties. This being true, I feel that I am better qualified to serve and represent you.

You may rest assured that any consideration you may give me will be deeply appreciated.

BASEBALL BOYS GIVEN TRY-OUTS

WITH ONE OF THE MOST OUTSTANDING CLUBS IN NATIONAL LEAGUE—NO FEE IS CHARGED FOR TRY-OUT.

The most recent contribution to baseball by Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals—the summer camp method of scouting ball players—is on display at Colmbus, O., this week, when the Colmubus club of the American Association, a member of the Cardinal organization, sponsor a camp for the aspiring young playes of this section.

Rickey, head of the Cardinals' far flung farm system and originator o fit, considers summer trial camps the most revoluntionary development professional baseball has seen since thefarm system was first introduced.

In a recent interview the Cardinal chieftain remarked that "within ten years the summer camp method wil lhave replaced the baseball scout as we have known him for years. The camp system substitutes an efficient method of discovering talent for the inefficient scouting system that leaves so much to chance.

"These summer camps," Rickey continued, "will spread all over the country, even to the frontiers. They will prove even more important to professional basebal lthan farm systems. The latter provide only a means for developing talent. But first the talent must be discovered. Hence, the importance of the summer camps."

The Columbus camp opened Monday morning, Aug. 2, at 9:00 o'clock at Red Bird Stadium, and will continue for approximately one week. Boys between the ages of 17 and 23 who believe they have a future in professional baseball are urged to attend.

4-H CLUB NOTES

The Hebron Norbeh Champion 4-H club held its tour July 21. Each member visited during the day has his project up, although several had failed to keep an accurate account in their record books. We ate our lunch at the Harvest Home grounds, after which we held the meeting.

The meeting was called to order by the president, William Graves. The roll call was answered by 17 members. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Miss Gillaspie told about the 4-H Club Fair to be held August 21, and David Colville urged us to keep our record books up to date.

We reelected John Crigler as our Council Member; Virginia Reimer was elected cheer leader due to the ill health of our past leader. We adjourned by repeating the club pledge.

Katherine Jane Casper, Sec'y.

The Honorable Paul L. Sidebottom,

Williamstown, Kentucky.
Dear Senator:
In consideration of your favorable record as a Member of the Kentucky State Legislature, and in co-operation with the Four Railroad Engine and Train Service Organizations, we are pleased to endorse you for election to the office of Senator for the 26th District.

SIDEBOTTOM ENDORSED BY THE NORTHERN KENTUCKY MOTOR TRUCK CLUB

Dear Friends, Truck Owners and Operators:
We are pleading with you in behalf of the candidacy of Paul L. Sidebottom for Senator in the 26th District.
The legislation that Paul Sidebottom endorsed and worked for in the last legislative session meant more to the truckers and farmers of Kentucky than any other legislation that was up for passage.
In the interest of trucking and transportation legislation every one connected with the business, and the farmers and merchants that are benefitted by good truck laws should work for, both at home and at the polls, to elect Paul L. Sidebottom Senator.

URGES FARMERS TO SAVE CLOVER SEED

The suggestion that farmers consider saving clover seed from this year's plantings is made in a statement from the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. In many instances clover sowed last spring did so well that it should be cut either for hay or for seed.

Since there may be a shortage of clover seed next spring, together with the fact that much of this year's crop came from native seed, it is doubly important to save seed, crops men at the college believe.

Much clover last year was damaged by dry weather, and it is considered fortunate for Kentucky farmers that this year's seedings did well in much of the state. It is said that there has been much improvement in clover growing since most farmers began using only native seed.

Two Things You Can Do For Perfect Foot Balance

1. Go Barefooted constantly or
2. Wear Scientific Prescription Shoes.

N. TULCH,
Foot Comfort Specialist

Scientists know that races of people that go barefoot suffer comparatively no foot ills. This is because the ground supports their feet firmly under the center line of body-weight and along the outer side, which nature engineered stronger and tougher for weight bearing. Therefore, the feet are balanced, so the body too, is balanced. Try balancing an object on your finger—note how it wobbles and slips—until you hit the exact center of weight. You can see how, unless your body structure is held in balance, by your feet, your weight distribution shifts constantly, straining the entire body. That happens in unscientific shoes even when they are new.

Remember too, that when your feet begin to roll inward, and go down, the nerves and blood vessels in your feet are pinched and cramped, permitting waste matter to collect at all joints. Then comes inflamation and pain. It often creates symptoms of rheumatism, arthritis, and other ailments, which may find quick relief by wearing correct prescription shoes.

Those back-aches, those headaches, those leg pains may be caused by the shoes you are now wearing.

Don't take changes with your health, happiness and peace of mind. Go where schooled men will make a FREE foot analysis and you'll get amazing relief from foot TORTURE. —Adv

THREE HURT IN CAR CRASH

NEAR CONSTANCE—CROWDED OFF ROAD BY ANOTHER CAR —ALL ARE RESIDENTS OF BULLITTSVILLE.

Three persons were injured, one believed seriously, Tuesday night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a tree and turned over after being crowded off the highway by another machine on the road to Hebron near Constance, Ky.

The injured were David Bowlin, 54 years old, head cuts and shock; Edwin Bowlin, 17, his son, who was driving the car, head and arm cuts and body bruises, and Raymond Harrison, 30, broken right leg. All are residents of Bullittsville, near Hebron.

The elder Bowlin apparently was the most seriously injured, according to attaches of Booth Hospital, Covington, to which the trio was removed by the Ludlow Life Squad.

David Bowlin was held for observation. His son was released after treatment.

The driver of the other automobile did not stop, witnesses said.

HARVEST HOME FAIR TO BE HELD SEPTEMBER 11TH

According to Mr. Ben Zimmer Florence, Secretary of the Boone County arvest Home Association, there has been some misunderstanding about the Harvest Home Fair this year, as many are of the opinion that there will be no Harvest Home fair this season. Some have confused the 4-H and Utopia Club Free Fair, which will be held at the grounds on August 21st with the Harvest Home Fair.

These are two separate organizations, and there will be a Harvest Home Fair as usual.

Mr. Zimmer announced that the Harvest Home catalogues are well underway, and that they will be in the hands of the public by next Saturday, August 21. Watch the columns of this newspaper for further announcements from the Harvest Home.

Roy Johnson in the presence of his many friends and relatives.

He leaves two sons, two daughters and eleven grandchildren and one brother to mourn his going. Burial was in Big Bone cemetery.

Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wayman, of Covington, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walton, of Burlington.

ALUMNI WILL MEET SATURDAY

AT BURLINGTON SCHOOL FOR PICNIC AND PROGRAM—ATHLETIC EVENTS SCHEDULED FOR AFTERNOON.

The annual meeting of the Alumni Association of the Burlington high school will be held Saturday, August 14th, beginning at 2:30 p. m. (central standard time). The afternoon will be devoted to outdoor recreations, followed by picnic lunch and program inside the gymnasium.

The first invitations that were sent out were lost in the mail, and second invitations were sent as soon as this was discovered. However, if you do fail to get an invitation, this does not mean that you are to stay at home, because every graduate, teacher, principal and any member of their immediate family are invited to attend.

Much preparation has been made this year to make this picnic worthwhile, and the entire program has been arranged so that everyone will be well entertained. Mrs. Pauline Smith will be in charge of the outdoor activities for the girls and ladies, and Ray Ernst formerly of Hebron, will be in charge of the boys and men.

BURLINGTON HEADS LEAGUE

AS PETERSBURG AND BOB & GENE BREAK EVEN OVER WEEK-END — WHITE VILLA AND BIG BONE WITHDRAW.

Bob & Gene met the Petersburg boys last Saturday at Petersburg and were defeated by a score of 9 to 8, and again on Sunday, Petersburg met the Florence boys on the Crescent Springs park with Bob & Gene winning by a score of 13 to 4. Both games were hard fought, as both teams were battling for second position.

The White Villa and Big Bone have withdrawn from the league, leaving only five teams to finish the elimination series. There is only one game scheduled for Saturday of this week, it being between Bob & Gene and Burlington, at Burlington.

Belleview Wins Over Hebron

Belleview won the second game of the elimination series as they took the Saturday afternoon game at Hebron by a score of 8 to 4.

After losing the game last Sunday to Bob & Gene, Belleview was back hitting their stride. Saturday Wilson let the Hebron club down with five hits and received fine support, with the execption of the fifth inning.

Belleview scored two runs in the fourth on two hits and one error. Hebron scored three runs in the fifth on two singles and two errors to go ahead three to two. The sixth inning was scoreless. Belleview came to bat in the seventh with the top of the batting order up. Captain W. Rogers, singled, stole second, D. Williamson singled Moore doubled and H. Rogers hit one against the school house for a home run.

When the game ended the totals were as follows: Belleview eight runs and three errors. Hebron four runs, five hits and four errors.

Every man on the Belleview team chalked up a hit with the exception of Wilson, and it was his first time to fall for several games.

Practically all of the supply has been placed in the hands of 4-H and Utopia leaders and cooperators according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The clubs are grateful for the splendid cooperation advertisers have given toward the catalogue. The entire expense of the event is paid thru advertisements and returns from the stands on the grounds on the day of the event, already sufficient returns have been received to make the event a financial success.

The work for the fair is on a strictly cooperative basis with every 4-H and Utopia Club member, leader and cooperator giving freely of their time and energy. There are no paid officers. The only hope of the organization is that all of the people of the county will plan to attend, meet old friends and enjoy a day of picnic, recreation and good fellowship.

ESTEEMED LADY DIES

Death called and took from our midst Mrs. Emma D. Tanner, age 76 years, widow of the late J. J. Tanner, who died just three years ago in March. Death was attributed to a fractured hip and failing health.

She leaves a vast circle of friends who will hold in reverence a loving memory of her.

She was a member of the Hopeful Lutheran Church for many years.

She is survived by her two daughters, Miss Irba Tanner and Mrs. Chester Aylor; one grandson, Elmo E. Aylor and two half brothers, A. G. Beemon, of Florence and W. P. Beemon, of Burlington.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of funeral arrangements.

FLORENCE LOTS TO BE SOLD SAT.

BY R. G. KINMAN REALTY AUCTION CO.—LOTS AND BABY FARM DESIRABLE TRACTS OF LAND.

Florence will be the scene of another public auction on Saturday, August 14, at 10:00 a. m., when the L. T. Utz Subdivision, consisting of 45 lots and one baby farm, will be sold. The administratrix, Mrs. Jane G. Utz, has engaged the R. G. Kinman Realty Auction Co., 408 Coppin Building Covington, to conduct the sale, and R. G. Kinman and J. L. Kinman will be the auctioneers.

Mr. Kinman says these beautiful lots will be sold to the highest bidder, regardless of price or weather, which is his usual method. The lots are located just west of the Dixie Highway in one of the best residential sections of Florence. Many attractive homes already have been built there. The improvements are hard surface streets, sidewalks, city water, electric and telephone service—no assessments. The lots are near churches of all denominations, schools, public and parochial, and close to bus line.

Mr. Kinman extends a cordial invitation to everyone to attend. There will be many free cash prizes, and special presents for the ladies. Music will be furnished by Al Schild's Band, and lunch will be served by the ladies of the Hopeful Lutheran Church.

The Burlington baseball club report they sold over 200 pounds of fish at the courthouse last Saturday, and that they could have sold much more had they been able to purchase them for the occasion.

RIDDELL ELECTED COUNTY JUDGE BY 585 MAJORITY

Frank Walton Elected Sheriff By Large Majority—Sidebottom and Ransom Win By Small Margin

County Judge N. E. Riddell was heartily endorsed Saturday by the voters of this county for re-election to the office he now fills, winning over his opponent, E. R. Rivard by a total of 585 majority. F. M. Walton, defeated J. W. Grant for the office of Sheriff by a plurality of almost 2 to 1, carrying fourteen out of he seventeen precincts in the county.

What seemed to be one of the quietest elections this county has known in years, turned out to be a very thrilling event for the entire county. Saturday night thousands gathered at the courthouse to hear the final returns as they were broadcast from the second floor of the courthuse building.

There were 4224 voters registered as democrats in this county and were entitled to vote in the primary. However, only 3214 votes were polled. This was an exceptionally light vote, compared to the previous primary, before the registration law was passed, requiring everyone to register in order to vote, in which over 5,000 votes were cast.

H. E. White, defeated R. S. Houston in Magistrate's race from the second district by a vote 700 to 352.

C. D. Benson for County Clerk, Wilton Stephens, County Tax Commissioner; Elmer Kirkpatrick, Jailer; Chas. W. Riley, County Attorney and Howard Huey, Magistrate of District No. 1 had no opposition.

In the Representative's race, Ransom was victorious by only a small majority in this county, with both Cleek and Johnson running a close second and third. In Grant County, which is combined with Boone to form the 62nd District, Ransom was again victorious by only a small majority over Johnson, the total vote being, Ransom 2337, Johnson 2206 and Cleek 1613.

In the Attorney General's race, Hubert Meredith, administration candidate, carried Boone county over his opponent, Francis M. Burke, by a vote of 1108 to 1046.

Paul Sidebottom, Williamstown, defeated Hoyt Best, Falmouth, for the Democratic nomination and election to the Kentucky Senate from the Twenty-sixth District, complete unofficial returns showed Wednesday morning.

Sidebottom overcame Best's lead —built up principally in Best's home county of Pendleton—by the late count in his own home county of Grant.

Sidebottom's majority in the district was 268 and in Grant county it was 1,308. Best carried Pendleton by 882. Sidebottom carried Boone, and lost Gallatin and Owen by small majorities.

This race appeared to be the only senatorial contest in the state in which an anti-administration candidate had won after a clear-cut administration and anti-administration fight. Only one other anti-administration candidate was thought to have a chance of winning a Senate seat, J. E. Wise, of Elizabethtown.

RECORD CROWD IN BURLINGTON

SATURDAY NIGHT TO HEAR RETURNS FROM ELECTION—APPROXIMATELY 3,000 IN ATTENDANCE.

What was said to be one of the largest crowds every to assemble in Burlington was present Saturday night to hear the returns from the election. It is thought that at least one-half of Boone's population turned out.

Parking space was at a premium from 7:00 p. m. until all votes were counted. People were gathered around the courthouse from every angle and the streets and places of business were full all during the evening.

Many of our older citizens claim that is was the largest crowd ever to assemble in Burlington and was one of the most orderly. Occasionally one would see a citizen who had imbibed too freely of alcohol, but even these were very few.

All places of business reported business good.

Monday morning another large crowd was present at the county seat, due to circuit court convening on that day. The court is not expected to be in session only a short time as there are very cases on docket.

TO OUR HAMILTON SUBSCRIBERS

It has been called to our attention that our subscribers getting their mail through the Hamilton postoffice have not been receiving their Recorders every week, and we are glad that you have notified us of this irregularity.

This office is unable to offer an explanation of this situation, but we can assure you that your papers are mailed from this office each week, and are always directed properly. However, the postal regulations require us to send your papers through the Covington postoffice before they reach your local office, and we have had considerable trouble wherever such conditions exist.

This is not the only case where the mail must travel through several offices before it reaches its destination, as we have several towns located here in the county where the mail must be sent to Covington and then returned to a neighboring town not six miles from where it started. This not only affords a better opportunity for the mail to be lost, but it makes our subscribers wait sometimes as long as two days before they get their paper.

Our paper is printed and put in the mail late Wednesday afternoon, so that it can be delivered on the rural routes on Thursday morning. Where we have direct connections here in the county everyone receive their paper on Thursday. It doesn't seem hardly fair for some to get good mail service and others have to wait sometimes until Saturday before they receive mail they should have gotten on Thursday.

We want to thank our good friend, Mrs. Tom Huff for reporting this matter to us, and if you still fail to get your papers, kindly notify us and we will make an investigation and find out why your newspapers are not delivered.

TIME TO END IT

With all due respect to those who have lost their lives in stunt flying, it must by this time be apparent to everyone that this type of unnecessary risk of life should be stopped. If stunts were necessary to further the science of flying it would be different. But the fact that the government some years ago banned stunt flying in army planes indicates that it neither aids science or adds anything to flying skill.

This day in time the average citizen around Boone County is not interested in feats of daring in the air. Flying the oceans, looping the earth or setting new speed and endurance records mean little to the ordinary man. But when it becomes necessary, or has been the case quite often, to call out whole fleets of ocean-going vessels to search for a lost aviator who was merely flying for notoriety or money, then stunt flying assumes an entirely different meaning. It becomes of public interest then because the thousands of dollars necessary to operate the battleships and cruisers while they are searching for the lost aviator comes out of the pockets of the tax-paying public. The immense sum required to maintain such search could be used in the navy to much better advantage, as the average man views it.

When a circus acrobat does his stunts the government isn't called upon to hold a net under him. So when a stunt flyer strikes out to seek publicity and possibly some easy money he should be warned in advance that Uncle Sam is not going to waste time and money hunting for him in case he takes a tumble or gets lost. If the government would adopt a rule to this effect it would end stunt flying in a hurry.

WATER'S TOLL

In a good many homes around Boone County parents dread to see the summer season arrive because of the danger from drowning to which children are subjected. They realize that the ordinary youngster does not fully appreciate this danger, and innocently takes chances those of more mature years would guard against.

As a rule drownings are uncommon in the ordinary community, so much so that the public is apt to underestimate the death toll when considered from a nation-wide angle. No definite figures are at hand, but it is safe to say that if the average father and mother knew how many are drowned in the U. S. during a single season they would live in still greater dread of summer's arrival each year.

Anyone who cannot swim should never venture into water where he or she is unfamiliar with the bottom, which may suddenly drop off and throw them beyond their depth. And persons who can swim should always be on their guard against diving into water of unknown depth, and against going into a cold lake or stream after violent exercise or a heavy meal. The difference between swimming and bathing as enjoyable exercises, and as dangerous sports, will be found in the one word: Caution! Do not underestimate the danger of water. Its death toll every summer runs into thousands and can only be reduced through extreme carefulness on the part of those who go into it.

MORE EGG MONEY

Housewives around our county who depend upon hens for their pin money as well as those who go at poultry raising on a large scale will be cheered by a new agricultural forecast that good profits are going to result from the sale of chickens and eggs next fall. Food prices probably will decline, the federal experts say, and egg prices will advance in the next few months. There are 15 percent fewer young chickens in the country at this time than a year ago, and on this they largely base their prediction of better times for those who sell poultry and eggs. In times past it has been found that poultry forecases made by the department have been correct and conservative, so those who go in for the sale of chickens and eggs will no doubt be justified in taking on a broad smile. It may not be the kind of news the consumer likes to hear, but he will cheerfully accept any reasonable increase in chicken and egg prices because he knows that this kind of money usually stays pretty close to home.

DANGEROUS AUGUST

While one of the most popular months in the year since it brings vacations for the greatest number of people, and usually a lot of pleasant weather, August is nevertheless recognized as about the most dangerous month in the year from the standpoint of health. It is the month in which it is necessary to guard against over-exertion, since heat prostrations are more numerous than at any other time. It is also the month in which extreme care is needed to avoid typhoid and malarial illness, the human system being in condition to contract these ailments more readily in August than it is during the cooler months.

These facts explain why physicians and health officials are always insistent that property owners exert every effort during August to keep their premises free of weeds. They know that weeds contribute more than anythngi else to the diseases for which the month is noted, and they also know there is less sickness and fewer epidemics in communities where weeds and cess-pools are not permitted to exist. The fly and mosquito get in their heaviest work of carrying disease germs during August. They are thwarted in this only through the elimination of their favorite abiding places—among weeds and about damp spots and cess-pools.

It will not be long now until cooler weather will bring safety from these pests, but do not go unprotected until that time. Cut the weeds about your premises once more, scatter some more lime, and let's make sure that our county will not have no August regrets.

THE THERMOMETER

Say what you will, Boone County citizens who refuse to pay any attention to the thermometer and who walk away when someone begins to make warm weather comparisons are undoubtedly the most comfortable men in the community. The trouble is there are too few of their kind. The average man consults the thermometer and lets it work him into a state of mind where he actually suffers more than he would if he was ignorant of how high it registered. In other words, hot weather is largely a state of mind, just as many people read a medical ad. and then imagine they have every symptom described in it. So right now is a good time to study that science called "the power of mind over matter.' One way to start is to either throw the thermometer away, or refuse to consult it and see if you are not really more comfortable than you are when you keep a constant eye on it.

THE PRICE OUTLOOK

While Boone County merchants are not given to making predictions, the belief among them is general that with farm products bringing the highest prices for many years the necessities of life are due to mount in price with the approach of fall and winter. Farm products this year will reach the enormous total of ten billion dollars. With all this money finding its way into circulation, it is only natural that price trends are going to be upward. Even now it is rising, and each day sees a slight increase in one or more commodities. Where it will stop or when, nobody knows, and since there is no possible way to avert it the solution would seem to be in buying now everything needed during the fal land winter months. Stocking up with necessities at current prices should turn out to be a sensible and profitable investment. It is safe to say there will not be any decline from present prices. The trend will be in the other direc. tion. The ones who buy now for future consumption will, market experts assert, have reason later on to be thankful they did so.

NIGHT DRIVING

This is the season when night driving is at its height, and a large part of it is being done by vacationists over strange roads and in strange territory. There is always added danger in traveling over a road you are not familiar with, especially at night. That being the case, the advice of a prominent Detroit auto-maker is worth heeding. He says failure to keep headlight bulbs free of dust, and the lamps cleaned and brushed off, reduces the intensity of the headlights from 15 to 35 percent. Dirty bulbs and failure to keep bulbs in focus serves to scatter the light rays, making it more difficult to see as far or as clearly as if they are kept in perfect order. There may be a tip that will prevent a bad accident, and since light bulbs cost but a few pennies, and keeping lenses clean requires but a few moment's time, it looks like the kind of advice that every motorist should be glad to act upon.

A TOTAL LOSS

A man who owns a seasonal business but who spends about one hundred dollars a year in advertising says that he has learned one thing from experience that has cost him money, as so much experience does. He says he has learned that advertising money spent for anything else but space in the local newspaper is almost a dead loss. He says he tried other methods which were sold to him by smooth-talking salesmen, but none of them produced results. The difference between newspaper advertising and other advertising, says this man who has learned from experience, is that the newspaper is read carefully by nearly everyone who takes it while other forms of advertising are thrown away without reading. The fact that more money is spent each year for newspaper advertising than for all other forms of advertising combined also indicates that if you want to get the most for your advertising money then the newspaper is the medium to spend it with.

ROADSIDE BEAUTY

It is a pleasure to learn that officials and residents in many sections of the country are beginning to realize that roadside decorations are becoming an asset and that the expense of such highway beauty treatments constitutes a fine investment. Now that we are determined to have beauty as well as utility, our roadsides are beginning to look better. Trees, shrubs, flowers and grass are hiding the marks of the shovel and the pick. Wayside parks and picnic places are multiplying. Eyesores are becoming less numerous. Any place that persists in making the best of its surroundings is establishing a reputation for progressiveness that will always stand it in good stead. Any property owner who tries to make the roading leading past his place attractive adds much to its value. It cost little to plant trees and shrubs and flowers, and the wisdom of doing so will be reflected in property values in the years on ahead.

Must She Wear His "Ex's" Discarded Ring?

DEAR Mrs. Post: I am really worried about how I am going to handle a situation which I feel coming on. I mean that I am engaged to a man who was married, and when he became divorced, his wife gave him back both engagement and wedding ring. I believe from something he has said to me that he expects to give me this same engagement ring. I don't believe it possible that he would consider giving me the wedding ring although I don't know definitely, but we'll cross that bridge later. The complicating point is the fact that his first wife used to live here and went with the same people I do now, and they would of course recognize either or both of these rings. It is beside the question, but I want to make clear that I had nothing to do with the divorce; and marrying him was far from my mind until just recently. But how can I make it plain to him that I must not be expected to wear her rings?

Answer: I can't imagine that he would expect you to wear a stone that was hers without having it reset so as to be unrecognizable. If you have reason to suspect that he intends giving you this same ring, tell him frankly—and now—that it would make you very unhappy to wear anything so closely associated with someone else. As to the wedding ring, he would certainly buy you a new one.

Making a "Fourth."

DEAR Mrs. Post: Two years ago I began substituting for a friend in her bridge club, the idea at the time being that I was to take her place just for a few meetings. She has been ill and away but is now ready to come back. They are all insisting that I must stay in the club, too, each one taking turns at sitting out during the games. I would rather discontinue this bridge club altogether, but how can I do this diplomatically without having anyone feel that I am dissatisfied with the arrangement?

Answer: Why not tell them that you would be perfectly delighted to be put down as a supernumerary and that you would come any time in anyone's place?

PLANT LIMAS EYES DOWN

A test made at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station indicates that it is no myth that lima beans should be planted eyes down. Two 200-foot rows were planted, one with eyes down, the others just as the beans fell. The same lot of seed was used and both rows covered about an incn deep. The stand in the row planted eyes down was 375 plants and in the hit-and-miss row 200 plants, in round numbers.

Another reason why people are not interested in what you say is because you are not interested yourself.

Lesson for August 15

GOD GIVES LAWS TO A NATION.

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:1-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind . . . Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy self. Matt. 22:37, 39.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Good Laws.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Before the Mount of God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why a Nation Needs Laws.

Basic laws have been laid down by God for the orderly administration of his universe. Men see them clearly in the physical universe, although at times they do not recognize the One who created all things.

Physical laws are of great importance, but of even deeper significance are the moral and spiritual laws which control the human life. There is in the world a moral law—a distinction between right and wrong—which man may ignore only to his own sorrow, and which he cannot abrogate or destroy. All laws of men which are true and right are founded on this underlying moral law, and are in reality simply a development and interpretation of "God's Code of Morals"—the Ten Commandments.

These commandments given to Israel at Mt. Sinai are worthy of careful study on the part of every reader. They may be grouped under two divisions.

I. A True View of God (vv. 1-11). The first and most important question to be asked regarding any law is, "By whom was it established?" Legislation by an unauthorized person or organization has no power over others. Who gave the ten commandments? Verse 1 tells us "God spake all these words."

Men sneer at theology as being out - moded, but the fact is that Christian doctrine is the only safe foundation for Christian character. Unless my view of God is right, my life will be wrong. Until I know him I will not appreciate the authority of his law.

1. Whom to worship (vv. 2-5). There can be but one true God, and he alone is to be worshiped. He is a personal being, ready to enter into communion with each one of us. No image can take his place.

2. How to worship (vv. 6, 7). We are to love him and keep his commandments. There is to be no sham about this, for no matter how sweet and pious may be the praise and prayer of a man, he has taken the Lord's name in vain unless he keeps the Lord's commandments by holy living.

3. When to worship (vv. 8-11). God has ordained that man should not incessantly bear the burden of toil. He is to have a day of rest and a time for worhip, undisturbed by the duties and responsibilities of daily labor. America needs a mighty stirring up about the desecration of the Lord's day.

II. A Right Relationship to Man (vv. 12-17).

To be right with God means that we will also be right with our fellow man.

1. Family life (v. 12). The fifth commandment has to do with the relation between child and parent. There is a plain and direct command that father and mother should be honored. Only in respect and obedience to parents can the child possibly find true and proper development.

2. Physical life (vv. 13, 14). God is interested in our bodies. Already we have noted his provision for a day of rest each week. Now we are reminded of the sanctity of human life. "Thou shalt not kill," and remember there are many other ways to kill a man than by shooting him. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith makes a telling point by reminding us that we may kill others by selling them tainted food, intoxicating liquors, or "dope;" by neglect of duty, by careless driving, by failing to provide employees with sanitary and healthful surroundings.

There is another way that the body may be destroyed—by its misuse in adulterous living.

3. Social life (vv. 15-17). "Thou shalt not steal" — and remember any dishonest appropriation of what does not belong to you is stealing—call it what you will. And "false witness"—how it has honeycombed our very civilization. Not a little of it is found within the church, more shame upon us! Lastly, we come to "covetousness"—which has been called one of "the respectable sins of nice people." It is subtle and often hidden. Let us root it out of our own lives by God's grace.

Enthusiasm in Work

Enthusiasm is the element of success in everything. It is the light that leads and the strength that lifts men on and up in the great struggles of scientific pursuits and of professional labor. It robs endurance of difficulty, and makes a pleasure of duty.—Bishop Doane.

TON-LITTER PIGS

GAIN POUND DAILY

Nine pigs which S. R. Reeves of Green county is feeding in the Kentucky ton-litter contest were averaging a pound gain daily when 115 days old. Each is a good husky individual with large feed capacity, the litter eating 100 ears of corn and nine gallons of skimmilk daily and running in Korean lespedeza, red clover and alfalfa.

In finishing the litter Mr. Reeves plans to use ground wheat in place of corn, supplemented with skimmilk or tanake, salt and pasture. Thrifty pigs should gain 100 pounds on six bushels of wheat or less, 20 pounds or less of tankage or its equivalent and pasture, says Grady Sellards, extension field agent in charge of the ton-litter work for the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Thus, he notes, at least a part of the wheat crop map profitably be marketed thru hogs.

County Agent, H. H. Dickerson reports that Cord Blakeman, another Green county farmer, is finishing two litters of 20 pigs in the ton-litter contest.

CHINESE CABBAGE

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

A "fall garden" vegetable whose acquaintance is well worth making is Chinese cabbage, or "celery cabbage," as it is sometimes called. Its leaves are somewhat similar to mustard in appearance, but there the likeness ends, for Chinese cabbage has superb quality and tenderness. In flavor it resembles tender spring cabbake, and it may be cooked in any of the many ways that ordinary cabbage is prepared. Or, it may be used raw ,as a salad.

Unlike ordinary late cabbage which must have been started in June, and which must accordingly have undergone the rigors of an unfriendly season, to say nothing of having had to survive insect onslaughts during that time, Chinese cabbage need not be started until early August, after which time the season has become easier, and the number of insects less.

Chinese cabbage is a rank feeder, particularly of nitrogen. Accordingly, the first step in preparing for it is to spread a generous coat of stable manure, before the land is turned. If the soil is otherwise in good condition, lack of nitrogen may be met by top-dressing or side-dressing the seedlings with nitrate of soda. One pound to 50 square feet or to 50 feet of row, in two dressings, two weeks apart, is right.

In order that the cabbage may develop quickly, as it should, to have top quality, there must be moisture. The seed-bed should accordingly be deep and fine all the way down, so that all rains are caught and held.

Although "slips" for transplanting may be grown in a separate seed bed, it is more safe to sow the seed scantily in the rows direct, and thin the seedlings to a final stand of 12 inches.

Cultivation should be thorough enough to remove all weeds, but not deep. Mere "shaving" of the soil is best. No more soil should be drawn to the rows than takes place in cultivating; the surface should be kept level.

Although insect trouble should wane in August, there are several pests that may cause concern, particularly while the seedlings are coming up. These are the the flea-beetle, the leaf-hopper, the cabbage louse and sometimes the green cabbage worm. All four of these may be held in check by spraying with a combination of Bordeaux mixture, tobacco extract and arsenical. It is important to act promptly, as soon as any insect injury is observed. The flea-beetle riddles the leaflets with many fine holes; the leaf-hoppers cause the leaves to turn brown, and the plant lice make them turn under the edges. Cabbage worm evidence is so easily recognizable as to need no description.

Chinese cabbage is proof against ordinary frosts. In fact, firm heading is delayed until definitely cool nights come. It is subject to storage, but not for so long a time as is ordinary cabbage. An excellent way to "store" it is to lift the plants entire and set them in boxes of earth placed in the house cellar. Or, they may be set in the earthen floor of the cellar itself. It should be watered generously, but in such a way that the foliage is kept dry. Under such conditions, Chinese cabbage has been kept in crisp condition until after Christmas.

ENDIVE

Another "fall garden" vegetable for gardeners to try, whose wider acquaintance is quite worth while making, is endive. Including it in any garden has many advantages. The first is that its flavor is distinctive and different; thus, it adds interest to the diet. Another is that in making preparation for its growing, the garden must have been cleaned of weeds and debris. This has its esthetic value, for a littered garden is not a thing of beauty, and the very practical value, too, that there will be fewer weeds to fight in the summer to follow. A third, and perhaps the most cogent, is that the endive will abundantly pay for itself apart from any other advantage that may be cited for it.

The seed should be sown in early August, either in a separate seed bed and transplanted, or in clusters of two or three seeds spaced at eight inches, the seedlings thinned to one, in the rows where the endive is to mature. The latter way is somewhat the safer, in that the hazard of transplanting under unfriendly circumstances is avoided.

A foliage crop, endive needs land rich in nitrogen. This may be supplied by turning under a generous coat of manure, or by working into the seed bed high grade fertilizer. Another way of satisfying endive's nitrogen needs is to side-dress the seedlings after they have definitely started growing. Nitrate of soda is the best fertilizer to use this way, and the rate is one pound to 100 feet of row, each dressing; two or three should be given two weeks apart.

Endive needs moisture a-plenty, too. To this end ,the seed bed should be deep and fine, so that subsoil moisture may rise and so that any rains that may fall are held.

Several insects may need to be watched while the seedlings are small. These are the flea-beetle and the leaf-hopper, but they may be stopped by applying the double-duty spray; Bordeaux mixture and tobacco, or rotenone spray or dust. Sometimes, the "general feeders" chewing insects bother. To control these, as well as the previously-named two, arsenical may be added to the Bordeaux mixture combination, or rotenone spray or dust may be used alone, to control all three. Toward the end of the season, lice sometimes come. Tobacco extract is effective against them, but because of the likelihood of its affecting the flavor of the endive, rotenone dust or spray, tasteless and utterly harmless to humans, again, is recommended.

The growth habit of endive is flat rosette, and the leaves are deep green, and the flavor is somewhat strong. To temper the flavor and to produced blanched hearts, the flat-lying leaves should be tied up loosely, with a soft cord or with strips of cloth. This should not be done for longer than two weeks before the "heads" are to be harvested, lest water may collect and rotting take place.

Endive bears light frosts quite well. In fact, it does its most rapid growing after a few frosts have occurred. After severe cold has come, leaves or straw may be placed about tied-up heads and endive may be had long after anything else but the hardier greens have been destroyed.

FARM MONEY

The joyous report of grain experts to the effect that this country has just harvested its first two billion dollar wheat crop since 1929 ought to be received with cheers by those who have long prayer that the American farmer would finally get a "break." If there is a single citizen around Boone County who cannot find satisfaction in it, then there is something lacking in his makeup.

Timely rains that fell in the midst of a heat wave through the chief corn-growing states also made ideal conditions for that crop, and corn is even more of a money crop than wheat. The total value of the country's grain crops for the present season is fixed by the experts at almost $4,000,000,000—the highest in eight years and 13 percent higher than last year. Their estimated income for all farm products for this season is placed at $10,000,000,000.

When ten billion dollars are dumped into the pockets of the farmers of the nation in a single year it means more than appears on the surface. That vast sum will be spent—not hoarded, nor invested in securities that can do the public no good. With ten billion dollars quickly finding its way into circulation the effect upon business of every description is apparent. Farm money does more than any other kind of money to make good times for not only the farmer but everyone else who has something to sell. It is certain to make the coming fall and winter the most prosperous this nation has known for quite a few years.

$15 PROFIT PER EWE IN KENTUCKY

Forty western ewes, purchased as lambs two years ago, returned a labor income of $15 each this year for Virgil Williams, a farmer in Larue County, Ky., according to County Agent Frank G. Melton.

As three-year-olds this year, the flock produced 415 pounds of wool which sold for 40 cents a pound, a total of $166, or more than the feed bill.

Fifty-six lambs were saved, worth, on the basis of those sold, $10 each, or $560. Wool and lambs totaled $726, or $18 a head. The total feed bill, including corn, oats alfalfa and shredded fodder was $125.10.

It takes a pretty shiftless sort of man to blame his poverty on the will of Providence.

LEGUMES, HAY DEMONSTRATION

VISITED IN BOONE COUNTY TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY—CROPS BETTER WHERE LIME AND PHOSPHATE USED.

The successfully growing of grass and legume crops was seen in pasture and hay crop demonstrations the past week, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Eleven demonstrations were visited on last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Generally speaking stands of grass and clover were better on lime and phosphate treated plots, phosphate alone was second best, lime third and in many cases failure where no treatment was given. The results varied considerably depending on (1) the fertility of the soil, (2) previous treatments with lime and phosphate, (3) seeding mixture used and (4) management of the fields this year.

The most striking and probably the most accurately kept demonstration visited was found on the farm of F. H. Rouse of near Burlington. Outstanding production was found on that part of a field where treated with lime and phosphate compared with an almost complete failure where no treatment was applied. The second best demonstration was found on one of the best alfalfa fields in the county located on the farm of John J. Klopp of near Petersburg. A number of other splendid fields were seen. Many farmers with excellent growing crops failed to have good demonstrations because they treated the whole field and failed to leave check plots to show the difference resulting from treatment or else had treated the field heavy with phosphate in the form of commercial fertilizer on the tobacco or corn crop before seeding to grass and legumes.

(1) It would pay to test all fields for lime and phosphate to learn needs before giving heavy applications.

(2) Lime and phosphate and if possible a very light coat of manure will likely give from two to ten times the yield of pasture and hay crops compared with no treatment and will result in more plants living on the ground as well as better growth per plant.

(3) Lime and phosphate while being the steps most Boone County farmers are backward on using are not the only necessities for successful crops. There is no substitute for good management and favorable weather.

The best place for most men to hide their money so their wives won't find it is to put it in the basket with their undarned socks.

Middle-age is that period in a man's life when he can look both ways without seeing much.

WILL ROGERS SHRINE MOST UNIQUE SINGING TOWER IN WORLD

Colorado Springs, Colo.—The beautiful Will Rogers Shrine of the Sun is to become one of the most unique singing towers in the world. Spencer Penrose, who has built the granite memorial on Cheyenne mountain, half a mile above the Broadmoor hotel, is now having installed an elaborate system of Westminster chimes and vibra harp which can be operated automatically or through a console on which concerts can be given.

The silvery notes will be amplified and sent out over the entire Pike's Peak region. Westminster chimes will be heard on the hour and each quarter hour, starting with the songs of the birds at dawning of each new day and continuing until 11 at night when they close the day with a hymn. After dark, floodlights will illuminate the shaft like a jewel set in velvet. The lights will come on gradually ten second before the song of the chimes, and thirty seconds after the last note has been lost in the night, the light will be dimmed to extinction.

The singington tower will be in readiness for formal dedication of the shrine on Sept. 6. Almost two years have been required to complete the memorial. Friends of the late Will Rogers from all corners of the nation are preparing to be present for the dedication. Special trains from California, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois are to carry thousands to the shrine for the dedicatory service to be held at 11 a. m. on Sept. 6—Labor day.

Because Will Rogers was the dean of cowboys, a world-wide Will Rogers Memorial rodeo will be held Sept. 4, 5 and 6 on the Broadmoor hotel polo grounds, just below the shrine. The opportunity to memorial-cowboys. The Pique's Peak Polo association is offering handsome trophies and $15,000 cash prizes.

COLLEGE ISSUES SHEEP CIRCULAR

"The Breeding Season for the Farm Flock of Sheep" is the name of a new circular issued by the the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. The author is Richard C. Miller, field agent in sheep husbandry. He discusses factors relative to breeding the farm flock and points out certain practices which result in larger, more uniform and more profitable lambs. Copies may be had from county agents or by writing to the college. Ask for circular No. 301.

The average man never needs to worry much about his summer vacation. His boss tells him when he can go and his wife tells him where he's going.

HOMEMAKERS' CAMPS ATTRACT 518 WOMEN

Five hundred and eighteen members of homemakers' clubs in Kentucky enjoyed a week's outing at the four district camps held this summer under the direction of the home demonstration section of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

Two camps at the Blue and Grey Park in Todd county were attended by 329 women. The camp at the Experiment Substation at Quicksand drew 104 women from eastern counties, while the north-central camp at Doe Run in Meade county had an attendance of 85 homemakers.

Miss Lulie Logan and Miss Zelma Monroe of the College of Agriculture acted as camp managers, assisted by county home demonstration agents, and Miss Myrtle Weldon, state leader of home demonstration work, had charge of the instruction in handcraft, which included the decorating of 1,200 pieces of pottery.

Instruction in the appreciation of music and in choral work was given by Mrs. F. H. Kelley of McCracken county, who also directed community singing programs.

Recreational activities, which comprised a part of all programs, were directed by Miss Ella Gardner, a specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture. She also gave lectures and conducted discussions of recreation.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Six hundred western ewes, 30 purebred rams and 250 registered bred sows are part of the program to improve and enlarge livestock raising in Grayson county. The county already has an enviable reputation for its poultry production.

Twenty acres of bottom land on the farm of C. H. Owen in Rockcastle county produced 28 bushels of wheat to the acre, after it had been drained and treated with limestone and phosphate. The crop nearly paid the reclamation cost.

Two hundred trees on the farm of Joe Towrey in Daviess county will produce 2,500 bushels of apples, it was estimated at a recent meeting at the orchard. A spray program held insect pests and diseases under perfect control.

Charles Glenn, 11-year-old Caldwell county, Ky., 4-H club boy, won th e grand champion of a sheep show at Evansville, Ind., and received 44 cents a pound for his 90-pound lamb. Dorothy Lester, a Caldwell county club girl, received $32 in prizes on her sheep.

Ninety-four walnut and cherry stools were topped with Hong Kong grass and 10 chairs were reseated in homemakers' lessons in reupholstering and refinishing furniture in Boyd county. One hundred and eighty-seven women attended the meetings.

As a result of good feed crops, Breckinridge county farmers list the needs of the county as 1,000 young cows, 2,000 steer and he'fer calves, 1,500 yearling steers and heifers, 100 registered bulls, 5.000 breeding ewes, 500 registered rams 1,000 yearling fillies and 2,000 spring pigs.

MORE FARM MACHINERY

County Agent John R. Collins tells how three men did the work of 50 on a farm in Woodford county, Ky., by using a side-delivery rake pulled by a tractor to turn twice daily a million pounds of bluegrass seed cured by Centry McCauley. Instead of handling with forks the grass was turned with the rake and then picked up with a loader. Woodford county harvested one of its largest crops of bluegrass seed.

FARM LEGISLATION DOOMED FOR THE TIME

Washington, July 29—Disagreement between farm organizations over details of an agricultural bill made it virtually certain tonight that one more major item on President Roosevelt's program will be heaved overboard to lighten the ship as congress speeds toward adjournment.

Chairman Ellison D. Smith, of the senate agricultural committee, already has abandoned thought of passing a general farm bill. Today Chairman Marvin Jones (D-Texas) adopted a similar view after conferring with representatives of agrarian groups. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace left town a month ago, indicating he had given up hope.

Yet President Roosevelt considers farm legislation one of the most important of his objectives. As recently as last Friday he said that if the good crops prospects this year are continued in 1938, surpluses might be built up which would lead to another farm depression such as that attending the 1929 crash.

The same argument for quick action has been advanced by administration senators, notably by Senator Robert M. LaFollette (P-Wis.), immediately on his return from a week-end cruise with the President. The administration argument is that legislation, to be effective, must be passed well in advance of next year's planting.

TESTS SHOW VALUE OF SOIL TREATMENT

The value of good soil management is brought out in a report of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station of results obtained on the test field which the Station maintains near Campbellsville in Taylor county. Preliminiary work was done in 1919 to start the rotation, but only corn was harvested last year; so the results for 1920 to 1936 are used for illustration. A rotation of corn, wheat and mixed legume and grass hay was used. On one set of plots 4 tons of limestone per acre were applied in the 18 years. Also, to this plot 16 percent superphosphate was added at the average rate of 150 pounds per acre per year for adjacent set of plots no limestone or superphosphate was applied. No manure was used until 1926; since then it was applied for corn on each set of plots, in weights equal to the three crops harvested the previous year, wheat grain excepted.

The average yields of the first three crops without lime and phosphate were: Corn, 24 bushels; wheat, 3 bushels; hay, 860 pounds. Where limestone and phosphate were used the yields were: Corn, 42 bushels; wheat. 7 bushels, and hay 2,300 pounds. The average yield for the whole time without lime or phosphate were: Corn (16 crops), 30 bushels; wheat (14 crops), 5 bushels; hay (14 crops), 1,570 pounds; while where lime and phosphate were used the yields were: Corn, 57 bushels; wheat, 13 bushels, and hay, 3,720 pounds. There were some failures of each crop.

In order to have a rotation with each crop appearing each year, it is necessary to have three fields. On a three-acre basis, $128 worth of limestone and superphosphate were used (limestone $3 per ton and superphosphate $1 per hundred), while the crop increases were worth $450, at 50 cents for corn, 75 cents for wheat, and $10 a ton for hay, leaving a gain of $322 over the cost of lime and phosphate, or about $6 an acre a year. These prices are low for crops, and probably above the average for limestone and phosphate.

It is worthy of note that for the last half of the 18-year period the average yields were: Corn, 64 bus.; wheat, 17 bushels, and hay 3,950 pounds.

Tests have shown that sufficient reserves of lime and phosphate have been built up in the soil to produce good crops for several years if manure is carefully saved and returned.

MEDICAL DIRECTOR URGES CARE IN SELECTING HOT WEATHER DIET

"Because more time is spent in the open air, during the summer months, larger appetites are developed with the result that many people eat more than is good for them," declared Dr. Robert A. Fraser, Chief Medical Director of the New York Life Insurance Company. "This overloading of the stomach, in conjunction with the frequently debilitating effects of hot weather, has a detrimental action on the general system, which can prove to be serious."

Dr. Fraser, in the course of observing the more common causes for hot weather disarrangements of the individual's health, feels that the matter of diet is an extremely important one, both from the point of view of "how much" is eaten as well as "what" is eaten.

"Do not overeat," Dr. Fraser, advises, "though be sure and get three balanced meals every day."

A balanced diet is most important. During the warm summer months, cereals, eggs, fruit, vegetables, salads and fish should form the bulk of the diet, with very little meat. Drink plenty of liquids to make up for the large amounts lost by the body through perspiration. Deal sparingly with "ice cold" drinks and avoid alcohol. These last two cause many gastro-intestinal upsets.

Diet "Don'ts" For Vacationists

For those who are going away on a vacation, Dr. Fraser offers special advice. "It is human nature," he says, "to eat more than ordinary when on a party or when the food is different. Remember this when you start on your vacation.

"Don't forget that the sudden change in diet and water is frequently a cause of constipation. Take care that your regularity is not disturbed while traveling. This is most important and well worth the effort."

If the vacation is being spent in a district where pure water is hard to secure. Dr. Fraser suggests using boiled water or some well known bottled water. If you are sending your child to a camp, it would be well to find out from the director of the camp whether or not the water and milk supply for the campers has been thoroughly investigated.

"However," Dr. Fraser points out, "most camps use due care in these matters and pride themselves on the quality of these two products."

Check Waer and Milk Supply

Dr. Fraser cautions everyone to be careful of water they drink. Camps, country resorts and roadside springs should have the source of water carefully investigated to make sure no contaminating sewage or barnyard pollution is present. If there is the least cause for doubting the purity of the water supply drink only boiled or certified bottled water.

Moreover, do the same as regards the milk supply. Pure milk comes from healthy cows, is produced in sanitary barns and is kept pure by quick cooling in immaculately clean containers. A slip up at any one of these points can result in milk with too high bacteria count and that is unhealthy.

"A special effort," Dr. Fraser feels "should be made to secure the best milk possible, even though it costs a little more."

Your Baby's Diet

Young babies are particularly susceptible to the effects of hot weather and to changes in milk and water. Whether you plan to stay at home all through the summer, or go away for a time, ask your doctor what he wants you to do about the baby's diet, and then be guided by his directions.

"Don't be misled," Dr. Fraser urges, "by those well meaning mothers who assure you that 'my baby acted just like that' and offer free advice for correcting a condtion about which they know little. Ask a doctor."

CHANGE POWDER; READ BOOKS; IMPROVE LIFE

Studying lessons called "Face Facts," with Miss Zelma Byerly, county home demonstration agent, and Miss Iris Davenport, Kentucky College of Agrciulture specialist, as their instructors, members of homemakers' clubs in Kenton County, found they had been using the wrong shade of powder. They had been trying to match their hair and eyes instead of their complexions.

But real and genuine beauty comes not merely from perfection of face and figure, says Miss Davenport, but from a personal philosophy and understanding, from one's attitude toward life and other people. So she assigned the Kenton county homemakers to read such books as "Return to Religion," "Orchards on Your Budget" "A Woman's Best Years," and "Skin Deep."

KITCHEN KINKS

Metal teapots, if seldom used, should have a lump of sugar in them to eliminate the mustoy odor . . . To remove rust from steel, rub the steel with sweet oil, allowing it to remain 24 hours, then sprinkle with unslacked lime and rub off. . . . A delicious whipped cream substitute is easily made by adding a sliced banana to the white of one egg and beating until stiff. The banana will completely dissolve.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to make use of the Recorder's columns to thank all of you people of Boone County for the support you have given me in my race for the office of County Surveyor. Especially do I wish to thank those who volunteered their services in my behalf.

In return I shall serve you to the very best of my ability and shall perform the duties of the office, for which you have nominated me, honestly and efficiently.

Again, I thank you all. 1t-c.

KEEPING a home right up to the minute, modern and comfortable, is no easy job as you well know—you women particularly. The living room furniture gets out-of-date—new curtains must be purchased—the kitchen needs a new refrigerator. Usually, however, three or four days in the Spring are enough to make everything spic and span.

But here, in your "Home Sweet Home on Rails" it's a different story. In order to give you clean, cool, modern travel comforts—and safe, dependable delivery of your every-day commodities, we can't let a day go by without replacing something.

Right now, we're sweeping out over five thousand freight cars, and buying over six million dollars worth of new ones just to give you better service. And we've just expended well over a million dollars to completely air-condition every main-line L & N train, except locals.

Yes, neighbor, when the home you keep is 5,000 miles long, spread over 13 states and is visited by millions of people who enjoy its genuine southern hospitality, well, Spring cleaning just has to go on right through the year. Yet with it all, it costs only 1½c to 3c a mile to be a guest in your "Home Sweet Home on Rails"—less than 1c a ton-mile on an average to use this safe, dependable freight transportation. Won't you think of the L & N, neighbor, when next you travel or plan a shipment?

AVOID CULL EWE IN BUILDING UP FLOCK

Richard C. Miller,

Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Kentucky farmers are in the market at this time for ewes to start flocks of sheep or to replace ewes that are being culled. While some dealers and commission men have secured good ewes which should prove profitable in spring lamb production under our conditions, unfortunately many native ewes that have been culled from flocks in neighboring states because they proved unprofitable as producers are showing up on some of our markets. Any ewe older than a yearling should be looked on with suspicion unless it can be determined that she has raised a lamb this year.

Most yearling native ewes have been developed through the saving of late parasite-infested ewe lambs and embody most of the undesirable and few of the good qualities wanted in a breeding ewe. Such ewes generally lack constitution and size and will tend to be late breeders themselves. If native ewes are purchased at all, selection should be confined to well-developed animals with plenty of frame and size that are capable of yielding a good fleece, as well as producing quality lambs that will reach a marketable weight of 80 pounds in 3½ to 4 months time. Usually western range ewes will prove more profitable than natives. Range ewes have the early breeding instinct, yield more wool and are generally free from parasites.

Several types of crossbred range ewes are admirably suited to our conditions. The first or second cross of a Hampshire or Suffolk ram on the Rambouillet range ewe which results in a dark, brown or mottly faced sheep with plenty of size and constitution, makes ideal farmers ewes under Kentucky conditions. Certain types of long-wool blood, are satisfactory where Southdown rams of good quality are used on them. Likewise the big-bone, smooth-bodied Rambouillet type has proved profitable on many Kentucky farms. There is danger, however, of confusing this type with the small undesirable East Texas sheep. Many of these sheep unfortunately find their way to Kentucky markets.

Range ewes selected should produce a minimum of 8 pounds of wool per head under normal conditions and be capable after the first year of producing 100 pounds of lamb per ewe that can be made ready for market at about 80 pounds per lambs in a maximum of 120 days. The percentage of lambs produced by yearlings is, of course, smaller than produced by older ewes.

Farmers who want additional information should secure a copy of Circular 286, "Ewes for Commercial Flocks." This can be had from county farm agents or by writing to the College of Agriculture.

ATTENTION FOOT SUFFERS

N. TULCH,
— at —
PEOPLES FOOT COMFORT
828 Madison Ave., Covington, Ky.

By N. Tulch, Foot Comfort Specialist at People's 9th and Madison, Covington, Ky.

Your happiness is dependent greatly upon your health, and your health is closely related to the condition of your feet.

Doctors tell us that much of the so-called rheumatism, sciatica, nervouesness, backache, and headache are the result of excessive pressure on the nerves and blood vessels in the feet caused by misplacement of one or more of the foot bones. Foot neglect does not pay. What afflictions caused most deaths last year? Not heart disease, not disease, not cancer, nothing but neglect. Any disease can be cured these days if attended to in time.

The longer you put off proper care of the feet the less pleasure you get from life and the more you are going to sap your vitality, harm your nerve system, reduce your comfort and impair your health. Now, you have probably promised yourself that you would call and at least investigate our sergical or prescription shoes, whichever our specialist might recommend, but you have put it off, hoping, wishing your feet would get better. Unfortunately, wishing and hoping will not relieve pressure or realign bones. We have given comfort to thousands, many of whom had dispaired of every enjoying foot health again. Remember if your feet indicate the need of electric treatments or hand massaging we make no charge whatever for this service. Your shoes are your only expense. —Adv.

MORE AND BETTER HAY FOR KENTUCKY

More and better hay for Kentucky. So say county planning committees, according to a College of Agriculture summary of their recommendations.

These committees, which have been at work about a year on the needs of agriculture in Kentucky, want greatly increased acreages of clover, alfalfa and lespedeza. Three or four times more alfalfa should be grown, they think, and clover and lespedeza should be preferred to redtop, timothy and wild grasses.

Soybeans and cowpeas would be relegated to bottom land where conditions prevent growing other crops, or to upland where crop failures call for emergency crops. It is recommended that the production of these two annals be materially reduced.

Because alfalfa and lespedeza permit excessive washing, it is suggested that orchard grass be sowed with alfalfa and redtop or orchard grass or both with lespedeza. On sloping land neither lespedeza nor alfalfa should be seeded alone. Bluegrass or other grasses should be seeded with hay when hay grasses tend to "play out," it is stated, thus greatly improving the resulting pastures.

In the case of lespedeza alone, disking in the fall and seeding to a small grain cover crop are indicated. The small grain can be grazed or cut for hay or grain and another crop of lespedeza hay secured, if the season is favorable. Such a plan also protects the land over the winter.

WEEK'S BEST RECIPE

Walnut Pudding—Meats from 12 English walnuts; 1 cupful stale bread crumbs; 2 cupfuls milk; 2 tablespoons sugar; 3 eggs; 1 teaspoon vanilla. Scald the milk in a double boiler and add to it the chopped crumbs and walnut meat. Allow the mixture to simmer gently five minutes, then take from the fire. When cool, stir in the yolks of eggs beaten with the sugar. Add vanilla and the whites of eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Pour in a buttered mold, and bake thirty minutes. Serve hot with with vanilla sauce or hard sauce

If all the hot dogs consumed on a summer Sunday were laid end to end it would make a lot of bologna.

LESS GREASE; BETTER HEALTH

Following a study of foods, members of homemakers' clubs in Simpson county are reporting improved health, due largely to the use of more vegetables and less fried foods and grease. In some instances frying pans have been discarded, and fat pork has been placed on the taboo list. More butter is being used for flavoring, taking the place of common grease. Homemakers' club foods leaders were trained by Miss Florence Imlay, nutrition specialist of the College of Agriculture, and Miss Alice Penn, county home demonstration agent.

A 100 percent American is one who orders ham and eggs when he runs into a lot of French words on a bill of fare.

DEMOISEY HEADS COACHING STAFF

IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.—FORMER BASEBALL AND BASKETBALL STAR AT EASTERN TEACHERS COLLEGE, RICHMOND.

Paul Barry Demoisey, basketball and baseball star at Eastern State Teachers College, Richmond, and brother of "Frenchy" Demoisey, former University of Kentucky basketball luminary, has been named teacher of physical education and athletic coach in the Charlotte, N. C., city school system.

Demoisey, a Walton high school products, was graduated from Eastern in June, after starring for three years on both the basketball and baseball teams. He played guard on the basketball quintette and was an outfielder in baseball.

He was given a tryout with the Indianapolis baseball team and later became the property of the Williamson, W. Va., Club of the Mountain States League. He developed a sore arm several weeks ago and was placed on the voluntary retired list.

Demoisey said that he did not know to which of the several Charlotte high schools he would be assigned. He will coach football, basketball and baseball, he said.

CHILLING STORY FOR A HOT DAY

How would you like to have a long blacksnake dangling down your back? No? Neither would we, but that was the thrilling experience, Sunday, of Mrs. J. S. Mahaffey, of Constance.

While sitting on the railing of her porch, Mrs. Mahaffey felt something on her back. Twice she slapped her back, thinking perhaps it was a bug—but when she looked up to her great amazement she saw it was a blacksnake, stretched more than a yard long, dangling from the porch room with its tail down Mrs. Mahaffey's back, and on the bare skin.

The snake's mouth was in a bird's nest in the porch roof, where it had devoured young birds, the mother bird flying frantically around, with a grasshopper in her bill, trying to gain access to the nest to feed her young.

This may sound like a "tall" snake story, but it was told as a fact to a Recorder representative Monday by the lady's husband, J. S. Mahaffey, at his place of business, the Covington Typewriter Sales & Service, 430 Madison Ave.

Neighbors saw Mr. Mahaffey kill the snake in an eave of the Mahaffey home.

ACP COMMITTEE ATTEND MEETING

AT LEXINGTON LAST THURSDAY—PROGRAM EXPLAINED BY W. A. MINER, OF WASHINGTON AAA OFFICE.

H. E. White, B. W. Franks and William Hill, members of the County 1937-38 ACP committee, John E. Crigler, Secretary of the association and H. R. Forkner, County Agent attended last Thursday the state meeting at Lexington on the 1938 Agricultural Conservation program.

The 1938 program as explained by W. A. Miner, of the Washington AAA office, and O. M. Farrington, director of the program from Kentucky, the proposed program would set up a goal of the maximum acreage of soil-depleting crop crops, a goal of the minimum acreage of soil-conserving crops, a goal of a minimum acreage of soil-building practices, and a maximum payment which could be earned for each farm. Payment would be made in proportion as the farmer met the established goals.

Thus a single payment would be made for the farm as a whole. As in 1937, the AAA plans to provide limestone and phosphate in lieu of payments.

Mr. Miner stressed that tenative plans so far made have resulted largely from recommendations of farmer committees, and that further changes in the program will be made insofar as possible to follow the recommendations of farmers.

A program of adjustment to national needs for the various crops and for soil conservation is the aim, he said, and the program is in no way one of scarcity.

Present plans are that the simplified program will enable each farmer to know, well ahead of the time in the preceeding two seasons what crops he should plant in order to qualify under the program and what payments he may expect to earn, according to Mr. Farrington.

Mr. J. L. Morgan, Florence, was pleasantly surprised with a birthday dinner Tuesday at his home on U. S. Highway 42 in honor of his 74th birthday.

Those present were: C. F. Williams, president of Western and Southern Life Ins. Co., C. M. Williams, vice president of same company, John Renhlman, also vice president, Judge Wm. H. Morgan, his brother.

A number of the guests mentioned were former business associates of Mr. Morgan, having been connected with the Western and Southern Life Ins., Co., for more than thirty-five years without a break in service. He was retired last year.

Mr. Morgan has made many friends here since he became a Boone Countian several years ago. He formerly owned the Charlie Youell property on the Burlington-Florence pike.

Mrs. Clinton Blankenbeker and Mrs. Chas. Scott, both neighbors of Mr. Morgan, assisted Mrs. J. L. Morgan, his wife in preparing this delightful surprise.

It is our sincere wish that Mr. Morgan will continue to enjoy his good health and celebrate many more happy birthdays.

1000 TO ATTEND CONVENTION

OF THE YOUNG DEMOCRATIC CLUBS TO BE HELD IN INDIANAPOLIS AUGUST 19TH TO 21ST.

With a prospective delegation of at least 1,000 young men and women, Kentucky will invade the National convention of the Young Democratic Clubs of America in Indianapolis, August 19-21, according to Tom Logan, Covington, president of the Kentucky clubs.

Logan, himself under discussion as a candidate for president of the National organization, has announced that the Kentucky delegation will go to the convention uninstructed. Each member attending from Kentucky will be recognized as an official delegate, with all the privileges attached, and the delegation will vote under the unit rule.

The Kentucky organization, according to Mr. Logan is recognized by National headquarters as one of the three strongest in the country. Governor A. B. Chandler, who was one of the organizers of the Young Democratic Clubs in Kentucky and the first president of the club in Versailles, his home town, is scheduled to appear as one of the principal speakers on the convention program. Governor Chandler, along with Senator Alben W. Barkley and Senator M. M. Logan, has been asked to head the Kentucky delegation. Senator Barkley has also been asked to address the conventoin, which will hear speeches from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, James Roosevelt, Postmaster General James A. Farley and other national figures.

Convention plans were drawn up in Louisville by Mr. Logan in a meeting with Miss Ruth White, Glasgow, and John Dugan, Louisville, national committeewoman and committeeman for Kentucky. The delegation is expected to take the lead in a fight in the convention for more democratic representation in the organization for the smaller States. Mr. Logan pointed out that there is a club in each of the 120 counties in Kentucky.

BOB & GENE LEAD LEAGUE

WITH BELLEVIEW NOW IN SECTION POSITION—BURLINGTON DROPS TWO GAMES OVER THE WEEK-END

With the third round of the Boone County baseball league elimination series completed, baseball fans of the county are yet reluctant to pick the finalists. Upsets—additional strength — unheard of strength—and forfeits have kept the standing like a typical Chicago-New York-St. Louis-Pittsburg race for a pennant.

In the three contests played last week, of which Burlington had part in two, there was much interest displayed. On Saturday afternoon Bob & Gene (prefavorites by the writer) behind the non-brilliant, yet effective pitching of Reibling, defeated Burlington on the latter's grounds by a score of of 12-7. Akins started for the losers but gave way to Kirkpatrick, versatile portsider, who slowed the Florence big gun for the remainder of the contest. Petty, Demoisey and Cahill were best offensively for the winners, while Voshell and Sebree were mashing the horsehide for Burlington. "Pip" Clore, "Pepper" Martin of the league displayed some outstanding defensive work for the losers. Demoisey with his collegiate effort, also played a bang-up game in center field for Bob & Gene.

With Carmon, a submarine artist, on the hill Hebron had little difficulty in handling Burlington their second successive defeat in as many days Sunday at the Hebron park. The final score was 8-3 with Hebron showing the way thruout. "Hoots" Ryle, who was on the firing line for Burlington pitched good ball, but errors kept him in the hole during most of the contest. "Manny" Goodridge load the Hebron attack with two home runs, a triple and a double.

Bellview defeated Petersburg in the other third-round game Sunday afternoon at the Belleview park by a 12-10 count. Manager Carroll Williamson twirled for the winners with Shinkle and Deck dividing the mound duties for Petersburg. According to reports the game was marked by loose fielding on both sides. Denniston and H. Rogers starred at the bat for the home team.

COUNTY ROADS IMPROVED UNDER HIGHWAY SET-UP

Four Hundred Miles of Rural Highways Maintained From $35,000.00 Income

The side roads in Boone County are being placed in a condition now that will enable them to be kept in a good shape. This is being done by the County and State cooperating under the new Rural Highway set up. Under this system the County and State each pay a part of the cost.

Not all of the side roads can be surfaced this year, in fact only a part of the roads can be fixed this way during the first year of the program. Like any new undertaking it has been begun on the roads which the state and County authorities believe the most traveled and the roads which have cost the county large sums to maintain.

The lack of funds has kept the County from attempting to surface roads heretofore, even though it was known that a black-top surface was the only way in which metal could be kept on the roads without waste. The black top likewise seals the surface and prevents the rains and weather from penetrating and softening the road during the winter months.

It is to be regretted that all of th side roads, or roads which are not State highways, cannot be surfaced this year. Boone County has approximately 400 miles of roads on its system, and to maintain these roads and extend them where it becomes necessary they have only $35,000.00 per year to spend. We are told that this presents a serious problem to the fiscal court and they are compelled to spend less on many roads than they realize they should, in order that the main roads may be kept in shape to care for the heavier traffic.

In the past ten years the County authorities, by their efforts have prevailed upon the State Highway Commission to take over build and maintain 85 miles of roads in this County, which are at without one penny cost to theETA the present being maintained without one penny's cost to the County. The roads being maintained by the State are main arteries, and if the county was compelled to maintain these roads it would be impossible for us to keep them, and as to the balance of the roads, we can only speculate as to what their condition would be.

We congratulate the fiscal court upon this program and look forward to its extension with the coming years, and hope to see the time when all of the side roads will be black-topped as the road from Burlington to Idlewild and the other projects now under way.

BROADCASTING DEMONSTRATED

FROM AUTOS BY RADIO AMATEURS AT HARVEST HOME GROUNDS NEAR LIMABURG SUNDAY.

Members of the Greater Cincinnati Amateur Radio Association held their annual outing and picnic at the Harvest Home grounds, Boone County, Sunday. In addition to the usual athletic contests and games, the members gave a demonstration of broadcasting from automobiles.

Driving automobiles in different directions, Hugh R. Thompson, W8ODF, 502 Lombardy Street, Elmwood Place, Ohio, and Michael Reinholz, W8LNO, 3824 Ibsen Ave., Cincinnati, kept up telephone conversation for more than an hour. Each car was equipped with a radio transmitter capable of developing four watts power and broadcasting on a wave length of five meters.

Thompson, who is President of the association, said interest in telephones for automobiles was growing rapidly and that amateurs frequently talked to one another from automobiles in or near Cincinnati. The small transmitters are effective only up to five miles, he said. They are operated from the battery of the automobile.

SUMMER THIEVES

With the summer touring season well under way local citizens, and those in the surrounding rural district may expect to see an unusual number of strange faces. The auto and trailer are carrying them in greater number than ever into all parts of the land there will be the usual number of hitch-hiking transients, with no fixed destination, just drifters and bums.

With the fact in mind that thousands of these drifters are of an irresponsible type and pick up a living through the summer months the easiest way they can get it, it would be well to watch your personal property a little more closely than is necessary in the fall and winter. The ratio of burglaries and petty thefts is far higher now than at any other season of the year, and that will be true for the next two months. The average tourist expects to pay his way as he goes, and can be trusted. But the drifters feel that the world owes them a living and if they can't get it one way, they will another. As a rule they have no regard for the property of others, and are not averse to appropriating, through theft, articles of food and clothing and, of course any money they may be able to locate.

It will be well to bear these facts in mind during the summer tourist season and keep the doors of your home locked at all times during your absence. A weather eye should also be kept on the henhouse since it offers a favorite source of food supply for the drifter. Do not take it for granted that simply because you have never been the victim of a summer thief that you will not be. The unexpected may happen at any moment in this or any other community into which the auto tramp makes his way.

VACATION TIME

Vacation time is well under way and though it has yet to reach its peak reports from various sources lead to the belief that this will be the greatest touring season in the history of the nation. Thousands upon thousands of motorists are now traveling the highways, and steam roads and bus lines are said to be smashing all records for the number of passengers carried up to this time, with the volume constantly growing heavier.

For those who take their vacations trips by bus or train, there appears to be no need for special warnings before they set out. But for those who go by auto, who build campfires in the open, a word of caution is not amiss. Be careful with matches and campfires. There is not a motorist anywhere around this locality who would deliberately endanger the natural resources of this country, or the personal property of others. But it is so easy to thoughtlessly toss a match or cigarette stub out of the car window into dry grass along the roadside; it is so easy to forget to extinguish every particle of a campfire before leaving it, that this warning is necessary. No matter in what part of the country you spend your vacation, keep the fire hazard constantly in mind. Be careful. Be watchful. Be careful of the fire fiend every minute you are in the open or driving along a highway.

THEN AND NOW

One of the most amazing things to the average citizen is the seemingly short space of time that has elapsed since it was next to impossible to buy fresh vegetables in a Boone County grocery during the winter months. Thirty years ago about the only thing in this line a grocer could offer his customers were carrots, onions, potatoes and turnips. Now it is possible to get vegetables of every variety right in the dead of winter, if the grocer chooses to carry them.

Today grocery display of vegetables in every section of the U. S. is just as attractive in December or January as it is in June or July. Beans, peas, tomatoes, lettuce and radishes alternate in colorful rows with beets, carrots, parsnips and celery. Improved transportation, modern methods of refrigeration and hot-house growing of garden truck have brought about this change.

Prices are, of course. lower when these vegetables are in the season locally, and when gardens are producing. But even now prices for these same things in winter months are becoming lower each year as growers and shippers learn more and more about packing them and keeping them fresh for long periods.

Fresh vegetables the year round is something to be thankful for. It is health in the home and that certainly is in itself sufficient to cause every citizen to rejoice that he is living in an era of year-round vegetables.

FARM "SIT-DOWNS"

If the new fad of sit-down strikes ever hits the farm it's going to bring everyone a lot of good laughs. Just thing of a farmer, as he goes to feed the hogs, for instance. He would sit down on the pig pen and sit there until the price of pork advanced. Then the housewife, when half through with her churning, would stage a sit-down strike until the price of butter advanced. Not another lick would she churn, but just sit there, dasher in hand, unconcerned as to whether the butter came or not.

The farm hand, too, going out to milk would sit upon his milking stool and when about half done would cease his labor, take a chew of tobacco, stretch out his legs in comfort and remain there until his wages were raised. Night would come and the farm hand would lay his manly head over against old Bossy's side and fall off to sleep until the dawning of another day, but without another drop of milk being forced down into the pail.

Yes, there's going to be a lot of fun when the sit-down strike fad hits the farm, and yet it might prove a good thing. It would shut off the food supply of the city sit-down strikers, and without the farmer's meat, milk, butter, eggs and vegetables a sit-downer would quickly surrender. Maybe a general sitting-down on the farm would stop all that sort of silly and costly nonense in the city when nothing else could.

OUR RESPONSIBILITY

Most everyone in this county is bound by hearstring ties to children, and realizes what anguish always follows injury to anybody's child. A normal person would not deliberately kill or hurt a little child, yet statistics show that many are killed or hurt by careless and reckless drivers who probably are in every other respect what can be called normal. We suggest that every motorist, every time he steps in a car, think of a child—his own or any child—then drive every moment so as to protect all children. Keep before you as you drive the mental picture of some healthy, happy youngster you know. Then drive as though this same youngster were at play in the street ahead of you, or riding in a car that you are about to pass. And don't forget—when you drive to protect a child you are also driving to protect everyone. You seldom ever hear of an auto accident being caused by too much precaution on the part of the drivers.

SEED CATALOGS

A penny postcard will bring to any county citizen who cares to invest in a seed catalog that from an artistic standpoint is a whole are gallery in itself. And yet the seed catalog with its pretty pictures isn't as old as one might think. It was not until 1865 that a seed catalog was printed in the U. S. with colored illustrations, and even that first one carried but a single page in colors, so coslty was such form of advertising in those days. But as the result of steady improvement in color printing, seedsmen are today able to distribute catalogs that are of the highest artistic type and that bring joy to the eyes of millions of flower and vegetable lovers, at a cost to each one of but a penny postcard. So it is with many other things which we enjoy for a trifle today, but which our ancestors had to do without, or purchase at prices which placed them beyond the reach of the great mass of people.

Address Invitations to Wedding Tactfully

DEAR Mrs. Post: Our families are both large and I really can not include all the children at my wedding, so must end the lists with aunts and uncles. Would you suggest that it might be a good idea to enclose a card with the invitations saying "no children"? Or how should I break the news to the parents without hurting them?

Answer: To emphasize the fact that they are not invited would be needlessly cruel, especially if some of them have been looking forward to a wedding in the family. Merely address invitations to Mr. and Mrs. and say nothing about the Marys and Johnnies. Should you be asked whether the children may come, then explain that unhappily you can not include so many more.

The Bridesmaid's Dress.

DEAR Mrs. Post: (1) I have been told that taffeta is a better material for the dresses at a spring wedding than one in winter time. Is this also true of moire? (2) Also, if a bride wears a simple velvet dress, must her only attendant wear velvet or would she be suitably dressed in crepe or any of the more practical materials which she thinks would be better suited to her needs after the wedding?

Answer: (1) Moire is particularly suitable for autumn and winter. (2) Her dress need not be of velvet. It would be quite all right to have the bridesmaid wear crepe.

White Gold Ring.

DEAR Mrs. Post: I've always liked the plain yellow gold wedding band and would like to have one of this description when I am married. But one never sees yellow gold wedding bands today, that is, not on the new brides. Also, I am wondering whether yellow gold will look well with my other rings, which happen to be set in platinum. What would you suggest?

Answer: Although I myself have a strong prejudice in favor of the yellow gold wedding ring, I think that the bride of today would better have a ring of white gold, for the reason that you yourself give.

Lesson for August 22

THE PLACE OF RELIGION IN A NATION'S LIFE.

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 25:1, 2, 8, 9; 29:43-46; 40:34-38.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord. Ps. 33:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Meeting House.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The House of the Lord.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why a Nation Needs Religion.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Place of Religion in a Nation's Life.

The nation of Israel was under the direct government of God—a theocracy as distinguished from a monarchy, or a democracy. God spoke to them through his servant Moses, but his relationship to the people was far more intimate than that of a distant power delivering laws through a representative. God dwelt in the midst of his people, and today we consider how he made provision for a place in which to meet with them, for a holy priesthood to minister before him, and made known his personal presence by a manifestation of his glory.

I. A Place to Meet God (Exod. 25:1, 2, 8, 9; 29:43-46).

Every place of worship, whether the tabernacle in the wilderness, or a church on a busy city street, testifies to the fact that man is indeed "incurably religious." He is a spiritual being, made by God for fellowship with himself. He is never satisfied until he meets God.

The pattern or plan for the tabernacle was given by God (v. 9), and was to be followed in every detail. But note that the people were to make a willing offering of all that was needed for its construction. God gives man the glorious privilege of partnership with him. Shortsighted and foolish is the man who grumbles because the church needs money. A father might just as well grieve because his children outgrow their clothing. Thank God if your church is alive and growing, and be glad for the opportunity to buy it some "new clothes."

Sacrificial gifts and faithful building according to God's plan, brought to completion a place of meeting which God sanctified and accepted.

II. Priests to Minister to God (vv. 44,45).

Note, first, that they were men called of God. Those who stand to minister to him for the people dare not appoint themselves, or seek an appointment by men. They must be "God-called."

They were also sanctified, or ordained, by God. Only as men act in true recognition of God's selection and setting apart of his chosen servants does ordination have real meaning.

Finally, notice that the priests were "to minister to" God. His servants are to serve him, and thus to meet the need of the people for whom they speak. They are "put in trust with the gospel," and therefore to "so . . . speak; not as pleasing men, but God" (I Thess. 2:4). If you have that kind of a pastor, praise God for him, and give him your earnest support and encouragement.

III. The Presence of God (Exod. 29:45, 46; 40:34-38).

He dwelt in the midst of his people. Christians also know what it means to have "God with us," for such is the very meaning of the name "Immanuel" (Isa. 7:14; Matt. 1:23). He it was who as the living Word "became flesh and dwelt among us" (John 1:14).

For our further instruction and blessing let us observe that when God dwelt with his people his glory "filled the tabernacle" (v. 34). Is that true of our churches? Have we so loved God and so fully yielded ourselves and our churches to him that he is free to fill the place with his glory?

The word "abode" in v. 35 is significant. What blessed peace and assurance must have come to Israel when they knew that God had come to abide with them. In this world of transitory things we need such an anchor for the soul—God's abiding presence.

But God's people must move on. There are victories to be won, a promised land to take. So we read that the cloud arose when they were to move forward, and when it was "not taken up, then they journeyed not until the day that it was taken up."

The Psalmist tells us that "the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord" (Ps. 37:23). I believe it was George Mueller of blessed memory who inserted three words—"and the stops." The man, or the church, or the nation, that trust God, will have both "steps" and "stops" "ordered by the Lord."

Beginning of Eternal Life

Eternal life does not just mean that when our bodies die our souls last on. It means a kind of life which we can begin to live here and now, and which cannot be destroyed by death because it is united with God.—A Day Book of Prayer.

DISCOVER CAUSE OF CHICK DEFORMITIES

Experiments conducted at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station indicate that a nutritional deficiency due to the lack of the mineral element manganese causes deformities in chickens.

For years poultry raisers and scientists have been searching for the cause of short legs, parrot beaks, misshapen heads, protruding abdomens and other deformities in chicks which cost the industry large sums annually.

Having concluded that such irregularities were due to deficiencies in feeds, Kentucky workers tried removing zinc, iron and manganese from the rations of hens. They found by experiment that it was not a lack of zinc or iron but an insufficient supply of manganese that caused the trouble.

When normal hens were given feeds deficient in manganese the embryos of their eggs developed the characteristic deformity of short legs, parrot beak, round head and the like, and many of them died in the shell.

Going further in their investigation, the Kentucky workers analyzed eggs from hens fed normal rations to determine the amount of manganese in them. Then, with a hypodermic needle, hey injected manganese into eggs known to be deficient in the element. Such eggs then produced normal chicks.

COLLEGE PLEADS FOR COVER CROPS

The College of Agriculture at Lexington reports that a study of work sheets filed by Kentucky farmers in the Agricultural Conservation program indicates that 78 percent of the crop land in the state is left unprotected thru the winter, subject to washing and leaching. Cover crops, says the college, have a three-fold value, in that they protect the land thru the winter, furnish fall, winter and spring grazing, and then can be turned under as a green manure crop or harvested for grain or hay. A circular issued by the college reviews the more important cover crops of rye, wheat, barley, rye grass, crimson clover, vetch and Austrian winter peas.

Cash prizes totaling $25 will be divided among winners in the 4-H Duroc pig show at the Shelby county fair. Raising pigs is one of the major club projects in the county this year.

FALL GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

From now on and until at least October 1, is the time to sow fall greens and table turnips.

Fall greens have manyfold value. They constitute a quite important part of the late summer diet, and that of the early winter. Also, if they are given simple protection, as covering with a thin layer of tree leaves, some of them will survive even a severe winter and make early greens next spring.

Greens serve to cover the ground storing within themselves fertility that would otherwise be lost thru the winter. Even though theyare ultimately cut down by cold weather, the tissue remains ,to be plowed under for humus. As every gardener knows, humus serves to "lighten" soils that incline to "run together" at the same time giving back to the land the plant-food the greens absorbed while they were growing. Another use for a greens-covered garden is to pasture the chickens, on days sunny enough and dry enough for them to be let run.

There is, too, the indirect benefit, but none-the-less real, that attends the general sowing of greens in any vacant spot, that, in preparing for their sowing, the garden must be cleaned of vegetable debris and crab-grass and weeds. This improves the appearance of the garden, through the winter months, and makes fewer weeds to fight next summer.

All these should be grown quickly to have best quality. For quick growth, high fertility and plenty of moisture are needed. To supply the former, deep seed-bed preparation is advised, especially for the sowings made in August, while occasional showers are still the rule. After the more or less general rains of autumn begin, extreme care in soil preparation may not be so important, but even then, such care will return dividends in next year's crops.

The same is true of fertility. If this year's earlier crops were well fertilized, probably enough plant-food remains for the fall greens, but if manure were spread before them, now, their residue plowed under will make the garden just that much better, in 1938. Almost no matter how much manure is plowed under for fall green, there will be benefit from side-dressing or top-dressing them with nitrate of soda, 1 pounds to 200 square feet of space. If manure is with-held, the amount of nitrate should be doubled, or even trebled.

For all the greens except spinach, and for table turnips, the amount of seed is 1 ounce to 600 square feet of space, or 200 feet of drill, and that for spinach, 2 ounces.

Several pests attack the fall greens, especially while they are seedlings. These are the flea-beetle the leaf-hoppers, sometimes the cabbage worm and sometimes the plant lice. The most simple way to guard against against all is to spray or dust with rotenone, deadly to all insects, but harmless to humans. The old standby, Bordeaux mixture, to which is added arsenical, for the leaf-eating insects, and tobacco extract, for the lice, is also effective. Such combination must be with-held after there has been much growth because of the poison danger, and because of the tobacco flavor that may be imparted. It should go without saying that, for best, results from spraying or dusting, fall greens and the fall turnips should be put in drills rather than sown broadcast.

THE FARM AND HOME
(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

In planning wiring a house for electricity, lights should not be forgot for basement and attic stairways. They are not only convenient but may save injury from falls. The same is true of lights for front and back entrances to the house.

Milk and cream kept in tightly closed containers tend to develop undesirable "somthered" tastes and odors. It is better to cover with cheese cloth. Immediate cooling of milk by placing the cans in cold water is important, especially in summer.

Where wanted for hay only, Korean lespedeza is usually not cut until in full bloom, which is about the middle of August in most of Kentucky. Kobe, Tennessee 76 and Common lespedeza are not ready until two or three weeks later.

Three years of tests at the Kentucky Experiment Station gave alfalfa the prize for swine grazing. Oats and rape placed second, with Korean lespedeza and bluegrass about equal as third. Alfalfa-grazed pigs made better gains and consumed less corn.

Topping and suckering tobacco are receiving more attention, on the theory that these practices influence the thickness of the leaf. Over-grown tobacco is often of poor quality, is easily injured and requires more space in the barn.

In serving meals, many families follow the practical and simple method of placing the food on the table and having each person help himself. This method is informal and tends to promote a spirit of congeniality.

COOPERATION CUTS COST OF LIMESTONE

By forming a cooperative association, with 30 farmer-members owning one to 10 shares of stock each, Whitley county land owners are obtaining ground limestone for $2 a ton, reports Earl G. Welch, extension agricultural engineer for the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

A pulverizer with a capacity of 6 to 9 tons an hour is used, with power from a 35-horsepower boiler fired with coal from a nearby mine. In addition to furnishing cheap limestone, the enterprise provides work for eight men in the community who otherwise might be unemployed.

The world must be getting a lot better. You seldom hear anyone trying to get a laugh now by telling a mother-in-law joke.

Why FIRESTONE MAKES A SAFER TIRE AT A LOWER PRICE

PRICES AS LOW AS $6.40

IN THE Firestone Standard Tire, you get extra value in the form of extra safety. It costs more money to build a safer tire. But Firestone can build a first-quality tire made of top grade materials and sell it for less money, because Firestone controls rubber and cotton supplies at their sources, manufactures with greater efficiency and distributes at lower cost.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS — eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. By this process every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber. This counteracts dangerous internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES — because under the tread are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE because of the extra tough, long-wearing tread.

You need all of these features to make your car tire-safe on your week-end or vacation trip. Firestone gives them to you at lower cost. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires — today's top tire value.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON SMOOTH WORN TIRES!

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

That a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires?

At right is section cut from a new Firestone Tire. Note the thick, non-skid protection against skidding, blowouts and punctures. Come in and see a demonstration.

At left is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, with non-skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

GRAND JURY REPORT

Hon. J. G. Vallandingham, Judge of the Boone Circuit Court:

We, your Grand Jury, empanelled at this term of Court, have been in session two days, have examined 14 witnesses, and returned two indictments. We find conditions in the County as a whole to be good.

We have referred to us from Judge Riddell's Court the following cases: Emery Earl Klopp charged with assault, Charlie Isaac charged with assault, and William Basley and Jeff Mills charged with assault. The evidence in the first two cases did not, in the opinion of the Grand Jury, warrant indictment. The case of William Beasley and Jeff Mills is hereby referred to the next Grand Jury on account of our failure to get the necessary witnesses.

We have examined the County property and find it well kept by the persons in charge of same. However, we suggest that appropriate signs be placed on the office doors of the Court House.

From the report of W. B. Cotton, sheriff, we find that the sheep fund is approximately $2000 behind and recommend that a court order be issued for the prosecution of all owners of dogs upon which no license has been paid.

Having concluded our labors we ask that we now finally be excused.

Henry Siekman, Foreman.
Attest: C. S. Finnell, Clerk.

AT THE CROSSING

The railroads of this country have established a fine safety record during the past few years. Today railroad wrecks are uncommon, and very seldom is a passenger killed. But for the grade-crossings, the railroads would have almost a perfect record. However, despite all the work of elimination thousands of these crossings still exist, in every part of the country, and while the railroads are not responsible for death at grade-crossings they are charged up against its safety record just the same. For the next three months the toll of death at these crossings will be heavier than during the other nine months of the year combined, and the railroads will not be able to prevent it. That is wholly up to the motorists of the country. If they still persist in trying to beat the train, or if they are not watchful when driving in strange territory, the slaughter will go right on. That's a good thing for every citizen to remember when he sets out on this season's vacation jaunt.

Beads of perspiration caused by honest toil seem to be out of the picture this day in time as a fashionable decoration.

MILK PROBLEM BRINGS PARLEY

A conference of farmers, milk producers and distributors was held Tuesday afternoon at the Building Industries Building to discuss proposals which, it is hoped, will bring about an increase in the sale of bottled milk.

Local dealers, distributors and producers have opposed an offer of the dairy division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to establish a federal milk administrator at Cincinnati, to supervise prices, subject to the voluntary agreement of a majority of producers and distributors' groups.

Retail milk, under this plan would be raised 1 cent a quart and the farmer would receive an increase of 27 cents per 100 pounds. The protesting groups, however, said this would decrease consumption and oppose the propsed price jump.

TESTS SHOW GRASS CAN PAVE WAY FOR IMPROVING TOBACCO

Tests made by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station on its experimental field at Campbellsville, Taylor county, show how bluegrass sod can be produced for improving the yield and quality of burley tobacco.

It has long been recognized by Burley growers that land broken from a vigorous bluegrass sod produced the best yield and quality of crop, says the statement of the Experiment Station. For this reason the production of Burley tobacco long was limited largely to the Bluegrass area. As the crop spread to other sections of the state, it was found that neither yield nor quality was as good as in the Bluegrass area, where most of the tobacco follows sod.

Experimental work on the production of Burley tobacco at the Campbellsville, Taylor county, Kentucky, Experiment Field shows that good bluegrass can easily and cheaply be produced, and that good yields and quality of tobacco can be produced. The experiments are made in a rotation of wheat followed by three years of grass and legumes, after which the sod is broken and tobacco is grown for two years in succession. The land all receives an application of 6 tons of manure per acre for each tobacco crop. Where only manure was used, the average yield for six acres was 890 pounds per acre, valued at $118 per acre. Where the land was treated with sufficient superphosphate to meet the needs of all the crops in the rotation, it produced increased yields of wheat and hay that more than paid for the phosphate and left a good sod for tobacco. The average yield of tobacco following this sod was 1,200 pounds per acre for the last six years, valued at $220 per acre, or nearly double the acre value of tobacco grown without phosphate treatment. With the further addition of approximately $8 worth of nitrogen and potash to each tobacco crop, the average yield was a little over 1,400 pounds per acre, and the average value was $270 per acre. It should be remembered that during this period were years when high quality tobacco sold at a low price. The two tobacco crops following sod in 1933 and 1934, when treated with a complete fertilizer, yielded an average of 1,600 pounds per acre, against 980 pounds per acre without any fertilizer except the manure which was used alike for fertilized and unfertilized tobacco.

These results were obtained on unlimed land. If lime had been used in moderate quantities, the results could have been further increased. Unfortunately, lime was applied too heavily on that part of the experiment where the effects of lime were to be studied. This was done several years ago, before the ill effects of heavy liming on tobacco were known. The Experiment Station has since shown that the application of a ton or less of ground limestone will be sufficient to produce the desired effect on legumes and grass and will not injure the tobacco if applied a few years ahead of the tobacco for producing the grass and legume sod. Good results may be obtained with other grasses than bluegrass. Orchard grass and legumes make a satisfactory short-time sod.

FARMERS ALARMED BY SINKING LAND

Buhl, Idaho, Aug. 14—Harried farmers of this southern Idaho agricultural region were alarmed tonight over a strange geological quirk that may turn their productive land into useless canyon bottoms.

The farmers who have triumphed over climatical conditions by irrigation, faced an uncombatable foe—land sinking.

That the subterranean disturbance which is causing land to sink eight miles northwest of here is far from finished was shown when a new "sinking canyon" formed within the past 24 hours. An area 20 yards wide and 70 yards long sink 75 feet in a single day.

Farmer H. A. Robertson, on whose land the phenomenon is occuring, said the new canyon gives every evidence of continuing to spread.

The new depression is separated from the original "sinking canyon" by a 25-foot wall. The first depression, covering five acres, has sunk to the 200-foot level and it is still settling. Land cracks have spread in all directions.

Baffled farmers found little solace in geologists' explanations that collapse of the upper lava crust of a subterranean cavern is causing the land to sink.

Farmers expressed fear that further opening might cause the Salmon river, which borders the disturbed region, to follow part of their irrigation water supply.

A man's word may be law in his home, but usually his wife is the Supreme Court.

J. W. Croft, Marion, Ky., High School pupil, was announced as the winner of The Courier-Journal State Essay contest at the Future Farmers of America convention in Lexington recently. All essays were written on the assigned subject, "Economic Efficiency and the Standard of Life On the Farm.' The State Committee that judged the seven district essays included T. W. Bates, Federal Land Bank; Sam W. Noe, principal of Eastern Junior High School, both of Louisville, and Horace S. Cleveland, secretary of the Kentucky State Fair.

PRESIDENT'S LETTER PRAISES A. W. BARKLEY

Washington, Aug. 12—A President embattled with many of his party in Congress was conspicuous by his absence Tuesday night at a Senatorial dinner planned as a Democratic harmony affair.

Instead of going through the hollow ceremony of showing himself, Mr. Roosevelt sent a message praising Senator Alben W. Barkley, the guest of honor and Senate Majority Leader. The Senators limped through the affair with Vice President Gardner as their symbol of "peace."

Mr. Roosevelt's failure to attend was connected directly with the present impasse in Congress and the failure of many Democrats, particularly those of the South, to adhere to his leadership. Those Southerners snarled adjournment plans further by threatening the remaining program unless Federal subsidies for their cotton constituencies are forthcoming.

The letter follows:

"Dear Jack:

"The quality of a man's friendship is always a safe barometer of his character and in the case of of Alben Barkley this is particularly true. And it is as one old friend that I write this note: That I embrace the opportunity to add my testimony to the words of his other old friends and colleagues who will speak tonight in token of their appreciation and affection for this man.

"Alben is not only a political friend but is a friend in a very real and very deep personal sense. Our associations cover long and delightful years. We have traveled together; we have barnstormed together; we have known the exultation of victory and we have been together in times of commiseration.

Sense of Humor Hailed

"I know that everyone present this evening will agree with me that Alben Barkley is greatly distinguished for the things he does not say as well as for the things he does say. Whether he was born that way or has acquired this marvelous restraint through years of self-discipline, I do not know. But I do know that is a great asset.

"He has two great gifts for which he ought to be thankful and for which we are truly grateful—a sense of perspective whereby little things are not unduly magnified and the larger things of life are not minimized, and a sense of humor which enables him to distinguish between the ridiculous and the serious.

"Any man who, when the discussion of some picayune subject waxes serious and acrimonious, can rise in his place and sing "Wagon Wheels" is a positive genius. He knows by a sound instinct that on occasion party harmony is aided and abetted by close harmony.

"Very sincerely yours,
"Franklin D. Roosevelt."

THE CHRISTIAN HOME

In Council Blubs, Iowa. is located a Home for orphan and destitute children, which is different from any other organization of its kind in the country. This Home was founded nearly fifty-five years ago, by Rev. J. G. Lemen, a godly man of gigantic faith in God. In fact, the Home was founded on the Promises of God.

This Home, which is the Christian Home Orphanage of Council Bluffs, Iowa, is supported entirely by the free will offerings of the lovers of God and Humanity. Thusands of children have passed through its portals during is over half century of existence. Children who were in the Home, years ago, are now outstanding men and women of today; many have won fame and fortune due to the teachings received while they were children at the Home. These same children had they been left in their original pitiful surroundings might have helped to fill the penitentiaries of today.

The Christian Home Orphanage is a National Home for children; it is located in Iowa, but it is supported entirely by the voluntary contributions of people all sections of the country. It receives no appropriations of any kind, and employs no traveling agents, but depends upon your goodness and mine for its support. It conducts its own school, its own laundry and its own well equipped hospital. It also has a small department for aged women.

The work of caring for homeless children, and training them to become Christian men and women, is the most outstanding work of today. The Christian Home Orphanage is doing this work, but it cannot do it without your gifts and your cooperation. This is a work in which all can take part.

For information in regard to this remarkable home, write to the Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa, and literature will be sent to you.

All contributions sent to the Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa, are duly acknowledged and credited in the official publication, "Christian Home," in which all financial reports appear, a copy of which will be mailed to you.

50-YEAR-OLD LIMING STILL GIVES RESULTS

One day Frank Melton, Larue county agent, saw a field in which the timothy was taller and greener at one end than anywhere else. It was so noticeable that he stopped to investigate. He walked out into the field to see if the soil was different. It apparently was not.

Smiling at his question, T. P. Thurman, the owner, answered him: "Yes, it is lime—lime applied accidentally 50 years ago when an old log house was torn down. There was lime mortar between the logs, and it was scattered about this part of the field and is still doing business after a half-century."

A GOOD EXAMPLE

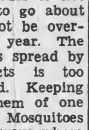
Waiting until your neighbor cuts the unsightly weeds on his premises before you cut yours is not a very patriotic way to go about a task that should not be overlooked at this time of year. The danger from epidemics spread by disease-varrying insects is too great to be overlooked. Keeping the weeds cut robs them of one source of protection. Mosquitoes and flies are less numerous where there is an absence of weeds or wet, moist places. Cutting the weeds is a job that must be done if you value the health of the community, and the sooner and oftener it is done the summer the protection. It isn't the fact alone that weeds are unsightly that should result in their immediate elimination, it's the fact that they are an actual menace to health if they are left standing. Set the other fellow an example by beating him to it. Get your weeds cut first.

FAKE INSURANCE

The postoffice department is now moving against one of the meanest of all rackets and one which quite a few people doubtless are numbered among the victims. A fight is on to wipe out the promotion of fake mutual benefit life insurance organizations which cost the American public thousands of dollars annually. The shysters who run these rackets pretend to sell insurance, although they are careful not to use the word. They sell their policies to anyone, without requiring medical examinations, and welcome prospects up to the age of 85. Since few people bother to read their insurance certificates carefully the jokers in these policies usually are overlooked. As a result, benefits are seldom paid to the beneficiaries. "Before you invest, investigate," is an excellent rule for the buyer of insurance. While the postal authorities are driving these crooks out of business, the rule is commended to the attention of every resident of this community.

You can say one thing for old men. After you have seen the world saved and ruined as many times as they have you'll quit worrying about it.

There are now three classes: The noisy and vulgar lower class, the sedate and sensible middle class and the noisy and vulgar upper class.



Somebody ought to tell lawyers to purge their ranks of crooks, but which profession is pure enough to start an argument?

Women probably know best, but most of us can recall some mighty good looking ones who depended wholly on soap and water for a make-up.

If the program coming over the radio is so full of blood and thunder that mother can't bear it, then it's a modern bed-time story for the kiddies.

FATHER KNEW!

The eighteen-year-old son has a good deal more freedom nowadays than he used to have. However, old Jones disapproved very strongly of the late hours which Jones junior was in the habit of keeping, and decided to take the young man to task about it.

So one morning the lad found himself on the carpet. Jones cleared his throat.

"Look here," he said, "do you realize that when I was your age my father would never allow me to be out of the house after half-past nine at night?"

"Huh!" replied the young scamp. "You had a nice kind of father, you had."

Jones snorted with anger.

"Let me tell you," he stormed, "that I had a jolly sight better father than youhave, you young rascal."—Answers Magazine.

One Exception

"No one loves a fat man."

"I dunno, there's Santa Claus."—Portland Express.

IN THE STONE AGE

Serpent—What was that smoke I saw coming out of your house?

Eve—Adam was smoking a shirt I made for him out of a nasty tasting weed.

Big Bugs

Lord Pomp was making a periodical visit to a certain mental hospital. Nearing the main entrance he saw coming towards him a well-dressed man. Thinking him connected with the place, he greeted him with a polite "Good morning."

The man returned the greeting and halted, remarking, "Are you going to the hospital, sir?"

"Yes," was the reply. "I'm Lord Pomp."

"Go on in, sir," came the rejoinder; "they'll cure you. I thought I was King Kong when I came here first."—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Badly Expressed

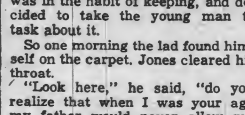
The teacher received the following note from Tommy's mother the next day:

"Dear Sir,—As one of your scholars hit my boy in the eye with a stone, he can't see out of it. So will you please see into it?"

So Near

Tramp—I lost a half-dollar this morning, Bill.



Bill—Hole in your pocket?

Tramp—No, the man who dropped it heard it fall.—Our Paper.

Teams Like Ferocious Names

Throughout the United States there are 24 college football teams known as the Tigers, twenty as Bulldogs, thirteen as Wildcats, and ten as Panthers.

POOR SIDE DISH

"I wish old Jones would get the idea out of his head that I am a vegetarian, and slip me a bit of meat now and then."

You Can Win

"Did you break into the bank vault and steal this money?"

"No, your honor, I merely borrowed it to deposit in an affiliate which gave it as collateral to a subsidiary which hypothecated its equity—"

"Case dismissed!"

Back Seat

"I'm a girl who won't take a back seat to any man."

"That completely spoils my plans for the evening."

"Why?"

"I was going to ask you to come to the pictures with me."

One Way

Freshman—Some upper classman was just telling me that we are to have a new concrete stadium next fall.

Sophomore—Yes, the alumni have at last decided to use their heads.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Precaution

"I hear that your audience applauded you wildly and long."

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "there's nothing like selecting an audience whose opinions you have studied beforehand."

S-S-S-Saps!

"What's your name?"

"S-S-S-Sam."

"Mind if I call you 'Sam' for short?"

Like a Man

Slink—Did Ginko take his bad luck like a man?

Maybe the reason girls no longer marry men to reform them is because the men are not the only ones who need reforming now.

Expo Beauty

LOVELY Leontine MacGregor of Florida is just one of the beauties gathered from all over the nation to glorify the new 1937 Great Lakes Exposition which continues open in Cleveland through September 6 and at which Billy Rose is presenting his great musical revue on and in the water, The Aquacade Revue. Easy on feet and on purse the compact 150-acre Exposition more thrills and sights than an can see in a day or a week-end.

Just a Little Smile

BEST HE COULD DO

A vast cloud of smoke and big tongues of flame began to issue from the windows of a house. A man ran over to it and pressed the electric bell. The door was opened by a woman who suffered from deafness.

"Mad, your house is on fire!" exclaimed the man.

"What's that?"

"Your house is on fire!" he repeated.

"What's that? House on fire? Oh, is that all?"

Supper for a Snack

A teacher had dwelt with wearisome irritation on the part played by carbo-hydrates, proteins, and fats respectively in the upkeep of the human body. At the end of the lesson the usual test questions were put.

"Can any girl tell me the three foods required to keep the body in health?" was the first one.

There was silence till one girl replied: "Breakfast, dinner and tea!"

Considerate of Him

"You were late coming home. I heard the clock strike 2."

"No, darling, it was about to strike 11, but I stopped it in case it disturbed you."—Stray Stories Magazine.

Family Ideas

Caller—Little boy, is your mother engaged?

Boy—Engaged? Why, she's married.

OLD GROUCH

"I don't like that hammerhead shark."

"Why?"

"He's always knocking some one."

His Suggestion

"What wor that I saw yer boy Mike carryin' yeaterday?" asked Mr. Dolan.

"That," answered Mr. Rafferty, "wor his golf outfit. What do yez think iv it?"

"Well, it struck me at the time that all it wanted was a pick an' shovel to be a fine kit o' tools."

Lucky

"Mr. Chairman," complained the speaker, "I have been on my feet for nearly ten minutes, but there is so much interruption I can hardly hear myself speak."

"Cheer up, my friend," came a voice from the rear, "you are not missin' much."—Boys' Life.

Saved!

She—I showed father the verses you sent me yesterday with my birthday present. He was pleased with them.

He—Indeed. What did he say?

She—He said he was delighted to find that I wasn't going to marry a poet.

Tail of Woe

Joe—Is it possible to have too much of a good thing?

Sapp—Well, the cat with the shortest tail runs the least chance of having it stepped on.

Broke

Son—I feel as though I hadn't a friend in the world.

Father — What! Spent all your money already?

BY THE TON

Dealer—No anthracite, only soft coal on hand!

Householder—Well, let me have some of that—it's hard compared with your customers, at any rate!

On More Mature Reflection

"Don't you wish you were a child again and could play in the show?"

"No," answered Miss Cayenne, "I thoroughly appreciate the advantages of a taxicab over a sled."

Ancient Mines Still Yield Ore

The mines of Alexander the Great in Macedonia are yielding rich ores. These were discovered during the World war.

And remember, paying taxes brings a feeling of relief even if it doesn't bring a feeling of satisfaction.

These fellows who can take a drink or let it alone are back again and so is hardening of the liver.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper given by the members of the Bullittsville Christian Church, Saturday night.

NO WOOF, WOOF

"My wife's dog has a habit of barking at me every time I come home."

"You're lucky. Mine doesn't notice me that much."

Amateur Gardening

On one of the new housing estates two men were discussing gardening over the dividing hedge, but neither knew anything about it.

"I'm thinking of growing some peas," said one. "Have you any idea what is the earliest time for setting them?"

"I dunno," replied the other, scratching his head. "Daybreak, I should think."

A Final Tribute

First Veteran—Jones told my missus about that mademoiselle in Paris and now there's just one thing I'm hoping for.

Second Veteran—What's that?

First Veteran—An early chance to be in the firing squad at his funeral!—Foreign Service F. V. W.

Unembellished Eloquence

"Did you hear me speaking over the radio?" inquired Mr. Dustin Stax.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "I liked it better than a personal talk. I really think your speeches are better when unaccompanied by facial expression."

A Few Remain

"What is that red and white striped pole?"

"Oh, that's just a relic of barbarism."

Maybe the Good Samaritan of Bible days did such fine work because a lot of curiosity seeker's didn't crowd around to tell him what to do and how to do it.

P. L. SIDEBOTTOM AMENDS REPORT

FILES NEW EXPENSE ACCOUNT —BEST ATTACKS PRIMARY RESULT—JOHN M. HALL ALSO FILES NEW ACCOUNT.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 23—Paul Sidebottom, Williamstown, has joined the chorus of "amenders" of expense accounts.

Ten days ago it was discovered that Sidebottom had reported expenditures of $603 or $103 in excess of the limit in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for state senator in his district. Sidebottom is an anti-administration man and won in the primary.

John M. Hall, Stamping Ground, administration supporter, also was found to haxe exceeded the limit by $38, according to his first report.

Contest suit has been filed against Hall by Roscoe Claxon on that ground. Hall then filed an amended report stating that he had only spent $329 and not $538 as he had reported at first. This was followed by Sidebottom filing an amended report showing an expenditure of $474.49 and repudiating the $603 statement.

Williamstown, Ky., Aug. 23—Paul L. Sidebottom, successful aspirant for the Democratic nomination for state senator in this district, was named defendant in a suit filed here Saturday, by his opponent Hoyt B. Best, Falmouth, attacking the primary election in which Sidebottom was declared victor by less than 300 votes.

It charges that Sidebottom "was guilty of gross violatin of the Kentucky Corrupt Practice Act" in filing a $603 pre-primary expense account with the secretary of state.

After enjoying a three-month vacation, Boone County students will return to their school work September 13th, according to D. H. Norris, Superintendent of Boone County Schools.

The same faculty will be in charge at the Burlington school, with E. E. Kirkwood, who has been superintendent for a number of years heading the group.

The enrollment for all schools this year is expected to be larger than usual, and with the anticipated increase in pupils, grounds for recreation have been improved, and in many places new equipment installed.

They are very proud of the fact and thankful that after fifty years they still have their entire family with them.

At noon a bounteous dinner was served to those presented. Seated at the wedding table, which was beautifully decorated with a large wedding cake, Talisman roses, baby breath, and gold tapers, were the bride and groom of fifty years ago and their brothers and sisters.

The boat is 45 feet in length with a 13-foot beam. It is powered by a 150 Diesel motor. The boat will be one of the most beautiful pleasure crafts on the Ohio River, being beautifully finished in mahogany, throughout.

The craft has sleeping quarters for ten and has a crusing speed of 14 miles per hour with a cruising radius of 1,000 miles.

Mr. Schoulties is General Superintendent of the Kentucky Post and is well known in Belleview and surrounding territory.

Lindsay Wilson, boat builder, of Cincinnati, was employed by Mr. Schoulties to design and build the craft.

The past week-end baseball games were very interesting and hard fought throughout, with some change in the standing of the teams.

Sunday the Burlington boys traveled to Petersburg where they were severely trounced by a score of 10 to 1. YOUTH CONFESSES FOUR ROBBERIES IN BOONE COUNTY

Arrested In Cincinnati Monday Night, Returned To Boone County By Sheriff Cotton Tuesday

Williard Sanders, 22 years old, 2516 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, was arrested Monday night for Boone County authorities who charged him with robbery of two residences near Burlington, theft and wrecking of an automobile, theft of a school bus, attempting to steal another car, and attempting to shoot the owner.

First of the reported robberies was at the home of H. R. Forkner, where he took some jewelery. He then moved from Forkner's to Robert Bradford's, where he took $6.

His next theft was the car of Al Rogers which he wrecked between Belleview and Burlington, finally abandoning the car just outside of Burlington where, he attempted to steal the car of Taylor Underhill. He had wired around the switch and was ready to drive away when Mr. Underhill was awakened. He opened the door, turning his dog loose and followed shouting at the robbery to stop. Sanders is said to have jumped from the car with a .410 gauge shot gun and fired either at the dog or Mr. Underhill.

Running to the near-by school, the man drove away in a Boone County school bus, which was not missed until the following day. The bus was found abandoned in Constance, where it had run out of gas.

Local officers searched throughout the night for the suspect, but were unable to find any trace of the man. Authorities in nearby cities were notified to be on the lookout for a man answering Sanders description. Motorcycle Patrolman Frank Harrison, Walter Hayes and Elmer Joyce arrested Sanders in Cincinnati Monday night at the Spring Grove address and he was returned to Burlington Tuesday morning by Sheriff W. B. Cotton, to await trial.

A watch which was stolen from the home of H. R. Forkner and the shotgun shells taken from the car of Al Rogers were recovered.

According to Judge N. E. Riddell, Sanders admitted having committed all the crimes and waived examining trial. He will be held for the next session of the Boone County grand jury.

"INTERNES CAN'T TAKE MONEY" IS FEATURE AT GAYETY SUN. AND MON.

"Internes can't take money."

This is the simple explanation of the unusual title, "Internes Can't Take Money," the drama with Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea, which will be on the screen at the Gayety Theater, Erlanger, Sunday and Monday, given by Dr. John J. Tomas, technical adviser on the production.

The odd title, Dr Toma explained, is due to the fact that internes, who are graduate physicians required to have practical experience in hospitals before they are admitted to practice, usually receive room, board and about ten dollars a month for expenses in exchange for their experience.

"Internes are expressly forbidden to take money or gifts of any kind for any services which they perform because they are not licensed to practice," Toma explained. "An interne caught taking money as a fee for any service or operation is subject to immediate dismissal from any hospital.

"McCrea, playing the role of a young interne in this production, is offered a gift of $1,000 for performing an operation and he refuses it, although he could put it to good use. His operation has saved the life of a gangster. The gangster repays McCrea by helping him out of a tight spot which climaxes the story."

Mrs. Laura Jaspers and daughter was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cropper and family last week.

TWO FOR ONE

It's no disgrace to copy the other fellow if by doing so you can better yourself and the other fellow too. No better illustration of it can be provided than in a regulation now being strictly enforced in Ireland which requires every citizen cutting a tree to replant two in its place. Old Boone County citizens who have in their lifetime seen the slow but certain destruction of this country's timber supply, with no systematized plan of replanting for the future, will be quick to endorse Ireland's law as the most sensible reforestation plan ever devised. Had it been in force in this country over the past quarter of a century America would not now be facing a treeless era, costly annual floods and an ever-increasing price on lumber and all wood products. Plant two trees every time you remove one. It works in Ireland—and by the law of common sense it will work over here.

KEEP ON CANNING

Housewives around Boone County who have taken advantage of the mid-summer months to can a supply of fruit for winter consumption are reminded that this year it will be almost impossible to overdo the job. All sorts of canned fruits and vegetables are higher now than they were in early spring, and they will go still higher by the time winter sets in. The only way to escape this increase will be to can an ample supply while fruits and vegetables are still available. Fall will bring a brief season of picking and preserving and that ,too, should be taken advantage of. The present price of raw products for canning may seem unsually high to the average housewife, but wait until a little later on and then make a few comparisons. Those who keep right on canning, regardless of fruit and vegetable prices will, it is safe to assert, have cause for rejoicing next winter when they see all canned products at the highest price they have been for a half-dozen years.

OUT OF GAS

There are 425,000 retail gas stations in the United States, or enough if uniformly placed to spot a station at an interval of every mile of main-traveled highway. And yet, according to a survey made by the American Automobile Association, more than 1,500,000 motorists tried to squeeze one too many miles out of the last gallon in 1936 and had to send back or walk back to the nearest station for gas. It is s o easy to avoid "running out of gas," declares the A. A. A. that you wouldn't think so many drivers could get caught in a single year's time. So in hope of reducing the number that may be caught in the same fix in the future, we are going to tell you how the A. A. A. says such a condition can be avoided. It is a simple suggestion. It is easy to comply with, and it never fails to work. It is this: Always carry a quart bottle of gasoline under the driver's seat or in the trunk of the car.

YOUR EYES

There is a valuable suggestion in the report of a national association of opticians to the effect that "Americans are going blind hunting for eyeglass bargains." It is a suggestion everyone in or around Boone County who wears glasses, or expects to, should ponder over.

The opticians do not point out that eyesight is the most valuable of all the human senses; they take it for granted that everyone knows that. But they do stress the fact that unless more care is taken in the future in buying glasses than has been shown in the past, America will eventually become a nation of faulty-visioned citizens. Each year finds a greater percentage of the population turning to eyeglasses and each year, the opticians say, a larger number of irresponsible persons are traveling about the country peddling cheap and harmful glasses to those who place so little value on their eyesight that they are willing to gamble with in in the hope of saving a few pennies.

Eyesight is something far too precious to be neglected or ignored. That eyeglasses are one of mankind's greatest blessings is a fact recognized by the millions who, sooner or later, find it necessary to turn to them for relief when vision becomes faulty and blindness threatens. But apparently there are many thousands in this country who have not yet realized that eyeglasses can be either a blessing or a menace. Taking chances on an unknown and irresponsible peddler when eyesight —your most precious natural gift —is at stake, is too much like inviting someone to rob you of your greatest earthly treasure, and then paying them for doing so.

A LAND OF LAWS

No other nation on earth has as many laws as America and according to statistics, no other nation is as lawless. Every year, year in and year out, 48 legislatures in as many states meet and enact new laws, and every year a national congress meets and does the same thing.

What the average taxpayer can't understand is why so many new laws are necessary, or would be necessary, if the old ones were enforced. And why those that are obsolete, or that apparently cannot be enforced, are not removed from the statute books. Since the cost of law-making comes directly out of the pockets of the taxpayers then they certainly have a right to ask such questions. Every newly-elected legislator goes to the state capital, as a rule, with material for a lot of new laws tucked away in his pocket or his head. Fortunately, only a small percentage of them actually become laws. But at that each legislative session sees a big bunch of new ones placed on the evermounting pile of statute books, and each year finds more and more of the old ones going unenforced.

There must be an answer somewhere to the question of the taxpayers who ask: "Why?" But hope of ever getting that question answered constantly becomes more remove. The making of new laws and failure to enforce the old ones goes right on, world without end. And the taxpayers of the nation, rich or poor or little or big, go right on footing the bill.

WEEK'S BEST RECIPE

Corn Omelet—Score the rows and scrape out pulp of 5 small plump ears of corn or one cup canned corn (strained.) Mix with 5 well-beaten eggs, one teaspoon cream, and salt, pepper to season. Have sheet-iron frying pan hot and buttered. Pour in mixture and shake and tile pan until evenly cooked. Roll and serve on a hot platter.

A STYLE HINT

Skirts to be fashionable will be shorter this fall. Fourteen inches from the floor will be the approved length, while 16 inches will be "quite daring." Hats will have higher crowns and be worn generally off the face, exposing the brow, and some waistlines will be higher.

Hands Off Chicken, Modern Code Insists

DEAR Mrs. Post: Is it incorrect, according to etiquette, to eat even the slightest bit of chicken in the fingers? I don't mean whether it is correct to take up what can be cut off the bone easily enough, but I am referring to the very small bones from which it is impossible to cut meat loose with knife and fork. Aren't good table manners today more lenient about these foods, especially if finger bowls are provided?

Answer: No, people are less lenient than they used to be. That is, if we go back to the descriptions given us by the writers of long ago, and as copied for instance in the moving picture of Henry the Eighth, who picked up a whole chicken in his hands and tore it apart, our table manners have become positively finicky. The only thing that could soil the fingers and is not tabued by the meticulous are lobster claws. And when such lobster is served, finger bowls of hot soapy water should be provided at once. Perhaps, if this practice were followed when serving chicken, there would be no objection to taking the wings in the fingers.

Folding the Napkin.

DEAR Mrs. Post: When eating a meal in someone's house, how is the napkin supposed to be left at the table?

Answer: Fold the napkin together loosely and lay it at the left of your place. If you are staying for the next meal, you would be more careful to fold it neatly in its original creases, especially if the others at table make it obvious by the way they fold their own that it is not customary to provide fresh napkins at each meal.

Tea for Many.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Please tell me whether you think I can use a big silver electric coffee percolator, which has a spigot, as a water kettle on a large afternoon tea table?

Answer: If there is an electric outlet under your table so that no one will trip over the cord, there is no reason why you shouldn't use it.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for August 29

GOD CONDEMNS INTEMPERANCE.

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 10:1, 2, 8-11; Proverbs 31:4, 5; Isaiah 28:1-8; Romans 14:21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise. Prov. 20:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—What a Wise King said.

JUNIOR TOPIC—When a Man Drinks.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Drinking Harms Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Why Beverage Alcohol Is a Social Foe.

The use of intoxicating liquors is financially unprofitable to the nation, scientifically unwise and destructive, socially degrading, and morally wrong.

I. The Problem.

The selected Old Testament scriptures which comprise our lesson present the use of intoxicants as causing four socially undesirable results.

1. Religious disobedience (Lev. 10:1,2; Isa. 28:7). Two things we may rightfully expect of those who serve the nation in its religious life: (1) a vision of God and obedience to that vision in life and service, and (2) the exercise of sound God-guided judgment in the affairs of the people. But note what happens when the prophet and the priest turn to wine and strong drink. "They err in vision" (Isa. 28:7). That is, they have no clear concepts of divine truth, and lead the people into error. Further, we see that "they stumble in judgment." To every true servant of God comes repeatedly the opportunity and the need of rendering judgment, that is, of advising and counselling those to whom he ministers. If his mind is befuddled by the use of alcohol (or, for that matter, of any other kind of worldly indulgence) he will "stumble," and cause his people to stumble.

A sad incident is related in Lev. 10:1,2 of the sons of Aaron, appointed to the priesthood and instructed in its privileges and duties, but coming with strange fire to be offered before the Lord. Swift and terrible was the judgment they received. We are not told directly that they were intoxicated, but it is implied in the fact that there is an immediate injunction against the use of wine by the priests.

Lest someone think that such a thing could not happen in our day the writer mentions word which recently came to him that a leading seminary has professors on its staff who defend the so-called moderate use of alcoholic drink.

2. Political disorder (Prov. 1:5). While political leaders make sanctimonious protestations that government agencies are not influenced by the liquor interests, it is common knowledge to even those who are slightly informed that the two are closely associated. The result of that unholy alliance is rightly described in Prov. 31:5—"They forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted." Much of the sad disorder in the body politic is traceable directly to the door of the makers and sellers of alcoholic beverages.

3. National decay (Isa. 28:1-6). "Overcome with wine"—stricken down, useless in life, without true ambition, such is the picture of the man who gives himself to drink. Poverty, with all its attendant social problems, follows on the heels of the sale and use of intoxicants. Some liquor dealers are beginning to sense a rising tide of opposition to their business, and are advertising, "We do not want bread money," but the fact is that it is all too often bread money that goes for liquor, and the vile stuff is still on sale where the poor man may readily spend his "bread money" for it.

4. Personal degradation (Isa. 28:8). "Vomit and filthiness" are not very nice words, but they describe accurately the ultimate condition of the drinker and his surroundings. The writer knows a young man who boasts that he never gets drunk because the "booze" makes him so sick that he vomits it up. Imagine a supposedly intelligent man drinking stuff so vile that his stomach (evidently having more sense than his head) sends it back—and then boasting of his ability to drink more!

II. The Solution, a Divine Principle (Rom. 14:21).

Thousands of Christian people have solved not only the drink problem, but practically every question of conduct and social life by applying this principle. Surely no true follower of Christ will be guilty of doing anything that will cause any brother to be offended, to stumble, or to be made weak.

Foundations

The foundation of domestic happiness is faith in the virtue of woman; the foundation of political happiness is confidence in the integrity of man; the foundation of happiness, temporal and eternal, is reliance on the goodness of God.—Landor.

CATTLE AND HOGS RETURN PROFITS

Reviewing a profitable year in Boone county, David Colville, assistant agricultural agent, notes that Russell Finn received $2,109 for 12 steers, and John Worthington cleared $318.90 on a litter of 12 pigs weighing 2,600 pounds. The big profit on the pigs came from feeding buttermilk, distillery slop and alfalfa. Only 24 bushels of corn were fed, but the pigs had the run of a good alfalfa field.

ABOUT THE WEATHER

Unusually clear air and very bright stars are an indication of rain . . . A red sky in the morning means much wind and rain, while a gray sky, with breaking clouds, indicates fin eweather . . . If distant sounds carry very distinctly rain will come soon. Smoke settling to the ground means the same thing . . Heavy dew in hot weather means continued fine weather. No dew foretells rain.

A Reduction In Interest On Time And Saving Deposits

Due to lack of demand for sound loans and the inability of banks to secure safe investments carrying a profitable coupon, the undersigned banks of Boone County will, on September 1st, reduce the interest rate on time and savings deposits to 2% and continue to absorb the taxes and F. D. I. C. assesment on deposits

Outstanding Time Certificates and Savings Accounts will carry the old rate of 2½% to maturity but any new deposits or renewals on and after September 1st will carry the new rate of 2%.

Sound banks can not continue to carry a large part of their deposits at a loss, which has been the case for the past few years on time and savings.

Many things have occurred to compel banks to take this step, such as the Old Age Pension Tax, Unemployment Insurance Tax, no interest paid by City Correspondent banks on uninvested funds, besides the loan and investment problem mentioned.

We trust that our customers will cooperate with us, as the reduction in interest rate is being made after due deliberation and as a last resort to curtail the loss accruing on interest bearing deposits.

Many banks have ceased paying any interest on Time and Savings, while others have reduced the rate to 1½%. We want to do everything possible for our customers but feel that the first consideration should be toward a sound and safe banking policy and not pay more for money than will show a reasonable profit to the banks.

Whole Body Suffers

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at People's Foot Comfort, 828 Madison, Covington, Ky.

Glorious vitality can be thoroughly quenched when feet hurt. Science has discovered many new things about the relation of feet to nerves and blood supply ——— things every man and women should know.

While you sleep, your body is rebuilding from the wear and tear of the day. But science has proved that when your feet give away, vital nerves and blood supplies are so cramped that soon Nature cannot rebuild fast enough to overcome the damage. Thus the loss of tissue takes its toll. Waste matter collects at the joints. Inflamation and pain follow and the

FRASER CAUTIONS VACATIONISTS TO AVOID LAST MINUTE RUSH

"To end your vacation with a real profit make it a point to reach home fresh, and not all tired out," says Dr. Robert A. Fraser, Chief Medical Director of the New York Life Insurance Company, to those who have been away for their vacation. "The hurrier, 'under the wire' finish of most vacations is a sure way to report back to work tired out and disgruntled, instead of being rested and full of enthusiasm.

"Plan the homeward trip so that you can cover it easily, comfortably and without rushing. In packing, put the things you will need as soon as you are home where you can get at them quickly, so that the bulk of unpacking and settling can be put off until the next day. Arrive home in plenty of time for a quiet supper, a leisurely evening and a good night's rest."

Yes . . a penny's worth of electricity will bring you two whole hours of radio entertainment. And one cent spent electrically will also—

—percolate six cups of delicious coffee —or toast eight slices of bread
—or vacuum clean two room-size rugs
—or provide four hours of electric refrigeration
—or bake two golden-brown waffles
—or operate an electric fan two and one-half hours —or do a week's mixing, whipping and juice-extracting
—or light a 60-watt globe for two and one-half hours

There's no getting around it—the money you spend for electricity gives you more honest-to-goodness value—more comfort and convenience—than any other money you spend. There is scarcely a household task that electricity will not perform for pennies or fractions of pennies. And remember this—while other things have been going up the cost of electricity has been coming down. You get more electricity for your money now than ever before in history.

ONE FAMILIAR FACE TO BE ABSENT FROM AIR RACES

Although the familiar figure of Amelia Earhart will be absent from the 1937 National Air Races, Cleveland Airport, Sept. 3 to 6, her dauntless spirit will carry on. For many years her outstanding character has been the guiding star for women flyers, novice and veteran, striving to attain some measure of her fame as a pilot.

At the 1935 Nationals, Miss Earhart put into competition the Amelia Earhart Trophy to be awarded annually to the winner of a race she had planned and sponsored, exclusively for women pilots. Her close friend Melba Beard won the event and the trophy that year to be followed in 1936 by Betty Browning.

As a memorial to Miss Earhart and to commorate her great contribution to aviation the race committee has dedicated the Amelia Earhart Memorial Trophy, a perpetual award which will be presented the winner of the special women's event to be held this year on Friday, Sept. 3.

Clifford W. Henderson, Managing Director of the National Air Race program without the active participation of Miss Earhart. She has been an outstanding factor year after year.

However, the Amerlia Earhart Memorial Trophy dedicated to her memory by the National Air Races, will perpetuate her influence in years to come, and the presentation of the trophy to the winner of this year's special speed event for women pilots will be one of the most impressive ceremonies on the entire program."

PHOSPHATE BRINGS BIG WHEAT YIELDS

Farmers cooperating with the Kentucky College of Agriculture in demonstrating the value of superphosphate and limestone in increasing wheat yields and in improving clover and other hay crops are reporting exceptional results.

Scott McLain and R. B. Walker, Spencer county, obtained 40 and 38 bushels to the acre, respectively on land treated with superphosphate, an increase of 10 bushels over wheat on untreated land.

Twenty Garrard county farmers using superphosphate and limestone secured an average of 39 bushels of wheat to the acre. compared to 22 bushels on untreated land. Mixed hay on treated land produced 2,300 pounds to the acre, and on untreated land 738 pounds.

In Marion county, W. V. Tatum grew 28 bushels of wheat to the acre, with the aid of limestone and superphosphate, and 18 bushels on the check plot. In addition, wheat on treated land was grazed by cattle and sheep.

In Woodford county, application of superphosphate increased wheat yields at least 10 bushels to the acre, according to William Steele, Jr. Clover also was benefited.

C. H. Owen, Rockcastle county, threshed 32 bushels of wheat to the acre on a 20-acre field that had been reclaimed by drainage, limestone and superphosphate.

G. M. Haycraft, Grayson county, threshed 3,121 bushels of wheat from a 100-acre field that had been given applications of limestone and phosphate.

In Robertson county, approximately 100 farmers had a production of 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre.

FOLKS call me "Old Reliable" —guess that's because I've been on the job serving the South so long—eighty-seven years in fact.
We have so much in common, Neighbor, I'd like to get better acquainted with you, but with 5,000 miles of road spread over 13 states and millions of dollars worth of equipment to look after and all—it seems hard to find time to visit with all our friends.
But here's what I really want to say. The biggest job we both have is home-making. Yours, for the care, protection and happiness of your family and community. Ours, for the comfort and pleasure of thousands of families using our railroad—and the dependable moving of everyday commodities. We have much the same problems; food to buy, furniture to replace, taxes to pay, civic duties to perform.
So, if you just think of the L & N as the "Friendly Railroad"—as a home owner, like yourself—a respectable, useful citizen who for nearly a century has had a hand in building towns and cities and industries, helping support schools and churches and highways, giving employment to thousands, well, you'll have a true picture of American Railroads. You'll understand why we proudly call the L & N "Your Home Sweet Home on Rails"—and with your friendship and help we're going to keep right on making that Home safer, more comfortable, more enjoyable.
And Neighbor, here's our hand on it.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Warts are probably caused by a minute organism which penetrates the skin. They may be spread from one part of the body to another. They frequently heal up for no apparent reason, and without having received any special treatment. The only dependable treatment for warts in painful places, such as on the soles of the feet, is X-ray treatment.

FIVE BANKS AGREE TO REDUCE INTEREST ON TIME DEPOSITS

According to an advertisement carried in this paper last week, five banks in Boone County will reduce their interest on Time and Saving Accounts from 2½ per cent to 2 per cent, effective yesterday.

The banks state this step is being made due to the lack of demand for sound loans and the inability of banks to secure safe investments carrying a profitable coupon.

The banks claim that they cannot continue to carry a large part of their deposits at a loss, which has been the case for the past few years on time and savings.

It is claimed that many banks have ceased paying interest on time and savings, while others have reduced the rate to 1½ per cent.

Boone County banks have always been considered very strong and though many banks in other counties falled during the depression, there was not a single failure in our county. If it is necessary for the banks to reduce their interest rate on time and savings accounts, in order to operate on a paying basis, we believe that everyone will cooperate with them in this move.

The following banks signed the advertisement in our last issue to reduce the rate: Peoples Deposit Bank, Hebron Deposit, Florence Deposit Bank, Union Deposit Bank and the Dixie State Bank.

FURNITURE CO. ENLARGES SPACE

By converting the third floor of the building at 41 Pike street and 36 W. Seventh street, Covington, into show rooms the Baldwin Furniture Co., has enlarged its floor space by one-third.

The additional space is being devoted to the displaying of living and bed room furniture.

With the idea that better furniture at lower prices would appeal to every one, Ed Baldwin organized the Baldwin Furniture Company 18 months ago at its present location 41 Pike Street and 26 W. Seventh Street. That the venture has been successful is evidenced by the necessity of adding more floor space. Mr. Baldwin says he has made every effort to give his customers the quickest and best service possible.

With the opening of the new show rooms Mr. Baldwin desires to thank those who have through their patronage been responsible for the success of his business.

Only those who have attended the events in the past can realize the pleasure of a day spent on these beautiful grounds, and those who have never attended will miss a real treat if they are absent this year.

MARX GUFFAWS REQUIRED YEAR OF PREPARATION

A year of preparation was required before the Marx Brothers could begin work on their seventh motion picture comedy, "A Day at the Races," which will be plyed at the Gayety Theater, Erlanger, Sunday and Monday, Sept. 5th and 6th.

Believing that comedy stars for whom special original material must be written should not make more than one picture a year, the comedians spent most of the past year in selecting a story background, whipping a plot into shape and riginating comedy situations. With them on the picture were six writers, Director Sam Wood and Producer Lawrence Weingarten.

Six months were required to plot the original basis for the picture and turn this material into a stage act of an hour and a half's length. Two months then were spent in rehearsing this stage act and presenting it for four shows a day, seven days a week for week engagements in five cities extending from Chicago to San Francisco. This served as a test for the comedy material and resulted in a tabulation of more than 200 sure laughs by the time the tour was ended.

FARMERS INTERESTED

IN EARNING 100 PER CENT OF 1937 AGRICULTURAL ALLOWANCE — SEVERAL REQUESTS FOR LIMESTONE.

Boone County farmers the past week have shown a marked interest toward earning 100 per cent of their 1937 ACP allowance, according to H. R. Forkner County Agent. One car of 43 per cent T. V. A. phosphate was ordered the past week. almost another car order is now made up. Requests for several hundred tons of limestone were also received at the County Office. Hundreds of tons in addition are being ordered by farmers direct from dealers.

Preliminary surveys from supervisors reports showed about two weeks ago that Boone County farmers had earned only $19,000 of the total $48,000.00 ACP allowance allotted the county. This left a total of $29,000.00 to be earned before October 31st through the fall seeding of grasses and legumes, use of lime and phosphate. Failure to earn this allowance would result in a loss of the unearned amount and may cause the allotments to be reduced another year.

The program has been definitely set up so that the average farmer can not easily earn his full allowance through seedings alone. It is felt by many that the ACP allowance should be used to carry out additional practices to what the farmers would carry out anyway. Experimental and demonstration work conducted over the state for a number of years shows that lime and phosphate used together are a great help toward getting better stands of grasses and legumes that grow faster, live longer and yield more than untreated plots. Phosphate, as is lime, is available this fall to every farmer in Boone County if he acts immediately.

Recommended practices to earn 100 per cent of the ACP allowance this fall include the following:

1. Seeding of grasses and legumes:

(a) Timothy, minimum 8 pounds per acre, $1.00 per acre seeded.

(b) Red Top, minimium 4 pounds per acre, $1.00 per acre seeded.

(c) Orchard Grass, minimium 8 lbs. per acre, $1.50 per acre seeded.

(d) Blue Grass, minimum 10 lbs. per acre, $2.00 per acre seeded.

(e) Sweet Clover, minimium 10 lbs. per acre, $1.50 per acre seeded.

(f) Vetch, minimum 15 lbs. per acre, $1.50 per acre seeded.

(g) Crimson Clover, minimium 10 lbs. per acre, $1.50 per acre seeded.

(h) Alfalfa, minimum 10 pounds per acre, $2.50 per acre seeded.

2. Using limestone ½ to 2½ tons per acre and increase crop yields for next ten years to come; rate of pay $1.50 per ton. Stone can be crushed on your farm for 80 cents per ton if your order is placed immediately. The rush on fall orders are piling up fast.

3. Use 43 per cent T. V. A. phosphate from 50 lb. to 200 lb. per acre on grass or legume crops. Rate of pay $1.61 per hundred. Half rate secured when sown with small grain and grass this fall.

T. V. A. phosphate secured on your ACP allowance through the county office is in reality free provided you would not otherwise use your full allowance. You pay the freight and handling charge of $5.30 per ton or 26½ cents per hundred. This same fertilizer from a dealer would cost you $52 to $54.00 per ton. Phosphate helps get better stands of grass, that lasts longer. grows faster, richer in minerals and makes your farm look better. Order now at the County office. It takes about 30 days for delivery.

Farmers desiring to order T. V. A. phosphate should file their order at the County Agent's Office immediately as it takes approximately thirty days for delivery Several weeks crushing of limestone is already scheduled ahead of the pulverizers. Farmers expecting to have limestone crushed should phone their orders in immediately. One truckman has offered to haul rock to most points in the county for $1.00 per ton.

400 QUAIL ARE APPLIED FOR

BY BOONE COUNTY FISH AND GAME COMMISSION—HUBERT CONNER OF HEBRON WILL BE IN CHARGE OF BIRDS.

Due to lack of funds and equipment of the State Game Commission at Frankfort to produce a very large number of game birds for this year, the Commission has asked the cooperatoin of the various Fish and Game Conservation Clubs throughout the state in producing these quail.

The Boone County Club has made arrangements with Hubert Conner of near Hebron to raise the young birds which will be shipped to the club at the age of approximately eight weeks. The local club will bear all expenses of this undertaking, and next spring when the birds reach a mature stage and weather conditions are suitable, the club will distribute the birds at such points as will will meet the approval of the club members. The birds will be the property of the Fish and Game Conservation Club after they have reached maturity, and only the members will have a voice as to where these quail will be planted.

The Fish and Game Club in Boone County are doing a lot for the replacement of fish and game in Boone County, as well as helping to protect the farmer and his property. The club has a membership at present of approximately 100 members, and all sportsmen and local farmers should cooperate with the club in doing everything that is going to help Boone County.

The next monthly meeting of this organization will be held next Thursday night, Sept. 9th at the courthouse. Come and bring new members.

THE COST OF LIVING

There has always been a general belief that there is a wide variation between the cost of living in town and living out in the rural districts. Doubtless many Boone County citizens have at various times discussed the subject, yet failed to reach a satisfactory conclusion. Now the answer seems to be at hand.

According to a home management specialist at the Nebraska College of Agriculture, it costs much less to live on a farm than it does in a town or city. She made a complete survey of 356 account books kept by city and farm wives and the figures arrived at would probably vary little in any state in the union. The accounts reveal that it costs a town family an average of $1,612 to live during the year, compared to $1,227 average for the farm family. Food cost for the average city family was $333 a year, compared to $200 for the farm home. The summary shows that Dad spends $49.38 for clothing in the city while out on the farm it costs him only $29.95. Mother's clothes were more expensive in the city, too.

House rents drove the city dweller's cost up considerably. Rent was figured at 9 per cent depreciation on the assessed value of the buildings. With this as a basis the summary showed farm families averaged $160 a year for shelter, compared to $171 for the city family. Fuel, light, water, telephone and automobile expenses ran higher in the city, but expenditures for education, church, recreation, health and gifts runs about even everywhere.

CHURCH GROWTH

It should be of interest to churchgoers around Boone County to learn that, contrary to general opinion, church membership in the U. S. has not declined in recent years. Instead it has increased, and the increase has been far in advance of the proportionate increase in population. Figures just compiled at the close of a very thorough survey reveal that one out of every two persons in this country belong to a church. It shows, too, that interest in the church is not dying out and that the trend is not away from religin, as so many contend, but toward it. Spiritual sustenance is still sought by our people and the church has not been blind or deaf to its opportunities. The nation still clings to the religious beliefs of its founders.

SAME OLD BUNK

There are a good many people in this county capable of remembering the tales of Old World atrocities told in America just after Germany declared war on France in 1914. They recall the stories of how the Germans were burning little children in oil, cutting off the noses and toes of war prisoners, and all that. At first the stories were just whispered. Then everyone began to talk out loud and the first thing anyone realized a powerful public sentiment had been created against Germany and everything German. Those stories had a lot to do with America getting mixed up in the war two years later.

History is repeating itself, for another new batch of atrocity stories are drifting into America and being circulated, mostly by radicals and Communists. Unless checked at the source, however, more conservative people will be repeating them, and public sentiwill again take a stand for or against some foreign nation.

Right now, with cannon roaring in the Old World and good reason to believe that an even greater war than the World War is in the making, is a good time to turn a deaf ear to atrocity stories. Take all the foreign report of butchery and barbarism with a grain of salt, and don't repeat what you hear. In doing so you will help your country to remain absolutely neutral. If we can continue to remain that way we won't get mixed up in the next great struggle, and the ocean of blood that may be spilled over there will not be the blood of American citizens.

LAND GAMBLING

The average citizen capable of thinking back to the days immediately following the World War will recall that the country at that time passed through an era of "land gambling." He will also recall that with wheat, corn and most all other farm products selling at the highest prices ever known, many farmers plunged in and erpended all their saving for more land—also then bringing war-time prices. Others mortgaged the acres they owned and added more acreage. Then the bubble burst. Prices of farm products declined, and so did the value of acreage. Today, with prices again in the ascendancy there is fear that another "land gambling spree" is about to be indulged in, so Uncle Sam is issuing warnings in the hope of preventing it. Many new citizens have come upon the stage since the sad experiences of some 16 years ago, and they are the ones most apt to suffer. Rising prices for farm products can be viewed with joy and gratitude. But a sudden jump in the price of farm acreage brings a demand for caution and the use of a lot of good, old-fashioned common sense.

YOUR CREDIT

There are in every community people who repudiate moral obligatins, who shunt duty aside and actually hope to escape payment of their debts through sore sort of technicality. While it is possible that the obligation may not, in every instance, be equitably just, there still remains the duty to meet those that are, or at least to acknowledge them and make an honest endeavor to do so. Refusal to be bound by a moral obligation can only mean the destruction of credit sooner or later, and in this as in every community credit and personal character march hand-in-hand. If you destroy one you destroy both. "Keep your credit good" is the sound advice of every successful business man of today. It is the best advice that was handed to the old generation; it should be still beter for the rising generation because its future is before it. But it will not be a very pleasant future for those who deliberately destroy their credit by repudiating their moral obligations.

Can't Walk Far, but Wants to Return Calls

DEAR Mrs. Post: I am a stranger in this community and in the short time I've lived here so many of the local people have been to call on me—neighbors, church women and people who were told about me by friends of mine living elsewhere. All but the neighbors live too far for me to be able to return these visits. I can not hire a taxi and the distances are too far for me to walk as I am not young. How can I show my appreciation in place of paying visits, and encourage their calling again?

Answer: I would invite them to come in to tea, or perhaps you might have a regular day at home and send out cards reading Mondays or Fridays or whatever day it is. And then tell them when you see them that you have to ask people to be good enough to go to see you because you are not able to walk so far.

Adopting a Child.

DEAR Mrs. Post: We are expecting a young boy from an orphanage very soon, having been able to get him through a local politician who recommended us highly and used his influence. Is there anything we could do to show our appreciation to him? I do not know his wife.

Answer: I think it would be better to wait until the child has become thoroughly established in your family and then write the politician a letter and tell him how happy Johnny has made you.

Child's Friendly Impulse.

DEAR Mrs. Post: My younger daughter's Sunday - school teacher came to call on us shortly after my child joined her class. I suppose such a visit need not be returned, but the child would like me to take her to see the teacher some afternoon, and unless it would be very irregular I would like to.

Answer: Returning such visits is not a social obligation, but it would be no more than courteous to do so. Under the circumstances, I would certainly encourage the child's impulse of friendliness by taking her with me.

Lesson for September 5

GOD REQUIRES SOCIAL JUSTICE.

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 19:1-18, 32-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise. Luke 6:31.
PRIMARY TOPIC—At Harvest Time.
JUNIOR TOPIC—At Harvest Time.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Championing the Rights of Others.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—My Resonsibility for Social Justice.

Labor Day—in this year of our Lord 1937—looks out upon a world deeply divided in opinions of what is right and what is wrong in the relationship between capital and labor. Political and economic leaders are talking much of social justice, of a planned economy in which all shall have a full share of the products of labor. Surely, we would all agree that there should be only kindness and justice in all such dealings of man with man. But how to accomplish that result in a world of selfishness and sin, that indeed is the question.

Unfortunately, many of those in the church who have greatly stressed social relationships have forgotten that the true foundation for such teaching and living is the preaching of the gospel of redemption. In reaction to their impossible position, others who have faithfully preached the necessity of regeneration have forgotten to stress the need of the expression of regenerated life in the social relationships of man. We need God-given balance, with a proper reflection of gospel truth in honest and helpful living. God wants his people to show that they belong to him by

I. Providing for the Poor and Needy (vv. 9, 10, 14, 15).

When Jesus said, "Ye have the poor always with you" (Matt. 26:11), he referred to one of the responsibilities which thoughtful and considerate men have always gladly borne, but which has been a constant problem to both individuals and nations. We have dealt with it in our day on a broad and supposedly scientific basis, but those who are closest to it are quick to admit that we have even now an imperfect solution. In the days of Israel the poor were fed by the purposeful leaving of gleanings in the field—which the needy were free to gather as their own. Thus they had the joy of helping themselves even as they were being helped by others, and, in the final analysis, by God himself.

II. Guarding Another's Reputation (vv. 16-18).

Gossip is a destructive means of breaking down the good standing of another. It is a sin all too common in our day, even within the circle of God's own people. Talebearing and evil-speaking are a blight on our social and religious life. We should put them away.

Akin to this common and awful sin is the bearing of grudges and the seeking for revenge, neither of which serves any good purpose.

III. Honoring the Aged (v. 32).

Old - age pensions undoubtedly have their place in our complicated social life, but it is evident that they would be entirely unnecessary if men and women had in the fear of God honored "the floary head" and "the face of the old man," even as God gave command to Israel.

IV. Loving the Stranger (vv. 33, 34).

The man who knows what it is to have been a stranger, and to meet with love and protecting care, should never forget to go and do likewise. Living, as many of us do, in great cities makes this somewhat of a problem, and yet one sometimes wonders whether the bustling city is not often kinder to the stranger than the little community, which makes him feel like an "outsider."

V. Being Honest in Business (vv. 11-13, 35, 36).

No stealing, no false swearing, no defrauding, no withholding of wages, for all these things dishonor or "profane the name of thy God."

A good motto to hang up behind the counter or over the desk in a business house is found in the words of verses 35 and 36. False bottoms, trick scales, short measure—oh, yes, they are against the city ordinance, and you will be fined if you are caught. But remember, they are also an abomination in the sight of the Lord.

The closing verse of our lesson reiterates that important truth. In carrying out the tenets of social justice we are not simply being humane and kind. We are observing the statutes and ordinances of the Eternal One, him who says, "I am Jehovah."

Being One in Faith

It is good to know that in whatever country we are found, and under whatever sky, we are, through faith in the divine Saviour, members in the same body, sheep in the same fold, children of one home.

Pay Up Our Debts

Debt comes under the eighth commandment. It hangs a millstone round the neck of the man or woman who incurs it. It corrodes honesty.

A Safety Tip FOR YOUR Labor Day Trip

Here's Why FIRESTONE STANDARD TIRES GIVE YOU MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

DON'T take chances on your Labor Day trip. Protect yourself and family by equipping your car with a set of new first-quality Firestone Standard Tires. Firestone builds extra quality and extra safety into these tires and sells them at lower prices because Firestone controls rubber and cotton supplies at their sources, manufactures with greater efficiency and distributes at lower cost.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord because every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping Process. This counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE—because of the extra-tough, long-wearing tread.

You need all of these features to make your car tire-safe on your Labor Day trip. Firestone gives them to you at lower cost. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires—today's top tire value.

THAT a million more were injured?
THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires?

At right is section cut from a new Firestone Tire. Note the thick, non-skid protection against skidding, blowouts and punctures. Come in and see by actual demonstration.

At left is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, with non-skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

COLLEGE TO STRESS BETTER LIVING IN STATE FAIR EXHIBIT

How electricity improves living conditions on farms will be one of the features of the exhibits of the Kentucky College of Agriculture at the State Fair in Louisville, September 13-18. Electricity will soon be available on thousands of farms in Kentucky, through the aid of the Rural Electrification Administration.

The college will also show how to conduct a model curb market, for the benefit of farm women who are planning to use this method of disposing of home products. Several curb markets are now operating in the state.

Other parts of the college's exhibits in the Grandstand building will deal with tobacco growing and curing, the use and value of cover crops, good seeds, the relation of soil erosion and farm income, seasonal trends in hog prices good and poor kinds of western ewes, how breeding influences dairy profits, the production of better vegetables and the control of the army worm.

In the 4-H club department will be the usual displays of canned and baked foods, clothing and room improvement furnishings. Club members from about 100 counties will take part in livestock judging contests, and also exhibit dairy cattle, swine, sheep and poultry.

The good old days were those when most of the excess wind was used to turn windmills instead of being used over the radios.

Limestone is being delivered on Franklin county farms for $1.75 to $2 a ton.

NATIVE BOONE COUNTIAN DIES

IN SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—WAS BORN AND REARED IN BURLINGTON — DEATH DUE TO PARALYTIC STROKE.

Kenneth McKenzie, a native of Boone County and only son of Dr. I. R. McKenzie, once a prominent practicing physician of Burlington, and Virginia Platt McKenzie, daughter of A. S. Platt, well-known Boone County landowner, died in San Diego, Calif., Aug. 27, at the age of 67 years.

Mr. McKenzie was born in Burlington and received his early schooling here. His education was completed in St. Louis, where his father established himself following the death of Mrs. McKenzie, and in Chicago, where he identified himself with the ticket brokerage firm of McKenzie & Frye. Following his marriage, he established a ticket brokerage business of his own in Colorado Springs, Colo., which he sold to join the sales staff of the Western Metal Supply Company of San Diego. After eighteen years with this organization, of which he rose to be vice-president, he engaged in the manufacture of an auto accessory in Denver. He served four years in the U. S. Navy.

SPECIALIST WARN WEED GROWERS

AGAINST HOUSE BURNING—RUSSELL HUNT URGED LOCAL FARMERS TO USE GREATER CARE IN CURING WEED.

Russell Hunt, tobacco field agent from the College, urged that farmers use greater care in curing their tobacco in order a lighter colored crop, that will bring a higher price and greater profit will be secured. Mr. Hunt met with growers at a meeting in Burlington courthouse Thursday afternoon, September 2nd.

Mr. Hunt stated that already there had been considerable house burning in early housed crops and house burning weather usually results in a dark colored crop. Good colored leaf can be secured in almost any barn thru control of moisture conditions. The first requirement in the efficient control of the curing process is a good barn, preferably with a ridge ventilator (not small vents), across the entire comb of the barn so that air may come in at the bottom and go out the top. Second requirement to regulate the circulation of air within the barn thru use of heat, preferably coke. Extension Circular No. 299, Ventilation of Tobacco Barns, is available at the County Agent's office on request.

H. R. Forkner, County Agent, reported the results of tobacco root rot resisting and Fusarium Wilt resistant varieties demonstrations. Eighty-seven and one-half percent of the demonstration growers reported the new Experiment Station No. 16 variety as a more uniform, quicker growing but less drouth resisting variety than No. 5 and other standing up White Burley tobacco varieties grown. The leaves of No. 16 were set closer together and of good size and quality. Experiment Station No. 32, Fusarium Wilt resistant variety grown in three demonstrations this year was practically 100 percent wilt free and gives promise of being a good quality and variety.

"BUTT ME NO BUTTS," SAYS JANE TO GOAT

Right in line with current trends in the modernization of one of Mother Goose's best known verses, "Mary Had a Little Lamb," which it is announced has now become "Jane Had a Little Goat."

In the farmyard scene in which mischievious Jane Withers executes her most hilarious high-jinks for her latest Twentieth Century-Fox picture, "Angel's Holiday," at the Gayety Theater, Erlanger Sunday and Monday, there is a nanny goat and her three-months-old offspring. As soon as Jane saw the kid and as soon as the kid saw Jane, they "fell" for each other.

The "falling" occurred when Nanny butted Jane for trying to get acquainted with her son, but the prop men helped her out and Jane adopted the little goat. Since then the kid's diet, which amazes everyone on the set, has included everybody's lunch, several costumes miscellaneous props used for the farmyard atmosphere, and Jane's school books.

The last item is what endeared Billy to Jane, obviously.

IMPROVEMENT FOR RIDGE VENTILATOR

An improved type of ridge ventilator for tobacco barns is described in a revised circular of the Kentucky College of Agriculture at Lexington. The ventilator is leak proof, has doors protected from the rain and sun, and in other ways is said to have advantages over the old types of ventilators.

The circular was prepared by Russell A. Hunt, field agent for the college who is making a study of tobacco production, and Jesse B. Brooks, agricultural engineer. Copies may be had from county agents or by writing to the college

This story sounds more like a Ripley, "Believe It or Not."

AT ALEXANDRIA FAIR — CUP TROPHY GIVENT TO WINNER IN ADDITION TO PRIZE MONEY.

The sweepstakes of the Alexandria Fair horse show was won Monday night by Mary Elizabeth, brilliant mare of the Williams-dale Stables of Erlanger, when she coasted to victory over five other entries in the five-gaited sadle horse stake.

The care was given an excellent mide by her trainer, Oscar Gibbs. From the time Mary Elizabeth entered the ring, there was little doubt as to the outcome. The Williams-dale Stables is owned by Colonel Charles M. Williams, of Cincinnati.

The winner of the sweepstakes received $100 in premiums. Besides the premium money a silver and gold trophy cup, the gift of Charles A. Sargent, of Cincinnati, was presented on behalf of the Fair Board by former State Senator Charles B. Tuesdell of Fort Thomas.

More than 10,000 persons attended the horse show last night, which filled the historic grand stand, built more than 80 years ago, to overflowing. A half hour before the sweepstakes was held it became necessary for the fair board to instruct the gate keepers to allow no one else to enter the grand stand, so great was the crowd.

WIFE WATCHES AS HUSBAND ENDS LIFE

Williamstown, Ky., Sept. 6—Sinnett R. Humphrey, 56 years old, ended his life at Dry Ridge this afternoon. His widow, Angel Humphrey, who witnessed the tragedy said she was standing on the front porch of her home and saw her husband as he leaped in front of an extra freight train which was going south.

Mrs. Humphrey said her husband was walking north between the double tracks of the Southern Railroad and as the train approached he leaped in front of it with his arms stretched upward.

He had been in ill health for more than a year. The engineer and fireman saw Humphrey, but it was impossible to stop the train.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sach and Mr. and Mrs. Lorenge Needham, of Indianapolis, Ind., were Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick.

FIREMEN'S PICNIC WELL ATTENDED

SATURDAY NIGHT AT ZIMMER'S GARDENS, FLORENCE—ENTERTAINMENT WELL MANAGED BY SPONSORS.

The firemen's picnic held at the historic Florence fair grounds Saturday night was a decided success financially and otherwise.

What was said to be the largest crowd to gather here in many years was present to enjoy the picnic and dance. An evening of dancing, cards and bingo was enjoyed by all who were in attendance.

The picnic was sponsored by the Florence fire department to raise money to pay for a fire truck, hose, ladders and other fire fighting equipment. According to reports handed this office, this is the only manner in which their equipment can be paid for.

The Florence fire department is composed of volunteers and they have, through their efficient service and new equipment, reduced the fire insurance rate in the town of Florence approximately one-half. They have been very prompt in answering distress calls from adjoining communities.

The crowd which gathered at their picnic Saturday night, showed the enthusiasm of their supporters, and no doubt will encourage this department to make effort toward making their community a safer place in which to live.

SHAMBLES IN SPAIN

Spain's bloody revolution, after being in progress for 12 months, represents a loss of 350,000 lives. That vast number of men, women and children have been slain and three times that number wounded. The damage done cannot be repaired within the life of the present generation. Hatreds have been loosed that cannot be wiped out in another century. All the rules of ordinary warfare were scrapped when the fighting started. Prisoners of war were killed, undefended cities bombed from sea and air, women and children slaughtered by wholesale as they fled.

The Spanish struggle will be recorded in history as "the little world war" and if the shocking procedures which have marked it are to be carried out on a still larger scale in the next great world conflict between the nations of Europe, then this thing we call civilization is unworthy of the name. We are just a step removed from barbarism.

Newspaper readers in this county who have kept posted on the Spanish struggle are justified in asking what good can come out of such slaughter, and who is going to gain. Spain will never recover from her present plight, and those dictators in Europe who have sought to further their own ends by aiding in the struggle should hang their heads in shame over the shambles they assisted in creating in this once proud and happy land. Surely retribution must come sooner or later. It will be a glad day for the world when such dictators are wiped from the face of the earth.

IN SEPTEMBER

September brings the close of the vacation season, and ends the dangers which beset thousands of motorists while they were pleasure hunting in territory whose highways were unfamiliar to them. But with the passing of this hazard, September brings a still more serious one. It brings the opening of thousands of schools throughout the country, and renews the annual demand for extreme carefulness on the part of those who drive in the vicinity of any school house in which children assemble.

While Boone County parents can be credited with trying to impress upon their children the dangers that beset them on their journey to and from school, it still must be remembered that children do not always do as they are told. Their youthful minds are not capable of fully realizing these dangers; they are not capable of thinking in terms of sudden death or permanent injuries. For that reason it is necessary for the motorist to think for the child as well as himself, and this must be kept constantly in mind while driving in the vicinity of a schoolhouse.

All things considered, September is an ideal driving month, with decreased traffic and less dangerous highway conditions than will be the rule later on. But September brings this one great danger—the resumption of school—and with it the necessity for increased care in the operation of a car. Thoughtful motorists will keep that fact constantly in mind.

GETTING A BREAK

As estimates now stand, American farmers will have produced more than 5,000,000,000 bushels of corn, wheat, oats, barley and rye combined when the harvest season reaches its close, as it will in a few more weeks. This is the largest crop of five major grains farmers have had since 1932 and statisticians of the grain trade estimate its value at between three and four billion dollars. Other experts figure the total farm income this year, from the sale of all farm products, at right around $9,000,000,000. And what makes this all the more gratifying is that a dollar in the farmer's pocket in 1937 will buy slightly more of city-produced goods than the same dollar in the same farmer's pocket would have bought in the normal year of 1926. This is cause for satisfaction to manufacturers, distributors and wage-earners, as well as to the farmers themselves. As everyone realizes, the farmers have had slim pickings for the past several years. For that reason everyone is thankful that at last he is getting a break.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

When you read in your newspaper of the stern control of the press by the governments in many European nations you should feel like singing praises to your own "land of the free." Is it any wonder that America is making such gigantic strides in progress compared with nations of the Old World? In those countries only voices which the government rules correct and safe for those in power may speak to the public through the press. The government holds the people in the hollow of its hand and freedom of speech and press are unknown. Here the voice of the people is heard through the government and the press. There are many varieties of opinions expressed through American newspapers, and you may differ with many of them. But the fact remains that there is always something to suit every taste. The rue freedom of this county lies in an unshackled, independent press. America has long enjoyed that blessing, and it should be carefully guarded.

HIGHWAY LIGHTING FOR SAFETY

"At least 35 per cent of the night fatal accidents, it seems reasonable to believe, should be prevented by the provision of adequate highway lighting," according to a report on Technological Trends recently submitted to President Roosevelt by the National Resources Committee.

Citing statistics compiled by the Travelers Insurance Company and the National Safety Council, the report proves the vital relationship of visibility to night fatalities, which in 1935 numbered 21,480 and comprised over 60 per cent of the total day and night traffic deaths, even though only one-fifth of the 24-hour traffic is one the road after dark.

From figures submitted by the states of New Jersey, Oregon, New York, North Carolina and Pennsylvania, it was observed that fatality experience was about the same for the summer months of May, June and July as it was for the winter months of November, December and January—with this one important exception: Between the hours of 5 to 8 p. m., fatalities were 58 per cent higher in the winter months when it is dark, than in the summer when it is light, and despite the fact that traffic volume is considerably less in the winter. The report estimates that a reduction of 47 per cent in night fatalities during the winter period should be expected if sufficient light were supplied.

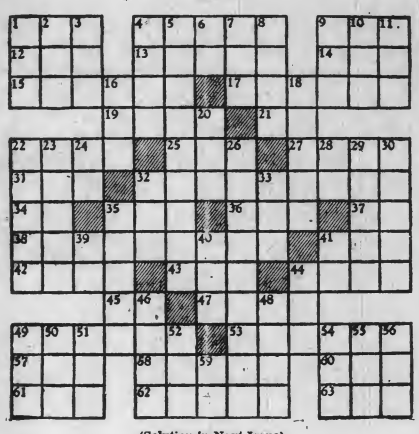
Studies made by R. E. Simpson in 60 cities, quoted by the report, showed that the average day fatality rate per M. T. U. (million traffic units), on streets carrying 1,500 automobiles per hour, was 0.046. The ratio of night to day fatalities on these same streets, according to the grade of street lighting, varied from 8 to 1, to 47 to 1.

"While the extension of highway lighting may be justified on the basis of cold dollars-and-cents economics, based on anticipated reduction of night accidents, numerous other social effects may be expected," the report continues, mentining the advantages resulting from the reduction in highway crime, more efficient utilization of highways, and increased comfort and enjoyment in night driving. Estimates show that about 80 per cent of traffic moves in the daytime as compared to 20 per cent at night—a fact which indicates that the tremendous investment in our highway system is in large part being wasted during the hours of darkness.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

When a person has been in bed for sometime sore places on the back may be relieved by cutting a ring or "doughnut" out of cotton and placing it over the sore area. Alcohol rubs prevent bed sores. Or apply to area the white of an egg beaten with two tablespoons of spirits of wine.

A BEAUTY HINT



Summer sun and wind is beneficial to the hair and scalp, but tends to make the hair more dry and brittle. A hot oil shampoo will do wonders toward improving the health of the scalp and restoring the naturally soft texture of the hair. Use either pure olive oil or odorless castor oil. Apply while it is lukewarm.

Can Maid of Honor Sing at a Wedding?

DEAR Mrs. Post: I have an only sister who is to be my maid of honor. This sister has a lovely voice and I would like very much to have her sing at the wedding if you think this could be arranged so as not to interfere with the wedding procession. Will you tell me how you think it could best be done?

Answer: It would be unusual but not unheard of should your sister sing during the pause in the ceremony between the betrothal and the plighting of the troth. In other words, she could stand at the side of the chancel steps and sing while you and your betrothed walk slowly up the steps and take your places in front of the altar. Having finished her song, which of course must be very short, she then follows and stands on your left. If it could be arranged so that she would be hidden from view, she could sing while the congregation is assembling, but it would not do to have her enter the church and then go out again to meet you and come down in the processional.

Fine Technical Point.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Which is correct? Drink your soup or eat your soup?

Answer: Eat your soup with a spoon and drink it from a cup. In other words, you eat it with a tablespoon when served in a plate; you sip it from a teaspoon or drink it, when served in a cup.

Ribbons and Seats.

DEAR Mrs. Post: What is meant by "in front of the ribbons" and "within the ribbons" and who is seated in each place?

Answer: Both mean the same thing; having a place within the enclosure marked by the ribbons. The pews in front of the ribbons are always seated according to nearness of relationship, and cards bearing the actual pew numbers are sent by the mother of the groom to each of those relatives and a few dearest friends who are to be seated on the groom's side of the church, and by the mother of the bride to each of those who are to be seated on the bride's side of the church.

Lesson for September 12

A NATION NEEDS RELIGIOUS HOMES.

LESSON TEXT — Deuteronomy 6:4, 5; 11:18-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it. Prov. 22:6.
PRIMARY TOPIC—At Our House.
JUNIOR TOPIC—At Our House.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Makes a Home Christian?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Influence of Christian Homes in a Nation's Life.

Home! The very word stirs our hearts and quickens the most precious of memories. Toward its comforting threshold turns the one who has borne the heat and the labor of the day. Within its portals are those who gladly give themselves in sacrificial service that it may indeed be a haven of rest and comfort.

The inroads of modern life and of our so-called civilization are doing much to break down home life. All too frequently home has become the place to which one goes when there is nowhere else to go; a place to sleep, and sometimes to eat; an address for mail; a telephone number.

Shall we then abandon the effort really to maintain a true home—one that is in touch with God, and therefore ready to serve man? No; for now as never before we need the influence of a home life empowered by the worship of the true God and guided by his Word. None of us, who are engaged in the determined effort to maintain such a home in the midst of the driving intensity of present day living, speaks too easily on this subject. We know the difficulties; we have heavy-heartedly tasted failure; but we also know the sweetness of victory. By God's grace we press on.

In his dealings with Israel God presents to us an example of what a godly home may be, and what it will accomplish for the community and for the nation. Such a home—

I. Worships the True God (vv. 4, 5). This is "the first and great commandment" of the law, according to our Lord Jesus. (Matt. 22:36,37.) It is an important part of the Scripture repeated twice daily by all orthodox Jews. In its context, in Deuteronomy 6, it is clearly associated with the home. It is there that he who is the "one Lord" is to be loved, which means far more than that he is vaguely recognized or distantly respected.

II. Honors God's Word (vv. 18, 19). Loving God and his Word is not a matter for theological speculation or for sanctimonious discussion in some dark cloister. Thank God the Christian faith is at its best in the ordinary affairs of life. It finds its proper place in the tender relationship of parent and child. Its teachings are pure, delightful, simple, and entirely appropriate to any occasion, whether one sits or rises, walks, or lies down. God's words are the words to be laid up in the heart and in the soul, to be taught to our children, to be the constant and normal subject of conversation.

III. Testifies to the Community (vv. 20, 21).

We may not, as did the pious Jew, fasten a litile container bearing God's word on our doorpost, but we may make the home itself and the life of its inhabitants an effective testimony for God before our neighbors. It is obvious that the home either speaks for or against God. A profession of faith in him, an outward reputation for adherence to religious principles which does not vitally touch our dealings with one another and with the community in which we live—these clearly testify not for God but against him.

IV. Serves the Nation (vv. 22-25). God promised that if Israel diligently kept his commandments, loved him and walked in his ways, they would be a nation that would overcome and dispossess their enemies, and prosper in every good purpose.

Statesmen clearly see that the home is the unit of society. It was established upon the earth before the nation, in fact, before the church. No nation can ever really prosper without homes of the highest type.

But a house without God is not really a home, even though it stand in the midst of a garden. Neither the school teacher, nor the pastor of a church can take the place of a God-fearing father, and of a mother who not only knows God but who can tenderly lead the steps of trusting childhood in the paths of righteousness. Our lesson title is rigat: "A Nation Needs Religious Homes," or, better, "America Needs Christian Homes."

MEXICO ABSOLUTELY SAFE FOR MOTORISTS

Mexico as a land of mystery—at least where the motorist is concerned—will soon be no more. As a country of glamour and romance, of unsurpassed natural beauty, of inspiring contract between a civilization that was and one that is to be, and of new challenge to the exploring traveler, Mexico as a tourist mecca soon will have new appeal as a result of the mapping of the country's roadways by James D. McClure, American map-maker.

Commissioned by the Mexican government and working in close cooperation with its departments of education, interior, forestry, fish and game, communications and highways, McClure and his bride recently completed a 14-months' tour of the country, an extension of what was to have been a 6-months' honeymoon jaunt.

After covering more than 22,500 miles in their survey of Mexican highway facilities, the McClures returned recently to this country with this report:

"It is absolutely safe to motor in Mexico."

That is the one fact motorists to Mexico should know, said McClure, a National Automobile Road Scout and authorized investigator for the Mexican Automobile Association as well as the national tourist department.

According to McClure, Mexico has performed miracles in carrying out her tremendous program of highway construction. The first completed link in her network, and the first division of the proposed Pan-American highway to the Panama Canal, is the excellent road between Laredo, Tex., and Mexico City, D. F., the nation's capital.

Mexican engineers have spanned the desert barrier just south of the Rio Grande, pierced the jungle lowlands of the "tierra caliente," and crossed the lofty peaks of the Sierra Occidente onto the high plateau where lies Mexico City. Excepting a short stretch now being paved, the McClures report, this entire route may be traveled in comfort and safety—the section under construction is rough but passable.

For the first time, the American motorist may drive his own car from any part of temperate America directly into the tropics, if he continues south from Mexico City 300 miles, over good, safe roads, to Acapulco, a city set in tropic surroundings, which might have been lifted bodily from some South Seas paradise.

"Picking orchids in the morning and having a snowball battle in the afternoon," stated McClure, "are comparisons which show the nature of the country through which we traveled, but they also testify to the diversified conditions under which our Chevrolet was operated.

"From sea level to volcano summit; from the extreme heat and humidity of the lowlands to the cold rarefied atmosphere of mountain top, without carburetor adjustment, our car made an excellent showing, without noticeable depreciation in power or performance."

Obviously looking for the most adverse traveling conditions, the McClures drove over burro trails that never had felt the imprint of auto tires; on crude roads built for primitive native vehicles; through swampland and mountain passes never before undertaken by auto.

The honeymooning couple, who drove a standard half-ton panel Chevrolet truck, reported a mileage record of 18.3 miles per gallon and economical oil consumption. This showing was made in spite of the fact that the engine was tuned but once on the entire jaunt, and in spite of the fact it was necessary to omit changing oil in one period when they covered 3,000 miles of rugged travel.

"One five-week trip of ours can best be visualized by thinking of a continuous—and mighty bad—detour from Seattle to San Diego," said McClure, "and I mean a detour that would have been called bad 50 years ago."

The McClure itinerary took in the four principal roads of Mexico as well as the uncharted by-paths. These main highways are from Laredo to Mexico City, Mexico City-Acapulco, Mexico City-Vera Cruz and Mexico City-Guadalajara. These roads were logged mile for mile by the American map-maker, and thoroughly photographed. The work of the McClures has been lauded by the Mexican government while their maps have been certified as official by all interested government departments.

"It is safe to say," McClure asserted, "that in our travels from seal level in the tropics to an elevation of 15,000 feet, we encountered every conceivable type of road and operating condition under which a car could perform. And we have nothing but praise for the performance of our Chevrolet. Rugged and dependable, combining thrift and power, that car took the worst Mexico had to offer—and came through with flying colors every mile of the way."

KENTUCKY 4-H CLUB NEWS

Approximately 400 persons attended dedicatory services at the Henderson Settlement School in Bell county, when barracks with a housing capacity of 250 persons were set apart for club work. The barracks have running water and electricity, a well-equipped kitchen and a dining room.

The first Negro 4-H club camp in Kentucky was held last month at Fee Memorial Community Center in Jessamine county. More than 50 boys and girls attended. Recreational projects, inspirational talks motion pictures, etc., made up the program.

Twenty-five Grayson county business men evidenced their interest in calf projects by making a tour of 13 farms where calves were being fattened for market. "The work's coming along fine; they'll make a neat profit," their spokesman said.

In Gallatin county two 4-H clubs held ice cream suppers, earning $8 and $26 respectively. Utopia club members have been hard at work detasseling their hybrid corn to obtain seed for planting in 1938.

The tri-county camp held at Scotland Gardens near Ghent, Ky., had 55 young people in attendance. Swimming, handicraft, community plays and singing, swimming lessons by experts and similar projects made up the week's activities.

Logan county boys and girls have held a series of picnics, ice cream suppers and plays, seven of the clubs earning a total of $80 for their club funds. The Chandler Chapel club earned $55, sending a delegate to Junior Week and 15 members to district camp.

ELECTRIC LINES TO PASS THOSANDS OF FARMS IN KENTUCKY

Thousands of Kentucky farms are to have electricity within the next few years, according to a summary of the situation as of August 14, issued by the Rural Electrification Administration thru the College of Agriculture at Lexington.

Construction is underway, loans executed or allotments approved for 2,637 miles of country lines to serve 11,037 farms in the state. Allotments to Kentucky totaled $2,092,700. Construction was going forward on 1,469 miles of lines to serve 6,092 farms, and loans had been made or allotments approved for 1,168 miles more to serve 4,945 farms.

Most progress has been made in Jefferson, Nelson, Meade, McCracken, Daviess, Owen, Boyle, Union, Shelby, Henderson, Todd and Jessamine counties.

Other counties in which farmers are organizing to have electricity include Fayette, Woodford, McLean, Washington, Bullitt, Spencer, Madison, Hardin, Breckinridge, Oldham, Garrard, Lincoln, Marion, Boyle, Mercer, Ballard and Graves.

A survey made of 770 McCracken county farmers indicated that 559 will buy radios when electricity is available; 535, hand irons; 165, refrigerators; 206, water pumps; 446 washing machines; 29 ranges; 22 milking machines; 28 electric motors; 17, feed grinders; 92 vacuum cleaners and all electric lights.

Of 665 farmers interviewed in Union county, 528 want radios; 424 hand irons; 372 refrigerators; 52, ranges; 52, water heaters; 276 water pumps; 156 washing machines; 190 electric brooders; 69, milk coolers; 91, utility motors and all electric lights.

HERE'S THE WAY TO TELL AGE OF SHEEP

The age of a sheep can be determined by looking at the teeth, the Kentucky College of Agriculture tells 4-H club members. There are eight front teeth in the lower jaw and none in the upper jaw. Lamb teeth are small, white and narrow, and are replaced by larger, wider, permanent teeth at yearly intervals as follows:

One year, two permanent teeth (center pair); two years, four permanent teeth; three years, six permanent teeth; four year, full mouth of eight permanent teeth.

After four years there is no definite method of telling the age by the teeth, the college points out.

DATES AND RATES FOR COVER CROPS

A Kntucky College of Agriculture leaflet on cover crops gives the dates of seeding the various crops in that state and the amount of seed to use per acre as follows:

Rye, August 20 to October 1, 6 to 8 pecks; wheat, October 5 to Oct. 15, 5 to 6 pecks; barley, Aug. 20 to September 20, 6 to 8 pecks; crimson clover, July 20 to August 20, 15 to 20 pounds, and vetch, July 15 to October 15, 30 to 40 pounds.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of our dear brother, Robert McCormack, who departed this life August 28, 1937.

Dear Bob is now at rest,
Secure, contented on the Savior's breast;
Although we are longing his sweet face to see,
With him, contented, some day we'll all be.
Both day and night his presence we miss
To be with him was infinite bliss;
Oh, how we miss his kindness and love,
'Twas truly a gift God sent from above.
Unselfish, thoughtful, kind-hearted and good,
To us a true brother that all understood;
A love that will linger, tho time will pass away,
A love that is tender, ternal and true,
Your love for us, Dear Bob, and our love for you.

Sadly missed by his father, five brothers and three sister.

Foot Comfort Specialist
People's Foot Comfort, 828 Madison Avenue, Covington, Ky.

Oft times people ask themselves:

1. Can that severe headache be coming from my feet?
2. That backache is almost killing me . . . I wonder if my feet have anything to do with it?
3. My feet are calloused very heavy under the ball of the foot . . . when I step on a pebble with that part of the foot I get a pain almost up to my head . . . How can that be corrected?
4. My Ankles puff out almost over the shoe tops . . . They are not that bad when I get up in the morning . . . Now if being off my feet reduces the swelling there must be a shoe to displace weight even when I'm on my feet . . . then there would be no swelling—

CRAMPED NERVES and CRAMPED BLOOD VESSELS interfere with normal functioning and we suffer—

Don't suffer any longer . . . Our foot comfort specialists will help you. N. Tulch at People's Foot Comfort, 828 Madison Ave., Covington, Kentucky.—Adv.

FARMERS CONSIDER PROPOSED PROGRAM

Features of the proposed farm adjustment program for next year, similar in many respects to the present agricultural conservation program, were laid before about 500 Kentucky farmers and county agents at meeting at the Experiment Station at Lexington and the Experiment Substation at Princeton.

Instead of bases, the proposed program would set up goals for states, counties and individual farms. Payment would be made in proportion as the farmer met his established goal. A single payment for the farm as a whole would be made, instead of crop payments.

Under certain condition farmers might, if they chose, receive superphosphate and limestone in lieu of part or all cash payments.

The proposed program for 1938 would be one of adjustment to national needs, it was explained at the meetings, and for soil conservation, and in no way one of scarcity.

Present plans call for a simplified program which would enable each farmer to know in advance of crop planting time just what he would need to do to qualify for payment. It is expected to have the program ready before wheat sowing.

SILVER PITCHER TO AWARDED OWNER OF BEST POLAND CHINA HOG

Louisville—A silver pitcher will be given to the owner of the best Poland China hog, either sex and any age selected to compete for the sweepstakes prize in the "Packer Type Specials for Kentucky Farm Breeding Animals." The award will be made at the Kentucky State Fair during the week of Sept. 13 to 18 inclusive.

The owner of the winner must be a member and a regular patron of the American Poland China Record Association, Union Stock Yards, Chicago, which organization is offering the trophy.

The Association failed to notify the Fair Officials in time to get the listing in the catalog, which is now in the hands of thousands of Kentuckians.

1,000 GALLONS OF PAINT USED IN BEAUTIFYING STATE FAIR BUILDINGS

Louisville—Some idea of the tremendous damage done the Kentucky State Fair grounds by the January flood is given in a recent report of the Works Progress Administration, which shows that more than 1,000 gallons of paint were used in beautifying the buildings.

The report also shows that 2,800 dors and gates were repaired and painted, while 25,000 feet of lumber were used in remodeling.

Other items shown in the report of W. J. Arms, supervisor, were:

150 bags of lime for white wash.
10 barrels of soap powder.
3 miles of electric wire removed and replaced in conduits, etc.
400 yards of clay replaced in barns and stalls.

$15,000 PICKLE CROP FOR GRAYSON FARMERS

One hundred and sixty-five farmers in Grayson county, Kentucky, received approximately $15-000 for 220 acres of pickles this year. The average gross income was $67.22 an acre, but County Agent R. T. Faulkner reports that some farmers far exceeded that figure.

From one acre, Lawrence Higdon received $160 for pickles, and J. A. Higdon obtained $150 from three-quarters of an acre.

A receiving and grading station to care for the crop was established at Clarkson. The pickles were sold to a Louisville mayonnaise company.

CARE REQUIRED TO TAKE SOIL SAMPLES

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington is again asking farmers to confer with county agents before taking soil samples to be sent to the Station for test. A sample of soil, to be of value, must be taken with care if it is to represent the soil from which it is taken. For example, says the statement, if a sample is taken at only one place, that place may be much richer or much poorer than the average for the field. Also, certain information should accompany the sample.

Most county agents are prepared to make the usual soil tests and, because of their local experience, are in good position to advise farmers.

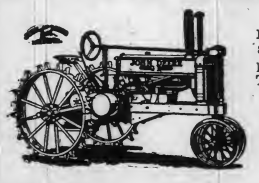
The Family

There are a number of people who never get next to themselves —and we don't blame 'em.

The average American citizen now wishes that the C. I. O. stood for "Cut It Out."

WEEK'S BEST RECIPE

Potato Biscuit—1 cup cooked potatoes; 1½ cups flour; 2 level teaspoons baking powder; ¼ level teaspoon salt; ¼ cup shortening; 1 egg; about ¾ cup milk. Boil and mash the potatoes, having them free from lumps. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder; add the potatoes and cut in the shortening. Mix to a light dough with the eggs and milk roll out a little thinner than ordinary biscuit, and bake it in a hot oven. Serve as soon as done.



As the average citizen sees it, there are still too many politicians in this country who believe in holding up the law instead of upholding it.

FRIUT HELPS OUT IN GRAVES COUNTY

A 35,000-bushel peach crop helped out in Graves county, Kentucky, this year, County Agent G. F. Williamson reports. The peaches brought $1 to $2.10 a bushel and were nearly all sold before the break in the market.

Most of the crop was of high quality, one growers, George J. Covington, having only 15 bushels of No. 2's in a total of 1,500 bus. Dr. D. W. Doron produced 6,000 bushels from a 20-acre orchard, and netted $1.70 a bushel for No. 1 quality.

Graves county also has good prospects for a crop of at least 10,000 bushels of apples, according to Mr. Williamson.

WORTH KNOWING

An easy way to dry lace curtains if you don't have curtain stretchers, is to fold curtains with hems together and pin on the line with clothes pins about every two inches, then stretch gently with hands until the sides are perfectly even. No ironing is necessary unless you want to iron the hems where they were pinned to the line. But you can easily pull the creases there out evenly.

COMPETITION TO BE HIGH AT HAMILTON CO. AGRICULTURAL FAIR

Horses and cattle that have been blue ribbon winners at leading State Fairs this year, will be among the competitors for the rich premiums offered at the 82nd annual Hamilton County Agricultural Fair, more popularly known as the Carthage Fair, at Cincinnati, Sept. 15 to 18, inclusive. Former Governor Myers Y. Cooper is president of the Fair Board, and D. R. Van Atta, secretary.

The richest purses in the history of the Fair are being offered in the daily harness races, thanks to the cooperation of the Cincinnati Hotels Association. The horse show, to be a daily afternoon and evening feature, also is offering the biggest prize awards ever offered at these Fairs.

In all, premiums valued at nearly $20,000 are offered in all departments. The 4-H Clubs of the county have an important part in the Fair, with a section of exhibits of their own. Women of the farm also are given an opportunity to win cash prizes and ribbons in the domestic, fine arts and art needlework departments. Awards also will be made in the cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, rabbit, pigeon, grain, vegetable, fruit and flower departments.

The trotting race will be part of the afternoon program, starting at 1:30 daily. The racing card and purses are as follows:

Wednesday, Sept. 15: 2:16 trot stake, $750; 2:33 trot, $400; 2:22 pace, $400.

Thursday, Sept. 16: 2:18 pace stake, $750; 2:12 trot, $400; three-year-old and under pace, $400.

Friday, Sept. 17: Free-for-all pace stake, $750; 2:20 trot, $400; free-for-all trot, $500.

Saturday, Sept. 18: 2:25 trot, $400; 2:17 pace, $400; 2:25 pace, $400.

There will also be a pony race each day.

Free circus acts will be presented every afternoon and evening, with the Flying Rockets, Barker Brothers Circus, featuring the only troupe of performing Alaskan Dogs in the world; Wells Brothers Tria, comety horizontal bar act; and the "World's Strangest Auto," as headliners.

Special events include the Pioneer Parade at 7 p. m., Wednesday, Sept. 15; million dollar live stock parade at 1 p. m. Thursday; 4-H parade on Children's Day, Friday; and a lala "wind-up" program on Saturday.

On Friday, Children's Day, all children under 15 years of age will be admitted free.

KITCHEN KINKS

When scrubbing pickles for canning, lay them between two towels and they will not need to be wiped dry individually . . . When cutting peaches into halves for serving, cut around the middle and twist the halves in opposite directions. . . . A small spoonful of molasses added to pancake batter makes them a tempting brown. Syrup may be used if desired.

CARD OF THANKS

The Firemen's picnic at Florence Saturday night was well attended, and the net proceeds of approximately $500.00 will be used to pay for the fire equipment, according to Chief Al Hue of the Florence Volunteer Fire Department.

The insurance rates have been reduced from $1.25 to 38 cents since the department has been in operation, and this alone is certainly worthy of the effort that has been made for the department.

Chief Al Hue and his assistants wish to thank the many citizens of the county for their cooperation in making the picnic a success, and especially does the department wish to thank all business houses and individuals who made personal donations.

Your cooperation and support has certainly been appreciated.

Chief, Al Hue.

STAR CHAMBER IN MAMMOTH CAVE VERY INTERESTING

Those who visit Mammoth Cave of Kentucky and take route three do not have to look for the "crack of dawn," they sit down and wait for it. Daybreak in that section of the cave known as Star Chamber is just as realistic as it is in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky. The guides who are responsible for this added bit of entertainment have had many arts engrained into their very souls during the 138 years that Mammoth Cave has been shown to people from every part of the world.

After the tickets are purchased at the Mammoth Cave Hotel the party is taken to the historic guide house. Here the guide "who is next on the list" will take charge of the party. He is distinguished both by his bluish-grey cave suit and friendliness. In one hand he will hold a gas light and in the other he clasps his cherished torch stick. From his shoulder hangs a contained filled with Kerosene-soaked rag torches.

Each couple will be given a light for use in the cave. From the guide house it is about 150 yards to the entrance of the cave. As the party moves along no words are spoken because all eyes are feasting on the beauty of the wild flowers and vines which grow in great clusters on the hills and the shade of the ravine. Occasional patches of sunlight on the path are in contrast to the shade afforded by the poplar, oak, cedar, persimmon, elm mulberry, dogwood, redbud, and approximately 50 others which arch the path to the entrance of the cave.

When the traditional picture has been taken at the entrance you will start into the cave. As you descend into this underground world you will pull your coat collar up around your neck and massage the "chill-bumps" from your arms. The temperature at the iron gate is usually 52 degrees while the interior has a constant temperature of 54 degrees.

Advancing along the main avenue of the cave to Star Chamber you will delight in seeing the guide throw torches to light the obscure features of the cave. Occasionally he will stop to discuss points of interest such as Rotunda, Salt Peter Vats of 1812, Kentucky Cliffs, Martha Washington's Statue, Monument Hall, Eyeless Fish, and scores of other equally as interesting points.

After reaching Star Chamber and gazing upon its wonders the guide will give the party time to rest, and then he will put out all of the lights except his own. He then leaves the party in total darkness saying, "I'll see you in the morning." and walks away down a side avenue. You are left in a gloom without a gleam, and the stillness is broken only by hard breathing by members of the party. Suddenly from the ebony depth of the avenue a piercing laugh will ring in your ears. This is done to make the party tense and attentive to the sounds and sights which come a few minutes later. Gradually from the blackness a faint glimmer appears, and the walls are bathed in the grey light of dawn. It grows gradually until the high points stand out like the horizon on a bright spring morning. Any minute you will expect to see a huge red sun pop into view to light the vari-colored landscape. In the meantime the huge chamber takes on the appearance of another world whose dawn is similar to the one the party left a few hours before.

The sounds are in keeping with those of a rural community. The same guide who knows the art of creating this light effect also announces dawn by cock-crowing, the barking of dogs wood chopping, lowing of cattle, and many other sounds allied with day break. All of the time the light grows stronger, and as he suddenly rounds a bend and comes into view the members of the party will start debating as to how many people were required to make this underground daybreak. It stops only when the guide explains that he alone was responsible for all that they saw or heard. When questioned as to how it all came about the guide resumes the march and goes into the traditional arts which have developed a Mammoth Cave during the last 138 years.

8 MILLION ACRES IN KENTUCKY IN A. A. A.

Nearly eight million, acres of crop land in Kentucky were covered in the 1936 Agricultural Conservation program, according to a summary issued from Washington through the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

A total of 479,200 acres were diverted from soil-depelting crops, and soil-building practices of various kinds were used on more than two and a half million acres.

Applications for payment, under provisions of the program last year, numbered 108,900, the total amount to go to Kentucky farmers for their cooperation being approximately $11,322,882. Nearly all had been paid by June 30, the close of the fiscal year, according to the Washington statement.

GETTING READY FOR NEXT YEAR

By John S. Gardner
Kentucky College of Agriculture

Gardening for 1937 is over, for there remains only the sowing of autumn greens and turnips for the winter. These should be put in every spot that becomes vacant by vegetables harvested, even to cover the garden completely, for they serve as winter cover. Better of course, is sowing rye or vetch to make more volume to turn under, but that is a story for later telling. For the present, preparing for next year's garden partakes of the nature of taking account of stock, clearing the deck, as it were, for 1938.

Every year, gardeners use untried vegetable varieties. Sometimes they do it by design but often because they must, the sorts they desire being unobtainable because seed-buying was put off until the last minute. Sometimes, these new varieties behave in creditable fashion; sometimes, not at all to the liking of the gardener. Now, with recollection still keen, note should be made to retain those varieties that performed well, and to discard those that did not. If this matter is put off until seed is purchased next spring, it may be overlooked, and disappointment again follow.

Perhaps, new insecticides were used this year. Likely a real discovery was made, to be adopted permanently. Perhaps it turned out that the makeshift whose use was made necessary because of the failure of the dealer to stock what was needed or, because the gardener acted only after the emergency was upon him, failed. With the recollection of such failure still poignant, the gardener will do well to make note to that effect now, resolving to remind his dealer, and if he himself was at fault in the matter, resolve next year to be more alert.

The same is true of vegetable diseases, and their control. For some troubles, seed treatment is recommended, and although the gardener may be fully aware of the importance of the practice he may not make preparation, and being rushed, elects to take a chance, to find later that the odds were against him. Now would be an excellent time to make a note that would compel him next time to procure the treating materials when he purchases his seed, and be safe.

Some diseases live in the soil. Once they are observed, it is safe to assume they will give trouble every year. If the cabbage died before it headed, or if the tomato stalks dried up before even the first cluster ripened, the evidence is there that resistant sorts must replace old standbys, no matter how long them have been favorites. But unless the gardener's memory is long, or he does not make particular note, now, the same optimistic experiment may be tried again, next year ,and turn out wrong.

Many gardeners who know the importance of giving their vegetables the particular plantfood each needs sometimes find themselves out of fertilizer, and take a chance. Crops so neglected peak for themselves, at harvest. Let the disappointment in their behavior may become dulled by the time supplies for next year's garden are procured, why not make a note now to get what is needed, in time?

Altogether, it is wholesome practice to keep a strict garden record, with full notes. Thus, experiments enforced or not, may be made to yield data to stand the gardener in good stead for all time. Best, of course, is not to experiment at all, but to follow good and tried practice implicitly.

An important consideration for garden preparation for 1938 is that of the garden soil. Scarcely a day passes without a letter or two coming to complain that this garden or that is not doing as it should. That the vegetables grow slowly and finally give up, scalded, when the spring rains are past, and normal summer weather comes. The soil is described as being "run together," water-logged and reavy just after rains, and so hard that it can be worked only with difficulty, if at all, when a few days pass without rains falling.

Sometimes, as sample of soil comes with the letter, with the request that an analysis be made as guide for applying the fertilizer to use. Although a sample is valuable in this regard, and although this or that fertilizer could solve the difficulty, the fault is rarely in the amount or kind of plantfood, but lies much deeper.

Many samples sent in are highly acid, though as it happens, most of the vegetables are quite content with little lime. Some samples are highly alkaline, gardeners having assumed that if liming is needed as it sometimes is, they apply lime out of all proportion to what is needed. Too much lime can make soil unproductive. If liming is to be done, it should be done on the advice of some person who has made the test for acidity. Your county agent is in position to make this test.

Apart from the lime contest of the soil, there is something much more important, namely, the structure of the soil itself. As every one knows, soil is made up of minute particles of stone of one kind or another.

If the particles happen to be coarse, the soil is sand; if fine, clay. In themselves these particles serve as little more than anchorage for the vegetables' roots, although as they disintegrate, plantfood they may contain is released. To make soil productive, means must be added through which moisture is held and regulated to the needs of plants. Also, applied plantfood must be held in such condition and in such degree that plants may profit from it. Too, and this is true of the dense clays, a "lightener" must be provided, to make it possible for rootlets easily to penetrate throughout them. On the other hand, pure sand is so open that tremendous root travel may take place, but without serving the ends of the plans in great degree, their death following a few days after the cessation of rain. Pure clays and pure sands are "dead" soils.

None of the samples received indicate soils depleted to the extent described above, but many seem to be on the way. Applying plantfood artifically may put off the day of reckoning but not for long; something additional must be done. This is to provide humus.

Humus is the name given to broken-down vegetable matter, which, mixed with soil, closes the spaces in soils that are abnormally loose, and, paradoxically, separates the soil grains in tight clays, and makes them porous and open in nature. Humus absorbs and holds moisture in the degree plants need it, serving as "drouth insurance." In its breakdown, humus gives off chemical compounds that change fertilizers into plantfood. In short humus makes soils come to life.

All its advantages conidered, providing adequate humus to soil may be thought to be a momentous undertaking, but, not so; it is extremely easy, requiring but just a little arranging, in time. That time is now. Next week, the means will be discussed.

Any hardy crop will serve, and in those portions of the state where the winters are not unduly severe, turnip greens and winter kale serve admirably. Even though the tops are frozen down, the roots remain, and growth may start again after the worst weather is past. If even the roots are destroyed, their tissue remains and some humus results. There is this advantage in using greens that preparation for their sowing is extremely simple, merely the surface of the soil needing to be stirred, as with a rake or with a hoe used in cleaning off the weeds. Gardeners who find difficulty in procuring horse labor will find the use of greens convenient, particularly inasmuch as they may make their sowings piece-meal, as rows or spots in the garden offer.

Valuable as greens are, they can furnish only a limited amount of humus material, even though they are permitted to grow throughout the winter. Because of this, and because gardens are generally so woefully short of humus, endeavor should be made to have as much growth to turn under as possible. Much better than greens in this respect is fall-sown rye or wheat or barley. Of these, barley is the best. Its straw is finer and less wooly and it breaks down much more rapidly than the others. Thus, there is less danger of making land "thirsty."

However, barley is not always sure to survive the winter, especially in the northern half of the state. Rye and wheat are safer to use, as being hardy in any winter Kentucky is likely to encounter. Also, if plowed under while their straw is still green and succulent, they break down quite satisfactorily. The grains furnish no new plant but merely store within themselves fertility that might have washed off during the winter or that might have sunk below root depth. If it is desired actually to add fertility, the legume, hairy vetch, should be sown in conjunction. The sowing rate for grains alone is 1½ pecks over a space 100 feet square, ¼ acre. For the combination, it is one peck of grain and 5 pounds of vetch.

Although seed bed preparation is not particularly critical, there is advantage in plowing or spading lightly, then fining the soil with a disk harrow or with a hoe or rake. The best way to sow the seed is with a grain drill, but if this equipment is lacking, the surface may be scratched deeply with a wheel hoe, or chopped with a hand hoe and the seed covered with the back of a rake or with a plank drag, or even with tree brush. Sowing time last until first frost.

As has been intimated, too many gardeners wait too long before they turn under the humus crop. If permitted to become woody, the layer of turned-under straw cuts off the rise of moisture from lower levels, and a "thirsty" garden results. If, as sometimes happens, the season continues dry, recovery is not made within the year.

The best stage at which to turn under the crop is while its height is below 12 inches, and preferably 6 weeks before active gardening is to begin. Frequently, there is "breaking weather" in February. Such opportunity should not be allowed to let pass if maximum benefit from a humus "cover crop" is to be realized.

"AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER"

J. E. Jones

Washington, D. C., —On a summer morning I watched a crew of men engaged in clearing a building site. Their tools were steam shovels, trucks, electrical and mechanical devices. "No sound of hammer or of saw was there."

A few weeks rolled by and I came again to observe that "silently as a dream the fabric rose" and here beside the Potomac River were spanking new homes within the reach of rentals, and purchase, of the workmen whom I had seen building them.

Men of today work with machines. Women of today would return to drudgery in the homes except for electricity, gas and modern conveniences.

Then, is it true that the present "machine age" deprives our people of work, wages, employment and the comforts and necessities of life? At the time Woodrow Wilson was succeeded by Warren Harding in the presidency there was distressing employment throughout the country. Authentic statistics were issued by the Government. These statistics showed that somewhere around 4,000,000 unemployed existed in strictly normal times, that being the regular unable and unwilling to work. There were 105,000,000 people in the country at that time.

There has been an increase of twenty-five or thirty million since then.

In 1929 employment was on high. "The factory employment index for May (1937) was at the highest level registered in any month since November 1929," says Secretary of Labor Perkins. Unemployment in June was 6,082,000, said the National Industrial Conference Board statement published August 8. The two statements, plus substantial confirmation from other sources, suggest that the time is about here when positive announcements should be issued by the Government that the worry about unemployment has passed.

Great forces have been producing new standards, and conquering old ones. For instance: shorter hours of work, more pay, more comforts, more luxury, less wrecked bodies under heavy burdens that have been transferred to machines.

Progress proves all its claims in the fact that infant mortality has been whittled down to a reasonable average. Scourges like yellow fever, small pox, tuberculosis, diphtheria, influenza and all the other "killers' 'have been brought wholly, or partly, under control. "My Brother's Keeper' 'has labored among us as a physician, social worker, relief agent, scientist, chemist. The politician occupies an inconspicuous niche in the frame, despite his loud protestations. The greatest advances in our lives have been given to us by those noble men and women who have lengthened human life about 15 years, according to mortuary satistics.

FARM RECORDS SHOW IMPORTANCE OF GOOD TOBACCO PRODUCTION

A summary which the farm economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture made of records kept for six years on 24 bluegrass farms re-emphasize the importance of good tobacco production. Farmers growing large yields of tobacco that commanded top prices made money every year in the six-year period beginning in 1931 and ending with 1936.

George B. Byers and Ernest J. Nesius, who analyzed the records for the six years, had this to say:

"Yield and price of tobacco were the outstanding factors affecting the net income of these bluegrass farmers. The most profitable farmers obtained 250 pounds more per acre and $2 per hundred more on the market. The combined influence of price and yield increased the tobacco income $71.55 per acre or an average of $1,001 per farm."

The farms, which were in Bourbon, Clark, Fayette, Harrison, Jessamine, Scott and Woodford counties, were divided according to size: Those less than 100 acres, those 100 to 300 acres, and those over 300 acres. The two smaller groups made money every year, but in 1931 and 1932 the farms 300 acres and over in size were operated at a loss.

The money was made on farms of 100 to 300 acres in size, the average labor income, that is what the operator received for his work and management, was $1,396 a year for the six-year period. For the farms less than 100 acres in size, the average labor income was $925, and on the big farms it was $849.

Tobacco represented 68 percent of the total income for the farms under 100 acres in size, 60 per cent for farms 100 to 300 acres, and 48 percent for farms over 300 acres.

The operators of the more profitable farms made on an average $2,485 more per year for the six-year period than did the operators of the least profitable farms. This means that for their labor and management their net income was $6.81 per day greater over the six-year period.

The more profitable farms averaged 244 acres in size, while the least profitable ones averaged 387 acres. For the six-year period the farms under 100 acres averaged 16.8 percent interest in the investment. Farms 100 to 300 acres averaged 11.8 percent, and those over 300 acres averaged 7.2 per cent.

Why does Uncle refer to them as "nuisance taxes" when every tax can be classified as a nuisance.

The nicest thing about America's wheat crop this year is the price the growers have been getting for it.

FARM MACHINERY TO BE ON DISPLAY AT STATE FAIR

With electric power soon to be available to farmers almost everywhere, the exhibit of farm machinery which will be displayed at the Kentucky State Fair next week will undoubtedly be the finest and most comprehensive ever seen in Kentucky, according to advice from Secretary Horace S. Cleveland. Whereas there were four exhibitors of farming machinery last year, space has been reserved for 16 machinery manufacturers at this year's fair. This is in many respects an indication of the improvement which this year's exhibition is expected to show over fairs for the past several years. One of the biggest manufacturers of farming machinery in the country—who wasn't represented at the last fair—is putting up a tent 100 by 120 feet in dimensions to house a most elaborate showing of almost everything the modern farmer needs. One of the features of the machinery exhibit which will appeal to many will be the "Baby Combine" which, the makers say, is going to prove mighty popular on many farms very soon. The big fair opens Monday, Sept. 13, and there will be something of interest every day for a week, including the greatest horse show in the nation.

SAYS POOR LAWN CAUSE OF WEEDS

Weeds are not the cause of a poor lawn; rather a poor lawn brings weeds, according to N. R. Elliott, landscape specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

For lawns he would do three things in the fall: Control weeds, sow grass seed, and apply fertilizer. Close mowing tends to control weeds and crabgrass.

September is the month to sow grass seed, and the 15th day is set by Prof. Elliott as about the best time. Where the stand already is fair, two pounds of good Bluegrass seed per 1,000 square feet of lawn is recommended. Soil should be loosened in bare spots and seed covered a quarter inch.

Fertilizer should not be applied until frost has killed weeds and wild grasses, says Prof. Elliott. He advocates a varying fertilizing program for the lawn: A complete, high-grade fertilizer one year; tobacco stalks another year, and additional soil a third.

A 6-8-6 or, still better, a 10-8-6, fertilizer is recommended. If a 6-8-6 is used, add two pounds of nitrate of soda or sulfate of ammonia to each 10 pounds. Broadcast this, or the 10-8-6, at the rate of 12 pounds per 1,000 square feet of lawn.

Tobacco stalks may be placed on the lawn in December and left until March. Adding a quarter-inch of good soil often is beneficial. Applications of manure may bring weeds, and if manure is used it should be well rotted and applied in November or December.

PIONEER FARMERS 1937

By H. R. Forkner, County Agent

There are a large number of Boone county farmers who are pioneering in new fields of agricultural advancement. The results of their findings are for the public or common good of all. Progressive agricultural improvement is their goal. They are conducting demonstrations in new varieties of crops, applying new soil treatments, methods of insect control, cover crops or one of a number of various other recommended practices on a limited scale in comparison with the regular methods that are conducted on their farm. The weak-hearted nor the cold-blooded business man seldom will attempt such an endeavor. A report on the work of these pioneers will be given from time to time during the next few weeks. The report this week is on Fusarium Wilt in tobacco.

Fusarium Wilt in Tobacco

Fusarium wilt in tobacco in recent years has become a most serious problem in tobacco. The disease is particularly prevalent in the sandy river bottom sections of the county where one side of the plant starts dying and soon the whole plant dies. The disease is worse following certain truck crops and become worse in hot weather of late July and August.

A report of the demonstrations conducted this year briefly stated is as follows:

1. Name of demonstrators:

(a) J. J. Klopp, of Aurora Ferry, near Petersburg.

(b) Andy Cook, 2½ miles south of Petersburg on Belleview road.

(c) Louvett W. Rogers of the Belleview Petersburg road.

2. Demonstration:

A comparison of Fusarium wilt resistant variety, Experiment Station No. 32 in comparison with the other varieties commonly grown, which include root rot resisting strains of Experiment Station No. 5, Shipps or Experiment Station 36-12 and other types of standing up white Burley tobacco. From one-eighth to one-fourth acre of Fusarium wilt resistant variety No. 32 was used in comparison with the regular varieties grown.

3. Results:

Experiment Station No. 32 was found practically 100 percent free from Fusarium wilt at cutting time. The other varieties were affected from 3 percent to 80 percent with Fusarium wilt in the field.

(4) Quality:

Regardless of wilt resistance any new variety must yield equally well and have equal quality to the variety regularly grown or it is worthless. No. 32 made equal good growth to all other varieties grown, had a good texture of leaf, light color and looked equally good to the other varieties when put in the barn. No one at the present time can say for sure how it will cure out or the price it will bring on the market. Its market value in comparison with the regular varieties grown may be worthless. The quality at the present time looks very good.

We respect these pioneers in agricultural improvement. Eventually their work will leave a mark on the agricultural improvement in the county.

OPPORTUNITIES STILL EXIST

Commenting on the "opportunities for youth in the electric utility industry," H. P. Liversidge, Vice-President, Philadelphia Electric Company, said: "Twenty-five years ago a young man with an engineering education accepted as a foregone conclusion the fact that one of the most desirable openings for him was the electric light and power industry."

He then pointed out the remarkable growth of the industry, the constant downward revision of rates, the fact that no nation in the world approaches the United State in the wide availability of electric service, and said: "This has been accomplished through the traditional American system of encouraging individual enterprise under suitable regulation and control." Mr. Liversidge feels that the political maligning of the industry is going to run its course and that the soundness of the American system will finally confuse the socialistic propagandists.

"Speaking of the profit system," he says, "we may theorize to our heart's content and draw glowing pictures of an era of production for use and not for profit, but, human nature being what it is, when a nation pursues any plan in which profit is eliminated, it will find itself building up a loss that ultimately must prove a hardship to the very public it was endeavoring to benefit."

He points out the opportunity for growth of the industry and the many advantages that still remain for the young men who wish to enter it as a life work. What the industry has done is but a sample of what it can do in the future if private enterprise is allowed to develop the nation's resources as in the past. If it is not, the field for young men will be limited, not only in the electric industry, but in many other endeavors, as governmental regimentation curbs private enterprise. The answer is up to the people and to the very young men who are now considering their future.

KILLING THE RAILROAD GOOSE

Because railroads cannot adjust their rate structure quickly to fluctuations in cost of operation, the steady rise in railroad taxes is an economic problem which demands serious attention, says the Commercial and Financial Chronicle.

So far as the Federal government is concerned, railroads are taxed on the same basis as industry in general. Abuses have appeared in state and local taxation. The railroads represent an investment of $26,000,000,000, and their lines traverse practically every county in the United States. Local officials have gone to tremendous ends to exploit this great industry for revenue purposes.

Railway taxes in 1936 total $319,700,000, of which 81 per cent was collected by state and local governments. This amounted to 28.5 per cent of the lines' net operating the railways was devoted to producing net operating revenue sufficient to pay the tax bill. In the case of a stringently regulated industry, whose rates are fixed by public bodies, this is an excessive and dangerous proportion.

No one can object to adequate taxation of the railroads. And a case might even be made for excessive taxation—it at the same time we made it possible for the lines to increase their revenues to meet the cost. But we cannot continue to bleed the lines of every possible dollar of revenue and expect to enjoy the lowest cost transportation.

Such a policy must in the long run lead to railroad bankruptcy. If that should happen, all units of government would be deprived of one of their main sources of support. You can't get blood from a turnip—or money from an industry taxed beyond its earning capacity. The present situation leads to one of two courses — the rails must be allowed to readjust their rates in the light of growing operating costs, or local governments must revise railroad taxation on a basis of fairness, not ruthless exploitation.

Maybe there are not as smart as men, but most any woman has more sense than to start a new tube of toothpaste by squeezing it in the middle.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

With 19 carloads ordered last month, Graves county farmers have used a total of 149 carloads of limestone this year.

Alfalfa on the farm of W. T. Scroggy, Metcalfe county, grew three feet tall the first crop and two and a half feet the second crop.

Good returns from farm flocks and from feeding lambs have boomed interest in Breckinridge county.

Manure, phosphate and lime produced good tobacco for William Marksberry, Grant county, on land considered worn out 30 years ago.

Two hundred and eighty-two Carlisle county farmers received 300,900 pounds of superphosphate in lieu of soil building payments.

In Camrbell county, the use of certified seed almost doubled potato yields over returns from home grown seed.

C. L. Stansbury, Bullitt county, reports a return of $20.50 per ewe from sale of lambs and wool.

Livestock projects among Fayette county 4-H club members include the etablishment of several purebred swine herds.

Members of the Utopia clubs and 4-H clubs are taking the lead in lifestock improvement in Hart county.

Redtop and timothy hay has been selling at the baler in McLean county for $10 to $12 a ton.

B. P. Bale, Green county pastured 50 ewes and 52 lambs on 30 acres of barley and harvested 13 bushels to the acre.

Grasshoppers did some damage to corn in bottoms along the Tennessee River.

Daviess county farmers plan to install home water system, when electricity is available.

In Perry county, E. H. Brashear dug 13 pounds of potatoes for each pound of seed planted.

Henry county farmers used 725 tons of marl and 315 tons of limetone last month.

Plans have been made to place several hundred head of bred sows on Grayson county farms.

Timothy, following applications of limestone and superphosphate, grew as high as a mule's back on the farm of John Cawood in Harlan county.

W. C. Shepherd, Powell county, had a net income of $22.46 from eggs sold from 200 hens in July.

BACKBONE OF CREDIT

The stock fire insurance industry was established and has been maintained on the principle that adequate profits must be made in order to protect the policyholders —and that, at the same time, the cost of insurance to the public must be progressively reduced.

These two purposes may seem at odds, but the industry has shown that they can be achieved. The financial position of the companies has been strengthened and the cost of stock fire insurance is today 40 per cent less, on the average, than it was in 1900.

In other words, the industry has found ways and means of reducing the cost of doing business and it has invariably shared these savings with its policyholders. For three-quarters of a century, the industry has fought on behalf of fire prevent and fire protection, and success has followed. The entire country has been included in an elaborate system whereby cities towns and villages are inspected and graded in the light of hazards. The industry has established a bureau for testing the fire resistance of electrical equipment, building materials and other products—a work which is of major importance in conserving life and property from destruction by fire. The cumulative effect of these activities has been to save the country billions of dollars—in reduced insurance premiums, lower fire loss, and other indirect costs that are an inescapable part of fire waste.

Fire insurance is the backbone of the nation's credit—without it, no man could take the risks involved in building and operating a business. The fire insurance industry has made a magnificent contribution to the progress and maintenance of our modern civilization.

PARAGRAPHS

Life is very much like a revolving door, the harder you push the further you get.

Judging from their pictures, bathing beauties don't believe in putting off tomorrow what they can take off today.

The wages of sin are holding up so well that the devil hasn't yet found it necessary to stage a sit-down strike.

The ordinary man doesn't criticize his wife. He just sneers at other women when they do what his wife does.

It's a wise motorist who realizes that a moment saved at a railroad crossing may save all the rest of his time.

It's because there are so many fools in the world that the wise man gets an occasional break.

It seems that the American Marines spend about as little time at home as the ordinary citizen.

Speaking of clothes, most oldtimers can remember the day when the average girl was about half starch.

As matters stand in the millinery world, if she says she has a hat on her guess is as good as yours.

If man isn't naturally onery why does he forget all the Bible passages and remember all the dirty stories he hears.

A typical American is one who will fire you for incompetency and then give you a letter of recommendation.

Maybe the reason some Boone County citizens are not taking a vacation this year is because they haven't got the last one paid for.

The end of the world will be here the day money talks and nobody listens.

Old-time fables started out with "once upon a time" but nowadays they start out with "there will be no new taxes."

Money isn't everything, but you never hear a poor man telling one of his creditors to "take it up with my lawyers."

As long as Uncle Sam stays out of it the average citizen will lose mightly little sleep over the Chinese-Japanese fracas.

A New York doctor says nasal trouble is often the sign of plain dumbness. Sure—poking your nose into other people's business.

The average man isn't worrying a much about where the robins are going to when summer is over as he is about where his first ton of coal is coming fromf when winter arrives.

They call this the "horseless age" but so far they haven't found a substitute for horse sense.

This day in time nothing can make a father madder than to be told by a 15-year-old offspring that he's "living in the past."

If a man loves his wife and his female relatives and they hate one another, you can't tell him there isn't such a place as hell.

Usually when you find a citizen being reasonable it indicates that he isn't interested in the argument.

You can say one thing for the bandit. When he starts to trim you he doesn't begin by telling you how nice you are.

If you want to be popular let the other fellow describe his pain and then keep your mouth shut about yours.

No citizen should complain about his inability to see his own faults when most any of his neighbors will gladly point them out to him.

Vacation is that period when the average man enjoys the things that would make him feel sorry for himself back home.

Quite a few Boone County men don't care whether they are sitting on top of the world or not—just so they are sitting.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Florence Homemakers' Club met at the Town Hall Tuesday, Aug. 10. The meeting was was called to order by the president, Mrs. Clifford Coyle, she read a letter which advised us that Mr. Elliott would give a lawn demonstration in September. The project for the next four months will be "Background of the Livable Home."

New officers were elected at last meeting and will take their places in September. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Mabel Sayre President, Mrs. Clifford Coyle, Vice President, Miss Stella Lohline, Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. Virginia Goodridge Program Leader.

A Scrapbook Contest will take place at the next monthly meeting. After the business of the day was finished, the meeting was adjourned and all members went to Wildwood Tourist Camp for their annual picnic. There were about sixty-five present. A splendid supper was served and many enjoyable games were played and a wonderful time was had by everyone, for our capable Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie saw to it that everyone was having a lot of fun every minute of the time spent at the picnic.

CAFE OPERATOR FACES CHARGE

OF HAVING SLOT MACHINE IN OPERATION—MINIMUM FINE $250.00 AND RIGHT TO REVOKE STATE LICENSE.

Sheriff W. B. Cotton and Judge N. E. Riddell confiscated a slot machine at the Spanish Villa Cafe, near Devon Saturday night. The operator of the cafe, Sol Stanley was cited to Judge Riddell's court for a preliminary hearing Monday morning, and was released on $500 bond. The charge was held for the action of the session of the Boone County grand jury.

Sheriff Cotton and Judge Riddell made several other calls Saturday night, after receiving complaints that slot machines were being operated in a number of Boone County establishments, but were unable to locate any other machines.

An extensive drive is underway thruout the state against the slot machine racket, and officers stated that this county was no exception, and anyone having these machines in their possession will be cited to court.

According to Judge Riddell anyone having a slot machine in their place of business, and who are indicted and found guilty are liable to a fine from $250.00 to $500.00, and their license may be revoked, with no chance of obtaining a new license.

FAIR CELEBRATES 51st ANNIVERSARY

LARGE CROWD IN ATTENDANCE, AND HUGE NUMBER OF EXHIBITS ON DISPLAY—OTHER ATTRACTIONS CUT CROWD.

Due to many other attractions which were scheduled Saturday of last week, the crowd which was expected to attend the Harvest Home Fair was reduced somewhat. However, the fair was very successful and was praised by those who attended.

The association celebrated their fifty-first anniversary this year, which proves that this event has been very popular in the past, and will continue to be in the future. Many exhibits were on display this year and competition was keen.

In the past judging of exhibits was closed at noon, but this year judging of exhibits was continued until 3:00 p. m. and the fair grounds were open until midnight.

During the past fifty-one years Harvest Home has been a day set aside by resident of Boone County as a day for pleasure, when old friends meet and discuss the happenings of yesteryear. Old-timers like to discuss the first fairs which were held on these grounds, and many interesting stores are hear during the day at these events.

The Recorder joins the many friends of the association in wishing them many more years of successful operation.

NEW METHODS BEING TESTED

IN CURING OF BURLEY TOBACCO—COKE SAID TO BE PROVING VERY SUCCESSFUL IN PREVENTING HOUSE BURN.

There are a number of Boone County farmers pioneering in new fields of curing Burley tobacco, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Many farmers take great pride in the good crop they put in the barn, then bring out a dark crop which brings a poor price. Experienced growers state there is as much art in curing a good crop as growing it in the field.

Unfavorable weather conditions causing too high case over a forty-eight hour perior or longer often delays curing, darkens color and causes a fungus damage called houseburning. There are a number of farmers who are using coke heat this year to drive out the excess moisture when unfavorable weather conditions arrive. Farmers visited the past week who had coke stoges going including the following:

Allan and Marvin Gaines, Walton, barn on Rice Pike.

Leonard Cook, Walton.

Hughes and Brewster, Verona. Firing was started in this barn on August 28th, and the crop was practically cured on September 11. The fires were kept going continuously.

Elmer Elliston and Dr. J. F. McCormac, of Verona, M. M. Lucas, of Burlington, E. B. Elliott and Wm. Hill, of Idlewild, and a large number of other farmers also have reported they have fired or have their coke and equipment ready to begin firing when needed.

Considerable experience is necessary to know when, how much, and how to use heat in curing tobacco. Damage can easily be done by the improper use of heat.

The second greatest help in curing tobacco is a good barn with an efficient ventilation system. The best ventilation systems for most barns is a full length ridge ventilator (not a number of small vents) with doors at the bottom for intake. Blue print specifications of this system are available in exension circular No. 299 at the County Agent's office free of charge on request.

Although Burlington has been eliminated from the local league, they visited the Verona team Sunday and defeated the hosts by a seore of 5 to 1. Akin was on the moud for the local, with Ogden taking them, while Beach, Chapman and Vest formed the battery for Verona.

According to C. D. Benson manager of the Boone County baseball league, Verona has a team composed of very promising material, and with more training will be one of the best teams in this section of the state. He also stated that the Verona boys showed superior form in the field. These boys should feel highly complimented, as Mr. Benson is one of the best judges of baseball players in northern Kentucky.

TEACHERS TO BE EXAMINED

BEFORE WORKING WITH CHILDREN—IS STEP FORWARD IN PUBLIC HEALTH FOR KENTUCKY.

Teachers and employees of the Boone County Board of Education are required to take a thorough health and physical examination before working with the children.

The examination includes a test for tuberculosis. If a teacher shows a positive reaction to the test, it must be followed by an X-ray to determine whether it is active or not. No one will be permitted to work with the children who has an active case of the disease.

This is a step forward in public health for Kentucky, and the day should not be long off when all students will be required to take a similar examination. Many cases of srious illness and even death could be prevented if people only knew about the trouble in early stages of development.

At the Burlington school Monday, September 13, the regular fall meeting of the Boone County Athletic Conference was held, with five of the member schools represented.

FANCHON TURNS OUT HILARIOUS MUSCIAL HIT

If "Turn Off the Moon" which will be on the screen at the Gayety Theater, Erlanger, Sunday and Monday, is a sample of what women producers can do, the only thing wrong with the movies is there are not enough women producers. As the first production of Fanchon, known for her presentation house units, this musical comedy featuring Charles Ruggles, Eleanore Whitney, Johnny Downs, Kenny Baker, Phil Harris and Ben Blue is definite proof that here is a new producer to be reckoned with.

The plot is hilarious. It introduces Ruggles as Dinwiddy, department store magnate and aid to a pair of star crossed lovers whose affair must be brought to a successful conclusion before he can ask his girl to marry him. His belief in the stars makes him refuse to move without the right heavenly signs. The conclusion is not reached before Ruggles has had a chance to get drunk with Ben Blue (and it's the top drunk in the Ruggles' repertoire), before the usual boy loses girl complications set in and before the police and fire departments are required to bring Ruggles into jail to stop him from shooting up his own department store.

LARGE ORDER OF PHOSPHATE

IS PLACED BY ONE HUNDRED EIGHTY-FIVE FARMERS—LARGEST SINGLE ORDER ON RECORD FOR COUNTY.

One hundred fifty tons of 43 percent superphosphate for use on soil conserving crops in the Agricultural Conservation Program were ordered Wednesday of this week for approximately one hundred eighty-five farmers, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. This is the largest single order ever made in the County.

Wednesday was the closing date in the State Office for receiving application for T. V. A. phosphate on the soil building allowance. A total of four hundred twenty-two tons of phosphate have been ordered to date by Boone County farmers for improving the growing of grasses and legume crops.

Phosphate and lime have proven the most valuable fertilizers for successful growing of better grass and legume crops. These treatments last over a period of years increasing both the life of the stands and the growth. The wide spread use this year should mark one of the most important agricultural improvement eras in the County.

A BUILDING TIP

Here's a tip for those around Boone County who postponed their building or improvement plans in early spring because of a slight advance in the price of hardware and building materials. Prominent contracts in the larger cities are said to be rushing through orders for the fall delivery of building material in the belief that the real tilt in prices is going to come in in 1938. If the big fellows are of the opinion that it will cost far more to build, or make improvements, next spring than it will this fall, then the little fellow should profit by the hint. There's going to be a lot of good building weather between now and the first of the year. If it is a small job, it can be done as quickly between now and winter as it would require at the opening of spring. Or, in the event it is not convenient to do the work this fall, then there is still a chance to avoid next year's predicted rise in prices. Buy whatever building materials you are going to need now and be on the safe side.

SUMMER FIRE LOSSES

While the report of the U. S. Forestry Department that extensive forest fires are not so numerous this summer as last, there is much to ponder over in a statement from the same authority that farm fires are running ahead of 1937.

The statement comes right at the most dangerous season of the year, and at the very time when more than the usual precautions must be taken against this destructive menace. Just at this time every section of the country is veritable tinder box. Forests are dry, weeds and grass along the highways are ready to spring into flame from the tiniest spark. More campfires are being built than during any other month, and more vacationists are traversing the heavily wooded sections of the country.

If ever a warning against the careless use of matches and cigarette stubs was timely it is right now. If ever a motorist is warranted in going to extremes to avoid causing a fire in rural areas, it is right now. And the warning cannot be made too emphatic. Break your matches before tossing them out of the car window. Extinguish every cigarette stub before dropping it. See that the camp fire embers have been smothered before driving away. Don't bring sorrow and financial loss o your fellowmen through carelessness.

Why National Advertisers
USE THIS NEWSPAPER

People are interested in other people, especially in people they know. That's why hundreds of families in this community subscribe to this paper year after year.

On these pages they find the names of fellow townspeople, often their own. So besides the ordinary interest of natlon-wide news this newspaper offers the even greater reader-interst of local community doings.

National advertisers believe that by using these columns they are reaching the greatest number of substantial families in this community, reaching them at home and in an effective and friendly manner.

But this newspaper performs another important service. By displaying the advertising of local merchants side-by-side with the products of national advertisers these national products become identified with the local market, with local merchants.

In this way, on these pages is forged the important last link between the manufacturer and his local community dealer and their customers. That's why, for local buyer acceptance, for local dealer tie-up, local community newspapers are best.

MAURICE EARL WILLIS WILL ENTER OBERLIN COLLEGE SEPT. 17TH

Oberlin, O.—When Maurice Earl Willis of Hebron enters Oberlin this fall he will be a member of the class which will inaugurate the second hundred years of coeducation.

Coeducation on the college level began in 1837 when four young women at Oberlin College were permitted to follow the four-year course leading to the A. B. degree. With the admission of these young women into classes with men, "the misjudged and neglected sex" broke one of the major barriers which had kept them from assuming their place in the common life.

Today instead of one college where men and women study together there are 451 which are coeducational, as well as 120 women's colleges and 80 men's colleges. It is estimated that 500,000 women are in college each year, and more than a million have received A. B. degrees in the past century.

The educational world will celebrate this anniversary of coeducation on October 8, when ceremonies will be held on the Oberlin campus, at which many noted educators and prominent women will be present. As part of the celebration a memorial to coeducation will be unveiled.

Willis, son of Albert G. Willis, of Hebron, will enter the Oberlin College of Arts and Sciences on September 17. He is a graduate of the Hebron High School.

Mrs. Belle Roberts has returned to the home of Mrs. O. K. Powers, of Verona, after having spent the past year here with Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cotton and family.

ATTENTION, FOOT SUFFERERS

By N. Tulch, Foot Comfort Specialist

PEOPLES FOOT COMFORT

828 Madison Ave., Covington, Ky.

Your happiness is dependent greatly upon your health, and your health is closely related to the condition of your feet.

Doctors tell us that much of the so-called rheumatism, sciatica, nervousness, backache and headache are the result of excessive pdessure on the nerves and blood vessels in the feet caused by misplacement of on or more of the foot bones. Foot neglect does not pay. What afflications caused most death last year? Not heart disease, not disease, not cancer, nothing but neglect. Any disease can be cured these days if attended to in time.

The longer you put off proper care of the feet the less pleasure you get from life and the more you are going to sap your vitality, harm your nervous system, reduce your comfort and impair your health. Now, you have probably promised yourself that you would call and at least investigate our surgical or prescription shoes, we recommend, but you put it off, hoping, wishing your feet would get better. Unfortunately, wishing and hoping will not relieve pressure or realign bones. We have given comfort to thousands, many of whom had dispaired of every enjoying foot health again. Remember if your feet indicate the need of electric treatments or hand massaging we make no charge whatever for this service. Your shoes are your only expense.—Adv.

A Sensational Idea in Shoe Retailing.

Shoes Made for America's Finest

Stores Are on Sale Daily at

QUALITY SAMPLE SHOE SHOP

VALUES to $14.50 in Fine Shoes!

1/2 PRICE AND LESS

HERE'S HOW WE DO IT!

Many times orders are cancelled just as the shoes are ready for shipment. Sometimes a duplication of styles on the part of the buyer of a large store makes immediate cancellation necessary. Unreasonable weather, adverse business conditions, delays in transit and other factors. We have standing orders with the shoe manufacturers to ship these shoes to us immediately. Oftimes the shipments are rerouted to us in transit. The shoes may arrive at our store on the same day that they would have been placed on sale at their original destination.

In Fairness to Our Competitors We Cannot Mention Names

Because of the radically lower prices which we feature every day, we will not publish the names of the famous stores for whom these shoes were made. However you know them well. The manufacturers of these shoes, both style shoes and arch comfort shoes are equally noted, and while we cannot print their names here you will see and recognize the familiar labels in the shoes and on the boxes. This idea in shoe retailing is truly sensational. It is to your advantage to investigate at once.

UP-TO-THE-MINUTE STYLES

Illustrated are some of the shoes to be found in our stocks. Every shoe is NEW, every shoe is a smart, correct fashion . . . the same styles . . . the same quality . . . as you will find today in leading stores throughout America. See them on display in our windows . . . on sale in our store.

Every Width, Every Size, Always in Stock . . . But Not in Every Style

We are particularly well stocked with shoes for women who require width and sizes of unusual measure.

THAT'S WHY YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY IN FIRESTONE STANDARD TIRES

FIRESTONE builds a first-quality tire made of top grade materials and sells it for less money because Firestone passes savings along to you in the form of extra values. Firestone controls rubber and cotton supplies at their sources, manufactures with greater efficiency and distributes at lower cost. Because of these economies —

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. By this process every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber. This counteracts dangerous internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES—because under the tread are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE—because of the extra tough, long-wearing tread.

Make your car tire-safe now for fall and winter driving. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires — today's top tire value.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON SMOOTH WORN TIRES!

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

That a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires?

At right is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, with consequent dangerous spots of. Tires in this condition are liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

DENHARDT SLAIN AT SHELBYVILLE

HOTEL IS SCENE OF SHOOTING ON EVE OF TRIAL—THREE GARR BROTHERS HELD IN JAIL.

Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt, charged with the murder of his fiancee, Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, was slain at Shelbyville, Monday night in a fusillade of bullets.

The sixty-one-year old former Spanish-American, Mexican, and World War veteran fell with seven bullets in his body and Mrs. Taylor's three brothers immediately surrendered to police.

Denhardt and his attorney were returning to the Armstrong Hotel in Shelbyville, after having a late supper. They had just started across the street when the Garr brothers opened fire. Denhardt ran toward the hotel. The first two shots missed, but the bullets found their mark and Denhardt went down with seven bullets in his body.

"Murder by a bullet wound thru the head and another through the heart" was the verdict returned by Coroner D. F. L. Lapsley.

Police said that Roy Garr told him "I did it" as he surrendered. Police said they took a .45 caliber revolved with two discharged shells from E. S. Garr and a .38 caliber revolver from which all shells had been fired from Roy. They said Jack Garr was not armed.

QUAIL ARE RECEIVED BY FISH AND GAME CLUB TUESDAY

Application has also been made for fish to be placed in our streams in Boone County, but the State Commission has not been able to supply a large number of fish this year, and as yet no fish have been received for distribution.

The Fish and Game Club has started several projects for the coming year, and hope to be able to make a good showing by next spring. The co-operation of each member and landowner is necessary to carry on these various projects.

WATER PLANT STEP NEARER

FOR ERLANGER — CONTRACTS TOTALING $91,162.65 ARE LET BY UNANIMOUS VOTE OF COUNCIL.

Three contracts, totaling $91,-162.65 were voted to three construction companies by the Erlanger City Council at a special meeting Saturday, for work on the municipal water plant.

The awarding of contracts will be made official when Chapman and Cutler, bond attorneys, of Chicago, give final approval. This is looked for within a week.

Contract No. 1, calling for drilling wells near the Ohio River at Constance, and casing and screening the same was voted to the Ohio Drilling Co., Columbus, O., on its bid of $4518.90. The W. L. Haley Co., Nashville, Tenn., was the unsuccessful bidder on this job.

The second contract was awarded to the Pittsburgh, Des-Moines Steel Co., Pittsburgh, Pa. This work, to be done at a cost of $14,995, includes erection of a 220,000-gallon steel elevated tank, and steel work on the control and chlorinator house.

W. L. Haley & Co., general contractors, received the third contract on a bid of $71,644.75. This bid includes laying about four miles of pipe line from the Ohio River to the city, and other general work.

Actual construction will not begin until the bond attorneys have expressed final approval. R. C. Stout, consulting engineer, said work should be started within two weeks after approval is given.

The vote on selection of the successful bidders was unanimous in each case. The councilmen present, Carver A. Kuck, Matthew J. Nierman, Louis Hahn and Mayor Edward H. Pohlman, all voted together, awarding the low bidder the contract in each case.

One councilman, John McColium was absent.

The construction is to be financed by the sale of 4½ per cent revenue bonds to the Reynolds Bonding Co., New York, N. Y., who are represented by their Louisville office. The sale of a $175,000 issue of bonds was arranged by Council at a previous meeting.

Mrs. Claude Stephenson is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Gulley, of East Bend.

MODERNIZING SEEN FOR DIXIE

FOLLOWING SURVEY PLANNED BY HIGHWAY OFFICIALS— FOUR LANE HIGHWAY FROM FLORENCE TO GEORGETOWN.

Williamstown, Ky., September 20 —A survey of the Dixie Highway with a view of modernizing that section which passes through this state will be made by the Kentucky State Highway Department John Juett, Williamstown, President of the U. S. 25 Improvement Association, announced yesterday after a conference with State Highway Engineer Thomas H. Cutler.

Juett headed an association committee composed of Robert M. Lucas, Fort Mitchell; August Threlkeld, Mason; John Fister, Lexington; Porter Nunnelly, Georgetown, and Robert Hume, Williamstown, which had been appointed to consult the Highway Department relative to a definite program for improving this important north-south traffic artery.

Opinion based on traffic surveys now in course of completion is that modernization will mean a four-lane highway for the most important sections of this route.

The committee also called on Acting Governor Keen Johnson, who expressed his interest in improvement of the highways.

Members of the committee were high in their praise of Cutler and his methods in handling improvement of Kentucky's highways. Juett said, "The State of Kentucky should be proud of having a man of Mr. Cutler's experience and ability at the head of its Highway Department," adding that Cutler had become nationally known as a highway engineer. He is President of the National Association of Highway Engineers.

The association will hold its next regular meeting at Lexington early in October. Membership in the association, recently organized under the sponsorship of the Williamstown Rotary Club, extends to counties in the state traversed by U. S. 25.

COLBERT SHINES IN BRILLIANT COMEDY

The legion of Claudette Colbert fans, who have grown accustomed to seeing their ideal in snappy, fast-moving roles, have a treat in store next Sunday and Monday, when the lovely brunette star will be at the Gayety Theatre, Erlanger, in "I met Him in Paris," a comedy as witty and scintillant as the gay French capital and the snows of the Swiss Alps, where the action of the film takes place.

"I Met Him in Paris" presents Miss Colbert exactly as her fans have demanded her—in another role that gives her the chance for snappy, "quick-on-the-trigger" dialogue of the sort which she did so well in "The Bride Comes Home," and "It Happened One Night.

The film features outdoor scenes set in the Swiss Alps, during the winter sports season. Thrilling skating, skiing and bob-sledding shots make these scenes outstanding.

"It Met Him In Paris" was directed by Wesley Ruggles, who also megaphoned two earlier hits, "The Gilded Lily," and "The Bride Come Home."

TWO CARS COLLIDE NEAR BURLINGTON

Two cars, belonging to J. C. Hopkins, of Erlanger and Sam Blackburn, of Burlington collided Friday night on the Burlington-Florence pike, just opposite the Burlington school building.

Mr. Blackburn was accompanied by his entire family and Mr. Hopkins by his wife. Only minor injuries were received by the occupants.

The cars were traveling in opposite directions, and both cars were damaged considerably.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are well and favorably known in this section of Boone County.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Every week The Recorder demonstrates that it is by far the best advertising medium for reaching prosperous residents of Boone County.

In reporting the great success of his public sale of the general store and stock of goods of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parr, at Morningview, Ky., Saturday, Sept. 10, Rei C. Wayman, well known Covington real estate man stated that among the persons from Boone County attending the sale was a lady who purchased more than $130 worth of goods and paid cash for same. She told Mr. Wayman that she learned of the sale by reading his advertisement in The Recorder.

In the past, Mr. Wayman, has on different occasions stated that he got perhaps five times more sales and inquiries from advertising in The Recorder than from any other newspaper, daily or weekly. Considering the much greater cost of space in most of the other mediums this really is remarkable and should be remembered by any advertiser who wishes to reach Boone County residents at a minimum expense.

FIRST GAME OF SERIES PLAYED

SUNDAY AT PETERSBURG WITH BOB AND GENE WINNING 7 TO 4 — BELLEVIEW ELIMINATED BY PETERSBURG.

Petersburg defeated Belleview Saturday in a closely contested game by a score of 3 to 2, eliminating Belleview, leaving Petersburg and Bob and Gene to play a five-game series to decide the county championship.

The first game of the championship series was played last Sunday on the Petersburg grounds with Bob & Gene winning 7 to 4.

In the Saturday game at Belleview, Williamson was on the mound for Belleview with Dennison doing the receiving. Dennison is a lad of only 16 years and in the writer's opinion he is one of the best receivers in the league. For Petersburg, Henry Deck done the work with "Smoky" Christy on the receiving end.

The outstanding play of the game was a leaping one-handed catch by "Bucky" Rogers, robbing Shinkle of a tripie with two Petersburg runners on the sacks.

The Sunday game between Petersburg and Bob and Gene was attended by one of the largest crowds of the season, and from beginning to end, both teams displayed to the crowd that they wanted to win.

Riebling and Allphin formed the battery for Bob and Gene with Bradburn and Mahan dividing the mound work for Petersburg, with Deck receiving.

Saturday these two teams will lock horns at the Belleview park, and every lover of the national game should enjoy seeing this game.

The third game will be played at Crescent Springs, Sunday at 3:00 p. m. fast time.

We Call and Deliver

MORE THAN A FAD

Just a few years ago when the first auto trailers began to appear in this section there were local citizens who looked them over and pronounced them just a passing fad.

The vacation season just reaching its close has proved how far off they were, with every highway in the land literally cluttered with them. Like the moving picture and the radio, both of which were pronounced fads when they first appeared, the trailer is not only here to stay but seemingly destined to become a great industry. In fact, it has already reached gigantic proportions, with more than 50 plants engaged in manufacturing them, and some of these plants working as high as 2,000 employes. States that cater to tourists are spending large sums in building parks, or camp sites, in which these trailers can be accommodated; at least two national magazines are being published in the interest of trailer owners and already a national organization has been formed of the owners of auto trailers with a membership that even now runs well into the thousands.

It merely goes to prove that when the American people find something they want, they are willing to spend their money for it, and soon make it a national institution. The trailer offers the family of small means a chance to visit far places, see strange sights and enjoy a period of rest and recreation at a minimum of expense. It hits the high-priced summer resort and tourist cabin owners a hard rap, but there's still enough trade left for them. The main thing is that it makes a real vacation possible for the working people of this country—men and women who really make the country what it is and who are, therefore, entitled to travel about and see a little of it.

AN ILL WIND

More proof that it's an ill wind that blows nobody good comes in a recent news dispatch from Denver. It is to the effect that men who make a business of furnishing bait to fishermen in northern and eastern states during the vacation season have been paying as high as $400 a ton for Colorado grasshoppers. Most local fishermen who know the merit of the grasshoppers as a lure for game fish will say that's cheap. Most farmers who are plagued with the hoppers will say it is worth that much to get rid of them. At any rate, it seems that a promising new industry is about to be opened up, with canned grasshoppers selling in all parts of the country where game fish abide. All of which goes to show that money is still to be found in strange places, and that there are plenty of new things under the sun if one has the eye to see them.

ONE WAY TO SAVE

With more leaves turning yellow with each passing day, citizens in Boone County are reminded not only of the rapid flight of time but that winter will also be here before many of the mare ready for it. September and October and months generally recognized as ideal months for making needed improvements about the premises, the bulk of the harvest season being over and with more time at hand in which to do this type of work. Not only that, but this year there is an added reason for making such improvements, and that is the fast-mounting cost of hardware and building materials. The same improvements made now that could have been made last spring will cost more than if they had been done then, and if postponed until next year the cost will be still greater. From an economical standpoint, therefore, the man who postpones necessary building, or needed improvements, is actually robbing himself. This is offered merely as a timely suggestion—do the work now and when spring comes figure up the saving.

Puzzle No. 4 Solved:

FORGETFULNESS

It is difficult for the average citizen to believe, as hard as money has been to get during the past few years, that anyone who had $50,000 in a bank would forget he had it there. Yet the Federal Reserve Bank reports that the vast sum of $189,039,000 in unclaimed money reposes in the banks of this country. Sixty-five of these accounts are for $50,000 or more, while 1211 of them are for sums ranging from $10,000 to $50,000. The death of depositors, with no known relatives or friends, accounts for some of this money being unclaimed, but forgetfulness is said to be responsible for much of it being uncalled for. Now if some smart chap could devise a way whereby this money can be diverted into a source that would benefit the general public, and maybe ease off their taxes for a brief period, he would earn the praise of all his fellowmen. Then, too, maybe somebody else could step in to complete the job by inventing a way whereby a fellow couldn't lose sight of the fact that he had, say, a trifling little sum like $50,000 left in the bank.

FARM INCOME

Groups of farmers in several states have recently started a discussion which bids fair to become nation-wide in extent, and which may in the end introduce a new means of raising farm revenue. Their proposal is that the farmers of various states organize and petition their respective legislature for laws to permit "game cropping."

Many farmers in Boone County believe they have an inherent right to the game that lives on their acreage. While they agree that under existing laws this game is the property of the state and that its capture and use should be regulated, they are of the opinion that they should have something to say as to its disposal. With them it is not a question of the continuance of free hunting, but rather a matter of revenue. Most of them are not averse to improving game holding on their farms, and even rearing game for liberation and stocking, but they do expect some financial compensation for this. The use of their land and woodlots in the killing of game rearer and supported by them, they believe, justify a cash payment of some kind, the same as they receive from any other crop.

Maybe they are not far from right. The outcome of the present movement will determine that. In states where hunting quail it permitted, it seems that the farmer should be as much entitled to a part of the hunting license revenue as is the state. After all, it's the farmer's grain and fruit that keeps the game alive.

DON'T TRY TO BE A TEACHER

"Most parents," says Dr. Fraser, "make a mistake in offering too much help with the child's home work. Don't try to be a teacher. The chances are you will be doing more harm than good. Methods of teaching have changed markedly in the past twenty years, in both elementary and high schools, and in all likelihood the parent will not understand what system is being used with his child and will attempt to explain the subject as it was taught to himself.

"The result is inevitable. Either the child is bewildered and unable to understand, or there is a clash of wills between parent and child over which method to use. Either way, the outcome is detrimental."

The wise parent, according to Dr. Fraser, gives a minimum of actual help, but backs up the classroom teacher and lends her all the moral support possible. A visit to the school will frequently result in parents having a much better understanding of what is being attempted, and they can find out how they can be of greatest help both to the teacher and the child.

A STYLE SUGGESTION

It will be a black winter, according to New York fashion experts. Designers are already hard at work on those simple little black dresses it's always so hard to find. Many of them have soft girdled effects in front. A number are high-lighted with touches of bright color.

KITCHEN KINKS

To measure molasses, grease the cups or spoon into which molasses is poured and it will not adhere . . . A few spoonfuls of water boiled in the pan before adding milk to be boiled will help keep the milk from scorching . . . Leave the stem on onions and use it as a handle when grating them and the fingers will not be injured.

Lesson for September 26

GOD IN THE MAKING OF A NATION

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 8:11-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day.—Deuteronomy 8:11.

PRIMARY TOPIC—To Help Us Remember.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Giver of Gifts.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—God in the Making of a Nation.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God in the Making of a Nation.

God in the making of the nation of Israel—this has been our general subject for a number of months. In this concluding lesson we meet up with a solemn warning that even though God's mighty works have been revealed on behalf of a people, it is possible for them to become proud and self-confident, forgetting him whose they are and whom they should serve, and perishing in their rebellion and sin.

I. "Beware That Thou Forget Not the Lord" (v. 11).

How could this people who had come up out of slavery and been led "through that great and terrible wilderness" (v. 15), who had been fed by God's hand, who had received "water out of the rock of flint," who had become a great nation by his grace and blessing, now forget God? It would seem unbelievable, did we not know ourselves. We need this warning as badly as Israel. Shout a stirring "Beware" from coast to coast as this lesson is taught, for America is forgetting God. Space does not permit a review of the appalling facts here, but they are enough to make one's heart sick with sorrow and fear for the future of our nation.

II. "Lest . . . Thou Say . . . My Power" (vv. 12-17).

How trenchant and altogether fitting are the words of Scripture. Nothing could describe our times more succinctly and accurately than v. 17. Men are glorying in their ability to do things. Science has made mighty strides forward. Industry has brought forth so many striking developments that a single company is able to present as a reflection of its own work a veritable "House of Magic."

We honor those who by skillful hand and brilliant brain produce excellent and thrilling results. But our question is, "How many are there who say, 'God has done this thing. He gave the strength and the skill. His is the honor'?" Some there are who thus recognize him, but they are few indeed. Their name is legion who say in their heart, "My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth" (v. 17).

God, forgive us, cleanse us, and give us grace to walk humbly before Thee!

III. "Remember the Lord . . . He . . . Giveth Thee Power." (v. 18).

Joseph Parker points out that a deep conviction of the fact stated in v. 18 "would turn human history into a sacrament." He says, "What a blow this text strikes at one of the most popular and mischievous fallacies in common life—namely, that man is the maker of his own money!" He makes a stirring plea (see People's Bible. Vol. IV. p. 188) for bringing God, who has been "crushed like a rose leaf in the Bible," out into the market place, into the office and the warehouse, for if man will make "his warehouse into a church" he will never turn the church into a warehouse.

Would that we could once and for all do away with all "Sunday religion," and bring the gospel of grace and the laws of God into the office, the factory, the school, and the home, for every day and every incident and transaction of life.

IV. "If Thou . . . Forget . . . Ye Shall . . . Perish" (vv. 19, 20).

Reading this passage in the light of our knowledge of what did happen to Israel, we agree that the warning was needed, even though it was not heeded. Shall we then dismiss the matter with perhaps an expression of regret that they so disobeyed God and missed his blessing? If we do we miss the most important point in our lesson, for the fact is that our nation is just as dependent on God, and in just as much danger of forgetting him and perishing.

God punished even his chosen people in the day that they forgot him. Let not America think that she will escape if she goes on her way, forgetting God. We plead again, as we did last Sunday, for a deep going revival among God's people, and a renewed zeal for the salvation of lost men and women.

The Railroad Problem . . . and You!

To the Public: September 14, 1937

THE Association of American Railroads has successfully shown through a series of advertisements during the past year that the railroads remain the outstanding transportation industry of the Country. It has shown that they are dependable and progressive; are necessary agencies of distribution in times of peace, and of defense and offense in times of war; and that not only are a million people directly employed by them, but that the life of virtually every citizen is in one way or another affected by their service.

The impression has been gained by some that all railroads are prosperous. This is partly true of only a very few. The reverse is true for the industry as a whole. In 1936 when the depression was over, the Net Income of all railroads was $164,630,000. This was the amount available for improvements, reduction of debt, and dividends; yet even in that year railroads operating 38% of the country's total mileage had no net income at all, and about 30% were in the hands of receivers or trustees.

Now, what is the situation for 1937? The Net Income, which in 1936 was $164,630,000, is subject in 1937 to the following adverse influences, which are already in effect:

Loss of emergency freight rates, authorized during depression by Interstate Commerce Commission, and cancelled December 31, 1936, which produced in 1936 revenues amounting to	$150,000,000
Estimated increased cost over 1936 of materials and supplies being used in 1937	125,000,000
Estimated increased charges over 1936 of Social Security and Retirement taxes for 1937	50,000,000
Wage increases granted certain employes of 14 non-operating brotherhoods, August 1, 1937, costing about $98,000,000 per year; estimated effect on year 1937	41,000,000
	$375,000,000

These four items total $375,000,000, which is $210,370,000 greater than the entire net income of 1936. For the railroads to break even in 1937, they must, in view of the foregoing loss of revenue and added expense, handle nearly 30% more traffic than they did in 1936. The actual increase in carloadings for the first eight months of 1937 compared with 1936 was only 11.9%.

Demand of five operating brotherhoods for 20% increase in wages, equal per year to	$116,000,000
Proposed law, sponsored in Congress (the bill has already passed the Senate) by certain railroad labor organizations, limiting the length of freight trains to 70 cars, which would add annually to railroad expense	100,000,000
Total	$216,000,000

This figure added to the $375,000,000 above, makes the huge total of $591,000,000 per year, or three and one-half times greater than the actual net income of 1936.

It is self-evident to any thinking person, therefore, that with such additional burdens imposed on the railroads, a serious situation exists. One of two things is inevitable: Either higher freight and passenger rates must be obtained to offset these increases, or practically all the remaining roads will be bankrupt. This means that the living expenses of every citizen will be higher through increased cost of transportation, or there will be government ownership, with its consequent ills—heavier taxes to pay the cost of buying the railroads, loss of taxes now paid by the railroads, inefficient service and annual deficits to be made up by additional taxation.

In either case, the welfare of the public, as well as that of the railroads, is at stake. Nothing can be done about the increased burdens already in effect amounting to $375,000,000, except to the extent that increased rates may be granted by the Commission. There is still time, however, to prevent the pending increases of $216,000,000, but to do so imperatively requires the strong influence of public expression against such demands. The railroads have refused the demands of the five operating brotherhoods for increased wages; the issue may reach a fact-finding commission appointed by the President of the United States. The Train Limit bill is pending in the House, and will likely be given prompt attention by Congress next January.

The citizens of this country are so vitally affected by these two questions that they should oppose them in every reasonable way.

Further details of these and other railroad matters will be discussed in future statements.

OBITUARY

Laura Margaret, eldest daughter of Minnie and William Deck was born Sept. 2, 1926 and departed this life Sept. 4, 1937, age eleven years and 2 days.

She united with the Belleview Baptist Church in Aug. 1936. She leaves to mourn her departure a loving mother and father, two sisters, Willa Maude, and Virginia Fay; two brothers Donald Carroll and James Ray and a host of other relatives and friends.

It can truly be said of Laura Margaret that she looked out for her younger brothers and sisters with tender, motherly care and devotion.

Sleep on dear child, take your rest,
We miss you most, who loved you best,
It leaves a shadow which darkens our place,
And also a vacant chair;
Days of sadness will come over us,
Secret tears will often flow,
'Tis sad to part with one so young and dear,
But God knoweth best.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our friends and neighbors for their kindness, Bro. Raymond Smith for his consoling words and Chambers and Grubbs for the way in which they conducted the funeral, in the death of our precious little daughter and sister, Laura Margaret Deck. 1t-pd.

THAT'S WHY YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY IN FIRESTONE STANDARD TIRES

FIRESTONE builds a first-quality tire made of top grade materials and sells it for less money because Firestone passes savings along to you in the form of extra values. Firestone controls rubber and cotton supplies at their sources, manufactures with greater efficiency and distributes at lower cost. Because of these economies —

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. By this process every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber. This counteracts dangerous internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES—because under the tread are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE—because of the extra tough, long-wearing tread.

Make your car tire-safe now for fall and winter driving. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires — today's top tire value.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON SMOOTH WORN TIRES!

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

That a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires?

At right is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, with no skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

Whole Body Suffers

By N. Tulch,

PEOPLES FOOT COMFORT
828 Madison Ave., Covington, Ky.

Glorious vitality can be thoroughly quenched when feet hurt. Science has discovered many new things about the relation of feet to nerves and blood supply ——— things every man and woman should know.

While you sleep, your body is rebuilding from the wear and tear of the day. But science has proved that when your feet give away, vital nerves and blood supplies are so cramped that soon Nature cannot rebuild fast enough to overcome the damage. Thus the loss of tissue takes its toll. Waste matter collects at the joints. Inflamation and pain follow and the

BOONE COUNTAINS ENJOY WEEK'S TOUR

Bright and early Monday morning, August 30th, the following party, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Arvin, left Burlington for a week's tour: Namely, Mr. and Mrs. Lee McNeely and son, Mrs. Laura Clore, Mrs. Bernard Rogers, Miss Juanita Ryle, Miss Frances Presser, Mrs. Hubert Brady, Mrs. Pearl Huey, Mrs. Roy Beemon, Miss Allie Stevens, Mrs. Ella Metcalf, May Flick, Mrs. Jeanette Clore, Mrs. Christina Kirtley, Mrs. Pearl Gulley, Mrs. Ella Jarrell, Mrs. Thomas Hensley, Mrs. Will Moore, Miss Corine Moore, Mrs. J. W. Kelly, Mrs. M. A. Yelton and daughters, Jo Ann and Geraldine, Mrs. E. Clifton. Stanley Ryle was the efficient driver.

Monday's drive carried us over Route 50 by way of Athens, Ohio, crossing the Ohio River at Parkersburg, W. Va. Monday night was spent near Clarksburg, W. Va. The next morning at daybreak we hustled out in a heavy downpour of rain, but approaching Laurel Mountain, in the Alleghenies, the skies cleared and the beautiful views on every hand are not easily described. Some of the party walked up Cheat Mountain, elevation of which is 2751 feet.

Space is too limited to describe the wonderful scenery and many points of interest. We mention one, a bend in the mountain called the Devil's Saddle, beyond which Nancy Hanks, mother of Lincoln, was born.

Tuesday night was spent a few miles west of Washington. In Washington we visited all points of interest including Arlington cemetery. On Thursday, going south from Washington, we journeyed through the Blueridge Mountains by way of Sy Line Drive, which is 65 miles long, highest elevation 4049 feet. This drive affords a view of the beautiful Shenandoah Valley, which is 50 miles wide, separating the Blue Ridge from the Alleghenies. After enjoying the beautiful mountain scenery we entered the Shenandoah Valley, and on through Saunton, Va., the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson. At nightfall we visited the Natural Bridge of Virginia and witnessed the night illumination and pageant. Words cannot describe this scene; we only state the Natural Bridge of Virginia is known as one of the seven wonders of the world.

Friday morning, Washington and Lee Unniversity was visited at Lexington, Va., also General Lee's tomb in the museum on the campus. Many battle sites are in and around Lexington including site of battle of Bull Run; also tomb of Stonewall Jackson.

Back over the Allegheny Mountains and down the Kanawa River much more beautiful secenery was before us. As we approached Charleston, W. Va., passed thru some of the largest coal mining areas in the country. After spending the night near Charleston, we journeyed to Huntington, W. Va., for our breakfast, via White Sulphur springs, one of the nation's largest resorts. The Ohio was again crossed at Ashland, Ky.

We were still able to enjoy Kentucky scenery via Maysville and Falmouth to Route 25 and in home with everyone happy and looking forward to another trip next year.

POSAGE DUE COSTS STATE MANY DOLLARS

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 9, 1937—Department of Revenue officials announced today that hundreds of pieces of mail are received each month on which postage is due. Many of these, they said, contain remittances in the form of tax payments and information returns required to be filed with the Department on certain dates.

Commissioner Martin announced that the Department budget did not include funds for the payment of several hundred dollars of additional postage every few months, and said that the Department was discontinuing the practice of receiving such mail. He advised that postage due mail would be returned to the person sending it and that, if by reason of such return a taxpayer became delinquent in filing a report or paying taxes, the usual penalties would apply.

THE TEACHER'S TASK

We the teachers of the grade schools
Have no easy task to face;
To the schools in coutless millions
Come the children of the race.

We must open wide the gateway,
Understanding is the key,
From the fetters of tradition
May we keep our teaching free.

Lift our eyes above the textbooks,
Look out into life and teach,
That their learning may be vital
As the goal they strive to reach.

Men and women of the future.
Citizens of life are they;
Ours the fault and ours the failure
If they stumble on the way.

But success will crown our efforts
If we keep an open mind;
And the joy of satisfaction
In our labor we shall find.

Give to childhood love and service,
Help their laughter banish tears;
On the road of truth and beauty.
Guide them gently thru the years.
—Louise George Bolton.
Hamilton, Ky.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Fresh vegetables of all kinds are valuable to the growing child because of their rich mineral-salt content. Of these spinach, chard, carrots, beets, boiled onions or lima beans are best. Starchy vegetables, too, such as potatoes may be given, boiled, baked or mashed, but never fried. Hot, highly-seasoned sauces should never be given to a child.

Agricultural limestone represents one of the most profitable methods of earning the remaining allowance. Many farmers are having enough limestone crushed to last two or three years, using a part on their allowance each year. Approximately 250 tons of stone were crushed the past week and applications for approximately 750 addition tons are on file in the County office. Mr. R. W. Auten is crushing approximately 70 tons per day and states that if orders justify he will put on sufficient help to crush 120 tons per day. Many farmers will pile their own rock and the entire expense of crushing is only 80 cents per ton. Credit of $1.50 per ton is paid on the soil building allowance this year. One application of limestone improves the fertility of the land from 10 to 20 years. Limestone thus becomes one of the most important and most profitable soil building practices to carry out during the next few weeks. Phosphate should be used with lime where possible.

Fall is the best time to sow all grass seed. Fall seeding of grass is far superior to spring seeding. All cultivated land should be sown to wheat or rye for a winter cover crop and spring pasture. Grass should be sown as the same time the cover crop is seeded if pasture or meadow is to follow.

HEBRON HOMEMAKERS HOLD MEETING SEPT. 8

The home of Mrs. B. F. Hossman looked like a pottery shop last Wednesday, September 8th, when Hebron Homemakers gathered there for an all-day meeting to decorate candy and cookie jars. So enthusiastic were the members that another meeting was planned to be held at the home of Mrs. Parker Hollis, Friday, September 24th.

he out-going president, Mrs. Hollis, turned the gavel over to the new one, Mrs. Jameson Aylor.

New members present were Mrs. Anthony Howard and Mrs. John Crigler.

All are looking forward to the county's annual meeting to be held September 30th at Harvest Home grounds.

Stella Z. Nichols, Sec'y.

Some men may be "careless about money matters" but they never carelessly pay any more than they owe.

CARD OF THANKS

We, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Garrison, wish to express our sincere thanks to our many friends who attended the shower given for our benefit by Mr. and Mrs. John Burton.

Not only do we appreciate the many splendid gifts we received, but we also feel justified in taking for granted that each face present, each smile, and each word of congratulation was a pledge of friendship, far more valuable than all the material wealth of the world.

There were approximately one hundred people present and it gives us great pleasure to extend to each and every one a standing invitation to visit us at our home in Aurora.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Howard Garrison.

NOTICE

Kindly take notice that the Kentucky Children's Home Society, Lyndon, Kentucky, through its Superintendent, K. L. Messenger, will proceed in due course to consent to and consummate the adoption of Gordon Christy, fourteen (14) years of age.

Any and all objections to said adoption as provided by Section 2072 should be made within four weeks from Sept. 23, 1937.

Another thing this country could very well get along without are those fellows who return from a trip abroad to tell us how much more "culture" they have over there.

UNEMPLOYMENT ACT EXPLAINED

BY ROBERT B. HENSLEY, LEGAL COUNSEL OF THE UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION COMMISSION.

"The chief misunderstanding arising out of administration of the Unemployment Compensation law is due to the erroneous belief that because only employers of eight or more individuals were liable for 193 contributions the same conditions apply for the year 1937," Robert B. Hensley, chief legal counsel of the Unemployment Compensation Commission declared recently in discussing problems facing the commission in its task of administering provisions of the act.

"Although it is true that for the year 1936 only employers of eight or more individuals were liable for contributions, the law provides that for the year 1937 coverage is extended to include employers of four or more persons," Hensley explained. "The law further provides that if any employer had as many as four individuals in his employ during 1936 for as many as 20 weeks he is liable for 1937 contributions althugh he may have fewer than four employes during this year.

"Another mistake impression prevalent among many employers is that they may discharge their liability for contributions by reducing their number of employes to less than four. An employer liable for any part of a year is liable for the entire year although he may reduce his force to a point where he has but one employee. Similarly, any employer who during a preceding year has as many as four employes for the required 20 weeks is liable for the following year regardless of his number of employes at that time," Hensley stated.

"For the year 1937 the rate of employer contribution is 1.8 per cent of the total payroll and the employer must, in addition, assume responsibility for collecting the employee contribution of .9 of one one per cent which must be included with his own contribution in his reports to the commission. Thus the total contribution due the commission is 2.7 per cent. Many employers have been remitting only .9 of one per cent of their total payroll as their contribution, rather than the required 1.8 per cent, and the employee contribution of .9 of one per cent to the commission," Hensley explained.

CATTLE BRINGS GOOD PRICE AT SALE TUESDAY

Largest Cattle Sale in Northern Kentucky For Years—Lot Averages $138.50 Per Head

Joel Gray's Guernsey herd was sold at public auction Tuesday afternoon, with a large group of enthusiastic buyers and spectators present to witness one of the largest and most successful cattle sales in this section of Kentucky for many years.

The twenty-one head (including the young bull) averaged $138.50 per head. The twenty milch cows (including 5 heifers) averaged $133.02 per head. The highest cow sold brought $205.00 and the second highest brought $202.50. The young bull sold for $150.00. The older bull was not sold at the sale as there was a standing bid of $350.00 before the sale and no higher bid was made. The fine team of horses were offered but not sold for the price offered. All equipment sold for a very good price.

Most of the cattle were sold to persons from other parts of the country, and only a very few were purchased by local persons.

This was undoubtedly one of the largest and most successful farm sales in northern Kentucky, and most of the credit is due to the efficient management of the owner, Mr. Gray, in both the sale and the building of this fine herd of milch cows. It has required years of planning and breeding to build and maintain this herd, and not everyone could do this successfully.

Mr. Gray has held a prominent place in the dairy business in Kentucky for many years, and the interest shown in the sale, Tuesday, certainly speaks well of his ability as a dairyman.

Mr. Gray states that due credit must be given Col. Lute Bradford, the auctioneer, whose efficient work added materially to the success of sale.

FRACTIONAL CURRENCY BEING EXHIBITED BY COVINGTON STORE

The Quality Sample Shoe Shop, 27 Madison Avenue, opposite Woolworth's, Covington, is exhibiting a very interesting collection of "fractional currency," popularly called "shin plasters." Some of this paper money is more than one hundred years old, and is in various denominations, from five cents up.

Included is a specimen of five-cent "Postage Currency," bearing the inscription, "Receivable for All United States Stamps." The exhibit ranges up to the paper money that was used when replaced by the present smaller-size bills, and many onlookers remark how large those bills look now.

If any public or parochial school would like to exhibit this collection, which is of considerable historical interest, arrangements may be made by contacting Max Rose, at the Quality Sample Shoe Shop.

QUAIL TO BE HOUSED IN SEPARATE COOPS

The Fish and Game Conservation Club of this county called a special meeting Monday and decided to build several smaller houses for the 400 wild quail received here a short time ago.

The birds were not doing so well in the large pen owned by Mr. Hubert Conner and the club is going to considerable expense to erect smaller pens for these birds, so as to eliminate congestion.

The birds are almost full grown now, but will be kept in confine- until the weather opens next spring and then relased on such property as is approved by our own local fish and game club.

THREATS OF WAR

The fact that Russian army aviators recently made a non-stop flight from their own country to the western coast of the United States does not mean a thing to the average Boone County citizen. But when, after the feat is accomplished Russia boastfully announces that "We have demonstrated Russia's ability to successfully attack by plan the capital of any other nation," then Mr. Average Citizen is apt to sit up and take notice.

Russia's boast sounds very much as though she is lifting a chip to her shoulder, and may in time to come invite this country to knock it off. And the American people are not interested in invitations of that nation. That a great war, possibly a still greater one than the world has yet witnessed, is in the making, no one doubts. With Italy, Germany, Japan and Russia working as never before to build up armies and navies, and munition factories working night and day, it is difficult to see how war can much longer be averted. That this country would eventually become involved is also a matter of serious belief.

While no one wants the United States to stand idly by and fail to make all necesary preparations to protect herself, everyone does hope that a way will be found. When the lid blows off and the Old World again goes on a rampage, that this country will be able to remain out of it. Threats such as Russia makes can very well go unnoticed. It is going to take a pretty strong invitation next time to get the U. S. to enter into hostilities against any other nation. But it is comforting to know that she will not be found unprepared, as she was in the World War, and also worth something to know that her experiences in that titanic struggle will serve to stand her in good stead now.

YOU CAN'T FOOL 'EM

There may be a doubt in the mind of some business men in this section that better times are here and that they are going to get still better, but there isn't a bit of doubt about it in the minds of their strongest and most successful competitors—the mail-order men. Not since 1929 have the mails been so heavy with mail-order catalogues and mail-order merchandising offers as at at the present time. These mailorders dealers are recognized as the wisest advertisers on earth, so if they are doubling and trebling their advertising activities it is safe to believe they see better and bigger business on ahead. Their activities are deserving of the attention of home-town business men, too, and should serve to notify them that more business is awaiting those who go after it, and go promptly. Mail-order business men know the power and value of printers ink and right now, with retail merchandising entering upon what many predict will become another boom is a might appropriate time for local business men to profit by such wisdom.

"SHRIEKING ROADS"

That there is something new under the sun insofar as safety inventions are concerned is attested by recent developments of a "shrieking road" by students in the Dept. of Mines of the University of Minnesota. They have discovered that certain types of metals will, when laid into the paving of highways, emit a sort of shrieking sound when the tires of an automobile pass over them. This, they contend, can be used to warn motorists when they are getting too far over on the wrong side of the road and when approaching a dangerous curve or railroad crossing. Among the other things constantly being invented to make highways fool-proof, Boone County motorists may soon make the acquaintance of the "shrieking road" for it is said that tests show it to be practical. But it still will take something more than a road that shrieks to make careful drivers of a good many of them.

Lesson for October 3

CHRISTIAN SONSHIP

LESSON TEXT—I John 3:1-6, 18-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name. John 1:12.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What John Learned from Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—John's Way.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Makes Us Children of God?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Sonship.

"Studies in the Christian Life." What an attractive title, and what interesting and instructive studies we are to share during the coming three months!

When setting out on a journey we want to know just where we are going. Just so when we take up a new study we need to define the limits of our subject. We are to study the Christian life—not life in general, not religious life, no, not even life in a Christian land or during the Christian era. It is therefore most appropriate that our first lesson in this series should tell us who the Christian is and how he lives.

I. God's Children—Who They Are (vv. 1-6).

1. They are "Born ones" (v. 1). The Revised Version correctly translates "sons" as "children." We are sons in our position, but we are children by the new birth. A man may attain the legal relationship of a son by adoption, but he can be a child only by birth.

2. They are separated ones (v. 1). The world, that is, unregenerate man, does not belong to this family of God. How hard it is for even church people to understand that fact. They do not appreciate and cannot understand God's children, because they themselves do not know God.

3. They are glorified ones (v. 2). "We shall be like him for we shall see him as he is." What a glorious hope, realized even now by faith in the hearts and lives of God's children. The present difference between God's children and the world is to become even greater, for in that day when Christ "shall appear" (for he is coming again!) God's children shall be like him. Spiritually and morally—yes, and even their bodies shall be transformed.

4. They are purified ones (vv. 3-6). The standard whereby the Christian measures his life is the purity of Christ. The question is not "How much purer am I than my friends and acquaintances?" No, the norm for the Christian life is far higher, we are to be purified as "he is pure."

All sin is a disregard of God's law (v. 4). His children do not thus defy Him. They have taken as their Saviour the one "who was manifested to take away sins." There was no sin in him, and the one who abides in him has victory and does not live in sin. He may fall into some act of sin, but in utter misery and repentance he turns from it to his Deliverer.

II. God's Children—How They Live (vv. 18-24).

Love is the supreme test of Christian profession. "We know we have passed out of death into life, because we love the brethren," says John in v. 14 (R. V.). How far should love go? "We ought to lay down our lives for the brethren" (v. 16).

Such a sacrifice is not often demanded of us, but the writer goes on to say that we may show that spirit in daily service to those in need.

1. In loving and sacrificial service (v. 18). Words may comfort and strengthen, especially when they are words of love. Love does not stop with words, however, but acts, reflecting the spirit of God, who not only is good, but does good.

2. In the assurance of faith (vv. 19-21). Assurance is the blessed privilege of the child of God. Well may we feel condemned when we measure our lives by his divine tests. But after all, even "if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart." Salvation does not depend on either our works or our feelings. It is of God. Does this condone sin? God forbid. We are rather so to walk that "our heart condemn us not."

3. In unquestioning obedience (vv. 22-24). The hallmark of character in a child is obedience. Scripture does not countenance the unfortunate standards of men on this point. The children of God "keep his commandments" which are beautifully summed up in v. 23 as believing in Christ and loving one another.

Divine Purpose

What is it after all which gives men the energy to do things seemingly impossible? It is, and always has been, the result of the divine purpose.

Bond of Perfectness

And above all these things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness.

Honesty the Best Policy

Unimpaired integrity is an incomparable asset.

IN MEMORY OF OUR FATHER

We have lost our darling father,
He has bid us both adieu;
He has gone to live in heaven
And his person is lost to view.
Oh, that darling, how we loved him
Oh, how hard to give him up;
But an angel came down for him,
And removed him from our flock.

PEOPLES FOOT COMFORT
828 Madison Ave., Covington, Ky.

Your happiness is dependent greatly upon your health, and your health is closely related to the condition of your feet.

Doctors tell us that much of the so-called rheumatism, sciatica, nervousness, backache and headache are the result of excessive pressure on the nerves and blood vessels in the feet caused by misplacement of one or more of the foot bones. Foot neglect does not pay. What afflictions caused most deaths last year? Not hear disease, not cancer, nothing but neglect. Any disease can be cured these days if attended to in time.

The longer you put off proper care of the feet the less pleasure you get from life and the more you are going to sap your vitality, harm your nervous system, reduce your comfort and impair your health. Now, you have probably promised yourself that you would call and at least investigate our surgical or prescription shoes, recommend, but you have put it off, hoping, wishing your feet would get better. Unfortunately, wishing and hoping will not relieve pressure or realign bones. We have given comfort to thousands, many of whom had dispaired of ever enjoying foot health again. Remember if your feet indicate the need of electric treatments or hand massaging we make no charge whatever for this service. Your shores are your only expense.—Adv

HOMEMAKERS' CLUB

The Florence Homemakers' Club had their monthly meeting at the Town Hall, September 23, at 1 p. m. Fifteen members were present, also two visitors, Mrs. Gillaspie and Mrs. Roy Conner.

A very interesting and enjoyable lesson was given, on "Furniture Selection," and "Remodeling Furniture," by our capable leader, Mrs. C. F. Blankenbeker. She was assisted by Mrs. Virginia Goodridge, who substituted for Mrs. M. G. Martin. The minor lesson on "Millinery" and "Clothes," was given by Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, our capable H. D. A. After the meeting we were all served refreshments at the home of our President. Mrs. Mabel Sayre.

A special all-day meeting will be held October 5, at 10:00 a. m. to 3: 30p. m. The members have ordered through Miss Gillaspie, some very lovely pottery articles, such as cookie jars, jam jars, mixing bowls, salt and pepper shakers, and cracker jars. A lesson will be given on how to paint these articles at this meeting.

The Florence Homemakers' Club hopes to be well represented at the annual meeting at Harvest Home, September 30th, and entertainment is to be furnished by some of its members, under the direction of Mrs. Virginia Goodridge, our splendid program leader.

Mrs. Clifford Coyle, our past president was presented with a very pretty and interesting pin, which she will wear for six months and will then pass it on to our present President, Mrs. Sayre, who will wear it the next six months.

The next meeting will be held at the Town Hall, October 23. The roll call will be answered by "My pet aversion."

Mrs. M. G. Martin is unable to continue taking part as leader. Mrs. Clarence Fossett will take place for the remainder of the project, "Baegronud of the Liveable Home."

28,000 HOMEMAKERS NEIGHBOR

TO UNDERSTAND the heart of a railroad like the L. & N.—to understand why the L. & N. is your "Home Sweet Home on Rails," you have to look beyond thundering locomotives, steel rails, moving freight cars, and know something of its people.

We've been successful in creating a genuine southern "home" atmosphere on our road because, like yours, the lives of our 28,000 employees are bound up in homes and home-making.

Spread over 13 states, these men and women of the L. & N. live much the same as you do. They're useful citizens who send children to school, pay taxes, trade at the corner grocery, go to the movies, contribute to the development and prosperity of the towns and cities in which they live.

Their love of home and community makes it natural for them to think of the railroad they serve as your Home on Rails—helps them to take pride and pleasure in making you feel "at home on the L. & N."

That is why our employes strive—man to man—with one purpose, one creed, to make your journey as their guest so safe and pleasant—to make your shipment of freight in their care move so promptly—that you will want to patronize the L. & N. again.

Try the safe, friendly, dependable L. & N. way then, won't you, when you have a shipment to move or a trip to make?

FLORENCE MAN RETIRES THURS.

AFTER FIFTY YEARS OF RAILROAD WORK—INTENDS TO SPEND REST OF LIFE ENJOYING HIMSELF.

George Grose and a number of his friends celebrated his retirement last Thursday night, at his home at Florence, after fifty years of railroading.

Thursday was the golden anniversary of his railroad labors, and when the Big Four train No. 123 pulled in he was through. Mr. Grose is 74. For the last four years he has been a "back-up man" at Union Terminal. With a coupling hose in his hand he stands on the rear platform of a newly-arrived train to signal the engineer or to stop the train in the event of danger of collision.

After his retirement Mr. Grose has nothing to do but act as police judge of Florence, hunt, fish and catch up on his traveling. In 1881 he began his railroad career as a section hand on the Southern Railway, and four years later he was a switchman, staying with that company until 1894, when he went to the Big Four road, where he since has been employed.

Since the erection of the Union Terminal he has been a "back-up" man there. In all his work, including his years as a brakeman, he has never caused nor suffered an accident. Railroad work is safer now, he says, than it was in the old days when he coupled cars with the crude link-and-pin, and he had to work fast to keep from getting a hand crushed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McBee entertained Monday evening for dinner, Mr. and Mrs. John Conner, of Hebron, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cotton and family.

B. C. GRADDY FARM OFFERED AT AUCTION SATURDAY, OCT. 16

The sale will be conducted by the R. G. Kinman Realty Auction Co., 408 Coppin Bldg., Covington. Col. Kinman says the farm is one of the outstanding tracts of land in northern Kentucky. The property includes two beautiful building sites, with a large frontage on the highway. There is electricity on the highway. The farm is near schools and churches. There will be free cash presents and special gifts to the ladies attending the sale.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH CONVENTION HELD

The Convention of Christian Churches throughout Boone County was held at the Belleview Church, Monday, Oct. 4th, with a large crowd in attendance.

Several fine speeches were delivered, and special music was rendered by Mrs. Pauline Rouse, which was appreciated by all. Lunch was served by the ladies at the noon hour.

G. F. Schram, who has served as president of this convention for a number of years, presented the convention with a beautifully bound record-book for use as the secretary desires. The next meeting will be held at Pt. Pleasant in 1938.

The meeting was closed by singing "God Be With You."

—Mrs. Mary G. Berkshire, Sec'y.

CHARGE DROPPED AGAINST MISS FABER

A charge of manslaughter against Miss Lillian Faber, 40 years old, was dismissed following a preliminary hearing Friday before Judge John B. Read in Kenton County Court, Covington.

The charge grew out of a fatal accident September 15 at Martin Street and Scott Boulevard, when an automobile driven by Miss Faber hit Mrs. William Laird.

Miss Faber, in endeavoring to avoid hitting Mrs. Laird, who was crossing the street, ran upon the sidewalk for 90 feet, police testified.

LOCAL ATTORNEY TO ACT AS JUDGE

John L. Vest, attorney, Walton, received the oath of office Saturday from Judge A. M. Caldwell, Campbell County Circuit Court, Newport, to sit as special Judge in the trial of the suit of William F. Quante against Judson Shuey. Vest received his appointment Friday from Chief Justice Alex Ratcliff, Kentucky Court of Appeals. Judge Caldwell is disqualified from hearing the case since he is a director in the Bellevue Building Association which is interested in the case.

HOMEMAKERS ORDER POTTERY

Four hundred and seventy-five pieces of plain pottery have been ordered for Homemakers, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent. Six clubs painted the pottery as a special project during their September meetings. All of the clubs have asked for a pottery lesson for October.

One Hundred and fifty pieces have been painted. The Hebron Club completed ninety-two in two meetings. They painted cookie jars, munch jars, grease globes, mixing bowls and salt and pepper shakes. The eight-inch footed bowls which came with the first order have been discontinued by the pottery company.

PETERSBURG HAS ONE GAME LEAD

OVER BOB & GENE IN SERIES —EACH TEAM CHALKED UP 11 HITS, WITH SCORE ENDING 10 TO 4.

Petersburg manifest their strength for the second time in the three games played between them and Bob & Gene in a series which is to be the three best out of five games to decide the championship of the Boone County Baseball League for this year.

Both the Bob & Gene and Petersburg teams walked on the diamond at Petersburg Saturday, with, it would seem, a determination to make it hard for the opposing pitcher. Each team gathered a total of eleven hits. This might indicate that the game was a close contested one if each team had been successful in making hits count for runs. However, this was not so and the game ended with the Petersburg nine coming out on the long end of a 10 to 4 score.

Petersburg jumped into a one run lead in the first inning when R. Bradburn smaked one of Reibling's deliveries over the fence in left field for a home run. But a one run lead has never meant much against the Bob & Gene nine and thye didn't intend for it to mean anything in this game as they showed by coming back in the second to tie the score when Deck allowed Graham to single and to be advanced by a single by Roberts and scored on a single from Reibling.

However, this tie was not to last long because Petersburg scored two runs in the third and one run in each the fourth and fifth innings, beginning with a double in the third by B. Bradburn, followed by Mahan who was given a base on balls. James tallied with a hit that scored Bradburn and placed Mahin on third. It was then that Mahan pulled one of those seldom witnessed feats—that of stealing home. In the fourth, R. Bradburn hit a triple to score on a bunt which B. Bradburn beat out. In the fifth Jarrell held up first on an error by Kahill and advanced on a single by James and scored on a single from Nixon.

Bob & Gene were also making their count larger in these innings when in the third Demoisey singled and stole second and scored on errors by Mahan and B. Bradburn, and in the fifth when Demoisey pounced on the ball, this time for a double, later scoring on a double by Allphin.

This takes us into the first of the sixth, Petersburg leading 5 to 3 and the ball game still anybody's game, but not for long. After Bob & Gene threatened in the first of this inning when Reibling hit one hard off of Deck that went thru the trees in right field but held him on second on a ground rule, later to die on third which he gained by a single from Pettit.

With the top of the batting order up for Petersburg, the fireworks broke loose. Shinkle held first on an error by Pettit, R. Bradburn went out on a fly in deep left field. B. Bradburn was given a base on balls, Mahan drove in the two runners on base by a triple, Jarrell singled, scoring Mahan, and James gave Jarrell a free ticket from first to home when he lost one for a home run and completed the rally that netted five more runs.

The last three innings of the game finished with only one more run made. This run, resulting from a drive into the deepest of left field by Demoisey on which he easily circled the bases.

Neither Reibling's pitching for Bob & Gene or Deck's for Petersburg could be termed sensational, yet each deserves a lot of credit in the game. Reibling struck out eleven men against Deck's four, but walked four and hit two while Deck walked only two. The lead given to Deck by Petersburg batsmen gave him an easy battle thru-out the game, and he was more successful in keeping the hits scattered than was Reibling.

It would be impossible to pick any one or two batting stars of this game, but those pounding the ball for the most bases were: For Bob & Gene, Demoisey with a single, double and home run; Allphine with two doubles; Reibling a single and double. For Petersburg, R. Bradburn, a triple and home run; James two singles and a home run; Mahan a single and triple; and B. Bradburn, single and double.

The next game will be held at Belleview Saturday, and should the Petersburg boys lose this game another game will be played Sunday at the Belleview park.

COMMITTEE ON FREE BRIDGES

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 6—A committee of three advisory highway commissioners was appointed Thursday at a meeting of the commission, to investigate the probabilities and desirabilities of immediately freeing the State owned toll bridges.

The Committee, composed of Zach Justice, Pikeville, Chairman, George Wetherby, Louisville, and Tom Pardue, Hopkinsville, was appointed by Commissioner Robert Humphreys. It was vested with authority to work in full cooperation with the "Free Toll Bridge Association," and all other associations or persons interested in the freeing of toll bridges in Kentucky.

The Committee of advisory commissioners was instructed to lend every effort in the investigation of methods of freeing the bridges. In any event the Committee finds it impossible to free toll bridges in the immediate future, it is to investigate the wisdom and possibility of reducing the tolls on the fourteen bridges now owned and operated by the State.

The State's fourteen bridges are grouped in eight projects. Bonds for Project No. 1, which includes bridges Boonesboro, Burnside, Tyrone, Spottsville, Canton, Eggner's Ferry, Paducah, and Smithland, are due to mature in 1950 and it is estimated that they will be paid out in 1947. Bonds on bridges at Maysville, Ashland, and Paducah-Brookport, are due to mature in 1950. It is estimated that the Ashland and the Paducah-Brookport spans will pay themselves out in 1942 and Maysville will pay its way out in 1948.

Bonds on the Henderson span are to mature in 1945 and are expected to be paid out in 1941, while Newport-Cincinnati bridge bonds mature in 1955 and are expected by the State statisticians to be paid out by 1945. The Calhoun Bridge bonds are to mature in 1952 and the Covington Bridge bonds are to mature in 1947.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hysong and baby son, George Rober, of Flemingsburg, spent the past week-end at the home of Mrs. Hysong's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Huey.

FARMERS PAID FOR SEEDING

LAND—WILL RECEIVE PAY FOR LABOR IN SEEDING AS WELL AS COST OF SEED, SAYS H. R. FORKNER.

Farmers seeding grasses this fall for credit in the ACP will receive pay for the labor in seeding as well as the cost of seed, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. This is the first time since the starting of the Agricultural Conservation Program that this condition has existed. The original plans were for payment sufficient to reimburse only part of the cost of the practices.

The new situation is the result of lower seed prices against a rate per acre fixed last winter when seed prices of most crops were two to three times what they are today. Because of this favorable change to farmers making fall seedings every farmer should seed all land suitable.

Examples of the returns under the A. C. Program are as follows:

1. The pay rate for seeding timothy at not less than eight pounds per acre is $1.00. Eight pounds of timothy seed at 4½ cents per pound would cost 36 cents. This leaves the farmer 64 cents profit for labor.

2. The rate of pay for seeding bluegrass at not less than ten pounds per acre is $2.00. Ten pounds of bluegrass seed at eleven cents would cost $1.10, leaving 90 cents per acre profit.

Examples of many other fall sown seedings are similar. While the big drop in seed prices is responsible for this situation it is good business to sow all grass seed possible this fall, first, because fall is the best time to seed all grasses; second, grasses cheaper this fall than usual; third, you will receive the greatest ACP return now thru the seeding of fall sown grasses.

THE COUNTY FAIR

The county fair has staged a comeback. Reports covering every section of the country are to the effect that not only have hundreds of defunct institutions of this kind been revived but those that have continued to operate have actually shown nice profits this year.

If you would know the American people as they really are, visit a county fair. No fancy clothes will you see, but rather the serviceable, comfortable styles to which America clings. You will learn that it is still possible in this modern age for folks to enjoy themselves by inspecting the harvests of the fields, the products of the homes and the inventive genius of the nation as displayed in labor-saving devices and inventive genius of the nation as displayed in labor-saving devices and agricultural machinery. You will find as much interest shown in horses, hogs, cattle and chickens as you will in streamlined trains, dirigibles, or many-cylindered autos. You will overhear men and women chatting about weather conditions and coming crop prospects and about the coming and going of their neighbors, instead of about fan-dancers, fingernail polish or movie star divorces.

Other Americ.an institutions may come and go but the county fair remains. It does so because it fills a need and meets a want in American life as it exists outside the large cities. The county fair is not only an educational set-up, it is a social oasis for those in whose lives the green sports are infrequent. The county fair has established itself as a fixed part of our American life. It will remain such just as long as it affords a cheerful holiday to those who anticipate its pleasures for months in advance , as many millions of people now do, a majority of local citizens among them.

GETTING THEIR SHARE

With our national income having risen to $2,000,000,000 last year, an increase of about 40 percent over the dark days of 1932 and 1933, it ought to be of interest to everyone in Boone County to note that the workers of the nation are getting their share of these mounting billions.

Analyzing figures issued recently by the Department of Commerce, it may be noted that labor's share of our national income last year amounted to $41,250,000,000, or about 66½ percent of the total, compared to less than 60 percent in 1932. These figures answer rather effectively the charges made by certain malcontents that industry is engaged in piling up huge profits for itself without passing on to the workers a fair share of the mounting wealth. The facts in the matter are that labor is now receiving a larger percentage of our national income than at any time since the boom year of 1929.

The wide distribution of this increasing national income among the workers in factories, mines, stores, utilities and farms means additional buying power to the millions, and this in turn makes for better business all around. We are adding to our national income by creating wealth, not merely attempting to divide what we have. And we are bolstering our purchasing power by seeing to it that this new wealth finds proper distribution among those who created it. That way lies national prosperity —the thing America has been praying for.

Lesson for October 10

THE CHRISTIAN IN GOD'S KEEPING

LESSON TEXT—Jude 1-4, 17-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life.—Jude 21.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Why David Sang.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In God's Keeping.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Keeping Oneself Christian.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Safe in God's Keeping.

To be born is only to begin life. The years which stretch out before with their growth, their struggles, their joys, call for courageous living.

So it is with the Christian. He is a "born one," as we saw in our lesson of last Sunday. But when he is born again he is just ready to begin the Christian life.

The Epistle of Jude sheds much light on the dangers which beset the Christian's pathway and exhorts him to holy living and sacrificial service. It opens with a description of the Christian and closes with an ascription of praise to God. It reveals the Christian as one who is

I. Called in Christ (vv. 1, 2).

The entire Trinity is seen to be active in our redemption (See Revised Version). Jude writes "to them that are"

1. "Called"—The Holy Spirit calls men unto salvation.

2. "Beloved in God the Father"—for God is love.

3. "Kept for Jesus Christ"—until he appears.

II. Living for Christ (vv. 3, 4, 17-23).

As Jude began to write of the "salvation" which he had in "common" with his readers, the Holy Spirit moved him to deal with a very urgent and vital problem—the hostility of wicked men toward the gospel of Christ, and their efforts to destroy "the faith." The Christian life includes

1. Contending for the faith (vv. 3, 4). "The Faith" is the body of revealed truth, the gospel, the good news of redemption in Jesus Christ.

The world hates the gospel, and attacks upon it are to be expected, but the most insidious assault is that of those within the church (v. 4) who profess to believe in Christ. Against them and their destructive work Christians must "contend earnestly," at the same time praying that they may be delivered from their sin and its terrible judgment (vv. 15-16).

2. Observing the times in which they live (vv. 17-19). Some folk seem to think that being a Christian means entering into a place of security and rest and promptly going sound asleep. Far from it. The Christian, knowing God's Word, is keenly alert to the dangers of this ungodly world.

3. Keeping their own souls (vv. 20,21). The best defense is a vigorous offense. The way to contend against error is to build up one's own faith by the study of God's Word, by communion with his children, but above all by prayer "in the Holy Ghost." And above all there will be an abiding in the love of God and a looking for the fulfillment of the mercy of Christ at his coming again.

4. Saving the souls of others (vv. 22,23). Soul-winning is (or should be) the normal expression of the Christian's life. It is his crowning joy. It most effectively counteracts error and worldliness. It builds up the church. Why not do it?

Note that there are two types of sinners to be rescued. Some are "in doubt" (R. V.), needing tender and careful instruction. Others are in grave danger, and must be rescued by drastic reproof and decisive action. Soul-winning is urgent business.

III. Kept by Christ (vv. 24, 25).

The doxology at the close of Jude has been a haven of comfort and assurance for God's children throughout the centuries. Hither have come the strong in faith to rejoice and praise God. Here has been found the strengthening of faith by the fearful and trembling soul who had not yet learned that he may fully trust God. These verses present two truths.

1. Assurance. Our Saviour is able to keep us from falling, yes, even from "stumbling" (R. V.), and to present us "faultless" "without blemish" (R. V.), with exceeding joy, before the glorious presence of God.

2. Worship. Such a God and Saviour is indeed worthy of the outgoing of every Christian heart in adoration and worship.

Work and Wait

Haste is not always speed. We must learn to work and wait. This is like God, who perfects his works through beautiful gradations.

COLLEGE COOKS GIVE APPLE BUTTER RECIPE

Florence Imlay and Pearl Haak, home economics field agents of the Kentucky College of Agriculture, in their circular called "Jellies, Jams, Preserves and Marmalades," offer the following recipe for making apple butter:

Use 7 pounds of good cooking apples, or 20 to 21 medium-sized apples; 2½ cups of sugar; 4 quarts of cider; one teaspoon of ground allspice; 1½ tablespoons of ground cinnamon and one teaspoon of ground cloves.

Wash and slice the apples. Add the cider and cook until the apples are very tender. Press the fruit through a sieve to remove the skins and seeds. Add the sugar and spices to he pulp and cook the mixture until thick and clear, stirring frequently to prevent burning. Pour into sterilized jars and when cool cover with paraffin. Store in a cool place.

YOUR WASHINGTON AND MINE

From Behind the Scenes

By Dr. James E. Pope

Washington — Idaho's leonine Senator, William E. Borah—universally loved, but upon whom his own party signally failed to bestow national honors in his inured role as premier Constitutional orator proclaims that the Supreme Court is "the final judge between the people, their agents and servants," and urges the U. S. to jealously guard and defend the Constitution.

The learned Senator Borah—leading actor in the dramatic fight against President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan, and worshiper at the shrine of Abraham Lincoln—also calls upon the country to keep unimpaired the independence of the Supreme Court, apparently forgetting that anything Mr. Roosevelt now proposes assumes a graciously benign aspect when compared with the things Mr. Lincoln actually did.

The Maryland legislature was due to convene September 17, 1861—another Constitution Day anniversary. Mr. Lincoln, fearing disloyalty and Maryland's desertion to the Confederacy, caused the arrest and imprisonment of several legislators, but, there being no good and sufficient charge against them, the United States Supreme Court ruled that they were illegally held, and Mr. Chief Justice Taney ordered their release. But they were NOT released. Lincoln also voided the right of habeas corpus, caused certain newspaper offices to be raided and many publications suspended, in open defiance of the First Amendment. He raised armies and carried on war against the seceding states, although this power is invested in Congress alone under the Constitution.

Mr. Lincoln was right! When the President is donig the obviously correct and popular thing all water runs to his mill, but let him once step out and bruise the toes of the modern wallers at the wall of lost patronage—then he needs must return home by the weeping cross.

Prsident Lincoln could, and did—President Roosevelt cannot, and won't. Yet these professedly sincere lovers of Lincoln and critics of Roosevelt would make cheese of one and chalk of the other.

Lincoln faced a condition of open rebellion, and his acts were justified by emergency and acute necessity casting the mantle of authority thereover. Roosevelt did not have to contend with armed rebellion. The problem he faced was not that of preserving the Union, but of feeding the Union Lincoln had saved.

In 1932 and '33—big men, blue-lipped from hunger—respected women, wives and mother emaciated and made frail in the desperate struggle for food, any kind of food mattering not how coarse or unsuited, just enough to save their ragged and shivering progeny from disease and starvation—helpless babes, their hunger-pinched faces making them to look like little old men, withering and dying in their innocence—simply because there was too much food, because the psychology of fear and oversupply had bankrupted not only the producers but potential consumers as well, thereby creating such a depression that nobody could buy even the most needful things.

Secession was rebellion and could not be tolerated. Lincoln was right! But, seventy-one years later, seeing their children starve in the midst of plenty brought heart-break to jobless men who were anxious to work. And the pitiful, pleading whimpering sobs of his unfed baby, even though made in broken whispers through the unquiet slumber of sick life, can thunder lounder in a man's soul than any gun at Fort Sumter.

Wonder how many Senator, Congressmen and Higher-ups are members, or ex-members, of the K. K. K., or of some equally ruthless organization—or do they choose to classify political machines and boss-ruled gangs as ruthless?

Some jittery aspirants after re-election—sensing minacious rumblings, and becoming mindful of potential dynamite skulking behind 1938 congressional election returns—are passing out lollipops and invitations to the disgruntled in both camps to trundle their political hoops to a Coalition party.

Should there arise any embarrassment about choosing a name or title congruent with this hermaphroditic half-breed, I would like to suggest they name it the "Zebrass Party"—after a certain rare animal, a congenital relative of that raucous voiced hybrid of the barn-lot once defined by K. Lamity Bonner as one "without pride or hope of posterity."

Clergyman's Reception Needn't Bore Anybody

DEAR Mrs. Post: I am one of the committee in charge of giving a reception for our new clergyman and his wife. It has been suggested by one of the women that we have a musical program first, after which the newcomers will receive and then everyone go downstairs to the large Sunday-school room to have refreshments. I personally think such an arrangement might prove drawn out and awkward but I don't know what better plan to suggest.

Answer: I think the combination of a welcoming reception and a musical program requiring everyone to sit in silence is exactly what you describe as awkward. If I were managing it, I would have the entire reception in the Sunday-school room, which you say is ample, where one or two members on the committee would receive with the clergyman and his wife and introduce parishioners to them. Several stringed instruments playing softly as a background for conversation would be delightful. This arrangement could not prove tiring since after people have spoken to those receiving they would stand around in groups talking to one another and be served with refreshments. As newcomers arrive the first-comers—if they grow tired—would be free to leave.

Introduce Her Tactfully.

DEAR Mrs. Post: My son has given a ring to his fiancee, although as yet there has been no engagement announced and will not be for several months because her parents are not returning from abroad until then. My husband and I are to celebrate our wedding anniversary soon and would like at this occasion to introduce her to our many friends, but we don't want to in any way "steal the show" from her parents. Can you explain how we can introduce her and yet give no impression of a betrothal?

Answer: There is no reason in the world why she shouldn't be one of the guests, and no reason why she shouldn't be more or less casually introduced to all the people there. But certainly she can not very well receive with you without having it taken for granted that your interest in her is very special.

HONEY MAKES MONEY IN LETCHER COUNTY

A ton and a quarter of honey from 4 stands, is the record made this year by Lawrence King of Letcher county, according to County Agent Boyd E. Wheeler. The exact amount he took from his bees is 2,597 pounds, for which he already has been offered 25 cents a pound. One hive produced 243 pounds.

Several Letcher county bee owners have done well this year, says Mr. Wheeler. Many hives produced 100 to 150 pounds each, and bees are adding to the income on many farms.

HIGHWAY BODY TO HOLD MEETINGS SEMI-MONTHLY

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 6—At a called meeting of the State Highway Commission Thursday, the body voted to hold regular semi-monthly meetings henceforward. In the past it has been the policy of the Commission to go into session only on the call from the Commissioner, Robert Humphreys. The meeting dates for the regular meetings will be the second and fourth Tuesday of each month. The first regular meeting will be held Tuesday, November 9, 1937.

NEW ROAD STRIPING MACHINE NOW IN USE

A brand new road striping crew is working out of the Central Garage in Frankfort. This new crew is operating a new road striping machine invented by Ed Young, Central Garage Foreman, and constructed under his supervision. The new machine has passed the experimental stage, and has now reached a point where it is capable of laying stripe at the rate of eighteen miles per hour.

This machine will eventually cover every mile of blacktop road in the State.

INCOMPLETE REPORTS RETURNED FOR CORRECTION

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 6—Failure of numerous employers to answer each question upon monthly contribution reports has forced the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation Commission to adopt the policy of sending back all incomplete reports, Jack Wert, chief accountant, stated today in listing the most common mistakes made by employers in their reports.

"By returning incomplete reports with an explanatory memorandum the Commission feels employers may the more easily discover their errors and thus avoid repetition of such mistakes in future reports," Mr. Wert explained.

"Probably the chief source of error in reports," he declare, "is the failure to state the number of employees. This information is absolutely essential for our records.

"In numerous instances employers neglect to show the number of weekly pay periods during the month. A great number of employers also forget to sign their reports, or else their signature is typewritten which is not acceptable to the Commission."

Other common sources of errors listed by Mr. Wert were, failure to specify the month for which the contribution is made, and failure to attach to such report any credit or debit memorandum which may have been issued by the Commission for the previous month.

Credit or debit memorandums, Mr. Wert explained, are issued to those employers who have overpaid or underpaid contributions and the amount of the memorandum is to be added or deducted from the contribution for the following month, as the case may be. Employers, however, he emphasized, must attach a copy of the memorandum to their report before proper credit can be given.

"These are mostly errors of omission rather than commission and employers, by the use of care, can easily make acceptable reports," Mr. Wert concluded.

PROGRAM PROVIDES FOR MORE BURLEY LESS DARK TOBACCO

The 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program provides for a larger acreage of burley tobacco and for somewhat less dark tobacco, it is announced from the College of Agriculture at Lexington.

For burley tobacco, the national goal is set at 480,000 to 500,000 acres, and for fire-cured and dark air-cured at 170,000 to 180,000 acres.

The program for next year, while similar to this year's program, sets national, state, county and farm goals for soil-depleting crops and for soil-building crops. Provision is made for crop acreages that are usually required to meet national needs for consumption and for export.

The national goal for each crop will be broken down into state, county and individual farm goals, so that each farm will have soil-depleting goals and goals for soil-conserving crops and practices.

Each farmer will know at the beginning of the year what his acreages are, and what his maximum payment will be. Thus he can plan his year's operation well in advance, it is stated. Payment will be made for keeping within soil-depleting crop goals and for attaining soil-building goals.

PAID FOR FLOCK THE FIRST YEAR

When Roger Phillips, Livingston county farmer, last December paid $158 for 30 yearling ewes and a ram he was not certain he had made a good move. He did not know that returns from lambs and wool the first year would more than pay his original investment.

County Agent Robert L. Rudolph reports that Phillips saved 37 lambs, 32 of which he sold for $259.15. He also sheared 144 lbs. of wool which brought $50.40, making the income from the flock this year $309.50, or $151.55 more than he paid for the flock last December. And Phillips has his original flock left and five lambs besides.

HOGS BIG MONEY SOURCE ON FARMS IN UNION COUNTY

While tobacco is the principal source of income in many Kentucky counties, in Union county livestock accounted for 7 percent of the total receipts of 34 farmers, whose accounts for last year have been summarized by the farm economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Hogs were the biggest single source of income, the 34 farmers selling an average of $2,664 worth per farm during the year. Beef cattle ranked second, the average income from this source being $1,183. Sheep, poultry and dairy cattle contributed less than a tenth of the average income.

The largest net income for one farmer was 13,419, which represented approximately 32 per cent on investment. Another man made $5,192, or more than 24 percent on his investment, and 15 farmers reported incomes of 8 percent or more on their investments.

For the 34 farms the average rate earned on investment was 14 percent, but for the 10 most profitable farms it was approximately 22 percent. Receipts for all the farms averaged $24.48 per $100 investment, but on the 10 most profitable farms the average was $34.33.

Operators of the 10 best farms, the report notes, had practically the same number of sows and beef cattle per 100 acres as did the other farmers, but they were more efficient in their livestock production. For instance, per $100 invested in beef cattle, the 10 best farmers had an average income of $134.67, while the average for all 34 farmers was $64.62.

Half of the 34 farmers raised an average of approximately 13 pigs per sow for the whole year and had an average income of $331 per sow, while the other half averaged only slightly over 9 pigs, with an income of $174 per sow.

The better farmers also had higher crop receipts per crop acre. Crops occupied 57 percent of the tillable land and pasture 43 per cent on the 34 farms.

The report of the college makes the following conclusion:

"A higher rate earned on investment is characteristic of farms having greater efficiency in the production of livestock, as shown by more pigs raised per sow, and higher beef receipts per cow or per $100 invested in beef cattle.

"Handle your livestock well. Give them personal supervision. and make sure they have plenty of water and adequate legume hay and pasture.

"Small grain should be seeded on all crop land that would otherwise be left bare over the winter. Bare land rapidly loses fertility.

"Mixtures of grasses and clovers should be seeded with the small grain. Such mixtures provide better pasture than redtop or lespedeza alone and improve the land more rapidly to increase future crop yields.

"Use limestone and phosphate liberally for clover and wheat production."

Every girl should remember that there are just so many kisses in a case of love and the more she gets before marriage the fewer there are left for the future.

Wool has paid big dividends in Taylor county, where farmers pooled 6,000 pounds (one third more than in 1936) and sold it for a net price of $34.50 per 100 pounds. The wool committee also encouraged drenching, so several hundred sheep were drench.

THE FARM AND HOME

Avoid inhaling the dusts when treating seed grains to control smuts. Treat the seed outdoors if possible or if indoors ventilate so dust will be carried away from the operator. It also is advisable to wear a cloth over nose and mouth. Treated grain is not fit for milling or for stock feed.

Rooms that seem overcrowded and in confusion may be made to appear more roomy, restful and orderly by re-arrangement of the furniture, and improvement that can be made without expenditure.

SAFETY PROGRAM UNDER WAY THRUOUT KENTUCKY

Plans are already being completed for a State-wide traffic safety program, sponsored by the Kentucky State Safety Commission, which will include safety talks and lectures at high schools and at civic clubs gatherings, distribution of numerous safety pamphlets, and climaxing the campaign with a colorful Safety Parade in each of twenty-five cities and towns thruout the State, conducted in one of them on each day through the month of October, which has been declared as Safety Month in Kentucky, by official proclamation of the Honorable Albert B. Chandler, which has been issued for publication. This program, which is to be conducted by the National Safety Crusades, under direction of Captain J. J. Lynch, who will operate the Driverless "Magic" auto in each of the parades, will be the first venture of its kind ever held in the State and will be slated under the departmental heading of "Safety Education." Major W. H. Hanson, State Supervisor of Safety and Secretary of the Kentucky Safety Commission, will supervise the entire program, which will be carried on for the purpose of impressing upon the minds of the people in the entire State the necessity of more care being exercised by drivers and pedestrians alike while riding or walking on our streets and highways. Major Hanson quotes: "My job is to study traffic conditions, and remedy bad conditions if possible, but I want the help and support of every man, woman and child in the State, and all you have to do is to think of safety, talk safety, and act safety at all times." By doing so, and with your help, we are bound to make the streets and highways of Kentucky a safer place for ourselves and our visitors to travel upon. We have a beautiful State so why clutter it up with a lot of wrecked automobiles and dead or injured people, screaming with agony, because somebody lost their head or took an unnecessary chance or just didn't stop to THINK.

The Kentucky State Safety Commission was inaugurated to help protect you, your family, and your friends an neighbors, but we can't do it alone. This is YOUR State and YOUR people, so help YOUR Governor and The Safety Commission to make the streets and highways in Kenturky a safe place for EVERYBODY to travel.

SWEETENED ALFALFA ENSILAGE FOR SOWS

Cows at the W. H. Key Model Dairy Farm in Mason county will have sweetened alfalfa ensilage to eat this winter. Alfalfa was mowed little bit at a time, raked immediately, run through an ensilage cutter and sprayed with a solution of 20 pounds of blackstrap molasses and 50 gallons of water to the ton as it was chopped. A pressure sprayer was used to put on the molasses solution.

Mr. Key resorted to this method of handling alfalfa hay principally because of the difficulty of getting alfalfa up without damage from rain. If the experiment is successful it will present a solution to the problem of curing alfalfa hay, where farmers are equipped to keep ensilage.

DEMONSTRATIONC TO AID SHEEP RAISERS

Fifteen farmers are cooperating with County Agent J. E. Summers in demonstrating sheep raising possibilities in Simpson county, with a view to establishing sheep production as a permanent part of the diversified agricultural program for the county.

Purebred rams are being used on good ewes, and each farmer is following a definite program of feeding, disease and parasite control and general management. Cover crops will provide fall, winter and early spring grazing, and legume hay will be produced for extra winter feeding.

PIONEER FARMERS 1937

By H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

There are a large number of Boone County farmers who are pioneering in new fields of agricultural advancement. The results of their findings are for the public or common good of all. Progressive agricultural improvement is their goal. They are conducting demonstration in new varieties of crops, applying new soil treatments methods of insect control, cover crops or one of a number of various other recommended practices on a limited scale in comparison with the regular methods that are conducted on their farm. The weak-hearted nor the cold blooded business man seldom will attempt such an endeavor. A report on the work of these pioneers will be given from time to time during the next few weeks.

Watermelon Wilt

Watermelon growing is an important cash crop in Petersburg, Belleview and Hamilton river bottoms. Wilt is a disease that destroys the vines just about the time they begin to bear fruit often destroying the entire field. Wilt infection is known to exist in the ground and to be carried by insects. Many growers think the seed may also carry the infection.

Growers in Petersburg and Belleview bottoms several years ago recommended the Extension Service to locate if possible a variety or varieties of melons that would be resistant to this disease. Seed of wilt-resistant varieties under experimental study were secured through the help of Dr. W. D. Valleau, of the College of Agriculture and Duke V. Layton, formerly of Iowa College and now with California Melon Growers' Association. The first varieties secured were resistant but of poor quality. Last year and this year results were much better.

Kleckley No. 5 was the second largest, equal in quality but hardly as good shipping melon as Thurmond Grey.

The growers cooperating in these demonstrations have been patient and have given considerable of their time toward advancement. They have made progress in their attempt toward improvement. There is still room for more progress as the perfect variety has not yet been produced. We respect these pioneers in agricultural improvment. Eventually their work will leave a mark on the agricultural progress of the county.

A report of the demonstrations conducted this year briefly stated are as follows:

1. Name of demonstrators and wilt-resistant varieties used:

a() J. J. Klopp, Petersburg, wilt resistant varieties used Thurmond Grey, Klondike, R. No. 7, Klondike R. No. 16, Stone Mounton No. 6, and Kleckley No. 5.

(b) Andy Cook, Petersburg, varieties used, Kleckley No. 5, and Stone Mountain No. 6.

(c) Elmer Acra, Petersburg, varieties used, Thurmond Grey, Klondike R. No. 7 and Klondike R. No. 16.

(d) Louvette W. Rogers, Belleview, varieties used, Stone Mountain, No. 6, and Kleckley No. 5.

(e) F. H. Brown, Belleview, varieties used, Stone Mountain No. 6, Kleckley No. 5.

(f) Edward Rogers, Belleview, varieties used Stone Mountain No. 6 and Kleckley No. 5.

2. Demonstrations:

3. Results:

a() All varieties regularly grown were affected by wilt. The infection varied from practically nothing on Acra's farm to practically 100 percent on another farm.

(b) None of the wilt resistant varieties died from wilt and all produced strong vigorous vines.

(c) The quality of fruit of all five varieties was good. Two varieties were excellent.

(d) Thurmond Grey produced the largest fruit, the highest quality fruit and was the best shipping variety.

FARM TREES

Any farm can have trees and shrubs if adapted varieties are used and the trees are given proper care. The most important thing, tree experts declare, is clean cultivation. Weeds should never be permitted to sap soil moisture needed to promote tree growth. The soil should be kept in position to absorb all moisture that falls, even during torrential rains. Varieties that have shown best results are Black Hills spruce, American elm and green ash. However, Chinese elm, box elder and cottonwood have done well in practically every section of the country. But it is time and money waster to plant trees and then leave them to fight the weeds and insects. Success is always assured, the experts declare where trees are carefully planted, kept free of weds within a radius of several feet, and sprayed occasionally as a protectio nagainst insect pests.

Sheep will eat about half of an ounce of salt daily per head. Many good sheep raiser keep loose, barrel salt before them, usually in a long box in a barn or shed where it is protected from rain.

BOYS AND GIRLS TAKE BIG PART IN STATE FAIR

Exhibits and contests by boys and girls were features of the recent Kentucky State Fair, with many prizes going to 4-H club members. Club exhibitors, following contests of their own, played important parts in the open classes furnishing some of the best dairy cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry at the fair.

The 4-H club members also exhibited thousands of cans of vegetables, fruits, jams and jellies, and had displays of clothing, baked foods and house furnishings.

Ninety county teams took part in the 4-H club livestock judging contests, in which fat stock, dairy cattle and poultry were judged.

A team of three girls from Simpson county outshone boys as judges of dairy animals, and Laura Johnson, a member of the winning team, was the best individual judge of dairy cattle. The other girls were Lucy Kummer and Martha Meador.

Marian Roberts, Kenneth Soper and Monroe Leer, Jr., of Bourbon county were the best judges of fat stock, with Marian also the top individual judge.

In the poultry division, Grayson county furnished the outstanding team, composed of Charles and Leroy Templeman and Noel Stinson. Hobert Wells of Johnson county was the best judge of poultry.

New state champion 4-H club members selected at the State Fair include John Elmer Kalmey, Jefferson county, dairying; F. D. Thornton, Owen county, sheep and Patsey Mae Newell, Mason county, poultry.

Top price of $11.75 was received by Christian county 4-H club members for a truckload of pigs.

BIG BONE SPRINGS TODAY

I lived in Washington for two years as secretary to a Congressman, and during that time made many visits to the Smithsonian Institution. I always stopped to see the assembled bones of the mastodon there, which came from the Big Bone Springs in Boone County, Kentucky. The size of this animal was almost beyond belief. Many of these mammoth bones were found at Big Bone Springs.

There is a marker at Beaver on Route 42, which states that Big Bone Springs were discovered in 1739, but Collins tells us that James Douglass of Virginia discovered the springs in 1773.

I drove up there one day last week. It was a glorious September afternoon. As you passed down through the valley on the way to Big Bone, you found "the grace of forest charms decayed and pastoral melancholy." Great fields of ripening corn were on either side, and by the roadside the goldenrod coming into its autumnal beauty; here and there the lavender bloom of the thistle and the smiling fames of the Black-eyed Susans.

The old hotel sits lonely and abandoned on the hill and a sort of resigned atmospheric torpitude seems to prevail. The monotonous droning song of the locust disturbed thec alm serenity of the wayside, and here and there the cricket chirped a dismal serenade.

Uncle George Kite, a pleasant and obliging gentleman, who seemed to fit in with all of the surrounding quietude of the landscape, took us down to the spring and dipped up the cold, delicious water, the finest bluelick water, in my opinion, in the world.

"I don't suppose any of these mammoth animals left any tracks around here, Uncle George?" I asked.

"No, sir," he said. "Neither have any of the great men who visited here left a track." I thought of Longfellow's lines:

"We can make our lives sublime
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time."

Speaking of tracks: The old Louis Sanders place, "Grass Hills," in Carroll County, is one of the finest show places of Northern Kentucky. Louis Sanders entertained many of the great men of the Nation there. Henry Clay was a frequent guest, as both were breeders of fine cattle. Curtiss Montgomery is the present owner of the old home. One morning his daughter was sweeping out the room which led onto the porch. She suddenly threw down the broom and said, "I have swept out the last tracks of old Henry Clay!"

The shadows lengthen on Indian Hill. The luxuriant purple and violet opulence of the sky, beauties of foliage greens; the color enchantments distance gives in an atmosphere full of iridescent power—the velvet distances of evening the glory of the dying sun makes golden all the hollow west.

We swung around toward the river on the home trip. Sitting in a fence corner was an old man. He had a hoe between his kness and a file in his hand. Just over the fence, in a tobacco patch, the tall weeds almost hid the tobacco. The old man's whiskers rose and fell as a sort of baton to the rasping music of the file. "This hoe here," he said, "has been dull all the summer, and not fittin' to cut with, and I thought I would git it in shape fer next summer."

"Do you know anything about the mastodons and mammoths that left their bones at Big Bone?" I asked.

He glanced at me out of the corner of his eye and said, " Not much, but I knowed a man who seed one of 'em!"

"Is that so?"

He laid the hoe aside and said, "Did you ever drink any caneseed whisky?"

"Once."

"Well," he said, "you know it gives you the jumpin' jiggers, and when you git some of it in you, it makes you want to circumlate around to distant places. There was a feller here once by name of Ebbin Worts. He come off a shanty boat er somer'ars. He rented a little shack not fur frum where I live, and him and his wife fit an dfursed nigh all the time. He wouldn't drink anything but caneseed whisky, and he drinked a plenty of it. One morning' after him and his wife had a knockdown, an dhim full of caneseed whisky, he comes by my house, and he waves his arms and says:

"'I'm through with the hell-cat ferever, and on my way!' He took a circuit around by Union, and then to Rabbit Hash on the river and went over to Rising Sun. About sundown he rech Big Bone Creek and laid down to rest. He slep' thar all night, and jest afore day the next morning' (as he told it) he woke upand he seed a animal about forty foot high a comin' along and eatin' off the top of the trees, and ever time he put his foot down it sounded like a b'ller on a a steamboat bustin,' the mud a squirtin' thirty foot in the air! Well, sir (so Worts says) he jumps up to start a runnin' and the bank under him caves in and he landed in Big Bone Creek, but he grabbed holt of a root and got out. He comes by my place, the water leaving a streak behind him, and I says to him:

"'Goin' back to try the hellcat again?'

"And he sorter waves his arms and yells back to me:

"'Betwix' a masterdon and a hell-cat. I'll take a chance on the hell-cat!'"

THE SEWING ROOM

Here is a time-saving hint for those who sew. When starting to sew, thread several needs onto the thread to be used, before it is broken from the spool. Each time a new thread is needed select the end needle, pushing the rest of the needles back toward the spool and break off as much thread as desired. This is also a great help for one with poor eyesight.

There is a modern pleasant way to get relief from Headache, Gas on Stomach, Colds, Heartburn, "Morning After" and Muscular Pains.

Wonders of Trip Through Canada and East as Told by Mrs. R. G. Huey

On Tuesday, July 20, a group of people, bent on combining culture and education with a thoroughly good time, left Fleming county at 5 a. m. They were: Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Huey, Misses Harriet and Patsy Huey, Eulene Hinton, Edna Roby, Anna Moss Threlkeld, Alice Gray Campbell, Marjority Harmon, Mrs. Seth Andrews, Mrs. Lizzie Cox, Mrs. Robert Y. Hutton, Mrs. Laura McIlvaine, Mrs. Owen Storey, Gene and Faye Moore. Mrs. T. H. Talbott, Mrs. William Crain, Mrs. Forrest McKee, Mrs. Nannie Hall, Mrs. John Cheap ,of Barbourville; Miss Marilyn Greene, Ashland; Lloyd Hall, Nelson Faulkner, Frank O. Hinton. At Hillsboro, O., we were joined by Mrs. R. B. Huey, Miss Estelle Huey, Miss Caralon Huey, Mrs. John Lassing, Miss Lucy Lee Grant, Miss Josephine Grant, Mrs. A. B. Gaines and Mrs. John Walton, of Boone county.

C. D. Blair's truck is most satisfactory, for it is a home that moves and carries us wherever we wish to go. We expect to spend two weeks free of responsibility, enjoying nature, with the variety of tree and plant life to be seen in the 300 mile drive, the great rivers, lakes, wastelands and busy cities, comparing agricultural practices and results, types of architecture developed by climatic necessity, feats of engineering and all the things which make this trip an ever changing panorama. Incidently we shall return home steeped in American history and geography understanding at last the why and wherefore of many things.

Our first day gave us an opportunity to see the wonderful state of Ohio. Every unbelievably wealthy in opportunity, this state has been favored by Providence, anxious to cover over the damage done by drouth and flood. Surely finer crops have never been grown. We ate our lunch of Kentucky juddings, chicken and ham near Columbus, and pushed on to Cleveland, where we spent the night at Euclid Beach. Some of us visited the Great Lakes Exposition, some sat quietly on the shore of Lake Erie in the moonlight, and our youngsters rode the thrillers in the park.

Our morning drive led through a succession of beautiful towns, whose broad streets were arched over by giant sugar maples. The comfortable looking homes are set well back, framed with borders of perennials. We have never seen such brilliant phlox, lillies, and even delphinium grows as if posing for a vatalog picture. Quite often the velvety lawn is adorned with a single apple tree — not just a good old comfortable apple tree, but one of those on the cover of Stark's catalog. The rear lawns have grape arbors, which are used for outdoor living rooms and play houses.

This is a great nursery country —acres of roses, perennials, gladioli, iris, evergreens, shrubs, and trees. We drove through the Wayside Gardens. There are miles of orchard and vineyard of berries and truck gardens. The brilliant display of grape, cherry, tomato and apple juice in gallon jugs temped us to sample it with our lunch. The highway is literally plastered with signs—tourist accommodations, pet hospitals, pottery, farm produce, 4-H club marts and dogs of every breed for sale.

How blue, how very blue, is Lake Erie!

This morning there was no horizon for the blue water seems to rise up and merge with the blue sky. We took a short cut across Buffalo to avoid delay in traffic. This led us by Portland, Huron and Lehigh cement plants, Pillsbury and Occident flour mills, the Canadian Pool Terminal, Interwoven Paper mills, and the homes of other products with which we are familiar. The canals, with their freighters, the giant cranes standing so alone, the hubbub of machinery all cause us to marvel at the magnitude of industry, so different to our quiet farm and small town life.

We did not cross the beautiful Peace Bridge, but drove through that interesting section to use the old bridge, where we stopped for a view of Niagara Falls. On the Canadian side, we bought postcards, and drove through the Queen's Rose Garden.

The King's Highway leads thru level, fertile, well tended land, with abundant crops of oats, buckwheat, alfalfa, clover and wheat almost ready to harvest. In the weedless pastures are Holstein and Guernsey cows and Percheon horses. Again, there are many miles of vineyard, and clean orchards of ripe cherries, late apples and pears. Rows of Lombardy poplars serve as fence posts, wind and snow breaks. The handsome homes and great high-roofed barns are usually built of brick.

The highway signs are black and white with checker boards at dangerous curves and crossings. The clean roadsides are bordered with red clover. We miss our beloved blue cornflowers. We met very little traffic and that often bicycles. There is no advertising along the road. Tourist camps have typical British names — Top Hat, Pig & Whistle. We spent the night at Dingley Dell. The water was too cold to invite more than a footbath.

The farm land is the finest we have ever seen, weedless and level. The great fields with their several shades of green and ripening grain made a colorful picture. The fences are often made of bouders, sometimes of weather bleached stumps and roots and of poles–telephone poles. Arbor vitae, a pampered shrub with us, grows to trees of great heighth and size, or is put to practical use as hedge wind break about farm buildings.

As this is vacation land, there is great demand for "Dewies." These are improved fishing worms, and sell for 75c per hundred. I wish some of our local fishermen could try some, although no guarantee comes with them.

87 SPEED RECORDS BROKEN TO MAKE TIRES SAFER FOR YOU

Never Before Have Tires Been Put to Such Gruelling Torture

AT SPEEDS as high as 180 miles an hour — with the hot, coarse, abrasive salt grinding, tearing, scorching his tires — Ab Jenkins' special racer, weighing nearly three tons, pounded over the Bonneville Salt Beds last week at such terrific speed that it caused the surface to break up. Before the end of the run the track was so pitted and rough that it was almost impossible to hold the car on its course. Yet Jenkins set 87 new World, International and American speed records on Firestone Tires.

Building tires capable of establishing such records is made possible only because of patented Firestone manufacturing processes. These exclusive features enable Firestone to provide car owners with tires that are extra safe.

For the greatest protection of yourself and your family equip your car with Firestone TRIPLE-SAFE Tires. By TRIPLE-SAFE we mean —

1 PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING — The scientific tread design gives longer non-skid mileage and stops your car up to 25% quicker.

2 PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS — Firestone Tires run up to 28 degrees cooler because every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. This counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

3 PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES — Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread add strength to the tire and give extra protection against punctures.

Now is the time to make your car tire-safe for fall and winter driving. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new FIRESTONE TRIPLE-SAFE Tires—the safest tires that money can buy!

FARM YOUTH HOLD AGRICULTURAL FAIR

Exhibits of livestock, crops, fruits and vegetables and articles of the home, all owned and contributed by farm youth, made the Central Kentucky 4-H club district fair at Lexington one of the most unique institutions of its kind.

This year's fair attracted large numbers of well-bred and highly-fitted dairy and beef cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry, and complete departments of crops, vegetables, fruit, canned and baked foods, clothing, and home furnishings.

Other features of the fair included a style revue, a livestock judging contest, and athletic events.

Bob McConnell, Jr., Woodford county, won the grand championship of the beef cattle show, with cattle from Garrard, Woodford, Jessamine, Bourbon and Fayette counties.

Best in the sheep show was J. D. Thornton, Owen county, and in showing hogs, F. S. Dalzel, Jr., of Bourbon county.

In the dairy cattle show of 60 animals from six counties, Boyle ranked at the top, followed by Shelby, Fayette, Campbell, Jessamine and Garrard. Clark county furnished the best judging team.

Gladys Bowles, Shelby county, won the grand championship in foods; Frances Morgerson, Fayette county, in canning, and Lorraine Harris, Fayette county, in clothing. Style revue winners were Helen Jean Dailey, Clark county, and Marjorie Ann Mattmiller, Fayette county.

Approximately 150 Madison county farmers went on the county's yearly beef cattle tour. They saw eight fat cattle herds, two purebred herds, and one following the cow-and-calf plan.

BROTHER AND SISTER WIN CHAMPIONSHIPS

James Hancock and Marie Hancock, brother and sister, Union county, Ky., won the grand championship and reserve grand championship, respectively, on pigs exhibited at the Tri-State hog and calf show at Evansville, Ind. The grand champion brought 40 cents and the reserve champion 20 cents a pound. James also had the best truckload of hogs, and Marie the second-best. Kentucky 4-H club members exhibited 280 pigs and 26 calves at the show.

SUGGESTS ADEQUATE WIRING OF HOUSES

In connection with the extensive rural electrification program in the state, the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture suggests adequate wiring for farm homes. Attention is called to need of lights for stairways, cellars, attics and other places too often left dark.

The home leads as a source of accidents, and falls, often due to poor lighting, cause more than a third of all accidents in the home. Poor light causes missteps on stairways. Switches should be so placed as to be convenient, so one will never need go far to turn on the light. Wandering about the house at night results in many falls.

Adequate lights, switches and outlets should be given careful consideration, suggests the college.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our many relatives, friends and neighbors who were so kind during the illness and death of our loved one

Vince Ross

Especialy do we thank the pastor for his consoling words, the singers and the undertaker for his efficient and kind services.

Mother, Wife and Tom Ross

In early days an Indian painted his face and set out to win a squaw, but nowadays it's the other way round.

THE FARM AND HOME
(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

A farm water system should have a capacity of 35 gallons per person, 15 gallons per horse, 15 gallons per cow, 2 gallons per hog, 2 gallons per sheep and 5 gallons per 100 chickens.

New corn sometimes causes turkeys to have digestive troubles, and most breeders endeavor to keep them out of cornfields in the fall. A tablespoon of castor oil, given at the first signs of sickness, often will help a bird.

Too few convenient outlets is a mistake often made in wiring houses. Three or four base receptacles in every room are none too many. Plans should include sufficient outlets for lights and all types of appliances.

A study of sheep raising, made by the Kentucky College of Agriculture, shows that farmers who sell their lambs before August 1 receive an average of $1 more per head than farmers who sell lambs later in the season.

Churning temperature depends upon the season and certain other factors, but is usually 52 to 60 degrees in summer and 58 to 66 degrees in winter. Normal churning time is usually 30 to 40 minutes.

Moldy or otherwise spoilt bread should be disposed of as soon as found and the container washed, scalded and sunned thoroughly to prevent the infection of fresh bread.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

A farmers' picnic, proceeds to go into a fund for improving the quality of livestock, was recently held in McCracken county. Approximately $1,500 was taken in, as between 10 and 12 thousand persons attended the affair.

C E. Seaton, Ballard county, had 165 bushels of wheat from an 8-acre field that yielded only 50 bus. last year. He had treated the field with both limestone and phosphate.

John Morgan of Emmalena community in Knott county, applied phosphate and limestone to a field and then seeded lespedeza and spring oats. As a result, he had one of the finest fields of grain in the county.

C. H. Owen, Rockcastle county farmer, has reclaimed more than 100 acres of land in the past few years. A tile drainage system, installed last year, enabled him to have a fine corn crop on land that never produced good corn before.

In Spencer county, only a few farmers are trying to raise poultry, but they are building model houses, keeping sanitary yards, and feeding a well-balanced, adequate ration. High feed prices and low egg returns discouraged many farmers who formerly raised poultry.

It seems to be a rule that the more insistently the telephone rings the less important the call.

FALL FLIES

The common housefly is a menace to health, regardless of seasons. But it is in the fall months, many health authorities contend, that danger from this pest is greatest. It is in the fall, they assert, that the germ-carrying housefly carts about its most deadly cargo and to this in a large way is attributable to the sharp rise in number of typhoid cases recorded annually during the fall months. This being the case, Boone County citizens should not suspend the swatting campaign which started with the first appearance of the pests last spring. Keep it up so long as there is a single fly infesting your premises. You might also keep in mind the fact that fall weed cutting as a part of the campaign against disease also remains an important item. There is too much danger in waiting for Jack Frost to do the job for you. If you would protect your health and be rid of disease-carrying houseflies you must get rid of flybreeding weeds.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

Pullets developing into winter laying flocks are fewer than usual in Rowan county, but of better size.

Twenty-eight Breckinridge county 4-H club members bought registered gilts, intending to get a ton of pork a litter.

One hundred and eighty-five carloads of limestone have been spread by Graves county farmers since January 1.

Ten ridge ventilators were built last month in Anderson county, bringing the number now in use to 40.

America is one country in which it is unlawful to kill anybody unless you take several years and do it by nagging.

Another advantage of vacations is they permit a lot of people to travel around and see what a big country this is.

Oft times people ask themselves:

1. Can that severe headache be coming from my feet?

2. That bachkache is almost killing me . . . I wonder if my feet have anything to do with it?

3. My feet are calloused very heavy under the ball of the foot . . . when I step on a pebble with that part of the foot I get a pain almost up to my head . . . How can that be corrected?

4. My ankles puff out almost over the shoe tops . . . They are not that bad when I get up in the morning . . . Now if being off my feet reduces the swelling there must be a shoe to displace weight even when I'm on my feet . . . then there would be no swelling—

PETERSBURG TAKES SERIES

FOR CHAMPIONISHIP OF BOONE COUNTY BASEBALL LEAGUE—MAHAN DISPLAYS GOOD FORM ON MOUND FOR WINNERS.

Petersburg emerged from the series by dishing a shut out to the Bob & Gene nine. The final win was under the hurling of Mahan who allowed only four scattered hits. Even though Mahan struck out only four men, there was not a time in the entire game that placed him and his teammates in the slightest trouble. In five of the nine inning he stood on the mound only long enough to be faced by three batters and not until the seventh inning did he allow a ball to be hit out of the infield.

Pett's hurling for Bob & Gene deserved a much closer score than the 7 to 0 defeat he was charged with. He allowed eleven hits and struck out eleven men, and only two of the seven runs made against him were earned, the other five resulting from errors and loose base ball.

The fans who watched the four-game series saw Bob & Gene take the first game by a score of 6 to 4. Around loafing places where county baseball was being discussed the week following this first game you could hear the belief expressed that only three games would be necessary in this year's series, but the Petersburg lads who have played ball together ever since they first started to play and who do not have a player signed living out of the Petersburg precinct changed these opinions in the following games when these same fans saw them win by 13 to 4, 10 to 4 and 7 to 0 scores.

Demoisey, the center fielder for Bob & Gene, and Mahan, pitcher and center fielder for Petersburg led the hitters in the four games played with averages of .500. Eight men from the Petersburg team batted .300 and over and the Bob & Gene team had three men with averages of over .300.

Next Saturday, October 16, at 2 o'clock on the Belleview diamond an all-star team picked from the different teams making up the Boone County Baseball League will challenge the Petersburg nine. This should be a very interesting game. Many feel that Petersburg will be able to hold their own with anything selected from these other teams. Others feel that there are enough players if correctly selected to make it mighty tough on the Petersburg boys. What do you think? Come out to the game and see if your opinion will be the same after the game, as now.

FINE DISPLAY AT FREE FAIR

HELD AT HAMILTON SCHOOL LAST FRIDAY — SPLENDID PROGRAM RENDERED BY CO-OPERATING ORGANIZATIONS.

Hamilton Free Community Fair held at Hamilton School last Friday had one of the best displays of crops, canned fruits and women's work on record. The quality of display was outstanding and equal to or exceeding many of the display to be seen at many of the County fairs.

A splendid program was rendered by the school and cooperating community organizations. Mrs. Vernon Pope, of Burlington, and Mr. E. E. Fish of the College judged the exhibits.

The committee in charge wishes to express their appreciation to all exhibitors and cooperators and in behalf of the entire community their thanks for the splendid cooperation of Chambers & Grubbs Funeral Home, Walton and Vest Chevrolet Company Sales and Service, Walton in making available premium awards. This is the sixth consecutive year these two organizations have cooperated in the successful holding of Hamilton Free Community Fair.

The list of prize will be found on another page of this week's Recorder.

LOCAL OFFICERS ATTEND MEETING

OF NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION HELD IN CINCINNATI WEDNESDAY—36 ASSOCIATIONS REPRESENTED.

The Boone National Farm Loan Association was represented by its President E. A. Martin, Vice President John H. Grimes, directors B. E. Aylor, Karl Rouse, and Thos. Hensley, and Secretary-Treasurer A. B. Renaker in the annual conference of farm loan association officials of Northern Kentucky and Southern Indiana, at Sinton Hotel, Cincinnati, on Wednesday of this week, Oct. 13.

Thirty-six national farm loan associations were represented at the conference which was called by The Federal Land Bank of Louisville for the purpose of considering matters of mutual interest to bank and associations, and to acquaint field executives with provisions of the Farm Credit Act of 1937 recently passed by Congress.

"This new law gives added power to farm loan associations in selecting directors of the Federal Land Bank, according to Secretary-Treasurer A. B. Renaker. Heretofore," he states, "four of the seven directors have been appointed by the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration. Henceforth three will be elected directly by cooperative credit groups of borrowers as at present, while one of those appointed by the Governor must be chosen from a list of those nominated by national farm loan associations. Borrow groups, therefore, again have majority representation on the board."

FARMERS NEED NOT BE ALARMED

Commissioner of Agriculture, Garth K. Ferguson urged tobacco farmers not to become unduly alarmed over "Embryo Prophets" preaching the gospel of low tobacco prices for this year's crop.

Mr. Ferguson added that last year the same message came from practically the same source and prices were the highest in years.

"We have reason to believe that this year's prices will not be disappointing," he said.

DEMOCRATS GIVE DANCE

FOR BENEFIT OF FLORENCE VOUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27 AT ZIMMER'S CLUB HOUSE.

Continuing its splendid policy of assisting worthy causes in the county, the Boone County Young Men's Democratic Club voted at its last meeting to give an autumn dance for the benefit of the Florence Volunteer Fire Department. This dance will be held at Zimmer's Club House in Florence, on Wednesday night, Octocber 27. Mr. Zimmer's splendid orchestra will furnish the music and there will be a ten-act floor show.

We all know that every community needs fire protection. When men come forward and volunteer their services for this dangerous purpose and risk their lives to protect not only their own homes, but the homes or business places of every resident in the county, the least we can do in appreciation is to see that they have the proper equipment with which to work.

The majority of the people of our county are insured in the Boone County Mutual Fire Insurance Company and are assessed for every fire loss and each pays his share. So it is readily seen that even though we are fortunate enough not to have a fire, your neighbor may not be(and if his home catches fire and is saved through the quick action of the Volunteer Fire Department you are benefitted as well by having no assessment to pay; whereas without the help of these firemen his home would probably burn to the ground and you would be assessed for a proportionate part of this fire loss.

As most of you know, we have a volunteer fire department at Walton and one in Florence, both of these departments render invaluable service to this county, by responding to call, not only in the cities, but in the rural sections as well. Were it not for the efficient and speedy service rendered by these volunteer firemen whenever and wherever they have been called homes might have been totally destroyed, resulting in families becoming homeless, and in many instances penniless and perhaps worse still, in the loss of lives. No later than last week the Florence fire department answered two calls, one a farm on price pike, the other a tourist camp on the Dixie. They succeeded in promptly extinguishing both of these fires.

Men who risk their lives and perform services of this caracter for the community should not only should be commended, but should be encouraged in a material way. At the present time it is the Florence Volunteer Fire Department which needs financial assistance to help discharge its obligation for necessary equipment purchased. All public spirited citizens should feel it their duty to give this volunteer fire department whatever assistance they can. The members of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Boone County are trying to do their part by contributing the proceeds of this dance for that purpose. You can do your part too, by buying a ticket for this entertainment and urging your friends and neighbors to attend this dance.

The three Garr brothers, charged with murdering Brig. Gen. H. H. Denhardt, are at liberty awaiting trial at Shelbyville, Oct. 18th in Shelby Circuit Court.

The state's case against Jack Garr, Cherry Grove, Cincinnati, is believed to have been weakened by a statement by Judge Charles C. Marshall at the brothers' arraignment held in Shelbyville Thursday.

Judge Marshall said there was nothing to show that Jack Garr "had anything to do with the killing . . . except that he was with his brothers."

The other brothers, Dr. E. S. Garr and Roy Garr, LaGrange, Ky., admitted firing the shots that killed Denhardt, fiance of their slain sister, Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, LaGrange.

Roy and Jack Garr are at liberty under $20,000 and $10,00 bond, respectively. The amounts were reset by Judge Marhall Thurday.

Dr. Garr, his attorneys said, is confined to his home by an "unsound mental condition." His $20,000 bond was technically "forfeited" fololwing his failure to appear at the arraignment.

Bondsmen have been summoned to show why they should not pay the amount of the bond. Defense attorneys assured Judge Marshall, however, that Dr. Garr would be present for the trial.

CLUB TO HOLD REGULAR MEETS

Following the selection of Walter Ferguson, of Union, as chairman of the Fifth District, Kentucky Young Democratic Clubs, Monday, county chairmen of the district's various counties met in the group's headquarters in Louisville and laid the groundwork of a permanent rorganization of the district and voted to hold regular monthly meetings of the district organization.

The present plan calls for the first such meeting to be at the Gallatin County Courthouse in Warsaw, Oct. 20 at 7:30 p. m. (slow time). Other meeting will be held each month in the different counties, with social functions to be held regularly.

BEEF TO BE HIGH REST OF YEAR

Blame for the high price of meat, which is causing such buyers' strikes as the sit-down of New York City dealers, is laid by Government farm economists at the door of the drouths of 1934 and 1936.

According to them beef will remian high until anuary, but that pork and other meats will drop in price.

The 1934 drouth was the worst in our generation, and the 1936 drouth was almost as bad—in some states even worse. The fairly good year of 1935 did not give farmers enough time to build up reserve feed.

FINAL DRIVE TO BE MADE

BY ACP COMMITTEEMEN FOR 100 PERCENT OF THE 1937 SOIL BUILDING ALLOWANCE TO BE EARNED BY OCTOBER 31.

Boone County Agriculture Conservation Program committeemen have voted to conduct an intensive drive toward 100 percent of the 1937 soil building allowance being earned by October 31st, the last day for credit on this year's program. The committee met at Burlington Monday morning. Those present were: H. E. White, William Hill, W. T. Carpenter, C. D. Gaines, Edward Rogers, Lillard Scott, L. D. Renneckar, Sam B. Sleet, August Trapp, Hugh Stephens, R. E. Kirtley, O. K. Powers, and Albert Parker.

Reports of the County office showed that only $29,611.79 in soil building practices had been reported to date. The revised 1937 County Allowance is $44,395.50 leaving $14,783.71 that will be lost if not earned by the last day of this month. The Committee stated that every farmer should earn 100 percent or more of the allowance for his individual farm.

Prices of grass are so cheap that farmers may spend 36 cents per acre for timothy and receive $1.00 per acre in return on his allowance, or 48 cents ofr seeding 4 lbs. of red top and receive $1.00 credit. Most other grass seeds are in proportion. 42.3 percent or 484 of 1117 farmers to date still have $10.00 or more allowance on their individual farms to earn.

The committee recommended that lime and phosphate be used where the full allowance would not be earned by seedings. The following sources of limestone are available if farmers will contact dealers immediately.

Spinks at Erlanger 12.45 per ton at yards.

Dance Bros. Crittenden (supply limited to 200 tons) $2.00 per ton delivered at Walton or Verona, $2.25 per ton delivered at Florence, $2.40 a ton at Burlington, and $2.15 at Union; also do custom crushing at 75 cents per ton.

W. J. Craig, Burlington, $3.00 per ton delivered.

Stewart, Indpendence, and Norton at Dry Ridge are reported to be delivering crushed stone in the County.

The following phosphate dealers report they can supply all orders. The prices range on 20 percent test from $25.60 per ton less 5 per cent for cash and $24.42 less $1.00 refund to $28.85 per ton. Most prices are delivered at your farm.

Gulley & Pettit, Burlington, W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington, Walton & Readnour, Walton, C. L. Tanner, Florence; Aubrey Fina, Burlington; W. J. Craig, Burlington; John Maurer, Grant and Walter Renaker, Verona.

There are also probably many other dealers the County Office was unable to contact.

Farmers who have not earned 100 percent of their allowance should consider what practices they expect to carry out and act immediately as supplies are limited in limestone, and seed prices have recently shown a tendency to advance. Fall is the best time to sow all grasses.

HYBRID CORN YIELDS GOOD

FARMERS USING HYBRID NO. 69 REPORT DECIDED INCREASE IN YIELD PER ACRE—UTOPIANS WILL SELL SEED.

William Moore, of near Hebron reports unusually good yields due to favorable weather, lime, phosphate and soil management. Reids Yellow Dent yielded 71.5 bushels acre, Illinois hybrid 77 bushels per acre, and Kentucky Experiment Station strain No. 69 yielded 82 bushels per acre. The Illinois hybrid gave 9 percent increase while Kentucky Hybrid No. 69 gave 20.5 percent increase.

Hybrid Seed Corn is the newest fad in crop production. Hybrids of Kentucky adapted strains are out yielding commonly grown varieties.

The Utopia Club members have also produced a supply of Kentucky adapted strain No. 69 seed for sale.

"NO WAR FOR UNITED STATES"

By Francis J. Cummings

"No war United States!" That headline, screaming across the front page of the metropolitan dailies, summed up President Roosevelt's attitude toward the conflict now raging in China. His attitude brought new assurance to the many thousands who feared this country would be forced into armed conflict in the Orient. It meant the loss of some shipping on the China coast. But while this loss may run into many millions of dollars, it is inconsiderable when balanced against the losses in lives and money, our entrance into the conflict would occasion.

Being a Democracy, America doesn't want war. We don't want to see our boys brought back home maimed and wounded. We don't want row on row of white crosses above the graves of American Marines in cemeteries in China, as there are in France. We are isolated from the danger points in Europe and Asia and are now free from entanglements in their affairs. President Roosevelt wants to keep us that way.

Far different, however, is the situation in the troublemaking nations of Europe and the Far East. It does not matter to the Emperor of Japan whether his people want war or not. He does. So he makes war, without consulting his people. Like the European dictators, Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini, he can throw his country into war without formal declaration at any time.

These Dictators await only the opportune time to attack. Meanwhile they flood their people with propaganda of hate against this, or that, or something else. They make mountains out of molehills and talk big about what they will do. They keep their nationals constantly nervous and jittery. Perhaps, back in the minds of Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini is the fear that mounting opposition later will become revolution. Perhaps, the economic situation threatens them with loss of power. Whatever their reasons, the tensity these strutting ego-centrics causes, places them in position to unleash war's horrors any day.

That war in Europe, when, and if, it comes, will be felt here by trade handicaps and a decrease in our national income, is to be reckoned with. But it is well to bear in that by remaining neutral, and keeping out of war, this country will be the winner in the end.

A RADIO PROBE

While the country has managed to get along fairly well for the past few years without a spectacular congressional probe it does not appear at this time that it is to escape one very much longer. The demand of certain members of congress that the affairs of the big radio broadcasting corporations be investigated, and the spotlight turned upon them, will probably bear fruit at the next session.

The claim that there is a monopoly of the air, with radio business in control of two broadcasting companies, isn't news to anyone. Everyone who owns a radio or who listens in knows that. Even if these corporations are waxing rich, they are not interested, since the money is coming out of the pockets of those who listen to them. The average radio owner in Boone county feels that he is getting mighty fine entertainment over the air waves free of cost—and that it is about the only thing he is getting for nothing. In almost every other country there is a tax on radio sets. Americans have so far escaped that, though the time probably isn't far off when revenue-seeking politicians will see that it, too, is included in the long list of taxable articles.

Since almost every American home now boasts a radio the probe expected to be launched in a short time will be watched with nation-wide interest. Just what good it can accomplish, however, remains a mystery. But as the average radio-owner views it, the probe is unnecessary. He feels that he is getting something for nothing now, but that if congress takes a hand there is certain to be a tax slapped on somewhere and he will, as usual be the one who will have to pay it.

IT WON'T WORK

Motorists in Boone county will learn with more than the usual interest that after a trial in several states of "no speed limit" on the highways, the experiment has proved a failure. Michigan, one of the first of the few states that let down the bars and permitted drivers to use their own judgment on the open road, raises her hands in horror at a 15 percent increase in fatalities over last year, and is planning to return to former speed limits. The motorist, it seems, cannot be relied upon to stick to a safe and sane speed; it requires a law, strictly relied upon to stick to a safe and sane speed; it requires a law, strictly enforced, to make him do so.

With the death toll in America so far this year the highest in history, it is obvious that something must be done, and done quickly, to make highways safer. With almost 1,000 killed on Labor Day alone the necessity for laws fixing a lower rate of speed is apparent. However, at the same time that new speed laws, and the laws with teeth in them, are being enacted, some attention should also be given those drivers who idle along a main highway at a rate of 15 or 20 miles an hour. Hundreds of accidents occur when drivers turn out to pass these slow-moving machines, for as a rule they are not hugging their side of the road. The need for regulating the slow-poke is as great as the need for regulating the speeder.

This year's death toll is going to be a ghastly one when the figures are made public. Maybe it will speed the enactment of some sort of legislation that will make human life a little bit safer in America.

A PROUD RECORD

It is a proud record that American railroads have set in the past few years. Although the number of accidents have increased slightly this year over last, only two passengers were killed during the six months ending June 1. When it is considered that passengers on railroad trains in the U. S. now travel nearly 19,000,000,000 miles each year, that is a remarkable record. Most citizens can recall when it was almost impossible to pick up a daily paper that did not tell of some terrible railroad accident. Now it is unusual to read of one, so few have they become. The railroads have achieved this new record by the use of protective equipment—and by insisting upon carefulness and sobriety in their employees. There is no drunk or reckless driving of freight or passenger trains. As a result only 18 people were killed in railroad accidents during the entire year of 1935, and this year will find even fewer fatalities. It is a great record and one the American railroads are justified in taking pride in.

Lesson for October 17

CHRISTIAN SPEECH AND CONDUCT

LESSON TEXT—James, Chapter 3.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth.—Ephesians 4:29.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Words I Say.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Bridle on the Tongue.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christian Speech.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Words and Works.

Christian speech and conduct may well be studied in the book of James, for he stresses the importance of works as demonstrating faith. There are two common errors—one is to attempt to be justified by good works apart from faith in the Lord Jesus Christ—the other is to talk about believing in him and then fail to live in accordance with one's profession. Some have assumed that James fell into the former error, urging works as a substitute for faith, but an intelligent reading of his epistle clearly indicates that he is in no sense contradicting the Scripture doctrine of justification by faith, but is showing that professed faith which does not result in Christian living is in reality a dead and useless thing.

I. Christian Talk (vv. 1-12).

As he enters upon his searching and convicting discussion of the tongue and its misuse the writer distinguishes between

1. Two kinds of talkers (vv. 1, 2).

a. "Teachers" (v 1.) who have a peculiar responsibility because they stand as the representatives of God at the sacred desk. It is not a place to be sought after, and the man who fills it at God's call needs divine grace and direction that he may speak the truth.

b. "We all" (v. 2). The speech of every one of us counts either for or against God, even though we may not fill the teacher's chair or stand in the pulpit.

2. A single danger (vv. 3-12). All of us have the one danger—lack of "tongue-control." Developing that thought the text first points out that

a. Powerful things need control (vv. 3-5). The horse is a wild and useless animal without the directing and restraining bit. A ship without a rudder will be lost. A tongue needs direction and control, for while a little thing, it is tremendously powerful.

b. An uncontrolled tongue is dangerous (vv. 6-8). How vivid is the imagery of the words before us. A fire spreading and destroying, an untamed animal running wild in all its fury, a deadly poison eating away the life—such is the uncontrolled tongue.

We recognize the truth of these things. We see how vile and careless speech debases man, how words chosen for their power to destroy pour forth from the press, over the footlights, from man to man and literally "set on fire the course of nature" (v. 6).

c. An uncontrolled tongue is inconsistent (vv. 9-12). Again the figure is striking. The fountain which pours forth fresh pure water to sustain life does not at the same time bring forth the bitter brackish water. Fig trees do not bear olives, vines do not bear figs. Nature is consistent and dependable.

But the tongue—ah, that is another matter! How sadly do we confess our failure, for here do we "offend all" (v. 2). We bless God, and defile and destroy man, with the same lips. "These things ought not so to be" (v. 10).

II. Christian Walk (vv. 13-18).

The word "conversation" in v. 13 is an English word which now means "talk" but which formerly meant "manner of living."

1. Words and works must agree (vv. 13,14). It is only right that those who speak of following Christ should prove it in their manner of living. Talk may be smooth and broad in its claims, but the demonstration of its reality and honesty is in the daily walk. This calls for wisdom which is divine—earthly wisdom will not suffice.

2. Earthly wisdom is false (vv. 15,16). There is a wisdom apart from God. Men of the world are brilliant and able, but scrutinize their wisdom and you will find that it is "sensual"—that is, of the senses—or natural as distinguished from spiritual. All too often it is downright "devilish" (v. 16).

3. True wisdom is from above (vv. 17,18). Undefiled, unselfish, uncompromising, but not quarrelsome or stubborn, impartial and sincere—and "full of mercy and good fruits"—such is God's wisdom for the Christian's life.

Strength Unto Strength

The strength of a man consists in finding out the way in which God is going, and going in that way too. —Henry Ward Beecher.

Physical and Spiritual Growth

We develop physically by acquiring for ourselves; but spiritually we develop by giving to others.—Rutledge.

A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds.—Bacon.

SHERIFF OF BOONE COUNTY

YOUR WASHINGTON and MINE

By James E. Pope

Washington—Herbert Hoover—White House tenant at the turn of the decade, and who, as the late depression's goat, became the Republican also ran in 1932—urges a mid-term convention for his party. Whether or not this proposedly genial folkmoot will unfold itself as a mild game of crossruff, or as a political poker game with joker and deuces running wild and the sky for limit, is too much to say right off. But a fairly safe prognosis is that they will prod about and, in the wind-up, bring home some new and shiny cuss-words with which that small but loud group of subsidized columnists and your-for-the-highest-bid gentlemen of the press may smear the New Deal.

Then former Gov. Landon of 1936 and Kansas fame—another likewise ran—publicly challenges President Roosevelt to submit his court reorganization plan to the people and, to quote Mr. Landon, "take a licking."

• • •

This country is fortunate in having a strong minority party ever in the offing. Whether the Republicans are in power, or the Democrats, the threat of a strong opposing element acts as a wholesome check and balance, and serves to help make this America of ours what it is—a land too dangerously democratic to afford even a soft recuperating resort or picnic ground for any walking degelate from Hitler, Stalin or Mussolini!

But what Mr. Hoover and Mr. Landon should by this time know is that the public's pet anathema is the ill-tiding croak, and his song of evil bodement. They should encourage the writer-boys to delouse and fumigate their scriptoriums. The off-color newspaper battle against President Roosevelt's court plan, now being geared into and dished up with tainted editorial chowder anent the Black-Klan episode, has tended to sicken the people against meaningless issues in general, and headline hunters in particular.

There are good Democrats and good Republicans who do not support Mr. Roosevelt's wage-hour control plan, nor his court reform proposal. The South may not be so well pleased with extra-legal short-cuts, and they may not be convinced that his nine cent cotton loan compromise is everything it should be. However, the country is not ready to come down with that miasmatic political milk sickness now so prevalent in the ranks of the hagriding partisan hellkites and forgetive vultures of the press.

There may be some who doubt the President's sincerity of purpose, but they are surprisingly few in number, and there are many who disagree with him on one or several of his pet projects. But they do not, by this token, join up with that shouting varletry of indevout political chameleons who, with maleficient iconoclasm geared to harassment and harangue, seek to discredit everything bearing the Roosevelt indicia.

One needs must travel but a few short miles from this Bagdad-on-the-Potomac to find that the people of the grass-roots are not so much concerned with abstract issues, such as budget balancing, judiciary reforms, national debt and foreignisms, as they are with concrete problems—like the continuation of the golden flow of Federal relief, made-work programs, jobs, and Governmental projects involving expenditurse from which they may benefit. The people, in their exalted and exuberant eagerness to share in more money from Washington, are no longer as mindful of party lines and partisan squabbles as they were in good old days before Governmental paternalism. To them a paternalistic Washington means food, drink and raiment. What else is there of so great moment?

President Roosevelt, erroneously held by some as their personal economic deliverer, savior and utilitarian, could, in their imaginations step out from the pages of mythology. The story of King Midas of Phrygia, for example, at whose touch everything turned to gold, suggests a fitting role. Paralleling Midas in this fanciful drama, let us dream of the great Mississippi and all its tributaries as one mighty Pactolus stretching across the dust bowl and flowing through our grain lands and cotton fields, in which Mr. Roosevelt, in his Phrygian role, may bathe, causing the sands to hereafter run with gold!

NEEDED WILD LIFE ON THE FARM

By Lucy Furman

The first white men in Kentucky found it a paradise for hunters. Buffalo in vast herds followed beep trodden traces through forests and canebreaks to the salt licks, bears were numerous in the hills, elk and smaller deer grazed or browsed everywhere, stalked by panther and wolf, while the smaller predators, fox, wildcat, opossum and weasel, feasted upon rabbits, squirrels and field-mice. Along the streams teeming with fish, the otter played on his slides, the beaver constructed his amazing dams and houses, the coon washed his crawfish dinners, the mink darted swiftly. The wild turkey's call was heard in all sections, passenger pigeons darkened the air in their flights, wild ducks and geese, quail, grouse and doves, were so plentiful as not to be valued at all, and song birds of every hue delighted the eyes and ears of an Audubon. No wonder that for generation this had been the disputed hunting-ground of Indian tribes to the North and South, and that on their warrior trails bloody battles were constantly fought.

Cheerfully as they killed one another, the Indians never wantonly destroyed animals, taking only those needed for food and clothing. Killing for sport was unknown, and under them wild life was never depleted.

A century and a half after settlement by white man, where is this abounding wild life? Gone forever, most of it, as needlessly and wantonly destroyed as were our magnificent forests, noblest in America. The bufaflo, which might have furnished us our best breed of cattle, shot in countless numbers as gun targets; elk and other deer wiped out almost as wastefully; passenger pigeons and their squabs knocked down by the hundred thousands at their great nesting spots, to feed droves of hogs; the ivory billed woodpecker, grouse, and beautiful wood-duck only a memory; the sight of a wild-turkey a news item; beaver and wolf gone, and bear, otter, coon and wildcat allbut gone; fish so scarce as to require annual restocking, as does also the quail, only remaining gamebird of the hunter, save a few doves and snipe and ducks; while the smaller furbearers in the past 25 years have been so nearly wiped out by overtrapping that fox, mink, weasel and even muskrat are dangerously depleted, and skunk and opossum survive only because of their fecundity, and remain, with the remnant of mousing hawks, owls and snakes, the sole natural protectors of the farm against ever-multiplying hordes of rodents while the songbirds, its desparately-needed defense against conquering insect armies, have decreased 50 percent in the past 20 years.

In vain our biologists have warned us. Says Dr. Funkhouser, our own biologist, of State University, in "Animal Friends and Enemies," "There was a time when the state could boast of its wild life. But ruthless slaughter, ignorance of the economic importance of wild life, inexcusable superstition and prejudice, have reduced our animal heritage to pitiful proportions. The truth is, we have very little wild-life to preserve."

THE ONE-HUNDRETH ANNIVERSARY OF FREE COMMON EDUCATION

Freddie Riddle, Director of Public Relation, State Department of Education, Frankfort, Ky.

This is the one-hundredth year of free common education in Kentucky. On this anniversary, Kentucky has much to boast of educationally. She has risen from a State with a few "old field" schools taught by traveling pedagogues who instructed children in the fields of reading, writing and ciphering, to a State with more than 7,500 schools, taught by comparatively well-trained teachers who instruct children in not only the traditional three academic subjects but in various others. Our instruction has broadened to include world-mindedness, worthy home membership, citizenship, physical education, vocational and avocational training.

We have awakened to the realization that education is the key to success and that lack of education is the key to crime and social and commercial unrest. We accept education as not only necessary but highly desirable Yet notwithstanding our progress and our educational-mindedness, Kentucky, as a whole, is still far from having a desirable school program. In many instances our educational system has not kept pace with our changing times; it has not responded to increased and changed demands. According to an educational ranking of 1934, Kentucky was listed as forty-fourth among the forty-eight States; Indiana ranked tenth; Ohio ranked twenty-seventh; West Virginia ranked thirty-fifth; Tennessee ranked thirty-eighth. Only one of Kentucky's bordering States ranked lower than forty-four. This was Virginia, which ranked forty-sixth.

In 1838 the great task in educational work in Kentucky was one of establishing schools. In 1938 it is one of improving schools. We are in a position to face our task. In February of 1936, the Federal Government allotted to Kentucky, through the Office of Education in Washington, D. C., a sum of money amounting to approximately $65,000.00 for the purpose of making a detailed study of local school conditions and planning a desirable future school program for each school district in the State. This grant, together with approximately $20,000 furnished by the State Department of Education, has been the financial means of completing the study in each county in the State and planning an ultimate desirable school program for each county.

The future school prgoram as planned for each school district was based upon the following standards:

(1) A nine-months school term for all grades.

(2) Elementary schools with a teacher for each grade.

(3) High schools sufficiently large to offer the usual academic subjects and add such courses as home economics, vocational agriculture, and trades and industries.

Many of Kentucky's schools meet these standards. When all schools in the State meet them, Kentucky can truly boast of educational progress.

DRY FALL INCREASES NEED FOR RYE, WHEAT

A shortage of grazing as a result of a dry fall in much of the state brings a statement from Richard C. Miller of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture urging the sowing of larger acreages of rye, wheat and other crops that can be pastured by sheep. There is still time to sow these crops, he says.

Dry weather in September affected permanent and temporary pastures alike and many pastures will go into the winter in condition to furnish relatively little feed. Likewise, small grains sown early in many instances have not done well. All of which calls for the sowing of more rye, wheat and barley.

Fortunately most farmers have considerable hay, which Mr. Miller says should be fed liberally to sheep, supplemented wherever possible with grazing of green crops. Some grain should be fed beginning about three weeks before lambing.

The importance and profitableness of sheep in Kentucky warrants giving them more attention, Mr. Miller believes. If ewes are to lamb a high percentage of strong, active lambs and supply them with the milk necessary to grow them out to a profitable early market, then care should be taken to feed properly.

The flock that goes into the winter in good condition will require less feed during the winter season than will the flock that has not received feed or grazing enough to condition them properly, he points out. Farmers who have green pasture will find that it greatly reduces the amount of hay and grain required.

ODD FELLOWS SPONSOR PERFORMANCE

Cincinnati, O—The Odd Fellows Association of Greater Cincinnati is sponsoring four performances of the WLS National Barn Dance Stage Show, to be given on Sunday, Oct. 24, at the Taft Theater Cincinnati, at 2, 4, 7 and 9 o'clock. The production will present in person the famous "hill-billy" entertainers who are heard every Saturday night over Station WLS and the network of the National Broadcasting Company.

Headliners in the sprightly show will be Uncle Ezra, Lulu Belle and Scotty, the Hoosier Hot Shots, the DeZurik sisters, Caroline and Mary Jane, Otto and His Novelodians, a quintet of musicians and comedians; Joe Kelly, who is famous as master of ceremonies on the Barn Dance program, and also as Jolly Joe in the popular children's feature on the air, "Jolly Joe and His Pet Pals;" and Bill McCluskey, the Scotch-Irish singer. There are a score of other clever entertainers in the aggregation.

The Odd Fellows are sponsoring the production in order to raise a sum for their charity fund. Part of the proceeds will go to the I. O. O. F. Home at Springfield, Ohio, and part of it to the I. O. O. F. Home at Lexington, Ky. The admission prices will be 40 cents for adults and 15 cents for children.

In connection with the Barn Dance engagement, the committee in charge of which Eric L. Schulte is chairman, and Ralph Zimmerman director, is conducting a "Hayloft Contest" in a search for new "hill-billy" talent in the Cincinnati area. The best imitators of Uncle Ezra, Lulu Belle and Scotty and the Hoosier Hot Shots will be given parts in the stage show. Information regarding this contest may be obtained by writing Ralph Zimmerman, 715 Elm Street, Cincinnati.

WEEK'S BEST RECIPE

Stuffing For Green Peppers—Chop a small onion and cook in one tablespoon of fat until yellow. Remove from stove, add one and one-half cups of ground cooked meat, one-third. cup dry bread crumbs, one egg slightly beaten, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons chopped parsley, and tomato juice to moisten. Fill parboiled peppers with this mixture, cover with buttered crumbs and bake in 375-degree oven for 30 minutes. This recipe fills four peppers.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Colds often lead to serious diseases if neglected. At the outset of a cold take an anema; drink a hot lemonade or other alkaline solution; grease the chest, nose and lips; spend a day in bed, partaking only of light food and drink large quantities of liquids, preferably water.

THE FLOWER GROWER

Leaves, strawy manure or other safe litter may be used for winter protection to perennial beds . . . Light fertilization in the fall is helpful to plants, but plants are always in a better state to absorb fertilizer in the spring . . . If the upper leaves of your dahlia plants are wilted, look for borers.

APPLE CROP BRINGS PROBLEM OF STORAGE

Many Kentucky farmers, as well as commercial fruit growers, have the problem of storing at least a part of the big apple crop this year. This usually means keeping the apples cool rather than warm a month or more.

In many instances the apple crop is so large that it probably would pay to spend money on a storage place. The problem is to cool the storage at night and then to close it to hold the cool air during the warm part of the day. This means providing ventilation to let the warm air out and the cool air in and then insulation that will hold the cool air.

Cellars without furnaces often can be used. Cellars with dirt floors usually have about the right amount of humidity, but concrete floors may require sprinkling at frequent intervals. Unless the humidity is about right the apples lose their crispness and tend to shrivel.

Ventilated crates or baskets are preferred to tight boxes as storage containers. The use of bins that hold several bushels is not recommended.

Cabbage, onions and other products with strong odors should not be stored with apples. Some fruit men sprinkle the walls and floor of storages with Bordeaux mixture to destroy germs that cause rotting.

Prof. A. J. Olney, head of the department of horticulture at the Kentucky Experiment Station, points out the need of keeping apples cool as soon as picked. Apples allowed to remain at a temperature of 85 degrees for two days after picking will ripen more than they would stored three months at a temperature of 33 degrees, he said.

LIVESTOCK TO AID TOBACCO FARMERS

Farmers from 14 counties, attending a planning conference at Elkton, Todd county, decided to supplement tobacco growing with more livestock. Tobacco will be continued as the principal cash crop, with emphasis on better quality, but with no increase in production.

With more land in hay and pasture, as a result of the agricultural conservation program, the farmers thought they should have more cattle and sheep. There will be no increase in hogs or dairy cattle, since it was deemed unwise to produce more corn and other feed grains.

THE FARM AND HOME

Poison should never be put unlabeled in the home medicine chest. It is a good thing to have any kind of poison in a special shaped bottle, known to all the family—triangular, for instance. To shellac a bottle, sprinkle sand on it also makes it easily known by touch.

If women's suits are brushed thoroughly every time they are worn, they will stay in good condition longer, says the home economics department of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Occassional vigorous cleaning will not make up for day-to-day neglect.

Plan the wardrobe by the year, rather tha n by the season or month, in order to make the money go far. A winter coat that goes with several colors is a good buy. Get dresses that will match or blend with coats, shoes and hats already on hand.

A pint of milk a day for every adult is still a good general rule. A complete food, milk builds health and in this way offers protection against disease. Children should have a quart of milk daily.

A "quick" salad recipe: Chop half of a small head of cabbage into fine bits. Grate two or three carrots and mix. Pour in a tablespoonful or two of thick cream, add mayonnaise or salad dressing, and a pinch of salt.

A big, rosy apple is an acceptable addition to the school lunch. The growing boy or girl will also welcome hot cocoa or milk in a thermos bottle. Salads or puddings may be placed in small jars and carried conveniently.

PASTURE FORE PIGS RETURN BIG PROFIT

Pasture helped Homer Morgan, a Metcalfe farmer, make a profit of $130 on a litter of 11 pigs which weighed 2,314 pounds when 165 days old, according to County Agent R. R. Rankin. An acre of rape in which the pigs ran for several weeks saved at least 50 bushels of corn, Mr. Morgan thinks.

The pigs received crushed wheat and tankage in a self-feeder, and at times corn, shorts and milk. They were kep gaining from birth to market size, and topped the market by 50 cents a hundred pounds the day they were sold.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

Extensive vaccination checked hog cholera on Whitley county farms, after two outbreaks.

Alfalfa was widely sown in Clinton county, with many farmers sowing their first acreages of this legume.

Coke stoves were at a premium in Clark county, where more farmers than ever before used fire in curing tobacco.

Hybrid corn will outyield common varieties 50 percent on the farms of W. T. Strong and Welby Miller in Taylor county.

Hickman and Fulton counties have received a loan of $100,000 to finance rural electric lines.

Four new marl beds have been opened in Hardin county, and a reduction made in the price of crushing limestone.

Alfalfa growing, pasture and meadow management and hybrid corn were discussed on farm tours in Larue county.

Alfalfa from northern-grown Grimm seed is attracting attention in Lincoln county.

Cockcastle county alfalfa demonstrations include the use of Grimm seed, lime and phosphate and inoculation of seed.

It is thought that one field of hybrid corn in Metcalfe county will produce 100 bushels to the acre.

Bath county farmers are sowing vetch for the first time, to use as a cover and green manure crop.

Maybe the reason the League of Nations has been so quiet lately is because it has switched jobs from umpire to storekeeper.

Wonders of Trip Trough Canada and East as Told by Mrs. R. G. Huey

(Second Installment)

What a great country is Canada! As we follow the smooth highway along rivers and lakes, through a succession of charming busy towns, I remember that almost without exception, they owe their existence to that insignificant animal, the beaver. For shiploads of beaver skins, plumed courtiers, trappers and Jesuits fought cold and disease and starvation and red skins.

The many lakes, some gay and inviting, some dark and forbidding, the fields of boulders and of solid stone, the cataracts in foaming rivers reminds us that vast fields of snow, and huge glaciers once scoured the surface of this land.

We are resolved to study the history of French Canadians and Indians next winter, for when we stopped at Orilla to eat lunch in Chouiching Park, we learned that this town was once capital of the great Huron tribe. It lies on Lake Simcoe, Toronto's favorite resort, as it was of Champlain. This lake is 30x20 miles, has many miles of safe beach. In it are several islands, on one of which the priests raise the prize winning strawberries of all Canada.

After reading the tablets and inscriptions and examining the Totem Pole, we proceeded on our journey to Callander.

The towns through which we passed were alert and prosperous, with lumber mills and stores, but we wonder how peiple exist in this rocky land with its short growing season. Our camp on Lake Nipissing was quite satisfactory and all were surprised to find the water too warm for an exhiliarting swim.

We made an early getaway for Corbell for we wanted some local color if there were any left. There it was, just as we had read in our magazines.

The Home of the Quins

We could hear the five darlings of the world shouting at play in their nursery and canvas screened yard. In the home of their parents, the other children were busy with morning chores, chattering in their French tongue. The baby cried lustily in the universal language. Mr. Huey picked raspberries around the edge of the great parking area, which was one day not long ago a part of Oliva Dianne's small farm. I feel so very sorry for the entire family as they cannot make a move except under the eyes of friendly but frankly, brazenly, curious people. I spent my time at the store talking with Mrs. Legros. She lives in a small log house, aunt and neighbor to the Dionnes.

It must have been so cozy and friendly before the new stores and conveniences came. She and Madame Lebell, Administering Angels to mothers of this sparsely settled land, always go when called. The latter has brought more than 200 babies to her neighbors, and has never made a charge. A few times she has received a gift of $1, but there isn't much to spare among these French families. She knows how it is, for she had 18 children of her own. I could picture the scene on that cold night, when Madame Legros sent the older children to her own home, later hurried over for clothes and blankets for 5 babies, and finally had to move her own stove over to the Dionne home, which naturally was not equipped for such an emergency.

We stood in line, 8 abreast, for more than half an hour. I could not see either end of the line, and in a few minutes the acres of parking space had become entirely filled. None of us found the wait tiring, as we listened to the talk of soft-voiced French people, or to the experiences of tourists from everywhere. Some stay several days and look at the girls twice a day.

They are cunning beyond description. On this day, they were playing in a pool, dressed in red and white play suits, with floppy white hats and white rubber strap slippers. The wrangled over the watering cans, scrubbed the water bucket and concrete, tried to wash one anothers' faces, drank the water in which they were playing, tattled to the nurse, and acted exactly like other children.

Leaving Corbeil, The Kings' Highway No. 17 is traffic-bound for a distance of perhaps 80 miles. The dust was trying, but our 34 troupers did not complain. At a Chalk River filling station, finding a tub of clear icy water from one of those deep wells, we bathed our faces, dusted our living room and climbed aboard to continue our trip along the Ottawa River. The mercury stood at 103 degrees at Mattawa, but the air was invigorating. These are virgin forests of white, black and yellow birch, of maple, larch and balsam. Goldenrod and thistle bloom among the tall ferns. There is little cultivation, but wild hay is abundant for the few sheep and cows. Lumbering, fishing and trapping are the industries which keep these towns booming. The day's drive of about 250 miles lay in country majestic, but lonely. The folks in a Fayette county car following us, joined in singing "My Old Kentucky Home."

We made camp early, and after a swim, the men of our party served supper. The Italian gentleman who made our fire, gave us a dish of "favs," of his own cooking. They look like a cross between lima beans and peas and are delicious enough to have a place in our gardens.

Ottawa holds a high place among the world's beautiful capital cities. As usual, the history of this city is interwoven with the history of its rivers. The Ottawa river became the great highway of fur trade, but due to the Chaudiere Falls, and the cataracts of the Rideau, which plunges into the Ottawa at this point, portage paths developed. After the war 1812, Sir John By was sent over from England to build the Rideau Canall. His military headquarters soon grew into Bytown, which name was later changed to Ottawa. In 1858 selected this city as the Dominion Capital. Out of a natural bluff rises the pile of Parliament buildings of pure Gothic style. The Peace tower with its carillon of 53 bells contains the Memorial Chamber. The stones for the floor were brought from the fields of France, and Belgium, and the Altar of Remembrance is carved from a great block from England. Within this Altar is to be preserved a book containing the names of those Canadian men and women who gave their lives in the Great War.

After exclaiming over the formal plantings and beds of brilliant geraniums and begonias, we looked back to read this inscription carved over the door: "The wholesome sea is at her gates—her gates both east and west."

As this was Saturday we went to the open market which occupied several blocks. Cherries, cauliflower, raspberries, celery, lima beans, peas and asparagus were all in season together. We stocked our pantry and headed for Montreal.

Again the scene changed. Instead of sparsely settled country, were towns and farm homes, with their many outbuildings. All were gaily painted. Several colors were often used on one home group. Houses had steep roofs, shutters were always in three parts. Crops of hay and grain were fine. There was some tobacco and small corn was drilled for fodder. Yard fences always supported ricks of firewood. The province of Quebec is divided into ranges. Each range has its power-driven saw, where the habitants haul their logs to be sawed into stovewood lengths. We noticed great fields of cultivated blackberreis and onions.

The one-room schoolhouses, with their two or three dormer windows, have living quarters upstairs All have storm entrances and built-on wood houses, almost as large as the school.

The many towns with water-power and cheap electric power have woolen mills, pulp and paper mills, beet sugar refineries, jewelry and clothing factories.

Montreal, largest city in Canada, is built on an island at the Junction of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers. Although it is 1,000 miles from the Atlantic, it is America's leading seaport after New York. It has the world's largest flour mill, and is the greatest white exporting center.

Due to its 250 temples of worship Montreal is called "The City of Churches." As we passed famous Notre Dame and the many Catholic institutions. I was glad that our high vehicle allowed us a peep over the walls into the monastery gardens. In the subdued radiance of the evening sun we drove the length of stately Sherbrooke street, each noticing without comment the richness of the stores and homes, the spiral stairs with their ornate iron grill work, winding over the house fronts, and the repose of the people.

After our camp chores were over some of us walked out on the bluff to look down upon the St. Lawrence with its lighted craft of every size, and back to the great illuminated cross on Mt. Royal, and above at the star-studded sky, and behind at the small house keeping lights of our trailer neighbors from so many places.

On Sunday morning we sangs hymns as we rolled along through a new, quaint land of thatched roofs, red shutters, and blue rain barrels. Unhurried, the short stock men cared for their animals. Small towns nestled about its church, with its glistening spire piercing the sky.

Suddenly the road came alive with families in topless buggies or two-seated carryalls. Sometimes these were followed by one or two sons on bicycles. For miles, ours was the only motor on the highway. Perhaps of all the sights of our trip this procession of entire families on their way to church will linger longest.

In the city of Quebec, Mr. Huey secured us two guides, one to direct the driver, one to explain the points of interest in his best English. Perhaps this is the most unique city of America. There it sits on its rock, the Gibralter of North America, positively medieval. with its turrets, gables, dormers, spires, towers, steeple, statues, its citadel, its turrents and its enclosing wall. Surely of those pioneer priests, explorers and soldiers, not one has been forgotten. Every street is named Saint somebody. We resolved to read home history this winter, for Wolfe and Montcalm were about the only folks we knew.

We ate our Sunday evening meal at the St. Jean. The conservatives chose names which looked familiar but some of us were more adventurous. Back at Whitehouse camp we retired early to be fit for a Monday of unusual interest. It was the wedding day of our hostess' daughter and were glad to learn of the lovely plans.

Monday, July 26, was the birthday of St. Anne de Beaupre, patron saint of that world-famous shrine. It was thought that this shrine was founded early in the 16th century by some ship-wrecked Breton sailors. Believing in the efficacy of the fountain and the miraculous statue, hither come every year, the halt and the blind. The pyramids of crutches reaching almost to the ceiling testify their faith. We were among 15,000 visitors and worshippers on this day.

The 22 mile drive to St. Anne's leads through some of America's oldest settlements. Farms have seen 8 or 10 generations of the same family, and the customs brought over from the old country remain unchanged. Dairying and bee raising are the industries. Bread is baked out door, in stone ovens. We were charmed with the boys and their dog buggies and the girls with their spinning wheels. Hundreds of hooked rugs for sale hung along the road.

Montmorency Falls is an awe inspiring sight. It is 274 feet high. Near there is Kent House, once the residence of Queen Victoria's father.

We left the city by the Quebec Bridge, one of the greatest engineering feats in the world. At its greatest width, the St. Lawrence is 14 miles, but here it is less than half a mile. Many of you recall the difficulty in building this bridge. When half done in 1907, it collapsed, and 82 men lost their lives. A few years later, almost completed, the center span fell into the river.

The Chaudiere River Valley Route follows the trail used by Benedict Arnold. The homes are built close to the river and the long narrow field extend back, perhaps a mile. Cape Callway camp is on a hill overlooking the river. After supper, we sat in the cheerful home of a French family. Our six nights spent in Canada have led to a variety of lasting memories. Nowhere have we ever found such courtesy and kindly interest.

On Tuesday morning we waved goodbye to the last of the maple leaf highway signs, which through Quebec also bear the fleur de lis, and gave a hooray for U. S. 201.

NAME STATE 4-H CLUB CHAMPIONS

Culminating six or more years of outstanding 4-H club work, four Kentucky state champions have been recognized by the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky. They include Frances Morgerson, Fayette county, who won first on canning; Margaret Josephine Gulley, Garrard county, clothing champion; Mary Ello Boston, Jefferson county, who placed first in room improvement, and Margaret Stutzenberger, Jefferson county, baking champion.

Miss Morgerson's club record covers six years, during which time she has carried projects in canning, clothing, poultry, foods and dairying. Miss Gulley has had nine years in club work, concentrating on sewing, canning, cooking and baby beef projects. She says, "My club work has provided me with interesting and useful employment, recreation, and social life. It's an all-round sort of thing—it helps give normal, wholesome development."

A series of set-backs attended Mary Ella Boston's club career. It was her fourth year before she won first place in a county contest. The next year she selected canning for her major project, and the drouth interferred with that. Then in her sixth year she triumphed in room improvement.

Eight years have been spent by Miss Stutzenberger in club work, in foods, canning and sewing. She values especially the knowledge she has gained of home economics as she feels every girl should have it.

Exhibits' prepared by the state champions will represent Kentucky at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago in November.

NEW LIME AND MARL RECORD MAY BE SET

Reports received at the College of Agriculture at Lexington indicate that all records in the application of limestone and marl may be broken by Kentucky farmers this year. Last year approximately a million tons of lime materials were used in the state, and more spread per crop acre than in any other state.

A large amount of marl will be used this year, according to county agents. Two thousand farmers in 52 counties spread 75,000 tons of marl last year. In Henderson county 8,000 tons were used.

According to S. C. Jones of the college, marl beds loom up like deposits of rich ore on thousands of Kentucky farms, providing ready supplies of liming material. He says that marl is available to at least 50,000 farmers in this state.

In many counties farmers are spreading marl themselves, at no cash outlay. Allowances in the agricultural conservation program are $2.80 an acre where three tons of marl are spread. In addition, the farmer who spreads marl or limestone prepares his land for increased crop yields.

In tests which the Agricultural Experiment Station made over the state, applications of lime, when made in connection with phosphate, increased crop returns as much at $7 per acre the first year, and larger production will continue for years as a result of the soil treatment.

The judges will be H. H. Kauffman, noted Pennsylvania turkey authority; M. C. Small, editor of "The Kentucky World," and J. E. Humphrey and Stanley Caton of the College of Agriculture.

On Nov. 11, the University of Kentucky will hold its annual turkey field day meeting, when practical talks will be made by Messrs. Kauffman and Small, Kentucky turkey raisers and members of the faculty of the College's poultry department.

Premium lists for the show are being distributed by the Poultry Club, University of Kentucky.

Every individual is doomed to have a certain amount of trouble, none of which ever results from keeping his mouth shut.

There are two kinds of patriots in this country; those who hate and fear war and those who are too old for service.

It would be hard for America to favor either side in those foreign rows without being ashamed of the company she was in.

Maybe it's because he's made of dust that some women object to having their husbands hanging around the house.

87 SPEED RECORDS BROKEN TO MAKE TIRES SAFER FOR YOU

Ab Jenkins, World's Safest Driver, Establishes 87 New Records for Safety, Speed, Mileage and Endurance . . . He Drove 3,774 Miles in 24 Hours on the Sharp Granite-like Surface of the Bonneville Salt Beds at Average Speed of 157.27 Miles an Hour

AT SPEEDS as high as 180 miles an hour — with the hot, coarse, abrasive salt grinding, tearing, scorching his tires — Ab Jenkins' special racer, weighing nearly three tons, pounded over the Bonneville Salt Beds at such terrific speed that it caused the surface to break up. Before the end of the run the track was so pitted and rough that it was almost impossible to hold the car on its course. Yet Jenkins set 87 new World, International and American speed records on Firestone Tires.

Building tires capable of establishing such records is made possible only because of patented Firestone manufacturing processes. These exclusive features enable Firestone to provide car owners with tires that are extra safe.

For the greatest protection of yourself and your family equip your car with Firestone TRIPLE-SAFE Tires. By TRIPLE-SAFE we mean—

1 PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING—The scientific tread design gives longer non-skid mileage and stops your car up to 25% quicker.

2 PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—Firestone Tires run up to 28 degrees cooler because every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. This counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

3 PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES—Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread add strength to the tire and give extra protection against punctures.

Now is the time to make your car tire-safe for fall and winter driving. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new FIRESTONE TRIPLE-SAFE Tires — the safest tires that money can buy!

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO DRIVE WITHOUT FIRESTONE TRIPLE-SAFE TIRES

Last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children and a million more were injured!

More than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires!

Left is a section cut from a new Firestone Tire. Note the extra, non-skid protection against skidding, blowouts and punctures. Come in and see a demonstration.

"LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME"

by Thornton W. Burgess

BILLY MINK IS DISCOVERED

AFTER the rats left the big barn Billy Mink found it less easy to get plenty to eat. There were mice in the big barn, and for several days Billy managed to catch enough of these to keep from going hungry. But mice can get into places too small for Billy to follow, and those that were left soon learned to keep out of his way.

Then, Billy's thoughts turned to the hens in the henhouse. He had not intended to kill any of those hens because he knew that as soon as he did, the farmer who owned them would hunt for him, and then he would have to move on. He was so comfortably located that he was not anxious to move on. But one must eat, and now that the rats had disappeared and the mice had learned to keep out of his way, Billy's thoughts turned to those hens.

It was the very night after the fire which the rats had started in the back shed of the farmhouse that Billy made up his mind to have a chicken dinner. He slipped under the henhouse and up through a hole in the corner which he already knew about. All the hens were roosting high fast asleep, with their heads under their wings.

Had Reddy Fox been in Billy Mink's place he would have been somewhat puzzled as to how he should catch one of those hens. But Billy wasn't puzzled. Not a bit of it. You see, Billy can climb almost like a squirrel. Reddy Fox would have had to jump, and probably would have awakened and frightened the whole flock. Billy Mink simply climbed up to one of the roosts, stole along it to the nearest hen, and with one quick snap of his stout little jaws he killed that hen without even waking her.

Now, had Billy's cousin, Shadow the Weasel, been in his place, he would have gone right on killing those hens from sheer love of killing. But Billy Mink killed that hen simply because he must have something to eat, and one hen was more than enough to furnish him a dinner. When he had finished his dinner he went back to his snug bed under the big woodpile.

Of course, when the farmer came out to feed the hens in the morning he discovered what had happened: He didn't know who had killed that hen, but he knew that it must have been some one very small to have got into the henhouse. He hunted about until he found the hole in the dark corner. He knew that that hole had been made by a rat, and at first he thought it must have been rats that killed that hen, and this increased his anger.

That afternoon he happened to look out of the barn door toward the woodpile and he was just in time to see a slim, brown form whisk out of sight under the wood.

"Ha, ha!" exclaimed the farmer. "Now I know who the thief is. There is a mink in that woodpile. He is the fellow who killed that hen last night. I think, Mr. Mink, we'll make you pay for that hen with your brown coat."

What Is It? Dinner, Lunch or Supper?

DEAR Mrs. Post: A friend of mine insists that no matter what is served, the meals of the day in their order are called breakfast, lunch and dinner, and a light evening meal is supper. I maintain that if a person eats a full course meal at noon it is called dinner. Will you explain this to us?

Answer: Meticulously speaking, dinner, no matter whether served at mid-day or in the evening, begins with soup in plates set on a tablecloth, and is followed by meat and vegetables, and there is no cup and saucer for a hot beverage on the table. It is the tablecloth and the soup in the soup plate, and the absence of cups and saucers, that classifies the meal as dinner. Until lately the presence of bread and butter plates also banished the name of dinner. Supper is recognized principally because set on a bare table, and it has cups and saucers and hot coffee, tea or chocolate on the table, and soup, if any, is served in cups. The difference between lunch and supper is that one is at mid-day and the other is in the evening. Less meticulously but according to its more usual interpretation, dinner is the substantial meal of the 24 hours, no matter at what time it is eaten, and the other meal is either lunch or supper.

Sending Announcements.

DEAR Mrs. Post: My only relatives are my aunt and my brother, and under the circumstances I am not going to have a very large wedding and will not send any invitations. But I would like to send announcements to our friends everywhere. In whose name should these announcements be sent?

Answer: Either would be proper although somewhat depending upon circumstances. If your aunt has brought you up and your brother is younger than you, then the invitations would certainly go out in her name. But if you and your brother have always lived together and if he is older than you, the invitations would probably go out in his name. This, however, can't be answered definitely since the question of how both feel about the matter must be taken into consideration.

A Few Little Smiles

SAID THE KETTLE TO THE POT

A professor was once accosted by a dirty little boot-black. "Shine your shoes, sir?"

The professor was disgusted by the dirt on the lad's face. "I don't want a shine, my lad," he said, "but if you'll go and wash your face I'll give you a sixpence."

"Right guv'nor," replied the boy, as he made his way to a neighboring fountain. Soon he returned looking much cleaner.

"Well, my boy," said the professor, "you have earned your six pence; here it is."

"I don't want your sixpence, guv'nor," replied the boy. "You 'ang on to it and get your 'air cut."

How About Temper?

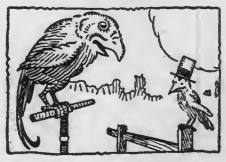
"Didn't you claim when you sold me this car that you would replace anything that broke or was missing?"

"Yes, sir. What is it?"

"Well, I want four front teeth and a collar bone."—Automobilist.

Heartless Prophetess

"Harold says that after we are married he will want me to dress like a queen."



"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "and for a while he will be as proud as a king. After that he will grumble like a taxpayer."

Romance Ended

"Why is Jean so anxious to know the name of the boy she met at the party?"

"She wants to give him back his engagement ring."—Stray Stories Magazine.

"Yes, sur," replied Sambo. "Ah just thought you might have me down as Samson."

WORTH TEACHING

The fact that there is no regular course in the public schools of this and surrounding territory covering the conservation of wild life and natural resources does not mean that it is not worth teaching. No better instruction can be given by any teacher than the simple methods of protecting the trees, birds and small animals of the neighborhood in which his or her school is located. A few moments now and then devoted to the value of planting trees, and protecting those now growing, will serve to impress the youthful mind with the value and importance of conservation. The same is true regarding our outdoor life. Children may be destructive by nature, but leading them into new paths is an easy matter. Tell them, so their childish minds can understand with this country must conserve its natural resources, such as timber and fish and game, and they will grasp the meaning and carry it with them on through to maturity. The teachers who realizes the value of such instruction is worth more to the community he serves than the one who never mentions the subject simply because it doesn't happen to be a part of the regular school course.

IT WON'T BE LONG

Old King Winter is headed this way, and it won't be long now until he'll be camping on your front doorstep. With him he will bring the long nights when time is apt to drag along and hang heavily on the hands of those who have not learned the value of the radio and the home-town paper. Nothing has been invented that helps the ordinary family to put in its winter evenings more pleasantly. The radio you already have, but if the home-town paper has been overlooked, right now is a good time to see that its regular visits are started. There is no need to lose touch with the outside world so long as you have a radio, and no need of being in ignorance of what is going on here in your own neighborhood if you have your home-town paper. There is a combination unbeatable, and the best investment you can make if you want to make this a short winter, and an agreeable one.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

In a certain village is a pretty and charming young widow. Now the local minister, a bachelor, owns a car that often gives him trouble.

One dark evening, while returning to his home the car stopped dead in a quiet street and the owner decided to walk and send a garage man to fetch the car next day.

In the morning, however, before he carried out his intention he received a call from a friend who said: "My dear chap, you are certainly in wrong now!"

"How so?" asked the parson.

"Well," said the friend, "everybody in town knows that your car has been standing outside young Mrs. Blank's house all night!"

Get the Hose

"Name, please," asked the minister engaged in baptizing the infant.

"Cholmondeley Chillingworth Montmorency Percival Athelstane Burpingham 3d."

"More water, please," said the minister to his assistant.

SLIGHTLY JOLTED

"Has your sister's horseback riding reduced her weight?"

"Can't say it has. She's fallen off a good deal, but is still fat."

Scrupulous

"I guess we'd better fix up our advertisement for summer boarders right now," said Farmer Corntossel.

"What for?" asked his wife.

"I don't want to write anything that ain't truthful. There ain't any mosquitoes now an' the nights are always cool."

Cottage in Cottage Cheese?

"Waiter, waiter!" screamed young Joe, "is this what you call turkey soup? There's not a scrap of turkey in it!"

"Well, sir," soothed the waiter, "if you'd ordered marble cake would you expect to find a quarry in it?"

More Trouble

Teacher—James, have you whispered while I was out of the room?

James—Only wunst, ma'am.

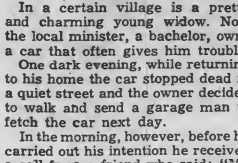
Teacher — Helen, should James say "wunst?"

Helen—No, ma'vm, he should say "twicet."—Our Paper.

Freak

Lady—I bought two hams here some time ago and they were excellent. Have you any more?

Farmer—Yes, I've several hanging up in the kitchen.



Lady—And are you sure they're from the same hog?

Kissproof

"What would I have to give you for just one little kiss?"

"Chloroform."

SOME IDEA

'My wife has a great scheme to save coal."

"What is it?"

"Spend the winter in a warm climate."

Verbal Refrigeration

A Scot was out walking with his lady friend one very warm summer night.

"I'd like an ice cream cone," said the fair lady, "to cool me a bit."

The Scot answered: "Why waste an ice cream cone, I'll tell you a ghost story that will make you shiver."—Boston Globe.

On Trial

"Did you convince your audience that your ideas were correct?"

"It wasn't a case of convincing that audience," replied Senator Sorghum. "The people had their minds made up and came around to get a line on whether I agreed with them or not."

Tell Too Much

Mr. Oldsport—Do you doubt my love? Look in my eyes and read it there. The eyes are the windows of the soul.

Miss Goldentide—Windows of the soul! Your eyes do look awfully glassy.—Chelsea Record.

A Brief Reply

Mistress—Jane, Jane! Yesterday you broke two vases and today you've broken three plates and four cups. What will be broken tomorrow at this rate?

Maid—Not so much, ma'am, It is my afternoon out.

His Business

"Believe me," said the comedian, "when I do my stuff on the stage they roar."

"How wonderful!" cooed the pretty young thing, "Are you a lion-tamer?"

Alfalfa from northern-grown Grimm seed is attracting attention in Lincoln county.

Bath county farmers are sowing vetch for the first time, to use as a cover and green manure crop.

THE MAN WHO KNEW

The court was silent except for the clear-cut tones of defending counsel. Everyone hung on his words, and many thought that he would win his case.

"And now, gentlemen of the jury," he said, "I ask you—where could the prisoner have hidden the watch? Not in his pocket. The constable has already told you that the man was searched. Not in his shoes—the watch was too large. Then where was it hidden?"

He paused for dramatic effect, and during the pause the prisoner ventured:—

"Please, sir, I put it under me 'at."—Tit-Bits Magazine.

It Makes a Difference

Teacher sought to impress upon her class the principle of "turn the other cheek." Then she asked a test question:

"I'm supposing, Tommy," she said, "that a boy hit you. What are you going to do?"

Tommy didn't hesitate. "How big a boy are you supposing?" he demanded promptly.

No Need for Hurry

For years he had been terribly henpecked. One morning at breakfast he said to his wife: "My dear, I had a queer dream last night. I thought I saw another man running off with you."

"Indeed!" said his wife. "And, what did you say to him?"

"I asked him why he was running."

That Explains It

Luttrel—I'll have you know my friend Helen is getting a man's wages.

Owen—Well, well—I didn't know she was married.—Pathfinder Magazine.

ARITHEMETIC

Jones—Does your wife call you down for every little thing?

Brown—First she makes a big thing out of it.

True Hospitality

A spinster encountered some boys in the old swimming-hole, minus everything but nature's garb, and was horrified.

"Isn't it against the law to bathe without suits on, little boys?"

"Yes'm," announced freckled Johnny, "but Jimmy's father is a policeman, so you can come on in."

Not Long to Wait

Passenger (after half an hour's wait at a country station)—Porter, when do you think that train will be in?

Porter—Don't know, sir; but what I always say is that the longer you have to wait, sir, the surer you may be that the next minute will bring it along.—Ireland's Own.

Recaleitrant

Bill (viciously attacking a piece of chicken)—This must be an incubator chicken.

Joe—Why?

Bill—No chicken with a mother could be so tough.

Helping His Feet, Too

"Your girl friend called me up and said she would not be able to meet you today."

"Well, that's a wait off my mind."

SHIP AHOY

Mr. Tardy—Will you go sailing down the stream of life with me?

Miss Bliss—You're too late, Tom Bright made me promise to go aviating through life's air with him.

True to Life

"Do you think you can make a good portrait of my wife?"

"My friend, I can make it so life-like that you'll jump every time you see it."—Stray Stories Magazine.

Optical Error

"That old bird has been making eyes for years."

"An incurable flirt, eh?"

"No, he's a glass-eye manufacturer."—Garland News.

A pint of milk a day for every adult is still a good general rule. A complete food, milk builds health and in this way offers protection against disease. Children should have a quart of milk daily.

SELL LATE LAMBS; NOT GOOD BREEDERS

There are thousands of late lambs in Kentucky that are not in condition to be marketed at satisfactory prices. While these late lambs could have been prevented by earlier breeding and by the control of parasites, the problem that confronts their owners now is how to get them in condition for market.

Lambs that are not too far gone as a result of stomach worms can, if treated, be profitably fed out in th elate fall or early winter, says Richard C. Miller of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Grazing should be supplemented with at least one-half pound of grain, and both hay and grain should be used and the grain increased as grazing fails. Six parts of corn and one part of cottonseed meal is a satisfactor grain ration. Dried brewer's grain makes a good substitute for cottonseed meal when the price in proportion to its protein content justificies. Soybean oilmeal is also satisfactory, as it linseed oilmeal but the latter is usually more expensive than other protein concentrates.

Some farmers may be tempted to save the ewe end of the these late, parasite-infested lambs in hope of making breeding ewes of them to add to their flocks or to sell to other farmers. Fortunately most farmers have learned by experience that these late tail-nd lambs do not make a good kind of breeding ewes. They are highly susceptible to parasites, lack constitution and will almost invariably prove to be late breeders themselves. It would be better to send these lambs to market when they are ready, and when ewes are needed for replacement purposes buy a desirable type. Such a ewe can be had for a little more than the price of a good 80-pound lamb.

NEW LAW AFFECTS GROWERS OF HEMP

The University of Kentucky College of Agriculture has been notified that, under provisions of the Marihuana Tax Act, efefctive Oct. 1, 1937, farmers growing hemp are required to register with the Collector of Internal Revenue.

Hemp, once an important crop in Kentucky, is still grown in a few counties mostly in the Bluegrass region. The 1935 agricultural census reported only a few hundred acres in the state.

BETTER CURING IN CALDWELL COUNTY

There has been more repairing and remodeling of tobacco barns in Caldwell county this season than in many years, according to County Agent J. F. Graham, who adds that probably 75 per cent of the barns have undergone improvemnet in the last three years. Ventilators have been installed on many barns, and some have been papered, in the interest of improved curing. Tobacco scaffolds of the type designed by the Kentucky College of Agriculture are being used by practically all Caldwell county farmers who use this method of curing, says Mr. Graham.

Eighteen Caldwell county club boys are carrying a locust tree nursery project, from which they plan to set 30 acres of seedlings next spring. Eventually local farmers will be furnished young locust for growing on steep land.

FOUR-H CLUB MEMBERS FINISH 1,102 CALVES FOR LOUISVILLE SHOW

Four-H club members in 42 counties are finishing 1,102 calves for the 16th annual fat cattle show to be held at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville Nov. 10-12. Cattle also are being prepared by members of the Future Farmers of America and by farmers in Tennessee and Kentucky, with the prospect that more than 2,500 head will be exhibited in the largest and best show of its kind ever held in Kentucky.

A total of $5,000 in cash prizes will be distributed among winners at the show. Four-H club members owning the best Angus, Hereford and Shorthorn calves will receive trips to the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago.

The largest number of calves from any one county will come from Hart, where 4-H club members have 95 on feed. Wayne county club members are fatting 79 calves; Pulaski county club members, 70 calves, and in Garrard county 48 calves are on feed.

In the 15 shows that have been held, the Garrard county 4-H club has won the carload grand championship 12 times and the individual calf grand championship seven times.

PLAN CONFERENCE TO CONSIDER MORE FARM ELECTRICITY

Problems connected with the installation and use of electricity on farms will be discussed in a two-day conference to be held at Lexington, Noc. 1-2 by the College of Agriculture and rural electrification associations in Kentucky.

At the present time 11 cooperative associations in Kentucky have received allotments totaling more than two and a half million dollars for the purpose of extending distribution lines in rural areas. These associations will construct more than 2,000 miles of lines to serve between 9,000 and 10,000 farmers in 23 counties, according to Prof. J. B. Kelley, head of the agricultural engineering section of the college.

In addition, farmers in 31 counties are making surveys with a view to having power lines, and utilities companies are constructing lines to serve farmers in five counties.

The conference will bring together directors and officers of rural electrification associations, superintendents, engineers and attorneys of rural projects, members of the Kentucky Public Service Commission, representatives of the Kentucky Farm Bureau and of the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington and others interested in the use of electricity on the farm.

YIELDS INCREASED IN WHITLEY COUNTY

The largest hay crop in the history of Whitley county is reported by County Agent John E. Parsons, due largely, he says, to the use of limestone and phosphate in the agricultural conservation program.

T. L. Rickett reports an increased yield of two tons to the acre from the use of limestone and phosphate. Luther Helton cut two tons of korean lespedeza hay per acre from land that had not grown grass in years. J. T. Estes produced two tons of korean lespedeza on waste land, by applying three tons of limestone and 200 pounds of phosphate to the acre.

Whitley county wheat also made up to 30 bushels to the acre, where limestone and phosphate had been used, and the acreage for next year will be increased by 100 percent, according to Mr. Parsons.

A LITTLE WHITE ONE

"Ma, you promised not to punish me, if I told the truth."

"Yes, and I won't."

"Then I must tell you that I lied to you this morning."

FUMBLER

"Did she throw herself at him?"

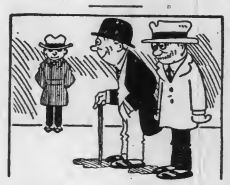
"No; she only tossed her head at him."

"Mercy! And she knew he wasn't a 'good catch.'"

OUCH!

"Did you hear that Tom was kicked out of his girl's house by her father last night?"

"No; he didn't tell me that; but said he was very much put out by what happened."



A GOOD BUILDER

"Did the doctor build you up as he said he would?"

"Yes, and judging from his bill he charged me both as a physician and a first-class constructor."

MODERNISTIC BOY

"Jones doesn't strike me as literary, yet he declares that he never feels so comfortable as when he is snugly in his library."

"Oh, that's not surprising. His bookcase is a folding bed."

ECONOMY

Mr. Pester—No! I can't afford two thousand dollars for a car.

His Wife—But it will be a real economy. Just think how much it will save this season on my walking costumes.

THAT'S A REASON

Plate—What makes Mr. Egg so uppish?

Cup—He says his family may be one dollar a dozen some day, that's what.

PEOPLES FOOT COMFORT

A prominent "Foot Specialist" stated that it may be a far cry from a case of headache or backache or indigestion to a pair of bad feet, but the sooner the sufferer realized that the pain in the back of the head CAN be related to the pain in the bottom of his feet—the sooner he is going to get relief.

When you cramp blood supply to any part of the foot, you only deprive it of the food it should have to keep healthy, but the slower blood stream cannot clear away waste matter as it should. We find chemical deposits form at the joints of the feet and legs and then inflamation develops leading to pain and discomfort that makes you miserable all over. These symptoms are often mistaken for arthritis, rheumatism or some other serious ailment.

Don't suffer any longer! SEE OUR FOOT ANALYST. He will analyze your foot comfort problems free of charge.—Adv.

KENTUCKY IN OCTOBER

L. G. Kennamer, Ph. D. Eastern Teachers College, Richmond, Kentucky

Kentucky! The very name is beautiful. The mention of it inspires a deeper breath and longing. For years the name of Kentucky has been famous in song and story. Many people are charmed by the peculiarities of custom, costume, and speech of Kentucky life. The melody of "The Old Kentucky Home" is sung in many lands and today ranks next to the National Anthem in its universal appeal to all Americans. Equally famous are the inspirations derived from the fine horses, the beautiful blue grass, the "sport of kings," good whiskey, picturesque caves, and beautiful women. All lovers of the past records of our nation pay homage at the historic shrines of the state. To this list I wish to add another great asset. It is the beauteous charm of the natural and cultural landscape. Kentucky appeals to all citizens of our country who wish to see nature in her wilder moods. Native-born and adopted sons are waking to the variety of natural beauties found throughout the entire length and breadth of the Commonwealth. Residents of other states also make pilgrimages here to behold the extent and grandeur of its scenic beauties. To the many lovers of nature each season of the year presents a most gorgeous picture of Kentucky. From season to season the colors of the landscape and th landscape itself change. In winter the state is dressed in its picturesque robes of grey and white. Spring brings a freshness of green as the blue grass sod brightens, leaves come on the trees and shrubs, and the fruit trees and flowering plants put out their blossoms. The state is dressed in a green ensemble. The warm summer season brings darker shades of color to the mature crops and to the foliage of the trees. The fourth, and to me the most beautiful, season in Kentucky is the autumn. The air is crisp and cool, and a smoky hase gathers over the mountain slopes. This is the joyful season of harvest. The leaves of the trees change their color from the shades of green to the gorgeous, flaming colors of red, orange, and yellow. Stella Kobrin in the "Conning Tower" has a poem which beautifully pictures the landscape of Kentucky in Kentucky in October. I quote it as follows:

October

April is a young girl,
Innocent and careless,
On the threshold of summer
With blossoms in her hair;
But October is a lady
Very wise and knowing,
Beautifully brave,
And terribly aware.

October is a lady
Who wraps herself in scarlet,
Who flaunts her colors madly
And struts insanely proud—
A bold and lovely lady
Who wears her gold and crimson
As gayly as a dance frock,
Yet knows it for a shroud.

Now flame upon the hillside
The oak tree and the maple,
The cherry tree and the pear tree
Whose blossoms once were snow,
While gayer than the springtime
And madder than the summer,
October shakes her auburn hair
And preens herself—to go!

Kentucky's Octobers are world famous. This is the season when most discriminating travellers leave the sophisticated centers and seek out in every quarter throughout Kentucky those nooks formed by the encircling hills and knobs, which supply a retreat, a solace, and an uplift. October in Kentucky is the season in which to entertain guests throughout its soft balmy days. This is the time for hikes, picnics, and pilgrimages to places of scenic beauty. Touring in Kentucky in October, in fact, during the entire autumn, is a glorious revelation of cariegated colours and tempting vistas. Splendid roads are making all parts of the state accessible to the motorist in nearly all types of weather. On a morning when the air is crisp and sweet, ascend the mountain slope and from the pinnacle await the coming of the sunrise. You may have the thrill if beholding the clouds below your horizon with the crests of other hills protruding from the banks of fog like islands of green anchored in a moving sea of white. Softly glowing sunsets of October days cast long shadows and fantastic shapes upon the multi-colored landscape.

The bright sunshine and the brilliant harvest moon cast their beams of light upon a panorama of bluegrass and butterflies, curious caverns and cataracts, golden-colored trees and grazing thoroughbreds, silvery streams, and hazy hills that are so distinctive of Kentucky.

It is not easy to see Kentucky as a whole. Its extent equals that of England and covers a wide variety of natural beauty. Each of its 120 counties posses a wealth of attractions. To me, an adopted son, the joy of Kentucky lies in the different aspects of its landscape, that have been modelled by the forces of Nature and by the hand of Man. The impenetrable wall of the Cumberland Mountains, clothed with forests of every color, the picturesque Knobs, the rolling bluegrass pastures enclosed by stone fences or clipped hedges, the forested gorges of the Cumberland, Green, and Big Sandy Rivers, the majestic palisades of the Kentucky River, the host of tobacco barns, the majestic Cumberland Falls, the great Cavernous Regions of the state, the buffIcolored soils of the Purchase, the Natural Bridges, and beautiful bottom lands of the Ohio and Mississippi Lowlands.

Poor Human Nature! Here is historic Kentucky! Beautiful Kentucky Beloved of the fathers, dear and glorious to many; to others it may be just a grainary or a prison. With Bryant we say—

"Yet these sweet sounds of the early season
And these fair sights of its sunny days,
Are only sweet when we fondly listen
And only fair when we fondly gaze."

ENROLLMENT SETS NEW RECORD AT KENTUCKY AGRICULTURE COLLEGE

The registration of 529 men and women for the first semester of the 1937-38 school year sets a new enrollment record for the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky. The number of students last year was 517, which was the largest previous enrollment.

Three hundred and twenty-nine men and women are studying agriculture and 200 women are studying home economics. The registration by classes follows: Freshmen 133 men and 50 women; Sophmore, 82 men and 53 women; Junior, 75 men and 50 women; Senior, 55 men and 51 women.

Four Freshman girls are studying agriculture, the largest number of women ever enrolled in agriculture at one time in the history of the Kentucky college. No men are enrolled in home economics.

Smart young men should seek government jobs since it is becoming the most popular method of escaping income taxes.

BRADY'S PAL CLOSE GUARDED

WAS FORMERLY IN BOONE COUNTY JAIL AND SERVED TWO YEARS IN STATE REFORMATORY.

Manacled hand and foot, James Dalhover, sole survivor of the one-time braggart Brady gang, is being held in a closely watched cell under $50,000 bond while Federal state and local authorities strive to decide where to bring him to trial on one or more of many charges of robbery and murder.

James Dalhover, his brother George and others were first lodged in the Boone county jail November 15, 1926 on a charge of illegally transporting liquor. Four days later the Dalhovers broke jail her by striking the caretaker, Chas. A. Fowler, on the head with an iron rod and remained at large until Apirl 13, 1928, at which time they were arrested in Mexico and brought back to Boone County by Sheriffs L. T. Utz and Herbert Snyder. This time they were faced with charges of assault with intent to kill and were sentenced to two years of hard labor in the state reformatory at Frankfort.

After serving his time in Kentucky, James Dalhover has been continually involved in murders and robberies throughout the United States. Later he joined the "Al" Brady gang, and once swore that the Brady gunmen would "make Dillinger look like a piker." Dalhover was returned to Indiana last Thursday, the state in which he started his criminal career, in custody of Myron Gurnea, Federal agent who led the Bangor, (Me.) raid last Tuesday which left "Al" Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., dead.

Federal authorities have assigned three special agents to guard Dalhover against escape and suicide.

CREDIT ARRANGED FOR FARMERS IN A. C. PROGRAM

Boone County farmers interested in earning 100% of their 1937 October soil building allowance and who do not have finances for carrying out said practice may receive financial credit by calling at the County Agent's office at Burlington, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The problem of securing credit to purchase seeds, phosphate and limestone is a great one for many farmers who are interested but at present feel they do not have the means. Thru a cooperative set up local bank credit can be secured at the regular six percent per year rate. Farmers are urged to use every available means to earn 100 percent of their allowance before October 31st, the last day of the A.C.P. year.

BOONE CO. FARM NEWS

F. H. Rouse of near Burlington reports that he has marketed a 4000 bushel crop of apples this year. Mr. Rouse is noted for producing good quality of fruit and carrying out a carefully planned spray schedule.

The rains the first part of the week enabled many farmers to bulk their tobacco down for stripping. A large part of the crop is well cured. A few farmers have already stripped some tobacco.

The Boone County Jersey Bull Association has made arrangements for the exchange of three bulls this fall and one next spring. R. B. Huey and Sons are securing Primates Ace, an outstanding individual in type that has sired some extra good heifers for O. R. Russ. O. R. Russ will use the Financial bull used by Mr. Huey the past two years. This bull has been selected for outstanding production blood lines, being out of an outstanding cow and by a proven sire. Robert Youell has secured the services of the young bull sired by Right Royal Design and out of a good cow in the world record production herd of Senator Gaines, of Carrollton. Ben Nichting is using a son of Primate of Oaklands and in the spring will use the Hood farm bull that to date has probably sired more good heifers than any other bull in the association.

Farmers of the county this fall are sowing more winter cover crops and more grass seed than ever before. There is an awakening in agriculture. If present progress continues, twenty years from now we will be talking about how much more we get for an acre of land than we did back in 1937.

The Bi-County Farm Bureau with offices at W. W. Woodward's garage at Devon, sell 20% super phosphate and 44 percent superphosphate. Through error, this organization was not mentioned in the A. C. P. article of last week, giving a list of phosphate dealers in the county.

Where terms of tenure are satisfactory, loans also are made to include items for soil improvement.

The loans are made to worthy farmers with approved resources, including tenants who are unable to secure proper credit from other sources. Loans are repayable over a period ranging from one to five years, depending upon the amount of the loan used for livestock and equipment or other capital goods useful over a period of years. 94% INCREASE IN TOBACCO

GROWN IN BOONE COUNTY, ACCORDINIG TO H. R. FORKNER, COUNTY AGENT — GROWERS OPTIMISTIC.

Boone County farmers this year increased their tobacco acreage 94.4 percent over 1936, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The above figures are based on the A. C. P. field supervisor's reports compiled by John E. Crigler, Secretary of the association and covers 85 percent of the total farm land in the county.

The increased acreage grown this year does not mean an unusual large crop. Boone County's A. C. P. tobacco bases are 3350.5 acres. In 1936 nine hundred and twenty-seven farmers raised only 1111 acres or 35 per cent of their total bases. This year 2150 acres or 60.3 percent of the total bases were raised.

Individual farmers produced, in many instances, their full farm alloted base acres or more, while others produced no tobacco at all. The above figures are based on the county as a whole.

The short crop last year probably brought our farmers the largest net cash income of any crop since the war period. Because of the previous short crops and the large increase in consumption, most growers are optimistic as to price this yaer.

ARM SLASHED IN SUICIDE ATTEMPT

SEBASTIAN LINZO, HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO END OWN LIFE SATURDAY NIGHT.

Sebastian Linzo, 27, of New York, held in the Burlington jail charged with a robbery in Boone county four years ago, attempted to end his life Saturday night.

According to reports, Linzo went to bed, puulling the covers over his body, while his cellmate was busily engaged in reading. After several minutes he began to jerk, and the man occupying the cell with him, noticed blood dripping on the floor. He immediately called Elmer Kirkpatrick, jailer, who rendered first aid, and called Dr. M. A. Yelton who stopped the flow of blood.

Linzo is reported to have slashed his arm in several places with a safety razor blade, barely missing the main artery in one place.

He is being held on a charge of robbing the store of J. P. Brothers, of Limaburg, four years ago. He will be tried at the December term of circuit court.

He is reported to have said that there was nothing for him to live for, and that was the reason given for his attempt at suicide.

TWO CRUSHERS WILL OPERATE

IN BOONE COUNTY—FARMERS URGED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS PART OF THE AGRICULTURAL PROGRAM.

A second portable limestone pulverizer has been secured for the farmers in Boone County to begin crushing agricultural limestone about the last of this week, according to David Colville, Assistant County Agent.

Mr. R. W. Auton, who has been crushing limestone in the county since September 10th, has agreed to send another pulverizer into the Verona neighborhood as soon as possible. We can expect this pulverizer about the last of this week.

Farmers who have not earned their full soil building allowance under A. C. P. are urged to take advantage of this part of the program. Advance reports on the 1938 A. C. P. state that the soil building allowances will be decreased. This means that the 1937 allowances are probably larger than they will be in the future. Many farmers are taking advantage of this situation by earning their full allowance this year.

THE LOVE OF MONEY

The longer a man lives the more firmly he becomes convinced of the truthfulness of the old adage that "Money is the root of all evil." But he can't figure out what it is about money that causes men to commit crimes and do heartless things to get it.

As the average Boone County man sees it there is some excuse for a person stealing who is hungry or whose family is hungry and he cannot get work. But there is no excuse on earth for anyone else doing so. Today this country's greatest weak spot lies in the fact that it has too many big business men ready to crush competitors merely for the sake of adding to their already large fortunes; too many men with more money already than the can use grinding down their employes, or working women and children at starvation wages. How fortunes accumulated by such means can bring happiness or satisfaction to anyone is past understanding, and yet America possesses many so-called law-abiding citizens engaged in doing those very things.

It is difficult to understand why anyone wants any more money than enough to live in comfort. to be able to buy the things desired, to do the things one wants to do, to educate one's children and be assured of a competence on which to live when old age comes on. The fact that they can't take their money with them when they pass on doesn't seem to deter thousands of men from violating the laws—both civil and moral—by grasping for more than they need or will ever be able to make use of in the event they get it. Teach your boy these things and you will be laying the foundation for his future happiness.

RIGHT OF WAY

"I had the right of way' 'is a common expression, and one now heard offered as an alibi following almost every collision occuring on a highway around this section. Generally speaking the traffic regulations give the auto on the right the right of way, and many insist on taking advantage of the rule, regardless of consequences. But it is a rule that is much better waived than insisted upon by a driver. Life is not so cheap that one can afford to chance it on a traffic rule that a lot of drivers are in ignorance of, and after one has been injured, possibly for life, is a poor time to gain any consolation that it was the other fellow's fault. The safe way is to yield the right of way to the other fellow whenever there appears to be the slightest danger or doubt. There is nothing to be lost thru holding back for a second and permitting the other driver to have the right of way without argument. There is all to be gained in staying out of a hospital or navigating on a pair of crutches through failure to do so.

AN AFTER EFFECT

Summing up the net results of the late depression a Boston editor offers food for thought when he declares that the worst feature of it is that a lot of people found out they could actually live without working. He refers, of course, to those who, having passed through a period of idleness without going hungry, are now determined to remain idle and let the taxpayers feed them, much as the ravens fed Elijah in Biblical days. Every community has its share of them, and it is not necessary to wander very far to discover the type. How to force such citizens to accept employment, and to again take up the responsibility of earning and paying their own way is a problem every section of the U. S. has to solve. And it isn't going to be an easy job. Loss of self-respect is a terrible thing. But even that can be regained if a man shows a willingness to try to regain it through honest labor. It is the one who prefers to become an object of charity creates the real problem, and provides the most pathetic result of the entire depression heritage.

Lesson for October 24

CHRISTIAN RENEWAL

LESSON TEXT—Titus 3:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men.—Titus 2:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Good Shepherd.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In His Likeness.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A New Life in Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Renewed Life Through Christ.

The pastoral epistles, of which Titus is one, were written by Paul to his young brethren in the faith who had been called to the ministry of the gospel to instruct them concerning three important matters—(1) Church order and organization, (2) sound doctrine and (3) holy living.

The third chapter of Titus, our lesson for today, deals with the life of believers in Christ in their relation to unbelievers. The great underlying reason why Christians should conduct themselves in meekness and humility toward others is that except for God's grace we who bear the name of Christ would be, and indeed were before our regeneration, just like the unbeliever.

We shall best study our lesson, therefore, by considering first of all v. 3 which indicates the lost condition of man by nature, then follow him through the miracle of redeeming grace, vv. 4 to 7, and finally see him as a living testimony in vv. 1, 2, and 8 to 11.

I. Lost—by Nature (v. 3).

It is not a pleasant picture that is painted in the graphic words of this verse, but, remember, it is God's picture of the unbeliever. He is said to be "foolish"—that is, irrational and senseless in his course of living. He is "disobedient" to the law of God. He is "deceived," literally "out of the way," misled by Satan. He thinks his pleasures and lusts are serving him, but alas, he is only a slave in bondage to and serving them. Such a life can only result in a man's becoming hateful to his fellowmen. They in turn are hateful to him, and so he hates them. Thus the whole world becomes a hateful place where men are "living in malice and envy."

How we thank God that we need not stop at this point. Man is by nature lost in sin—but he may be

II. Saved—by Grace (vv. 4-7).

How sweet are these three words in the sinner's ears! Saved by grace, not works, and made heirs of eternal life.

1. "Not by works" (v. 5). Someone has said that man is determined by one means or another to claim salvation by his good works. To do so may flatter the flesh, but it surely finds no support whatever in Scripture. We are to work for Christ because we are saved, and after we are saved, but no man can be saved by works.

2. "By his grace" (v. 7). God shows his unspeakable kindness and love toward man—saving him by grace, through Jesus Christ. Grace has well been defined as "unmerited favor." We deserve but the just condemnation of our sin, and God in his mercy saves us, through faith in his Son.

3. "Made heirs" (v. 7). Saved now? Yes, thank God! Satisfied? Yes, praise his name! But there is more yet to come. We who deserved only God's judgment are now made heirs of an eternal hope. 'Tis indeed no small thing to be a child of God.

Now—we are ready to approach in the right spirit the admonition to live out our salvation as a daily testimony to others.

III. Witnessing, by Holy Living (vv. 1, 2, 8-11).

The young preacher Titus is told to "put them in mind" to be

1. Subject to rulers (v. 1). True patriotism (and we did not spell it "pay-triotism") stands very close to godly living. National leaders would do well to recognize that the decay of our national life will follow the decadence of spiritual life. A man who is right with God will be right with his fellowmen, and a noble and useful citizen.

2. Meek and kind to all men (v. 2). Meekness is not weakness. Gentleness is the attribute of strong men and women.

3. Maintaining good, avoiding evil (vv. 8-11). It is the tendency of man to divorce morals from religion, to profess a faith which does not touch his daily life. Let us affirm "constantly" and "confidently" (as the R. V. has it) that those who believe in God should "be careful to maintain good works"—yes, and at the same time to "avoid" that which is "foolish," contentious, "unprofitable and vain."

Knowledge and Ignorance

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

The most important things to do after receiving a burn is to cover the area with a coating of some sort as soon as possible to exclude air. An excellent preparation to have on hand is made of one pint olive oil or sweet oil mixed with as much common baking soda as it will take up. After applying to the afflicted area lightly cover with gauze or bandages torn from old linen napkins or handkerchiefs. Burns from lye or alkalis are relieved by washing with a solution of vinegar and water.

YOUR WASHINGTON and MINE

By James E. Pope

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson—soldier and patriot—starts crying out loud in his soup simply because President Roosevelt registers nausea in viewing the brigandish ambitions of lawless and murderous nations. Hearing the General as he emotes choleric and bellicose belligerency with greusome diction in his attempt to administer political adrenalin, one might believe that the President had mobilized the army and navy for the purpose of making a punitive invasion.

Every schoolboy and General Johnson know that Mr. Roosevelt had and has no thought of provoking a fight, and that there will be no fight. Official condemnation of wholesale murder, as voiced in Roosevelt's Chicago speech, finds sympathetic sanction in the hearts of millions—but this country is not headed for war!

Washington—Roosevelt bears the historical distinction of being the first occupant of the White House to recognize old-age pensions as a moral obligation of the U. S. government.

Had his Administration brought into existence nothing constructive besides this, the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt would still go down in history as that of a great President, a far-seeing statesman, an outstanding and friendly helper of mankind. Admitting that the present Social Security law is inadequate and insufficient, and not all who need and deserve pensions are getting pensions under it, and that the present set-up is not commensurable and not workable in many of the weaker or more indifferent states, it still stands as a milestone in human progress and social achievement in America.

For one thing—and this is important—it commits the National Government to the principle of old-age protection through pensions without casting upon the beneficiaries thereunder the stigma of charity. But with all that, the status of the program is yet wholly experimental. It is felt that President Roosevelt would gladly welcome a more workable plan, one which might give the country something more desirable than the not altogether workable Social Security law as it now stands. It is sensed that he might revamp the whole pension structure, and in this reconstruction give the people a program that will pay direct Federal pensions of $30 a month, minimum, and make this the sole function of the Government, independent of what the several states may or may not render in the way of co-operative assistance.

All this Black-Klan backfire and bushwhacking—with ammunition supplied by the Administration's backfriends—would sound more convincing were it not so diaphanously plain that their target is Roosevelt and not Black. At some time Mr. Black may have turned adapter for political expediency—and got caught. Others simply were not caught. But many of us regard his radio talk as a finer showing for tolerance than that exemplified by some of the intolerant ones who cannot tolerate Mr. Justice Black's declamation of intolerance.

This correspondent's ancestors were members of the original Klan in the Old South during the Reconstruction days of another century, yet we hold no brief for nor do we champion the cause of those who today, parading under a similar title, seek to propagate their sweet hells of bigotry. This is no plea for racketeering gangsters who care only for the gate receipts who preach racial and religious hatreds in furtherance of un-Christian schemes merely for the purpose of collecting enrollment fees.

This is another day. But the dark days following Appomattox and the assassination of the noble Lincoln brought terror to the hearts of Southerners—terror in its most unspeakable form a million times more ghastly than war. It was the terror spread by moral hyenas and jackals, those too cowardly to fight in Grant's army and despised by the North, who, after the bullets stopped flying, swooped down to pillage the helpless Dixieland, and by inciting the ignorant blacks to acts of violence on the persons of girl-children and women, brought into being the Ku Klux Klan of that day.

It stands as a lasting tribute to the undying spirit of American manhood that these human skunks made a concerted exodus, a sudden going forth—many of them not more than three jumps ahead of the trigger-finger or the noose!

Perhaps these Southern fathers, brothers and husbands of outraged girls and women, not being legal technicians, were technically guilty of ruthless intolerance? If so, the members of that patriotic band known as the Boston Tea Party were equally ruthless and intolerant.

There will be a clay pigeon shoot at Burlington Saturday afternoon. Bring your own gun. Shells and birds furnished.

CHEVROLETT NEWS

Chevrolet's Master models for 1938 are designed and built for owners who seek to practice thrift without compromise on completeness. To such buyers, the Master Chevrolet is presented as embodying in fullest measure those qualities which Chevrolet's extensive public contacts indicate that modern motorists demand in their cars.

Performance, economy and comfort are carried to new heights in these models, without sacrifice of beauty or style. The cars are as roomy as the Master DeLexe series; they are powered by the same 85 horsepower six-cylinder valve-in head engine; and they offer the year's outstanding engineering advance, the new "Tiptoe-matic" Chevrolet clutch.

Like the Master DeLuxe again, they embody numerous refinements, in features affecting performance, comfort, safety, durability, and style. The result is an all-round heightening of the qualities which for the past three years have been generating a steadily-increasing demand for Chevrolet, with the result that production capacity has had to be enlarged again and again.

The principal difference between the chassis of the two new Chevrolet series is the use in the Master series, of conventional I-beam front axle for the fully-enclosed knee action now beginning its fifth year as a feature of the Master DeLuxe.

Externally, the two lines are almost indistinguishable. Body style is identical. The Master DeLuxe models carry an embossed die-cast nameplate on the front end of the hood covers.

Inside the car, the differences are correspondingly slight. There is a modification in moulding trim and pillar switch for dome light, assist cords, ash receivers, rear window curtains and decorative still plates are featured on the Master DeLuxe only. The Master instrument panel is like that of the Master DeLuxe, except for the absence of a water temperature gauge. The cabriolet, in the Master series has armrests on the doors, similar to the Master DeLuxe models.

CHEMICAL SPRAYS KILL BAD WEEDS

The use of chemicals to kill Johnson grass, wild morning-glory, Canada thistle, quack grass and other notorious perennial weeds is discussed in an article by Prof. E. J. Kinney of the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Chemicals which have been found most efficient are the chlorates. These are applied in solutions, one pound of the chemical to a gallon of water. Sprayed on the growing weeds, this solution penetrates the stems and root stalks better than anything yet found, and kills the plants above and below the ground. A second or even a third spraying may be necessary to do a complete job. he says.

Where the infested area is small a sprinkling can or hand sprayer will do, but with large areas it is better to use a power spray pump.

The solution should be applied after the plants have made considerable growth; for example, in the case of Johnson grass and Canada thistle, the plants should be just beginning to head.

All vegetation, as well as the weeds, will be killed, but Prof. Kinney gives assurance that injury to the soil be only for a month or so, after which any crop can be sown.

The chlorate should be handled carefully as anything saturated with chlorate burns rapidly. Care should be taken not to get the solution on clothing or clothes should be worn that can be discarded when the spraying is finished.

Chlorate costs about 8 to 10 cents a pound, which makes it rather expensive for spraying large areas. Its most practical use is for destroying noxious perennial weeds that are just gaining a foothold.

The farmer, with his bumper crops just about harvested, is now hoping that his apple crop turns out at least six gallons to the bushel.

IF YOUR PRODUCT IS SOLD NATIONALLY

It Can Be Sold In This Community

Come on! Let's do the town!

Across the street from that filling station (selling a national brand of gas) is a big food market. Shelf after shelf of national brands—cereals, canned good, specialties, biscuits, coffee, tea, California oranges, Florida grapefruit —everything!

Next door an auto sales-room displays a popular make of car. Up the block across from a movie, a hardware merchant shows a window of radios and refrigerators—all national makes. A tobacco shop sells nationally advertised cigarettes, drug stores sell national drugs, beauty shops recommend nation-known cosmetics.

A thriving, busy, nationally-mined community of people who are well dressed, properous—eager to buy. They know values—products. Why? They read their local community newspaper and heed the advertisements listed in its columns.

If your product is sold nationally it can be sold in this community. And the best way to sell it is to advertise it in this local community newspaper reaching a majority of the substantial families, reaching them consistently, week after-week, in their homes.

When the Messrs. Garr of Oldham County had ceased firing at Henry H. Denhardt, soldier, gentleman farmer and politician, on the main thoroughfare of Shelbyville last September 13, a vacancy had been created in the ranks of the 75th Infantry Brigade . . . Denhardt was Brigadier-General of that Brigade, which includes the National Guard of Kentucky . . . The vacancy must be filled and those in the know here at Frankfort believe that Major Joseph M. Kelly, Assistant Adjutant-General, a Hopkinsville boy and a crack soldier, will be named to succeed General Denhardt . . . Kelly has the refusal of the post . . . whether he takes it or not is up to him . . . The job lasts a lifetime and comes through appointment by the Governor, the Adjutant-General with final approval by Congress . . .

Although bonded whiskies (They are readily recognized on the dispensary shelf by the green government stamp) come to the consumer at a slightly higher price than spirits under four years old, the Kentucky State Tax Commission saw fit to lower the valuations on bonded whiskies, or for that matter all distilled spirits, for taxation purposes. Spirits in bonded warehouses on Sept. 1 were listed as follows: Whiskey and brandy, 4 years old and over $50 per barrel compared with $60 last year; Whiskey and Brandy 3 years old and under 4, $34 per barrel as compared with $40 last year . . . The scale is downward to whiskey and brandy under a year old is listed at $17. •

These Kentuckians who pay an income tax and who have chosen to pay the tally on the installment plan, will within the next week that the installment is due on Nov. 15. After this next collection the state wil lhave collected approximately $5,000,000. It has already tossed $4,344,396.57 into the till through income tax since that law passed.

The good citizens of the town of Lowes, in Graves County feted its most prominent native son, Alben W. Barkley, Senate Floor Leader, Saturday. Senator Barkley was born in that community . . . Today he is prominently mentioned as presidential timber in 1940 . . It is right that the place of his birth should want to be the first to signally honor him . . . Governor Chandler was invited to attend the affair but a previous engagement prevented him from attending . . . Some folk in Frankfort are wont to believe that the Governor did not accept because Senator Barkley wired his regrets when the Governor was being honored by the citizens of Oldham County at LaGrange last summer . . . There is no rift between the two.

When the Young Democratic Clubs of Kentucky's Convention ended in Louisville last week nothing but harmony prevailed. Charley Epperson of Pikeville had been elected president to succeed Tom Logan of Covington and John Dugan had been reelected National Committeman while Mrs. H. P. Morancy, Lebanon, had been selected to the post of National Committeewoman to succeed Miss Ruth White, of Glasgow. This slate met the approval of both the State Administration and the Anti-Administration forces.

The Legislative Council, a body composed of citizens, Senators and Representatives to consider legislation which is to come before the General Assembly next January, still is working. So far no mention has been made of any tax measures that are to be brought before these august bodies.

After going through the agony of winning a primary election, Ulysses G. Foster of the Harlan-Letcher District has withdrawn from the race. His withdrawal has been posted by Secretary of State Arnett. This means that Foster felt that he could not run a good race against his Republican opponent, who is Lennie Davisworth of Cumberland.

Oft times people ask themselves:
1. Can that severe headache be coming from my feet?
2. That backache is almost killing me . . . I wonder if my feet have anything to do with it?
3. My feet are calloused very heavy under the ball of the foot . . . when I step on a pebble with that part of the foot I get a pain almost up to my head . . . How can that be corrected?
4. My ankles puff out almost over the shoe tops . . . They are not that bad when I get up in the morning . . . Now if being off my feet reduces the swelling there must be a shoe to displace weight even when I'm on my feet . . . . then there would be no swelling—

STEPHENSON IS APPOINTED

DIRECTOR OF KENTUCKY STATE INDEPENDENT TELEPHONE ASSOCIATION—120 INDEPENDENTS REPRESENTED.

E. G. Stephenson, manager of the Consolidated Telephone Company in Boone County, was honored with the appointment as director of the Kentucky State Independent Telephone Association at their meeting held in Frankfort last Saturday.

The meeting was held at the new Capitol Hotel, Frankfort, with a large part of the 120 of Kentucky's Independent Telephone Companies represented at the meeting which was called for the purpose of electing their officers and directors for the ensuing year.

Mr. Stephenson was one of the four directors to be selected for the entire state of Kentucky, which is a very honorable position. Boone County is proud of his achievement as we are convinced of his ability as a telephone manager, since he has made many improvements in our telephone system throughout the entire county.

The purpose of the Kentucky Independent Telephone Association is to obtain better contracts from the Bell System and also to promote beneficial legislation for all rural and small town subscribers.

Those present for the occasion were: S. H. Aylor and family, Miss Helen Buckshorn, Stanley Aylor and family, G. S. Aylor and family, L. T. Aylor and family, Harold Aylor, Robert Aylor and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kleemeier.

GARR BROTHERS ARE ACQUITTED

IN TRIAL OF MURDER OF GEN. HENRY H. DENHARDT—DR. GARR UNABLE TO ATTEND TRIAL.

After considering the case of Roy Garr for one hour and forty-one minutes, the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty." Roy Garr was being tried for the murder of H. H. Denhardt in Shelbyville.

A shout of approval from the courtroom crowd almost drowned out the words of A. B. Barnett, jury foreman, before he could finish.

Jack Garr, youngest of the three brothers accused of killing Denhardt, had been released earlier in the day on a directed verdict of acquittal order by Circuit Judge Charles C. Marshall.

A third brother, Dr. E. S. Garr, was accused jointly with the other brothers, but was not tried at the same time on account of mental illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Botts, of Dayton, Ky., visited relatives here Monday.

TO HOLD REVIVAL

J. R. Parker

REVIVAL AT BIG BONE METHODIST CHURCH

A two weeks' revival meeting will begin at Big Bone Methodist Church Monday night at 7:00 o'clock. J. R. Parker, Evangelist, Wilmore, Ky., will conduct the meeting. Bro. Parker is a good preacher, and does not weary his audience. Especially do the young people and children enjoy him. He usually has special singing for the children, and how they do sing! There will be other special singing, quartets, duets, etc.

We have but one motive in revival, that eternity bound souls may be saved. "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his on soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Mk. 8:36, 37. Our theme may well be "Have you counted the cost?" Our slogan may well be "Be ye therefore ready."

Everyone is welcome, regardless of church affiliation. We desire the meeting to be one of community-wide interest. We hope you will attend regularly throughout the few days of this meeting. Time flies! Eternity is speeding this way! Let us "Work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work". Bible.

—R. M. Baldwin, Pastor.

FSA TO STRESS BETTER LEASES

BETWEEN LANDLORDS AND TENANTS, SAYS W. O. BLACKBURN, COUNTY RURAL REHABILITATION SUPERVISOR.

The Farm Security Administration of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture will stress better leasing arrangements between landlords and tenants in the interest of both parties to the contract and as an aid to the success of its program, W. O. Blackburn, County Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor for the FSA announced from his office in Independence, Ky.

According to Mr. Blackburn, the need for better lease contracts, including such provisions as longer rental period, security to the landlord for the protection of his property and security to the tenant for reimbursement for improvements made by him, has been brought convincingly to the attention of supervisors during the past two years in connection with their program to help financially handicapped farmers and tenants to get on their feet again by means of Rehabilitation supervised loans, a work which since Resettlement's recent liquidation, is being carried on by supervisors under the newly established Farm Security Administration. A large percentage of farmers needing these Rehabilitation loans are tenants, he said, and it has been found easier to work out a sound farm plan for families who have satisfactory leasing contracts.

In many cases the applicant for these loans needs credit not only for livestock and equipment—articles which can be taken with him if he is required to move, but also credit for soil improvement items, such as lime and seed for permanent pasture, the returns from which the tenant will not be able to realize in dollars and cents the first year and which he cannot take away with him when he moves. Rehabilitation supervised loans are repayable over a period of from one to five years, the longer period being provided to give the borrower more time in which to pay for these items which are expected to produce results over a period of years. Where such applicant is a tenant, a satisfactory leasing arrangement makes it easier, other qualifications and conditions being favorable, to work out a practical farm plan with suitable crop rotation and to extend the loan over the longer period. In many cases, it has been found impossible to work out a suitable farm plan or to approve a loan until a satisfactory lease has been secured.

Now that the Farm Security Administration has been set up to to tackle the farm tenancy problem, security of farm tenure, whether by tenants or owners, has been recognized as the real goal, Mr. Blackburn said.

"One road to security of tenure is by ownership, but appropriations, for the present at least, are so limited that loans to buy farms of their own. The Rural Rehabilitation surpervise loans (which do not include money for land purchase) will continue as the major activity of the FSA. Therefore, the second road to security of tenure must be emphasized, namely, better leases, improved relationship between landlord and tenant. The problem resolves itself into one of developing a leasing contract which will give the tenant more interest in co-operating with the owner in making improvements for their mutual advantage."

Mr. Blackburn stated that his agency is working hand in hand with the Extension Service, Agricultural Colleges and other agencies which have been stressing the need for better leases in an educational way but that FSA finds it necessary to meet the problem in a practical way and because of the fact that his agency's loan and farm management system is designed to work in the interest of both landlord and tenant, it is believed that a practical incentive for better leases has been found and that in time, with the continued co-operation of the above named education agencies, this common incentive for the better leases will be generally recognized.

80 PERCENT OF ALLOWANCE

EARNED BY BOONE COUNTY FARMERS — PRACTICALLY TWICE AS MUCH AS EARNED LAST YEAR.

Boone County Agricultural Conservation Association Committeemen report an estimate of 80 percent of the 1937 A. C. P. Soil Building Allowance earned, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. This would be almost double the 41 percent earned last year and would show progress in soil building practices.

Farmers have thru Saturday until October 31st to carry out seeding liming and phosphate practices in order to earn 100 percent of their allowances. The keeping of all land, not in growing cultivated crops, covered with good stands of grasses, legumes and winter cover crops, plus the addition of limestone, phosphate and light coverings of manure, are foundation steps in soil conservation and soil improvement.

The agricultural conservation program this year, backed by the splendid support of our farmers, has resulted in record soil improvement progress in Boone County.

BE A GOOD SPORT

All this talk about what will happen unless trees are protected from slaughter and soil from erosion is worthy of study. But there is still another phase of conservation that is treated too lightly by quite a few people around Boone County during each fall and winter season, and that is the matter of conserving wild life.

Protecting game does not mean refusing to hunt when it is legal to do so, nor does it mean abstaining from the killing of such game in season as the laws of the state permit. Game conservation means nothing more and nothing less than being a good sport and killing lawful season only a sufficient amount for your needs. It does not mean killing by wholesale simply because the game is to be had and your marksmanship is good, nor does it mean killing your quota if a lesser amount will meet your food demands.

That this community, like most all others, has its share of "game hogs" is common knowledge to a great many real sportsmen—the kind who are satisfied to kill only what they need and who are too law-abiding to kill during the closed season. But the "game hog" like the man who poisons dogs or dynamites fish, is almost always too wily to be caught in the act.

A little closer cooperation with the state game conservation department, and a more careful watch for game law violations will, however, go a long way toward discouraging such activity in this community. If the honest sportsmen will make it plan that they are the enemies of all "game hogs" then hunting will be more of a joy for those who indulge in it, and human needs will be more easily satisfied because there will be more game to kill.

JUST A HINT

Some years ago a tourist complained to a man who ran a restaurant in a small southern town that he couldn't get service while the waitress danced with local patrons. "Those people come here all the time; I may never see you again," the proprietor replied. And he never did. While there are some business men who argue that the restaurant man was right a majority will doubtless agree that there is much more to be said in alike whether they live in one's town or are merely passing thru it. The tourist trade has now come to be of great importance to practically every section of this country. And those business places which are profiting most from their trade are those whose purveyors to tourists have learned that imparital courtesy and attention to townspeople and visitors alike pays the largest dividends in the end.

YOU CAN'T DO IT

No matter what you may have to say in praise of the radio as compared with the newspaper, there are a lot of things you can't do. For instance, you can't put a radio broadcast in your pocket and read it at your leisure. You can't save a clipping from a radio broadcast. You can't stop listening to answer a knock at the front door without missing something. You can't get a line on market prices when you have but a few minutes to spare but the program that is being broadcast has another half-hour to run. You can't find out what your own neighbors are going, for you can listen to the radio forever and you will never hea rabout the death and accidents, the marriages and the births, the fires and the festivals in your own community. You can't mark something of interest and send it to a distant relative by mail. And no housewife in all the world can use a radio broadcast for nice, clean pantry shelf covering. It's a wonderful thing, this thing we know as radio. But it hasn't taken the place of the home-town paper. And it never will.

VOTE AGAINST THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

We would again call the attention of the voters to the two constitutional amendments to be voted on at the November election to be held on Tuesday, November 2. The importance and possible effects upon the county governments if they should be adopted, is so far reaching that we feel impelled to urge that you read carefully the amendments and go to the polls and cast your vote against them. They are very skillfully drawn with the evident purpose of not attracting too much attention of the voters.

Under the present constitution all county officials, Judge, Sheriff, County Attorney, County Clerk, Tax Commissioner, Jailer, Circuit Clerk, Magistrates, Coroner and Constables, are elected by the direct vote of the people. Also in the same manner, the city officials, including Mayor, Commissioners and Police Judge are elected. If the constitutional amendments are approved it will result in an all-centralized government at Frankfort with the Legislature determining the kind of government you will have in every county of the State.

All officials would be appointed by some political boss and be subservient to his dictation. It would be possible to require the taxpayer to go to Frankfort to list his property or pay his taxes. If he desired to make a deed, make a settlement as administrator, executor or guardian, it is possible that a special trip to Frankfort or some other central point would be necessary.

All law enforcement of the city and county may be placed under one directing head who could have his chief office at his convenience in some remote part of the State, inaccessible to the citizens of the county. All of the county's fiscal affairs would be removed from local control of the people by the board of magistrates and placed in the hands of some individual or board.

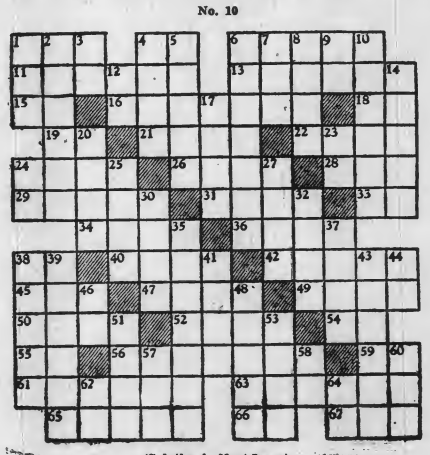
In the second amendment it is proposed to remove the barriers to the number of amendments that may be submitted at one time or at one lection. The constitution now provides that only two may be submitted at one election.

If this amendment is adopted, it makes it possible to wreck the whole state constitution without submission to the vote of people for approval.

We call attention of the voters fearing that they may be so occupied in their business affairs that they may overlook voting on these amendments.

COST OF CARELESSNESS

When it is understood that last year's forest fires burned over an area of 43,000,000 acres and caused a financial loss of $50,000,000 the average citizen can understand the necessity for extreme care when in the woods or fields at this season. Some 2,000,000 persons depend on the woods for their living, while more than 70,000,000 enjoy those woods during each vacation season. What the ultimate result will be unless there is a decrease in forest fires is a matter for serious consideration, especially when government reports show that nine out of every ten forest fires are caused by human carelessness. That is a terrible indictment of our wastefulness. The dry autumnal season is at hand, with its increase in fire hazards. Everyone should keep that in mind and use the utmost care in keeping intact the stately green mansions that are our forests.



It's a great kindness to trust some women with a secret; they feel so important while telling it.

DEFECTIVE FLUES

It would probably be safe to say that more fires at this season of the year can be traced to defective flues than to any other source. It is the season for erecting stoves and starting up heating plants for winter service, and in performing that operation many are inclined to exhibit a measure of carelessness. Naturally, no one wants to lose his home, and especially right at the outset of the winter season. When it can be avoided through a careful inspection of flues, chimneys and stove piping, then such an investigation becomes highly important. Be sure the chimney is free of all obstacles before setting up a stove. Then make sure that the pipe is in perfect condition, and not damaged by rust. Make sure too, that each point fits perfectly. It may take a few minutes time to go over these things carefully. But those few minutes may prevent the loss of your home and its contents.

Lesson for October 31

THE MORAL ISSUE IN THE DRINK PROBLEM

LESSON TEXT—Romans 13:12-14; I Corinthians 6:9-11; Galatians 5:16-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh.—Galatians 5:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—My Neighbors.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Greatest Law.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Is It Wrong to Drink Alcoholic Beverages?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Moral Issue in the Drink Problem.

First, let it be clear that there is an issue. Those who have business, social, or political connections with the liquor traffic would like to have us believe that the repeal of prohibition settled the matter once for all. But let us be sure of this fact—the liquor problem is at our very door, and it must be met.

In the second place, many would have us think that the matter of drunkenness is a social, political, or even a physical problem, without any moral implications whatever. But those who are informed know that even the supposedly innocent beer is inextricably tied up with vice and crime. A prisoner in a federal penitentiary writing before prohibition was repealed said, "Criminals hail with delight . . . the return of liquor via the beer route and the greater license that the return of the saloon will inevitably bring. With the return of beer will come open prostitution and gambling." His words were true.

I. Drunkenness Is a Work of Darkness (Rom. 13:12-14).

Just as there are darkness and daylight in the physical universe, so there are two contrasting spiritual realms, of darkness and light.

Men "loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil," according to the Lord Jesus. (See John 3:19.) This spiritual realm of darkness is directed by "rulers of the darkness of this world" (Eph. 6:12), and their purpose is "spiritual wickedness." With the "works of darkness" the believer is to "have no fellowship" (Eph. 5:11), but is to "reprove them" and bring them into the light where their true nature is made manifest (Eph. 5:13).

"God is light, and in him is no darkness at all," and those who have fellowship with him "walk in the light." (See I John 1:5-7.)

Drunkenness is a work of darkness. It separates man from God and makes him fear the glorious light of his countenance. The solution for that awful condition is revealed in v. 14. "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ."

II. Drunkenness Is a Work of Unrighteousness (I Cor. 6:9-11).

No drunkard "shall inherit the kingdom of God" (v. 10), and the man who takes his first drink has put his foot on the path that leads to the drunkard's grave. Of course no man plans to go that far, but the fact is that such is the tragic conclusion for hundreds of thousands of men and women—damned for time and eternity by drink.

Again in this passage we have the answer to our problem. Not reformation, not education, not culture (desirable and useful though we recognize these things to be), but being "washed," "sanctified," and "justified" in "the name of the Lord Jesus and in the Spirit of God." Try that on your town drunkard. Thank God, it works!

III. Drunkenness Is a Work of the Flesh (Gal. 5:16-24).

The flesh—that is our bodies ruled over by self-will as opposed to God's will—is revealed in the Scriptures to be thoroughly bad, and in opposition to God. Consider the appalling list of the works of the flesh in verses 19 and 20. And note that in the midst of them stands drunkenness.

It is the lowest in man that responds to intoxicants. Little wonder that the Brewers' Journal came out right after the election of 1932 with the statement that "not one tenth of one-per cent of American youths know the taste of real beer. We must educate them." In other words the normal taste of an intelligent person would revolt at the stuff, but once give it a chance to stir the lusts of "the flesh" and the victim is caught.

Once again, note the antidote—live in the power of the Holy Spirit, and the flesh with its lusts is crucified (v. 24). How shall we have the Holy Spirit and his power in our lives? By taking the Lord Jesus Christ as personal Saviour.

Words Without Action

Few men suspect how much mere talk fritters away spiritual energy—that which should be spent in action, spends itself in words.

Last Friday, Oct. 22, sixteen members of the Petersburg Homemakers Club met at the school house to paint pottery.

The Club had lunch with the P.-T. A. which was enjoyed by all.

Don't forget the next meeting and bring a visitor and let them see what interesting work we have.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT
TO BE VOTED UPON TUES., NOV. 2ND

Acts of General Assembly 136, page 55

Within the territorial confines of counties (as now existing or as hereafter established) the General Assembly may by legislation of state-wide application, or of application according to classification based on population, retain, modify and consolidate any and—or all governmental bodies, offices, agencies and institutions; may enlarge, curtail, modify, consolidate, redefine and redistribute the powers, duties, functions and juristdiction of governmental bodies, offices agencies and courts, and may provide the number of judges for such courts; and may abolish all governmental bodies, offices, agencies and institutions, and may abolish all courts inferior to the Circuit Court and may set up new ones in their stead; and may provide the method of selection of all officers, their compensation and the means and methods of its payment. Provided, no legislation hereunder shall affect any elected officer during his term of office.

In this revolutionary proposal we are given no hint of what the new county governments are to be. We are asked to vote blindly for some sort of new county government.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT No. 19

TOBACCO GRADER TO BE IN COUNTY

FOR DEMONSTRATIONS ON NOVEMBER 26TH AND 27TH—SERIES OF STRIPPING AND GRADING DEMONSTRATIONS.

The College of Agriculture has arranged to have a Federel Tobacco Grader to work in Boone County on November 26th and 27, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. A series of stripping and grading demonstration will be given in communities where farmers are interested.

Boone County growers take considerable pride in their ability to judge, strip and grade tobacco. However, there is found considerable differences in opinion and often the growers do not understand why some grades bring a higher price than other grades on the market. The dates and places of the meeting will be announced in the near future.

PRISONS SUBJECT OF FAVORABLE COMMENT

In a report to Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis, State Department of Welfare, Dr. J. M. Watters, Director of the Division of Corrections, who has just returned from Philadelphia where he attended the Sixty-seventh Annual Congress of the American Prison Association, stated that the Kentucky program for rehabilitation of State institutions was the subject of favorable comment on several occasions during the sessions. Reference was made by speakers, who addressed the congress, and in discussions to the modernized attitude of this State toward correctional measures tending to a progress rehabilitation, he said.

According to Dr. Watters, the association advocated as necessary to best results in prison supervision: the classification of prisoners thru use of psychology and psychiatry, the segragation of inmates by institutions, the rehabilitation of prisoners through reeducation, medical and psychiatric treatment, and a closely supervised parole and probation system.

Dr. Watters and H. B. Bastin, superintendent of the Jefferson County Children's Home, were elected as members of the board of directors of the association.

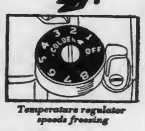
"ELECTROLUX GIVES US PERFECT REFRIGERATION ... SAVES ENOUGH TO PAY FOR ITSELF"



REPORT FARM OWNERS

READ WHAT MRS. E. C. CUMMAGE, EUFAULA, ALA., WRITES: "Living nine miles from the ice plant was a great inconvenience to go for ice every two days—then refrigeration was not uniform, causing food spoilage when we could not get ice. Now with our Kerosene Electrolux we have all the ice we need. The ample food storage capacity enables me to save lots of leftovers. We figure our Electrolux will save us its price every year."

Plenty of ice cubes with Electrolux

Temperature regulator speeds freezing

KEROSENE Electrolux keeps food fresh every minute of every day ... brings you all the comforts and conveniences that have made the famous gas-operated Electrolux the choice for finest city homes and apartments from coast to coast. It gives you such things as plenty of ice cubes at all times ... new delicious frozen desserts ... more freedom from kitchen work.

And consider this: Electrolux operates on ordinary kerosene for only a few pennies a day. One filling of the tank lasts a week or more. Owners find that Electrolux actually saves enough on food bills and refrigerating cost to pay for itself.

This outstanding efficiency is the result of Electrolux's simple refrigerating principle. A wickless glow-type kerosene burner does all the work ... takes the place of moving, wearing parts. Today, write for free literature about this beautiful, labor-saving refrigerator. Use the coupon below.

MILLIONS SUFFER

by N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist
at
PEOPLES FOOT COMFORT
828 Madison Ave., Covington, Ky.

A prominent "Foot Specialist" stated that it may be a far cry from a case of headache or backache or indigestion to a pair of bad feet, but the sooner the sufferer realized that the pain the back of the head CAN be related to the pain in the bottom of his feet—the sooner he is going to get relief.

When you cramp blood supply to any part of the foot, you only deprive it of the food it should have to keep healthy, but the slower blood stream cannot clear away waste matter as it should. We find chemical deposits form at the joints of the feet and legs and then inflamation develops leading to pain and discomfort that makes you, misearble all over. These symptoms are often mistaken for arthritis, rheumatism or some other serious ailment.

Don't suffer any longer! SEE OUR FOOT ANALYST. He will analyze your foot comfort problems free of charge.—Adv.

SMALL VOTE IS POLLED TUES.

F. M. WALTON AND C. D. BENSON LEAD TICKET WITH 1167 VOTES EACH—AMENDMENTS DEFEATED BY LARGE COUNT.

Voters throughout Boone County showed little interest in the general election held Tuesday of this week, and a very small vote was cast.

F. M. Walton and C. D. Benson led the ticket with 1167 votes each, with Judge N. E. Riddell and Elmer Kirkpatrick, close seconds having 1156 votes each on their tally.

One vote was received by Forest Brown for County Judge and one voter cast his ballot for E. R. Rivard for the same office.

Hubert Meredith, candidate for Attorney General received 1141 votes to his opponent's 109.

Due to the democratic candidates having no opposition in Boone County, little interest was created. However, the Constitutional Amendments, 19 and 20, aroused considerable interest, and some precincts in the county workers were busy throughout the day working both for and against the proposed changes. Both amendments were defeated by a large majority. Amendment 19 was defeated by a majority of 1,073 and No. 20 by a majority of 604.

All indications point to a landslide throughout the state against both Constitutional Amendments, as early returns from at least ten counties show the amendments defeated by a 20 to 1 count.

Considerable interest was manifest in the election of a town marshal for Florence, with Wood L. Stephens and Lee Eddins as the candidates. Stephens was the victor by a 10-vote majority.

Meredith 1141, Hawkins 109; Sidebottom 1156; Ransom 1144; Riddell 1158; Benson 1167; Riley 1-150; F. M. Walton 1167; Kirkpatrick 1156; N. G. Walton 1138; Stephens 1162; Huey 297; White 484; Jones 376; Amendment No. 19 Yes115, No. 1138; Amendment No. 20 Yes 46, No 650.

HALLOWE'EN PASSES WITH LITTLE DAMAGE TO LOCAL PROPERTY

Halowe'en passed very quietly with only a few reporting damage to property in this locality. A few residents reported that a few articles about their residences were wrecked, but the articles were not very costly.

A tennis net belonging to the local tennis club was cut into ribbons by some of the pranksters. We believe when anyone deliberately damages property that he is deriving no fun from his actions whatsoever, and should be punished for the damage done.

DEMOCRAT DANCE VERY SUCCESSFUL

The dance given by the Young Men's Democratic Club of Boone County Wednesday evening, Oct. 27, 1937, at Zimmer's Club House, was well attended. The music was exceptionally good and the floor show was complimented by all who were there as one of the best they had ever seen.

The dance was also successful financialyl, and the proceeds were turned over to the Florence Volunteer Fire department to help pay off its debt on fire equipment.

The club wants to thank all those who helped make this dance a success.

JUNIORS TO GIVE PLAY

AT BURLINGTON HIGH SCHOOL FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5—IS INTERESTING — TITLED "FROM SHOAT GAP TO HARVARD."

When the curtain rises Friday evening, November 5, every interested patron of the Burlington school should be present to see the Junior class present the comedy-drama, "From Shoat Gap to Harvard."

The story is that of a young man who has all of the handicaps common to a small community plus competition for a scholarship which has certain stipulations as to family ancestry, social rank, etc. Mack, played by Clayton Clore, is able to overcome all obstacles, and with the help of his school-day sweetheart, he is successful in getting the scholarship. Hilda Ryle is the noble and sympathetic type of girl who is willing to sacrifice all for the one that she loves.

Everyone will enjoy the genuine comedy scenes between Brunhilda and Sammy played by Hester Fields and Dudley Rouse as well as those afforded by the three college Sophomores who thoroughly enjoy the fun had at the expense of the good people from Shoat Gap. Carolyn Cropper, Frances Presser, and Edward Rogers take the parts of Charlene, Audrey, and Sonny. No one will forget the oratory and philanthropic spirit of the Big Business man and Senator Lum Martin, of Shoat Gap played by Keith Vice.

Who does not get genuine pleasure from hearing the community news through the village gossip? Mrs. Oaks lets you in on everything. Pauline Norris can know less and imagine more than the average small-town gossip. Of course Ruby Cotton, as the Shoat Gap teacher, Miss Palmer, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hammett, played by Martha Hightower and Arnold Craddock carry the school and community ideas along with the story. When it is necessary to show the difference between blue blood and red blood Americans, William Ryle Presser, as Archie Thornhill, takes the prize.

You must see this play to really get a look-in on what is actually happening in many small communities today. Your boys and girls will play better if you are present.

HAY YIELDS INCREASED

IN BOONE COUNTY THROUGH USE OF LIME AND PHOSPHATE —INCREASE SHOWS 265 PER CENT.

Lime and phosphate increased the yield of Boone County hay and pasture crops 265.1 per cent on demonstration fields this year, according to H. H. Forkner, County Agent. Forty-one farmers who received T. V. A. demonstration phosphate in 1936 cooperated in this demonstration work.

Demonstration reports turned in show that the average increased yields on phosphate treated fields on 24 farms was 87.7 per cent. The increased yield on individual farms varied from no increase yield in three cases to 500 per cent in one case.

Lime and phosphate combined with good farming in use of seeding mixtures are unquestionably the greatest long time soil amendments. They are not quick acting, bringing miraculous changes over night. Apparently, the first year, the differences between the treated and untreated are not so great. The second year the untreated plots show the tendency to weaken down and thin out. The second year the stands of grass and legume crops on the treated plots are thick and abundant. A liberal application ofphosphate will last from three to five years and lime will last for 10 or more years.

Certainly with the help of the Agricultural Conservation program no farmer can fail to use limestone or phosphate on soil conserving crops. Limestone can be crushed on the farm at a small cost and phosphate can be secured at a relatively low cost.

Lime check plot reports available on 12 farms give an average increase of 45 per cent. Lime increases varied from nothing in three cases to 200 per cent in one case.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY IS CELEBRATED

On Sunday, October 24, friends of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Pierson gathered at the Lloyd Club House in Florence, to celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson, both of whom belonged to pioneer families, descended from Revolutionary stock, were married in Florence. They have lived in Boone County and at other places, but at present have their home in Erlanger. Mrs. Pearson has been active in club and social work and is at present a member of the D. A. Members of this society planned and carried out the celebration in a most fitting manner. The house was beautifully decorated with large yellow chrysanthemums, the gifts of club members and friends. The dining room was tastefully arranged, and a buffet luncheon, consisting of sandwiches, salads, cakes, ice cream, fruits and other dainties was served. Mrs. Beatrice McWilliams, of Cincinnati, presided at the coffee service.

In the center of the table was a large wedding cake artistically iced with golden yellow frosting, which Mrs. Pearson cut and served to each guest. Mrs. Ezra O. Rouse was in charge of the punch. In the late afternoon Mr. Pearson treated the men to cigars.

PEOPLE URGED TO BACK RED CROSS

DRIVE—EXECUTIVE, IN PROCLAMATION, RECALLS TREMENDOUS SERVICE OF ORGANIZATION TO KENTUCKY.

Governor Albert B. Chandler issued a proclamation last week directing attention to the annual roll call of the American Red Cross in Kentucky, November 11 to November 25, and urging the people of the state to support the organization's work by becoming members or renewing their membership.

"Keenly conscious," says the Governor, "of our debt to the American Red Cross because of its extensive flood relief work in our own state during the year, the fact that this organization was responsible for bringing to the aid of our stricken people trained workers for the alleviation of suffering and funds to the extent of more than nine million dollars for food, shelter and rehabilitation,  I am glad to urge upon my fellow Kentuckians that they become members of the American Red Cross during the membership campaign between November 11 and Thanksgiving Day."

HALLOWE'EN PARTY SUCCESS

GIVEN BY MOTHER'S CLUB OF THE BURLINGTON SCHOOL LAST SATURDAY NIGHT— ALL ENJOY PROGRAM.

Perhaps the best way to judge the success of any party is by what those who are present say about it. If this is true, the Hallowe'en party sponsored by the Mother's Club of the Burlington school was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The parade in costume was the colorful event which all were glad to see and take part in, and was characterized by every conceivable type of Hallowe'en being. Other clever parts of the program consisted of music, the "Cake Walk," guessing who was who, etc. No one can tell how many thrills come to the kiddies and we may say to the big "Kiddies" like County Judge Riddell and Sheriff Bill Cotton. It is enough to say that these "kiddies" also got the thrills of fishing along side of such others as Charlotte Benson or June Brown.

The Mother's Club wishes to publicly thank all who had a part in making the evening so pleasant. Many donated things which could be sold, others worked hard for the success of the evening, while still others added their share with their kindly smile and good spirit. After all, it is the spirit manifested by all that puts a thing over on the right side.

Aside from those who were not costumed there were some two hundred wearing the false faces and robes of the spooky world. Prizes winners follows: Children, tackiest, Billy Dietz; prettiest, Mary Jane Pettit; best character, Dorothy Gaines; smallest costumed Charlotte Benson and for adults, tackiest, Walter Brown; prettiest Mrs. Kirtley Cropper; best character, Mrs. Bess Rouse. The winners of the Cake walk contest were Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Brady.

Special thanks should go to Alvin Stephens, editor of the Boone County Recorder, for his cooperation in giving publicity to the program. Others who worked during the evening were Judges, N. E. Riddell, Mrs. James McNeely, and Miss Gillaspie; doorkeepers, Elsa Poston and H. R. Forkner; master of ceremony, Alexander Yelton; music by the colored orchestra.

Those present will never forget the beautiful decorations, the attractive costumes, noisemakers, the spooks, skeletons, witches, and devils that made everybody go home glad that they were alive and able to join into the spirit of so gala an occasion .

WALTON SCHOOL TEACHER PASSES

AFTER SHORT ILLNESS—HAD BEEN PRINCIPAL OF WALTON HIGH SCHOOL FOR PAST 11 YEARS.

Raymond Bevarly, youthful principal of Walton High School, died Monday at Christ Hospital, Cincinnati, to ill, as death loomed, to accept the sacrifice of life-giving blood which 30 young friends had offered for him.

The friends were pupils of his school.

Mr. Bevarly was scarcely older than they when he assumed leadership at the school. When he died he had been its principal for 11 years—and he was but 32 years old when he died.

Mr. Bevarly had been ill for some time before he was taken to the hospital for treatment two weeks ago. It became apparent that a blood transfusion would be necessary.

Thirty pupils of his school volunteered to donate blood. Their blood was tested.

But the condition of their friend and teacher was such that a transfusion could not be made. He slipped into death without the succor that 30 boys and girls would have been happy and proud to provide for him.

Mr. Bevarly was a graduate of Kentucky Wesleyan College and the University of Kentucky.

Surviving him are his father, S. W. Bevarly, Worthville, Ky., a brother, Philip Bevarly, Evansville, Ind., and a sister, Miss Virginia Bevarly, Erlanger.

His body was taken from the Chambers and Grubbs funeral home, Walton, to his father's home in Worthville Tuesday.

Services are to be held today at 10 o'clock at the Worthville Methodist Episcopal Church. Burial will be at Campbellsburg, Ky.

Mrs. Fannie Goodridge

Mrs. Fannie Goodridge passed away Saturday morning at her home, Commonwealth Ave., Erlanger, Ky., after a short illness. The remains were removed to the Tallaferro Funeral Home for preparation.

She is survived by one niece, Mrs. Alfred Reader, Columbus, O., four nephews, Homer, Fred, John and Raymond Stephens, all of Ohio.

The pallbearers were Homer, Fred, John, Roy and Robert Stephens and Alfred Reader.

Services were conducted Tuesday at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Leslie M. Sparks, pastor of the Erlanger Christian Church at the Taliaferro Funeral Home, interment following in Florence cemetery, by the side of her husband, John Goodridge.

LITTLE BUSINESS TRANSACTED HERE COUNTY COURT DAY

Although there was quite a crowd attending County Court here Monday, very little business was transacted in the courthouse. Two tracts of land were sold by the Master Commissioner, A. D. Yelton, and two wills were probated. Outside of these two items, nothing of importance came before the court.

See "Chocolate Box Review" tonight or tomorrow night at Florence high auditorium. 15 & 25c.

KEEP THIS IN MIND

Every newspaper in the country feels it would be remiss in its duty to its readers if it neglected along about this time each year to sound a warning against that deadly enemy of the motoring world—carbon monoxide gas. The warning is now timely, even though it may be sounded in words with which Boone County motorists are familiar.

To those ignorant of the deadly menace, it may be said that carbon monoxide is nothing more than the exhaust from an auto engine. In summer, when temperatures are high ,the gas passes into the air unnoticed and wtih no damaging effect. During fall and winter months, howeve r, when the temperatures are low, the gas hangs in the air and its fumes, breathed into the lungs has adeadly effect. If your engine is running out in the open air, then there is no material danger. But if you start your motor in a closed garage, or permit it to run in a garage whose windows are closed, then your chance of escaping death is reduced to a mighty narrow margin.

Carbon monoxide is the most deadly of all known gases and the annual toll of death directly due to it in this country runs into the thousands every year. But one positive and absolute protection from it exists. Never start your motor during the fall or winter in a closed garage. Be sure the doors or windows are open before you you step on the starter, and then do not permit the motor to continue running indoors any longer than necessary. Back the car into the open. You are taking your life in your hands when you follow any other course.

WILD OR MILD?

The returns now seem to be in, and it looks like a tie. About half of the country's amateur weather prophets are forecasting another long, hard winter like the nation shivered through two years ago, while the other half contends that time-tried and long-tested signs all indicate it is going to be both short and balmy.

One half says the squirrels are storing more nuts than usual, and that means a hard winter; the other half contends wild duck and geese did not start south so early this fall, and that means a mild, open season. Some of them contend husks on the nation's bumper corn crop are thicker than they normally are, which indicates plenty of snow and ice ahead; others assert that moss is almost absent from the north sides of forest trees, and that mild winters invariably follow this condition.

And so they go, these amateur prophets of joy and gloom, about evenly divided in their forecasts of what kind of winter lies ahead. As long as they are evenly divided there is always the chance, of course, that half of them are bound to be right. But the average citizen around Boone County isn't being fooled by their predictions. He is putting his house in order for whatever comes. If it is a mild season, he will be thankful. If it is a severe one, he is prepared to make the best of it. The only thing ahead that he looks forward to with dread is the coming of spring, when at least one-half of these ameateur weather prophets will be chirping: "I told you so!"

TO MAKE VARNISH AND PAINT REMOVER

The Kentucky College of Agriculture offers the following formula for a home-made paint and varnish remover. Use a gallon of denatured alcohol, a gallon of benzol and a fourth of a pound of paraffine. Shave the paraffine into the benzol and let stand over night. Add the alcohol in the morning. Make and use away from fire.

Apply the remover to a small area. Allow the finish to soften. scrape off softened finish with a putty knife or steel scraper. Repeat until the finish is removed. Wipe with crushed paper or cloth. Rinse with alcohol or gasoline. Dry and sand.

More Machines

A news report out of Chicago is to the effect that every corn-picking machine that was on the market was sold this year and that the manufacturers say they could have sold ten times as many if they had produced them. Of course, there was a bumper corn crop to be handled. Then too, there was a scarcity of farm labor—let it be said to the shame of a country with such a vast army of unemployed. The new device that gathers the ears, husks them and then loads them onto a truck may be the means of solving the farm labor shortage in the future. Many local citizens, however, probably will take a more pessimistic view of it. They will wonder if this newest labor-saving device will not on the other hand, create a still greater army of unemployed for the taxpayers of the country to take care of. If so, then the corn-picker will turn out to be a burden instead of a blessing.

A BLOW AT WAR

When officials or over 300 big insurance companies gathered in London recently an dresolved that henceforth no losses will be paid on property damaged through war, uprisings or revolutions, it was the hardest blow ever struck at war. They assert that if big business realizes it is not going to have its properties and muntions stocks and war supplies protected, then there isn't going to be enough profit in war to warrant the gamble. And that is the way a lot of citizens around Boone County have long felt about it. Take the profits out of war and the chance of starting one will be greatly lessened. When war begins to flatten instead of fatten pocketbooks, there will be a more general demand for peace. The insurance men have hit the old God of War an awful rap, and humanity owes them a debt of gratitude for doing so.

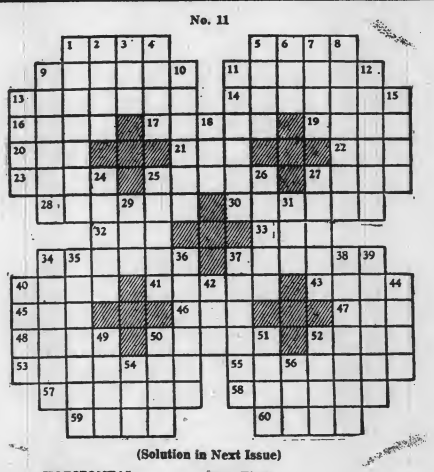
WHY JUNK IT?

This day in time when it's stylish to be thrifty and the practice of economy is among our greatest virtues it's hard to understand why so many are wasting when there is no occasion for it. For instance, take the housewife who hauls out perfectly good furniture, a stove or other pieces of household goods that are still serviceable and stacks the same away in cellar, attic, garage or barn when someone in the community would be glad to have it at a reasonable price. Or the farmer who does the same thing when he replaces old implements with new. Is that economy? There are folks right around here who would be glad to get such things if you would tell them about it. And it would cost but a few cents to tell them—and sell them—through the columns of this paper. You would not only be doing a real service to someone who could not afford to buy the articles new that you are practically throwing away, but it would ret you a few dollars at the same time. It certainly will beat junking the things that are still serviceable to someone.



But It's True——————!

Mr. Reiter's face is a blank from the nose down to the chin. His congregations are made up of normal people, not mutes. They have learned the sign language just to be able to "hear" what he has to say. He is fed through a tube which enters his stomach.

Lesson for November 7

CHRISTIAN CHARACTER AND PEACE

LESSON TEXT—Colossians 3:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body.—Colossians 3:15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—In His Name.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In His Name.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How May I Have Peace?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Cure for Strife.

Armistice day is but a few days away, a fact which was probably in mind when the title of our lesson was chosen, for while it speaks of "Christian character" it also refers to "peace." But the peace spoken of here is the peace of God which is the result of peace with God and which issues in holy living. The only hope of this world for a real and lasting peace is in the winning of men and women to glad allegiance to the Prince of Peace, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Altogether proper is the close connection in Scripture between the most profound spiritual truth and practical holy living. Whether it be done in a land of enlightenment or in the midst of heathen darkness the teaching of the deep things of God brings forth in the receptive heart an appreciation of God's provision for our redemption, a consciousness and hatred of sin and an appropriation of victory in Christ. All three of these factors emerge in the study of our lesson.

I. "Seek Those Things Which Are Above" (vv. 1-4).

Faith in Christ makes us one with him in his death and in his resurrection. We are therefore to live in resurrection power. Our Lord has entered into heaven, and is there seated at God's right hand. If we are in him, if we have died and arisen with him, we are dead to the things of this world and our one desire is to "seek those things which are above."

The mystic union of the believer with Christ brings us so close to God our Father that we may say with the poet:

"Near, so very near to God.
Nearer I could not be.
For in the person of His Son
I am as near as He."

We are "hid with Christ in God." He is our very life. Note however that this union with Christ expresses itself in a most practical manner for we as Christians are admonished to

II. "Mortify Your Members . . . upon the Earth" (vv. 5-9).

The most spiritual Christian is the one who is most sensitive to sin and most earnest in his purpose that it should be mortified—which means "put to death." We may not temporize—we must not compromise with sin. Put it to death.

The list of things which are to be put away include a number of sins which we recognize at once as utterly inconsistent with a Christian profession. But note also that there are a number of them which are all too common among Christian people — covetousness, anger, wrath, malice, and so forth. Lying and shameful talk are condoned by some (and practiced by many).

III. "Put On the New Man" (vv. 11-17).

Christianity is positive. We put off sin—we put on righteousness. Knowing no lines of racial or creedal distinction we recognize Christ as "all and in all." Then as "God's elect, holy and beloved," we are clothed with the Spirit of Christ. Tenderhearted, kind, lowly, meek, of a forgiving spirit, long-suffering; all these Christlike ways of living should appear in those who are hid with him in God. As the encircling band which holds together these beautiful and precious virtues, we have love, "the bond of perfectness" (v. 14).

These outward manifestations of our oneness with Christ have an inward controlling power—for in our hearts "the peace of Christ" is to "rule." The word means to serve as "umpire," as a referee in times of difficulty. There in the Christian man's inmost being we also find the "word of Christ" dwelling, really abiding, and not in scarcity but "richly." Small wonder that there is in such a heart a never-ending song which glorifies God's grace and which helps and admonishes others.

Our final verse sums up the life of the Christian, for in whatsoever he does there is but one motive, one purpose—a willing thankful response to the will of God. He does nothing that he cannot do in the name of the Lord Jesus.

Party Invitations Are Problem Here

DEAR Mrs. Post: Two sisters and their brother would like to give a big dance and have asked me to suggest an invitation to their party. I've really had great difficulty trying to compose this due to the three hosts' names. Written formally, each one on a separate line followed by "request the pleasure of your company, etc." makes the invitation so long. I wonder whether simply "Mary, Sara and Jack Brown request the pleasure, etc." would not be better?

Answer: I would suggest printing instead:

Mary, Sara and Jack Brown hope you will come to their dance on Friday evening, February 23rd at 10 o'clock
at the Blank Athletic Club
Do say yes.

On the other hand if they would rather send formal invitations, the titles will have to be included and the following wording engraved:

The Misses Mary and Sara Brown and
Mr. John Brown
request the pleasure of (written in) company at a dance
on Friday evening,
the twenty third of February
etc.

Greeting to Mary

DEAR Mrs. Post: Am I supposed to say "How do you do, Miss Brown," or even "How do you do, Mary" to a young friend receiving with her mother when Mary happens to be a very good friend of mine whom I greet no more formally at other times than "Hello, Mary"? The party will be a big one and the invitations are formal and I have an idea that saying "Hello, Mary" upon arrival would be very bad.

Answer: You say "How do you do, Mrs. Brown" very formally, and with a sweet smile and in not too boisterous a tone of voice "Hello, Mary" or "How do, Mary."

NEEDED WILD-LIFE

In last week's article, we spoke of the Rodents, and in particular, of the destructiveness of the Rat on the farm.

Today we shall consider a collective enemy even more menacing, the Insects, "Undoubtedly the forst enemy the farmer has under modern conditions," writes Dr. Funkhouser. "The damage done by insect pests in this country is enormous. The farmer must forever combat moth and army worm, Hessian fly and chinch bug, weevil, webworm, bug, beetle, caterpillar and grasshopper, if he would provide us with food. It is estimated that we lose every year in the U. S. over one billion dollars on account of the ravages of insects. Over $200,000,000 damage is done to cereal crops alone, largely by Hessian fly and grain louse on wheat, and chinch bug on corn. Bugs, grubs and webworms destroy over $50,000,000 of hay. The boll weevil is responsible for a $60,000,000 loss in cotton. The tobacco worm costs us over $5,000,000. Sugar is damaged to the extent of 10,000,000. Nearly $200,000,000 of animal products are ruined. Forests and forest products are destroyed to the amount of $100,000,000. The loss in miscellaneous crops is almost beyond computation. And these figures are for one year only. And every year the record gets worse and the figures higher . . . We pay more to feed our bugs and caterpillars, beetles, scale-insects, weevils and cutworms, than we do to keep up our entire school system. And this does not include what the farmer pays out for chemicals, sprays and labor . . . This problem is a very serious one in Kentucky, where agriculture plays such an important part."

Dr. Funkhouser continues, "Of course the easiest solution of the problem is to encourage the natural enemies of the insects, especially when those natural enemies are the best friends of man. Foremost among them are the birds. The number of insects eaten by birds is enormous . . . But here we must mention a fact that is causing us a good deal of concern,—our birds are decreasing in numbers very rapidly. Every year we take our bird census, we find fewer and fewer birds to count . . . Kentucky has lost about 50 percent of its birds in the last 20 years, as to both species and individuals. It does not take much of a mathematician to say how many we shall have at the end of another 20."

To these birds friends the farmis so indifferent that he first cuts away all their natural cover, and then permits every stray cat, small boy and pothunter to kill all they can of the remnant remaining on his land.

The other great insect destroyer (see Farm Bulletin 587) is the Skunk, which by the way, never was a polecat, as will be told later. Nature has wonderfully fitted him to hear and small harmful grubs down in the soil, and dig them out before they can come up and breed and multiply, as well as to catch large number after they emerge from the grub state. But the Skunk has been ignorantly regarded as "vermin," and either killed on sight or trapped for its skin. Other valuable Insect Destroyers are the smaller grass, garden and garter snakes, usually also killed on sight.

In next week's chapter we shall deal more fully than in last week's article with Farm Friends, The Rodent-Destroyers.

The Spencer County Herd Improvement Association began testing October 1.

The livestock improvement program calls for the purchase of several purebred bulls in Owsley county.

Meade county farmers are planning to meet the requirements for the production of hatchery eggs.

The large tobacco crop put a premium on housing space in Adair county.

The Christiain County Soil Improvement Association was one of the first associations to complete payment for terracing equipment.

Grayson county pullet flocks are said to be among the best in the history of the country.

J. J. Edelen, a Washington county farmer, has built a concrete sheep dipping vat from plans furnished by the Agricultural Experiment Station.

Many Daviess county farmers treated seed wheat for smut before seeding this fall.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Warm applications usually give relief from earache, but if a hot water bag is applied do not use it longer than 24 hours. Drop one or two drops of a solution of glycerine containing 4 or 5 drops of carbolic acid to the ounce, into the ear. This is done by warming a teaspoon and placing in it some of the solution, using a medicine dropper to drop it in the ear when it is just body temperature.

YOUR WASHINGTON and MINE

By James E. Pope

Washington, Nov. 1—The inventive genius of one man who lived and died almost a century and three score years ago finds economic and political repercussion in the White House of today, and is largely responsible for President Roosevelt's special called session of the Congress in 1937. Back in 1791 this country exported only thirty-eight bales of cotton, but two years later a twenty-eight year old unemployed yankee school teacher invented the cotton gin—a machine for quickly and inexpensively separating seed from the fleecy lint—and thereby created the great cotton empire of the South. Eli Whitney's crude contraption inaugurated large scale cotton growing on a profit basis.

People of Whitney's day and time regarded his as a harmless tinker. But now, one hundred and forty-four years later, President Roosevelt, seeing the cotton industry stewing in its own juice and riding on the horns of the overproduction dilemma, seeks to curb, by legislative decree, this orgy of lavish repletion chargeable to that dreaming professor's invention.

Another historic achievement coeval with the birth of the cotton gin, and of equal rank and importance in its bearing upon today's agricultural evil spirit of overplus, and which, too, stands as a major contributing cause for calling the special session, came wrapped and labeled as the Louisiana Purchase. In 1803 Uncle Sam paid France $15,000,000 for that vast domain of timber, minerals and raw material lying west of the Mississippi river—now a priceless empire of grain, live stock and more cotton. This happy acquisition was quickly followed by an influx of hardy and thrifty pioneers over the fertile territory. Soon the song of the plow and the reaper gave promise of a rich harvest, as the hum of the hammer and saw grew into a veritable ground swell of development. What for unrecorded centuries had been the primitive haunts of the rattlesnake, the prairie-dog and the buffalo became the nation's bread and meat basket. Any one of its many wide valleys could outproduce the fabulous Nile. In its mountains and streams reposed gold, silver and minerals richer than all the spoils over which kings and rulers have contended since Nero fiddled or Alexander fought.

So today we have too much of every good thing—more than the country needs, apparently. Mr. Wallace is shouting for an ever normal granary, and Mr. Roosevelt prescribes crop restrictions by controlled production. Seemingly blind to and unmindful of the tricks of uncontrollable Mother Nature, they are going ahead asking Congress for some kind or form of reincarnated or resurrected AAA.

Improved methods and labor saving devices brought on a plethora of cotton. Yet, defiantly in the face of the present hue and cry for curtailment in cotton production, modern day inventors and manufacturers are working feverishly toward perfecting a mechanical cotton picker. The picker, if brought to a point of high efficiency comparable with the gin, will evolve into another problem involving farmers and farm labor. This is something with which future generation must tussle.

And while the administration is working all hands toward a program of crop control for grain and other commodities of the soil, and for the establishment of Mr. Secretary Wallace's proposed ever normal granary, we go right ahead with our teaching of soil saving doctrines . . . we build huge dams and create great reseriors for impounding water with which to irrigate, enrich and increase the producitivity of our already too productive plains and wester water-sheds—that we may produce even more and more.

What is the answer?

Always interesting to me is the White House with its glamour and intrigue of past years. I cannot escape its charm—nor its spell. Centered and blended here are the whole history and background of our country. What about its secret tunnel of other days, which ran through the still mysterious Octagon House to the Potomac River? Tradition has it that through this underground passage the charming Dolly, wife of President Madison, carried the family silver and escaped the British in 1814. President Grover Cleveland was married in the White House. Before being elected to the Presidency Mr. Cleveland was Sheriff and Official Hangman for Erie County, New York.

It was through these spacious and well groomed White House grounds that the late President Coolidge used to go alone . . . carrying a market basket . . . on his person shopping trips to nearby self-serving grocery stores.

Editor's Note—Dr. Pope's opinions are his own, and his articles do not necessarily always reflect the editorial opinons or policies of this paper.

A BEAUTY HINT

It's no longer smart to look obviously painted. The idea is to put a very faint hint of light of medium or cream rouge over the entire face so that the skin will look as though it had a faint glow of health. Then put on face powder all over the face and apply a darker shade of rouge to the cheeks just as you would when applying your usual make up.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

A. B. Chandler, now governor of this old Commonwealth has been the chief helmsman of the ship of state for approximately two years and he intends to remain at the head of it for the remaining two years, despite reports to the contrary . . . It is generally believed that the Governor will resign to take Mills Logan's Senate seat, if and when Mills Logan is appointed to a federal Judgeship . . . The Governor declared from a public platform in Covington last week that he was elected to be governor for four years and it was his intention of doing just that . . There are ways of his remaining governor until the end of his term and still getting into the next senate race, if he is so minded . . .

Some months ago, soon after the presidential election, there was some talk that Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky's Senior Senator, would resign his seat and become a member of the President's Cabinet . . . This interesting bit of information was handed around by those supposedly in the know, and from it many far flung conclusions were drawn . . . One conclusion was that if Barkley went to the Cabinet, Governor Chandler would resign and have Keen Johnson, who automatically become Governor, appoint him to the Barkley seat. . . . At that time this column happened to go on an excursion with the Governor into the western section of the state . . . the subject was broached and he brought it to a quick close by stating that the people of Kentucky had elected him for a period of four years and that he was sticking with them for the full term . . . so, the speech made at Covington is just a repeat of what he said late last winter.

At the last sitting of this corner a group of six men, all prospective candidates for Governor of Kentucky when the race starts in August 1939, was named . . . At that time we promised to make mention of any other possible candidates as their names were mentioned. The list included Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson, Highway Commissioner Robert Humphreys, Treasurer John Buckingham, Secretary of State Charles Arnett, Welfare Commissioner Frederick Wallis and Adjutant General G. Lee McLain. . . . Now add to the list the Neville Miller, who has just outlived his term as Mayor of Louisville and Reed Wilson, who likewise outlasted the mayoralty calendar at Lexington . . . This column does not predict that these two men will even be in the primary in August, however, they would be prepared if the bolt should strike in their general direction . . .

Down in the western section of the state the Congressmen are at home riding range on their own particular herd . . . They are looking over the fences before going to the post for another race . . . Noble Gregory, Congressman from the First Congressional District and Beverly M. Vincent from the Second are meeting the merry villagers in the smaller places and a hieing hither and yon looking over WPA projects and making a few speeches . . . Neither of these Congressmen were original choices . . . Gregory ran after being named to success his brother, Voris Gregory, who died before the last Congressional election there. Bev Vincent filled in for Glover Carey, deceased . . . Vincent resigned his post of Attorney General to take the Congressional job . . .

Kentucky's Legislative Council, a most willing state organization which will sit, listen and do any amount of research work on legislation which is likely to be brought before the General Assembly, has several small matters coming up . . . A bill is now being drawn for presentation to the Council where it will ask that the Legislature take some steps to eliminate a large number of roadside signs . . . At present there is no law against placing of billboard advertising on the roadsides . . . It is unlawful, however, to place it on the right-o-way . . . This new law law which is being prepared for the Council will ask the Council to ask the Legislature to make it unlawful to place large and unsightly signs at certain spots on the highways . . . Other states have this law . . . The proposed law is not being patterned after any of the other state laws.

A thorough examination, both mental and physical for applicants who are seeking their first Operator's license . . . That is another piece of Legislation that already has been placed in the hands of the Legislative Council and undoubtedly will be looked upon with favor and handed over to the General Assembly for consideration . . . The Operator's License Law, as it now stands is very loose . . . Any person who says that he can drive a car and is willing to swear that he knows the laws of the highway and who has $1 cash, can get an Operator's license . . . Under the proposed law it would necessitate an applicant taking a fairly testy exam . . . This law is aimed at the youngsters who are applying for license the first time. . . In the same law the State's Safety Council, which will sponsor the legislation, is also asking that operator's license be good for two years instead of the one year period . . . And furthermore, the Safety Council is making a suggestion that the Legislature go so far as to increase the personnel of the State Highway Patrol . . . The Surety Council, of which such personages as Governor Chandler, Adjutant General G. Lee McLain and State Highway Engineer Tom Cutler are members believe that a larger patrol would enhance safety in Kentucky to a greater degree . . .

The State debt is now, or rather will be in a couple of weeks, down to 10,700,000. State Treasurer John E. Buckingham last week issued a call for $2,062,100 in interest bearing state warrants . . . Interest on these warrants will stop on November 15 . . . There is little doubt but that the holders will hustle them into the Treasurer's office the minute they stop paying . . .

• • •

"Remember the great flood of 1937?" . . . "Remember how those folk in the affected areas were without light or means of communication and for days how the people on high and more or less dry land, wondered how these marooned unfortunates were?" The lack of light and communication caused many an anxious hour and and in no small way hindered rescue work. . . . Well, if the plans of the Kentucky Public Service Commission work out . . . Well(this will not happen again. The Commission met with the moguls of the major utilities companies in the state and made plans for the removal of sub-stations to higher ground and now in some sections flood walls were being erected around generating plants. . . . These plans were told of by J. A. Krug, rate expert and Engineer for the Commission.

JUDGING TO BEGIN EARLY AT BOURBON STOCK YARDS SHOW

Due to the large number of cattle to be shown, judging will begin on Wednesday at the Fat Cattle Show at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville Nov. 10-12. More than 1,000 head of calves will be exhibited by 4-H club members, and large numbers by members of the Future Farmers of America and by farmers.

M. S. Garside, supervisor of the 4-H club part of the show, plans to have several rings judged the first day, including the less than carlots, the breeding class and the Utopia club classes. This will leave for the second day the big carload and single calf classes, judging of which requires most of the day.

The show this year promises to be one of the best yet held. Calves have been well fed, due to the abundance of feed and the generally good season. Relatively high cattle prices have encouraged 4-H club members and other feeds.

More than $5,000 in cash will be distributed among winners, and 4-H club members owning the best Angus, Hereford and Shorthorn calves will receive trips to the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago.

IN MEMORY

Of Sara Crisler Campbell:
Oft and oft my thoughts do wander
To your grave so far away,
Where they laid you dear Sara
Just two years ago today.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last
The world's weary troubles and trials are past
With patience you suffered
In silence you bore
Till God called you home
To suffer no more.
Somewhere back of the sunset,
Where loveliness never dies,
You live in the land of Glory,
With the blue and gold of the skies.
And I who knew you and love you
And your passing has brought me sad tears
Will cherish your memory always
To brighten the drifting years.
—A Friend.

If you can live past babyhood there's never very much danger in being killed by kindness.

MARKET NEWS AND FORECAST

C. E. Houk, Manager
Producers Live Stock Marketing Association

Cattle: Farmers are inclined to market their cattle early this season especially the grain-fed kinds. The cattle market is still in a strong position for at least thirty days. In fact, favorable feed conditions put all cattle in strong hands and makes a reverse of last year. We will not only have the packers to bid on these grass type cattle, but due to the large corn crop in prospect, we will find feeders competing with the packers. At the present time steer and heifer calves are being contracted in the West from nine to ten dollars. The prospect for replacement at cheap prices is doubtful. This calls for caution on the part of our cattlemen since these young, lightweight calves will not enter the market until a year from now. Cattle prices can change materially in that time.

Hogs: Hog prices have taken a real slap in the face even though numbers are extrmeely short and production is at the bottom of the cycle. Our prices will not regain the loss they have had during the last three weeks. However, we do expect a steadying of the market and some price improvement. Over a range of months, until hogs fed on the new corn crop can enter the market, we believe the prices will still be favorable for a feeding margin. It seems as though the problem of Kentucky farmers is to shove the hogs and beat the corn belt farmers to market in the late fall and early winter. The same advice can well be given to those feeding cattle.

Lambs: The lamb market is in a strong position, top lambs bringing from $10.50 to $11.00. The run is almost over as far as Kentucky is concerned. The North-western lambs are now moving at attractive prices. Due to the present and prospective price for wool and the limited supply of lambs available for fall and early winter, we believe the feeder lamb project is a good one for Kentucky farmers. When the Northwestern lambs are through running, the early part of November and December, the packers must then turn to the feeder lambs for their supply. At the present the prospects for fat lambs for December and January are short. Here again it would be well for the farmer who plans to feed lambs to get them early and do his best to beat the corn-belt farmer back to the market.

Another unusual thing in this country is to see an old rake who still has all his teeth.

MANY FAIL TO CLAIM MONEY UNDER SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Many persons in the Covington area who are entitled to lump-sum payments under the social security act have failed to claim money due them, it was said today by Frank B. Decker, Jr., Acting manager of the old-age insurance bureau office in the Coppin Building.

"Early this year the field research section of the social security board estimated that during the calendar year there would be about 730 claims for lump-sum payments filed in the district served by the Covington office," Mr. Decker said.

"So far only 17 claims have been filed indicating that some 713 other persons who were expected to seek these lump-sum payments before the end of 1937 still must do so although the year is nearing its end. Any person who has been employed in an occupation included in the social security coverage is entitled to a lump-sum payment if he has reached the age of 65 this year," Mr. Decker added.

"Employers may file claims in behalf of these workers for whom no further contributions are to be made under the federal old-age insurance plan, once such employes reach the age of 65 years. These workers are entitled to a lump-sum payment equal to 3½ percent of the wages they have received while working this year in occupations covered by the social security act.

"Similar claims may be made in behalf of all persons who have died this year after working in covered employments. Relatives or the estates of such persons may claim these payments which are also 3½ percent of wages paid. It is not necessary to hire an attorney or an expert to file these claims as our office is prepared to give all necessary services in this connection," Mr. Decker added.

In the Cleveland region, which includes the states of Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky upwards of 4,400 claims have been filed so far in contrast with a total of more than 35,000 expected this year.

90 PER CENT COMPLETION TO BE CARRIED OUT

The nine 4-H Clubs in Boone County are expecting to attain and to go over their goal of 90 per cent completion, according to David Colville, Assistant County Agent.

Last spring each club set up a number of goals, one of which was a completion of at least 90 per cent by their members. Completion means that the 4-H club member not only carries a project through the summer but that he turns in a complete written report including all expenditures and receipts of the project.

At the present time the New Haven Boosters club stands at the top of the list in completion. The 4-H club officers, project captains and leaders have worked hard to attempt to secure a 100 per cent completion. Forty-five members have already completed their written reports. This splendid achievement was made possible only thru the cooperation of the members of the club with their officers and leaders.

The Club had lunch with the P.-T. A. which was enjoyed by all.

Don't forget the next meeting and bring a visitor and let them see what interesting work we have.

CHANGED DIRECTION FOR CATTLE PRICES

It now appears that cattle prices have changed direction and that the peak in prices was reached soon after the middle of September Prices for the medium and common grades of slaughter cattle have been on the weak side since early July, but the scarcity of well-finished slaughter cattle and the strong demand for feeder cattle kept prices for these grades advancing during the late summer months. It now seems probable that fat cattle prices will drop steadily lower until next summer and that the decline will be more than usual. Lower prices for fat cattle will react on prices for feeders and therefore prices for such cattle are not expected to show the usual rise during the winter and spring months.

The effect of small and large corn crops on cattle prices is particularly significant when they occur in succession as was the case the last two years. Such price changes are discussed in Extension Circular No. 303, "Price and Market Suggestions to Kentucky Stockmen," recently prepared for distribution by the department of markets and rural finance at the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

There is indicated that "in years following small corn crops the seasonal downward movement of prices during the spring tends to be delayed and the price level during the fall usually is higher than in the previous January, with the trend of prices upward during the entire period." Such was the case during 1937. "In years following large corn crops. prices tend to recede more than normal during January and February and are usually lower each month than in the same month of the previous year." Such may be the case in 1938.

DESIGN NEW SEED CLEANING MACHINE

An automatic air-suction type of seed cleaner that operates without screen has been perfected by Prof. L. S. O'Bannon, research engineer in the department of agronomy, and Dr. W. D. Valleau, plant pathologist of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

The machine was designed for the purpose of cleaning many small lots of tobacco seed in connection with the tobacco breeding project of the Experiment Station. It is practically self cleaning so that lot after lot of seed can be cleaned without danger of mixing.

The seed materials are sprayed into one end of a long glass tube, and trash and other inert matter are sucked out through another tube into one container, while the clean seed falls through another container.

The air suction is created by a fan operated by a motor. Another small motor operates an automatic screw feed which passes the materials to be cleaned into the air chamber. The rate of feed can be accurately controlled, as can the air suction, which tends to insure maximum efficiency in the cleaning operation.

The cleaner as designed by Messrs. O'Banion and Valleau can be constructed at small expense. Other than the two small motors and the fan, stovepipe, a long lamp chimney, a funnel and other home-made equipment were used by them.

It is thought that the new cleaner will be of interest to seed dealers, and even to large seed producers, especially tobacco growers. The capacity of the present machine is about 8 pounds of seed per hour but the principle of operation could be adapted to seed cleaners of much larger capacity.

MORE LIVESTOCK IN EASTERN KENTUCKY

Needing more livestock to consume the large crops of hay, grass and other feed, Eastern Kentucky farmers are building up their herds and flocks, says the College of Agriculture at Lexington. The hill counties once produced large numbers of cattle and sheep. Then cattle raising lost ground, and the sheep industry all but disappeared.

Six hundred cross-bred western ewes and 25 purebred Southdown rams recently were taken into Johnson county, and there is an active demand for breeding cattle and ewes in several eastern counties.

In the north-central county of Grant, farmers began increasing livestock production, following the report of a county planning committee. The committee assorted the land according to its best uses—the kind that performs well under intensive cultivation, tobacco growing and general crop production; the kind that grows good legumes and does well for dairying; and finally the hills, fit best for sheep and beef cattle.

Several carloads of western ewes have been purchased by Grant county farmers owning hilly land, the first to go into the county in years. Several farmers also are building up breeding flocks, while others are developing dairy herds or adding to their beef herds.

KITCHEN KINKS

If the pot in which candy is boiled is buttered for an inch or two down the liquid will not boil over . . . Kerosene will cut grease and clean and disinfect a sink. A little poured down the sink pipe will leave the pipe free and clean.

EXPOSED TOBACCO STALKS LOSE MUCH FERTILIZER VALUE

Tobacco stalks thrown out into the weather when stripping is done lose much of their fetilizer value since the nitrogen and potash in them are partly soluble in water.

The Kentucky College of Agriculture says that a ton of stalks from Burley tobacco contains about 60 pounds of nitrogen and 65 pounds of potash, and a ton of stalks from dark tobacco about 70 pounds of nitrogen and 80 pounds of potash. At 15 cents a pound for nitrogen and 5 cents a pound for potash,—a ton of Burley stalks is worth $12.25 and a ton of dark tobacco stalks $14.50, when used as fertilizer.

If stalks cannot be kept inside, they should be scattered on the land as soon as possible after stripping. If they can be sheltered from the rain, it is better to hold them until early spring. It is not advisable to use stalks, stems or leaf as a fertilizer for tobacco because of the danger of transmitting disease.

KENTUCKY 4-H CLUB NEWS

Competing with adult farmers and with high school boys, Breckinridge county 4-H club members displayed the best baby beeves at the county fair. Purebred or high-grade stock, full feeding and constant care brought in the winners.

After they'd earned $55 for the club treasury during 1937, Chandler's Chapel club members in Logan county awarded themselves a tour to Mammoth Cave. They made a study of the cave from library material beforehand and so were well-prepared for the trip.

Which is worth more, $20 in prize money or 41 ribbons signifying merit? Madison county girls won both at the State Fair, but they said the ribbons meant more to the clubs as a whole. "More members felt rewarded," it was said.

The Middlesboro Chamber of Commerce has shown its interest in better farming by establishing a $25 award to go to club members gettin gthe highest corn yield. Competition was enthusiastic, with several members having unusual yields.

Two Livingston County boys have spent considerable time this fall collecting black locust seed expecting to plant them next year. Forestry conservation has been the object of study by several clubs.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR BOONE CO.

PROVES VERY PROFITTABLE—GRAPES SELL FROM 90 CENTS TO $1.25 PER BUSHEL ON MARKET IN CINCINNATI.

Commercial grape production in Boone County is a relative new industry. The past year local growers sold 1541 bushels from six and one-half acres. Most of the grapes were sold for 2 cents per pound and on the wholesale market in Cincinnati for 90c to $1.25 per bushel.

The largest vineyard in the county is owned by Elmo Jergens, of near Constance. Commercial growers also include John P. Dolwick, Constance, J. N. Sams, Florence; John W. Grant, Petersburg and Robert Graves, Hebron. All growers have followed the practice of a complete spray schedule for control of rot, leaf hoppers and other diseases, clean cultivation, pruning and other approved practices, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner.

Grape production promises to be a profitable business for those who are grape minded and are willing to go to the work and expense necessary for the production of quality fruit. The quality of fruit produced in the best demonstrations this year was unexcelled.

INCREASE IS SHOWN IN 1937

Boone County farmers increased their general soil depleting crops in 1937 10.3 per cent or approximately 2325 acres over 1936, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The large increase in part was due to the feed shortage last winter resulting from the 1936 drouth, the high price of feed crops and to drouth injury of pastures and meadows in 1936 necessitating the plowing of the land to get new grass stands.

The above figures are based on an analysis study in the Agricultural Conservation program compiled by John E. Crigler, Secretary. Two hundred forty-four farmers this year grew more soil depleting acres than their bases. These farmers in most cases will be excused this year under the drouth and flood ruling to the effect that no deductions in payment will be made because of these conditions if the additional feed was required for livestock on the farm.

STATE INCOME TAX IS UPHELD

BY HIGH COURT—"NO SUBSTANTIAL FEDERAL QUESTION PRESENTED," SUPREME TRIBUNAL FINDS.

Kentucky gained a million-dollar verdict Monday when the U. S. Supreme Court ruled the Kentucky income tax law valid.

"No substantial federal question" was presented, the high court declared in the dismissal of the suit brought by the Reynolds Metal Co.

State officials at Frankfort estimated that $1,000,000 paid under protest now goes, without strings attached into the pockets of the state. The money had not been impounded, it was said.

It was said that approximately one fourth of the taxpayers, between 8000 and 9000, had paid under protest.

The rule of the Supreme Court upholds the rule of the special state Court of Appeals named by Governor A. B. Chandler after the regular court disqualified itself on the grounds that the judges' salaries were involved.

The tax law did not exempt the salaries of state officers.

The income tax law requires that every person earning $1000 a year must file. Single persons have a $1000 exemption. A married person has a $2500 exemption. Two per cent is paid on net incomes up to $3000, 3 per cent on next $1000 and 5 per cent in excess of $5000.

The law had been attacked on the grounds that specific exemptions were in violation of the constitution. Kentucky held the view that the exemption of banks and trust companies was justifiable on the grounds that the tax is not on property but is an excise tax.

TWO GOOD PICTURES BOOKED FOR GAYETY

An untamed frontier ablaze with crimson war; fierce tribesmen striking in swift, deadly raid; the bonnie plaid of Scotland fighting on India's saffron hills—with all that, and more, going on, it's little wonder that Shirley Temple, asked which picture she most enjoyed making, cast a loud an enthusiastic vote for "Wee Willie Winkie" the picturization of Rudyard Kipling's famous story in which she is starred with Victor McLaglen, to be shown at the Gayety Theatre, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The reason? "Wee Willie Winkie," it seems, with all the reckless heroism of a Bengal Lancer, has encompassed more thrilling action than Shirley has ever had in one film.

The most distinguished motion picture to reach the screen since the inception of talkies comes to the Gayety Theater, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer photoplay version of Pearl S. Buck's widely-read novel, "The Good Earth." Four years in the making, its panoramic sceaes necessitating the transformation of a California mountainside into a Chinese landscape with acres of rice fields, gardens and villages. "The Good earth' is not only an artistic achievement but is one of the most stirring, most vibrating and gripping stories ever to be unfolded on the screen in the history of picture-making.

Both of these pictures are very outstanding, and those who miss these features will miss the best pictures of the year.

FARMERS SHOULD REPORT PRACTICES

Boone County farmers who have carried out soil building practices for payment in the Agricultural Conservation Program since the supervisor, visited their farm last summer should notify the county office at Burlington immediately, unless they have already done so or have given a full report to their local committeemen, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The office is working on the application for payment forms that will be ready for final signature in about three weeks. All practices for which payment is made must be recorded on the application form.

The following are some of the practices many farmers have failed to include in their reports:

Wheat, rye or small grain turned under as green manure crops last spring, rate $1.00 per acre.

Lespedeza, not cut or grazed and allowed to fall on the ground, $1.00 per acre.

Soybeans or cowpeas, plowed or disced under $2.00 per acre, not harvested and allowed to fall on the ground $1.00 per acre.

Phosphate used in wheat or rye and a grass sown in same, from one-half to full credit for use of phosphate is allowed.

Seedings not all reported.

Limestone on hand applied in early November can be counted.

The county to date has only reported approximately 60 per cent of the allowance earned.

THE RURAL CHURCH

Writing in a national farm publication an Iowa church official issues a note of warning to the congregation of rural churches throughout the U. S. It is a warning that fits right in with conditions in quite a few rural church congregations in Boone in many respects, and one that the members of those congregations will do well to ponder over.

He says many things have appeared in recent years to weaken the militancy of the average rural church and that, instead of seeking ways and means to combat these conditions, they are sitting idly by, doing nothing and thereby hastening the day when it may be necessary to disband the congregation through lack of interest. He mentions the auto, the Sunday picture show and numerous other attractions. Insofar as the older members are concerned, he points out, these have little tendency to cause non-attendance. It is among the younger generation—the generation to which the church must look for its future membership and strength—that the new interests are proving most dangerous. He cites figures to show that young people in the rural districts are losing interest in church affairs more and more each year and he also offers statistics to show that the annual increase in membership of the rural church is not in proportion to what it was 20 years ago.

But, and this is also interesting, he says there is a remedy. "Rural churches must cater more to the young folks," he declares. He suggests the organization of more boy and girl clubs within the church, and an increased interest on the part of older member in youthful activities; more social affairs in which the young can participate; more life and "pep" in the church organizations already functioning. That, he contends, will save the rural church when nothing else will, and it would be a good idea if the officials of every rural church in the country to give his argument a little study.

BACK-SEAT DRIVING

If you are among those citizens who contend that men drive autos better than women and that the back-seat driver is a nuisance that ought to be eradicated, here is food for thought.

"Next time the Missus leans over the back seat and says: 'John don't go so fast,' or 'Charlie you almost hit that truck,' don't let it get you" says Dr. Harry DeSilva of the Harvard University Traffic School. "Back-seat driving is really a help and not a hindrance," asserts this safety expert. He cites as proof the fact that there are more accidents among cars which do not have back-seat drivers than in cars that do, his figures being based on tests made among 150,000 cars in 15 different parts of the United States. He also asserts that while the survey reveals that women may not be as good drivers as men, they have fewer accidents because while women drivers have some bad characteristics they are, on the whole, more careful than men when operating a car.

The expert's decision may not be generally accepted by the male drivers of this community, but it will certainly give the female drivers cause for doing a little crowing. The question as to whether or not women drive as well as men in all probability will never be settled. But the Harvard safety expert has settled it so far as the women are concerned, whether he was trying to do so or not.

THIS MAY SPREAD

Commissioners of St. Joseph county, Indiana, have recently tried a novel stunt and one that could be used around this county to good advantage. They have given every road in the county a name, with signs at each intersection bearing the names of the highway intersected. Then they have numbered each farm house along each road, painting the number on the farmer's front gate, above his front door or on his mail box. Now when one sets out to find a farm house in that county all he needs to know is what road it is on and the house number. No more asking for directions and getting information about like this: "Go down the road about three miles, turn right at the second road, not counting the dirt lane just beyond the foundation of the old school house, then go about half a mile, turn left, pass a farm with a windmill," etc. The new system promises to do away with all that, and since it can be worked out in one county just as well as in another there is hope that eventually, it may become general all over the United States.

LITTLE LIVES

More than twenty million children are now at their school desks in this country and upon that part of our adult population driving motor vehicles there has been placed the responsibility of guarding the lives of these boys and girls as they travel to and from school. The wise motorist, as every citizen of this county who operates a car should already know, is one who exercises the utmost car not only in the vicinity of school buildings, but along the route taken in school attendance. Immature minds cannot realize the extent of the danger existing on our highways today. The motorist must do the thinking both for himself and the children. The safety of those little lives should be our first consideration. Always drive as if it were your own child on the road somewhere in front of you.

NOT A MIND-READER

Whatever he may be, the editor of your home-town newspaper is not a mind-reader. If you have visitors, if you are going visiting or if you have recently returned from one, he has no means of knowing it unless you tell him so. And the same is true of other happenings in which you and members of your family are directly interested. If there is sickness, or a marriage or a birth, a family reunion or a family celebration of any kind around your home it is of interest to your neighbors, but the editor of the paper cannot tell them about it unless you first tell him. He can't hire high-priced reporters to contact you, as do the big city papers. But he does meet you on the street occassionally, he does open his mail as fast as it arrives and he is always willing and anxious to answer his telephone calls. So bear these things in mind. Always remember that a lot of things that happen at your house are of interest to your neighbors but that, since the editor is not a mind-reader, the neighbors must go without such information unless you are thoughtful enough to see that the editor is informed.

Lesson for November 14

THE CHRISTIAN MINISTER

LESSON TEXT—I Timothy 4:6-16; II Timothy 2:1-4.
GOLDEN TEXT—Neglect not the gift that is in thee.—I Timothy 4:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why and How Ministers Are Trained.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Minister in the Modern World.

"The Christian Minister"—there is no greater calling among men, but none is more often the target for misrepresentation and abuse by those outside, and all too often the victim of the carelessness, weakness, and sin of those within its own circle. On the other hand it has had, and continues to have to this day, within its ranks such a noble army of faithful and sacrificial men as would probably be impossible to duplicate in any other calling.

The study of today's lesson should arouse in the hearts of Christian people a high regard for the ministry as a calling, and a kindly purpose to aid their minister to live up to its glorious possibilities. Every true minister who studies it will find his spirit humbled before God in thanksgiving for the privilege of service, and in prayer that he may be forgiven for his failures and empowered for the work of the future.

The need for such a study is indicated in the verses just preceding our lesson, namely, I Timothy 4:1-5, where we read of the express warning of the Spirit of God that in the latter times there should be teaching and preaching which departed from the faith, substituting men's wisdom for God's Word. One who looks around him cannot but feel that we have fallen upon that evil day.

I. What to Preach (I Tim. 4:6-9).

The "good minister of Jesus Christ" preaches the words of God. To do this he must himself be "nourished" by them. Spare your preacher the necessity of running errands, serving on boards and committees, and encourage him to study his Bible.

Preacher, are you studying God's Book, learning and teaching "good doctrine"? If so you will have no interest in or time for "profane and old wives fables."

II. How to Preach (I Tim. 4:10-12).

1. Sacrificially (v. 10). The man who regards the ministry as a nice, easy, respectable occupation is not in the same calling as was the apostle Paul. In fact, there is nothing to indicate that he is in the Christian ministry at all, for in that calling there is labor and suffering of reproach. This is not something to be borne in a spirit of resigned submission. The minister knows and "trusts in the living God," and gladly bears every responsibility with which God may entrust him.

2. Authoritatively (v. 11). The minister of Christ speaks for God. In doing so he teaches with assurance and is to "command" men in the Lord's name. All too often the servants of the Lord feel and act like "grasshoppers" (see Numbers 13:33), and everybody else regards them as feeble and impotent, when they should be "strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus" (II Tim. 2:1).

3. Actively (v. 12). Whether young or old, the minister is to be an example, a pattern in his active daily life. Note how discriminating is the scripture. He is to be a pattern for others in speech, manner of living, in love, in spirit, in faith, and in purity of life.

III. Who Is to Preach (I Tim. 4:13-16).

1. The man who is divinely called (v. 14). God called Timothy; men recognized that call and ordained him to give his life to the exercise of his God-presented gift. This is the right order for our day.

2. The man who is properly prepared (vv. 13, 15-16). The ministry calls for the best preparation that a man can possibly obtain. He must know how to read God's Word, both publicly and privately. He is to be skilled in exhortation, and in teaching Christian doctrine.

In conclusion, let us consider the portion from II Timothy 2 which properly presents the work of the minister as that of a soldier at war against the world, the flesh, and the devil. He must be prepared to bear hardness, and he must not yield to the temptation to get into "sidelines," no matter how dignified and profitable they may be. His sole business is to serve and to please God.

What Education Means

The real object of education is to give children resources that will endure as long as life endures; habits that time will ameliorate, not destroy; occupation that will render sickness tolerable, solitude pleasant, age venerable, life more dignified and useful, and death less terrible.—Sydney Smith.

Wonders of Trip Through Canada and East as Told by Mrs. R. G. Huey

(This is the third of a series of articles written by Mrs. R. G. Huey describing the trip which she, in a party of 30 took some time ago. The article has not appeared for the past few weeks, due to an oversight.)

For many miles the Maine forest is unbroken except for the black ribbon highway, and bands around the birches, where tourists have peeled off rings of bark. Wild raspberries and blueberries grow profusely. Roads lead back into sylvan areas where deer, bear and moose roam undisturbed until the hunting season. Lakes are numerous and inconceivably beautiful. Thoreau has likened them to bits of shattered mirror scattered over the landscape.

We followed the Kennebec River from near its source to within ten miles of where it empties into the the ocean. In places, it widens into ponds where rest great booms of logs on their way to the paper mills and box factories. Martin's Pond, we estimated, to contain about one hundred acres of logs. Wyman dam generates electric power for this part of main.

About ten of our travel guests will tell you that the one hundred mile Derby Racer ride across the state should make anyone sick, but as soon as we came out of the forest, nausea was forgotten in delight. Here were the homes of New England prose and poetry. The dwelling, wood house, dairy shop and barn were strong together under one long roof. This arrangement must er under one long rangement must be pretty cozy during the long snow-bound winters.

In Augusta, rambler roses were in their glory and gave the needed touch of color to those somber looking houses under the great elms. The State House was our first example of the work of Charles Bulfinch. How pleasingly different and appropriate are his buildings, how typical of each people for whom he planned. A pilgrimage of his masterpieces would be intimate New England education.

These towns through which we passed so quickly and so quietly, were old friends of ours. In Brunswick, Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin." In Portland we saw the birthplace of Longfellow.

We spent the night at famous Old Orchard Beach. As a fish fry was our evening's program, we had to buy "a sticken of wood." While fresh salmon, haddock and scallops rolled in yellow meal were sizzling in Crisco, I hastily made mental note of our surroundings. Across the road was the race track, and about us were camping people of several nationalities. In a deluxe trailer home a group of teachers from Alberta, Canada, were touring the United States. I hope that if they visit Kentucky they will find the same courtesy we meet in other states. For local color, accommodations, historic and social interest, this resort is outstanding. To us, it was a battle ground. Throughout a long night we fought and bled and waited for the dawn—and when it came, it was so glorious, we didn't want to leave at all.

We thank you, nice mosquitoes
For keeping us alert—
And waiting for the sunrise.
Which banished all your hurt.

Perhaps again we'll bring to Maine
Our plump Kentucky figures
Well soaked in citronella
To treat you devilish diggers.

Crossing the state line into New Hampshire, we began to suspect to be true. Each small state has a definite personality, with customs, speech and architecture quite its own. Here, too, the home building were under one roof, but bunched together so that the big barn door was only a few steps from the front house door. Everything was extremely clean, cut we saw no people except in the towns.

Pasture fields with a few great boulders and scattered evergreens looked like the studied restraint of a formal landscape artist. Snow white beaches, glistening ocean open shops where trailers and canoes are built, eggs at 65c a doz., a kennel with one hundred puppies, ships at the Portsmouth docks maple sugar—it will take us all winter to sort our mental photographs.

As much history was made in small space, we walked thru the narrow streets of old Boston.

When Peter Faneuvil built a market house for Boston, he accidentally provided a Cradle of Liberty. We stood exalted on the rostrum where most of the states men and orators have stood. In order not to break the spell, I sneaked downstairs to buy liverwurst, rye bread and melons for lunch. After wandering among the old churches, birthplaces of famous personages we assembled for a picnic on the Boston Common. Incidentally, I wonder if the minute men responded any more eagerly to military summons than did our party to Mr. Huey's whistle.

The hours spent at Plymouth were too short for most of us. Tears came as we stood at the Portico over Plymouth Rock looking out over the water where those intrepid people had tossed for sixty-six days. Across the road is a monument erected to the memory of the women of the Mayflower. It is only a fountain with a shaded stone seat, where after three hundred years a dear Pilgrim matron still offers what comfort she can to travelers.)

On the hill above stands a statue of Massasoit, and across the Bay, Mile Standish, lonely figures, sagacious and kinly, ever watchful for the welfare of this small colony. A walk through the Burying Ground, and a peep into some of the old buildings made us resolve to come back again. Our last view of the great National Monument gave us the spirit of Plymouth. This monument, 81 feet high, bears the figure of Faith. One foot rests upon the rock, her left hand holds a Bible, and her right hand points to Heaven. On the wing pedestals are seated Morality, Law, Education and Freedom, emblematic of the principles of the Pilgrims. Three of the panels are inscribed with the names of those who came over on the Mayflower and a tribute to their labors, sacrifices and sufferings for the cause of civil and religious liberty. The rear panel is plain, to have an inscription at some future day. What will it be—?

Plymouth's principal industry is rope making, from raw materials imported from Yucatan. There are woolen mills and factories for making tacks, nails and wire. The cranberry business is large. In time, our geography may list "care of tourists" as the seventh great industry. This small town averages 125,000 visitors a year.

This was surely a full day and it is possible here to touch on only a few of our impressions. By midafternoon we were glad to climb into our truck with its comfortable seats, push off our shoes and munch homemade do-nuts.

The narrow inlets made boundless opportunity for colorful bathing, sailing and fishing on one side of our path, while on the other side were hills and vales, forests and lakes. Cape Cod cottages, twenty room shingled Colonial homes, a broad green dominated by the white frame meeting house made each village charming. No wonder this country is the artists' paradise.

Over the line into Rhode Island we farm women breathed a sigh of relief. There they were—pen after pen of handsome red chickens. Altho, there were duck farms and turtle farms.

We spent the night with Mr. Simmons, fifteen miles west of Providence. He had been state senator for twenty years, and had a large lumber business, but he was stumped trying to understand how Mr. Huey had the courage to start out with twenty-eight women. As he had a man's camp, we tried to persuade him to establish a matrimonial agency, but he would not grasp opportunity. He and his neighbors were so jolly and so very good to us. We did our good deed, too, for we introduced them to fried apples.

It did not take long to drive the one hundred miles across Connecticut. The compact houses, with their wide gables and broad flat doorways, hovered close to the ground. Beautiful rock gardens were built here during the Glacial period. There is really no need to buy shrubbery for spires, blue spruce and several varieties of dwarf evergreens and spreading junipers grow wild. Notwithstanding, through here are the largest greenhouses we have ever seen. Even that part of this state which is not productive, with its stone fences and giant trees justifies its existence merely by being picturesque. Certainly here is plenty of high powered prosperity in the Connecticut River Valley and the cities.

From Peekskill, we followed the Hudson. The Palisades, sheer cliffs rising several hundred feet above the water's edge, extend for many miles. Glimpses of the hazy Catskills across the river of famous private schools set in woodland, of Sing-Sing, of Sleep Hollow country, of vineyard and orchards, of the homes of millionaires, secluded by dense shrubery, of fields of cabbage of country clubs with their emerald golf courses—all threw us under the spell of the Empire state.

As we approached the city, we recalled this sentence from its travel literature; "New York City is a state of mind. You can have a good time on a nickel or you can be bored with a million." As the majority of our crowd, was out for a good time, we voted for the nickel plan. So without complaint, our patient conductor and our capable driver piloted us across New York(following Broadway, St. Nicholas and Fifth Avenue through the twenty miles of Yonkers, the Bronx and Manhattan.

Visitors to New York have complained that they could not see the city for the people. From our vantage point, we were able to look over the people and see what we came to see.

In the Bronx, we drove by those hills in Van Cortlandt Park where Washington left his campfires burning to deceive the British while he withdrew to Yorktown. Crossing the Harlem River, we were on the Island of Manhattan which really was a bargain at $24. Its 22 square miles of almost priceless land about four are devoted to parks, where grass grows and squirrels play.

At 155th St., our path lay thru Trinity cemetery where sleep our beloved Audubon and Clement Clark Moore, author of "The Night Before Christmas."

Well, we saw the Yankee Stadium and Madison Square Garden, Columbia University, churches, Central Park, theatres, Greenwich Villiage — all the things people see when they go to New York, and left the city by the Holland Tunnel, a twin tube under the Hudson River, 9,250 feet long.

We spent the night in Linden, N. J. We did not try to digest New York at this time, as our supper consisted of 10-inch hot dogs on rolls built to match. On Friday morning, we passed through Trenton ,our tenth capital city in eleven days.

The four lane highways U. S. No. 1, is set through the center with shrubs and blooming plants and trees. What wondeful crops are growing on this level land!

We spent leisurely hours in Philadelphia, browsing among our national treasures in Independence Hall, the Betsy Ross house, Christ church, where Benjamin Franklin is buried, the Old Quaker Meeting House. We just about decided that Philadelphia is the most beautiful city we have seen, with its broad streets, its 3900 acres of parks, and its beautiful stone churches and schools. A statue of William Penn stands on the tower of the City Hall as if to watch lovingly over this city of his founding.

We hastened on to make camp at Valley Forge State park. How wisely has this state used a great sum of money in preserving this place as an object lesson for the patriotic instruction of future generations. Here our forefathers suffered privations which no army in ancient or modern times has been called upon to endure. The name Valley Forge, is the synonym of all that is heroic and faithful.

Captain Barnes was a guest at our supper of fresh cod, vegetables hominy grits and fruit salad. We slept in the shelter house, for the only rain of our two weeks' trip fell. In the morning, we drove over the Park, and went through the Isaac Potts home, which Washington made his headquarters.

Our morning's drive through Lancaster county where the price of land averages $250 per acre. We went through a Swiss cheese factory and laid in our week-end provisions at the city market. Here are Quakers and Amish, with delicious products of their own cooking. We like to buy food typical of that part of the country thru which we are passing, so here we bought a crumb, or shoo-fly pie, a ball cheese and some cup cheese. Conscientiously we ate them, but —that's another chore off hands.

In York, Penn., among the thousands on the streets, we were fortunate enough to see the only people we knew, Mr. and Mrs. Herrick Bell.

We spent a few minutes driving through the Gettysburg Battlefield Park, and hurried on to secure a camp, as this was Saturday evening in the Pennsylvania mountains. This proved to be Jungle Park, with comfortable cabins in a beautiful setting of native evergreens, rhododendron and laurel.

Sunday morning drive took us through Ft. Louden, a frontier built in 1756, and across several ranges. Of these, Bald Knob of the Alleghany mountains is 2906 feet high. This is the beginning of a long plateau, where buckwheat and oats are the main crops. For many miles the road is straight until it begins to descend to the Monongahela Valley. This is mining country. We spent about 40 minutes crossing the narrow part of West Virginia, and soon found an ideal place to spend Sunday evening with the Shepherd of the Hills.

On Monday morning we had our last camp meal together. At Zanesville, we all bought pottery and at Circleville, we gathered around the tables in Hanley's tea room for a farewell lunch. Mrs. Hall gave us these words to express our thoughts:

Trips are glorious things to take
Journeys every one should make;
But no matter where you roam
There's no thrill like getting home.

QUILTS AND PIES HELP CLUB WOMEN

With money from the sale of a quilt, made cooperatively, and from a pie social, the River Homemakers' club in Johnson county built rest rooms at the community church and completed a W. P. A. suspension bridge connecting the community with the main road, according to Eva Isaacs Singleton, county home demonstration agent.

Each of the 36 women was sent a pattern and asked to piece a square. A group of women then set up the pattern and finished the quilt. Until the bridge was completed, small boats were used to cross the river.

What you get for what you pay is a lot more important than what you pay for what you get.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Cold Spring Homemakers Club met at the home of Mrs. Fred Manter, last Wednesday. There were twenty members present who enjoyed the delicious luncheon served and prepared by Mrs. C. G. Gray and Mrs. E. E. Schaffer, leaders. In the afternoon the leaders gave an interesting lesson on foods including recipes of the various luncheon dishes.

Miss Hunter, who always brings surprises, brought a variety of unfinished pottery which we could order and we did.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Henry Farhenholtz, November 17th.

THOUSANDS OF ACRES RUINED BY EROSION

At a recent planning conference, held to study conditions in parts of 14 counties in the Pennyrile region of southwestern Kentucky, it was brought out that 55,000 acres formerly considered high type farming land is now washed beyond immediate redemption ,and that 200,000 acres more, or about 20 percent of the area studied, have lost more than half of the top soil.

BURLINGTON SCHOOL NOTES

The school surely is proud of the new song books which we received here Monday. These were needed very badly for the others had worn out and we are very proud of our new ones.

The school has also subscribed for a number of new magazines which will be a hely to all. The list of names of the magazines will be given next week.

Thursday, Nov. 11 will be visitation day at the school and all parents of all students are urged to come and look around and see the pupils at work. There will be guides to help and show parents around over the building.

The Girl Reserves are planning Christmas gifts for the needy children as is always the custom at Christmas time.. This club is always glad to help out in any way possible.

Everyone is urged to attend the first basket ball game and volley ball game of the year Saturday evening at 6:30. The boys have two games with California and the girls have a game of volley ball beginning at 6:30. We hope every one will attend our first game.

The girls just began organizing their volley ball team the first of the week. We find a lot more to a game of volley ball than we had anticipated.

A good crowd attended the play which was given by the Juniors Friday night.

There will be no school on Fri- of this week due to the fact that the teachers will attend N. K. E. A. This makes the school week seem short as it always does when we get a holiday.

There will be a Pep Rally Wednesday morning in the school auditorium. Those who wish will try out for cheer leading and then the cheer leaders will be picked from those taking part.

The first grade is going to make a wigwam large enough for the Indians to live in if they should want to. This is a part of their Indian study which they have this year.

RESOLUTIONS

Raymond W. Bevarly, Principal of the Walton-Verona High School who departed this life on November 1st in Christ Hospital in Cincinnati, was an outstanding exception to the rule that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country."

Mr. Bevarly was born in Walton, Kentucky, on the 11th day of September 1905, and attended the the grade and high school of Walton and completed his education at Kentucky. Immediately following his graduation, while yet at the age of twenty-one, he became a teacher in the Walton High School in which capacity he worked for two years, and on account of his efficient work, he was elevated to the principalship, which position he retained until his death.

In the loss of Mr. Bevarly the community as a whole and more especially those friends and students associated with him in school work have lost a valued educator and friend.

In recognition of the above outstanding facts, the undersigned teachers and members of the Board of Education of the Walton-Verona school have adopted the following resolution:

BE IT RESOLVED:

1. That we and each of us having daily contacts with him mourn his passing, and shall miss his guiding counsel.

2. That the sympathy of each and every member of the teaching staff and the Board of Education be extended to the bereaved family.

3. That a copy of this resolution be sent to his father, his brother and his sister.

4. That this resolution be printed in the newspapers of Boone and Carroll County.

DOCTOR OFFERS RULES FOR AVOIDING COLDS

With the annual high point in the number of common colds occurring regularly in the late fall season, Dr. Robert A. Fraser, Chief Medical Director of the New York Life Insurance Company, offers ten rules that will help men, women and children avoid this widespread malady. They are:

Get plenty of sleep, fresh air and sunshine.

Eat all the nourishing food you need, but avoid overeating.

Dress sensibly and with regard to the climate.

If you get wet, change to dry clothing as soon as possible.

Breathe through your nose, not your mouth.

"Cleanliness is next to godliness." Bathe daily.

Avoid constipation.

Get outdoor exercise every day. Long walks are excellent.

Avoid sudden changes of temperature.

Keep away from people who have colds.

"It goes without saying," Dr. Frazer adds, "that those with colds must use handkerchiefs when sneezing, coughing or expectorating, to avoid infecting others.

"Overeating lowers resistance, making the individual more susceptible to colds. If you have difficulty in breathing properly, see your doctor promptly; your tonsils adenoids, sinuses or teeth may need attention. Don't go from a hot room out into the cold without suitable protection and never cool off by sitting in a draft or directly in front of an electric fan.

Finally, if there is an epidemic of colds in your vicinity, avoid large, crowded meetings; in the home, quarantine cold sufferers, particularly if there are children or old people around. The infection of children and aged people is the cause of excess mortality in these groups."

NEEDED WILD-LIFE

In the last two articles we saw that ,according to the Biologists, the real foes of the farm are not the creatures often called "Vermin," but the dangerously multiplying Rodents and insects; and that, if food is to be raised, the farmer must encourage and restore the natural destroyers.

Very important researches—first ever made on a large scale, were conducted recently by biologists of the School of Forestry and Conservation of the University of Michigan, into the Food Habits of the smaller fur-bearers (Bulletin No. 1). Stomachs and faces were examined at all seasons over a period of two years,—1700 of the skunk, 580 of the red fox, 500 of the coon, 374 of the mink, and lesser numbers of the others. The results are here given, in percentages of classes of foods eaten, the word "Birds" always including poultry:

Weasel: Rodents, 83 per cent; insects, 7 per cent; birds 9 per cent. Red Fox: Rodents 65 percent (about half meadowmice, half rabbits); insects, 7 per cent; birds, nearly 6 per cent; fruit, 17 per cent; bird eggs, 1 per cent. Mink: Rodents, 37 per cent; (meadow mice and muskrat), insects, 2 per cent; birds, 3 per cent; fish, crawfish and frogs 56 per cent. Skunk Rodents, 10 per cent; insects, 57 per cent; birds 2 per cent; wild fruits and grain, 29 per cent. Opposum; ordents, 3 per cent; insects, 16 per cent; birds 24 per cent; fruits, 30 per cent. Raccoon: Rodents 1 per cent; insects 5 per cent; birds, nearly one-half of one per cent; Crawfieh, 59 per cent; fruit and grain 32 per cent.

Evidently the Weasel is nature's chief provision for keeping down rodents, with the Red Fox next. The surprise is to find so few birds in the rations of these two, which have been charged with living largely upon birds. We see that the Weasel eats only 9 per cent birds, and the Red Fox only 6 per cent, while mink and skunk follow with only 3 per cent and 2 per cent; the opossum being the only one in the list whose bird percentage amounts to as much as a quarter of its diet.

The fox tests were made largely in two State forests, where a game-bird, the ruffed grouse, was plentiful. It was estimated that each fox ate during the year two grouse, "not an undue recompense for its extensive destruction of rodent pests" says the Bulletin, which every bird hunter should send for.

As to weasel and mink, their raids on henhouses must be far less frequent than we had imagined. But because, when they do occur, they are very bad—for either may kill large number of fowls just to suck the blood and brains—they can hardly be recommended as farm protectors, as neither can the opossum. The racoon is seen to be harmless to fowls, though of no special value otherwise. But because he is now almost exterminated, he should be spared.

The above figures give the yearround food record of the skunk. But its summer and winter rations were found to differ widely, the insect percentage rising to above 80 in the summer, with the rest chiefly fruit and grain, while the rodent percentage seems to have been concentrated into the frozen winter months when grubs can not be dug. For this reason, it is a fine resident under the barn in winter.

Other important rodent destroyers are the mousing hawks, owls and snakes, the red-shoulder and the red-tail hawks leading, with about 90 per cent of their food rodents. The only 2 hawks that kill poultry are Cooper's and the Sharp shinedd, both no larger than pigeons, flying low, and alighting only under cover, while the mousing hawks are much larger, fly high, and alight in the open, and are the ones to be caught in the cruel pole-trap. The great horned owl is the poultry-eater among the owls, while the barn owl, barred owl, hoot owl and screech owl are fine mousers and ratters. Every farmer knows how valuable is the black snake in this respect. But, alas ,he has the evil habit, which he shares with the cat, of climbing trees night and eating many young birds in the nest.

But the cow-snake and kingsnake are safe residents under the barn.

THE FARM AND HOME

Falls from ladders, haymows, haystacks, and roofs cause many accidents. Ladders should be kept in a dry place, and the rungs inspected before use. Toppling down from stepladders results in many falls in homes.

To stop gullying, head erosion, or the growth of the gully up the slope, must be prevented. Several methods of doing this are described in Kentucky College of Agriculture Circular 304, called "Soil Erosion and Its Control."

In using a basement for the storage of fruits and vegetables, placing boxes, barrels or other containers on slats an inch or so off the floor permits circulation of air. Wall shelves are desirable for canned goods.

Most women prefer electric irons with automatic heat regulators. Those not equipped with regulators may become hot enough to scorch clothing being ironed, or even set fire to board or other objects with which they come in contact.

Before storing clothing for the winter ,examine and remove spots made by fruit juices, soft drinks, tea, coffee and the like. If left they may become "set." They also attract moths, which thrive on soiled spots.

The poultry section at the Kentucky College of Agriculture says cheaper and cleaner eggs can be produced if the flock is confined until about 1 o'clock every day and all day when the weather is bad.

KENTUCKY WOMAN TO MICHIGAN JOB

After graduating from college Miss Whittinghill received a dietetic internship at the University of Iowa, where she did advanced work in nutrition and received her master's degree. BETTER TIMES NEAR FOR DAIRY FARMERS

The University of Kentucky College of Agriculture sees better times ahead for dairy farmers. A comparison of prices for dairy products and feed indicates that prospects for profitable operations are more favorable than a year ago.

From mid-June to mid-October the price of butterfat rose about 10 percent. During this same period the price of feed grain and the wholesale prices of by-product feeds decline about 30 percent. This adjustment in prices makes for the most favorable relation in five years for this time of the year, declares E. A. Johnson of the department of markets and rural finance. Thus it seems established that the coming winter will be one of relatively high prices for livestock and livestock products but rather low prices for feeds, much like two years ago.

Since early July the price of butter has been going up slowly, about in line with the usual season rise. It was only in recent weeks, however, that prices reached a level higher than a year ago. Consumer demand for butter continues satisfactory and indications point to a favorable demand situation during the winter.

Considering the favorable relation between feed prices and prices of dairy products it seems that heavy feeding of good dairy cows is advisable so as to get as large production as possible under ordinary farm conditions. Even low producing cows may show a profit for a short time this year, says Mr. Johnson, but it would seem wise to take advantage of present high cattle prices by disposing of cows that would not be profitable producers for more than a few months.

You may not know it, but many a man wishes he knew as much as his wife thinks he does.

It sometimes turns out that when a citizen is "acting like a fool" he really isn't acting.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

A grade Jersey cow named "Ruby" is paying her way very adequately on the farm of Mrs. A. D. McElroy of Caldwell county. In one month she produced 49 pounds of butterfat and 789 pounds of milk, giving a profit of $15 above feed cost.

Three strawberry nurseries established in Marshall county last spring from a pure strain of plants are having an excellent growth. The owners estimate that they will have approximately 300,000 plants for sale.

More good hay than he has had for 16 years—this is the experience of J. H. Drake of Powell county, who used limestone and phosphate on his lespedeza fields. He is finding a market at $15 per ton.

Grayson county farmers have spoken for 127 bred gilts, to use in hog projects. All gilts are to be registered and bred. The Poland China breed is the most popular, but others are also in demand.

James Henry recently stocked his Lewis county farm with pure-bred registered Jersey cattle. He brought in nine cows and an outstanding bull from Ohio. This makes Lewis county's first Jersey herd of this quality.

Large quantities of limestone are being spread this year by Christian county's North Christian farmers. In this section limestone has never been used before. Observing results from use of limestone in other parts of the county caused these men to believe it a profitable investment.

FLORENCE MAN COMMITS SUICIDE

AT HIS HOME ON LEXINGTON AVENUE SATURDAY NIGHT—HAD BEEN NERVOUS THRUOUT DAY.

W. T. Graham, 51, Florence, Ky., ended his life Saturday night at his home on Lexington Ave., near the Boone-Kenton line by hanging himself in the basement of his home.

According to Graham's wife, he had appeared nervous all during the day, and she had suggested that he take an aspirin tablet to quiet his nerves. At about 9:00 p. m. she suggested going to bed, and he replied that he would like to have his supper before retiring. This alarmed her, she said, as the evening meal had been served several hours before. However, she told him that there was plenty of food on the table and that he could help himself.

Just before retiring Mr. Graham asked his wife to kneel in prayer with him saying, "I have only two hours to live." He prayed very frevently for approximately 15 minutes she said. He then went down stairs. Mrs. Graham said she thought he was going for an aspirin, and after a few moments she became alarmed, and followed. Upon reaching the kitchen she found the basement door open and the light on. Graham was placing a rope over the joist in the basement.

She immediately ran to one of the neighbor's homes, but found no one there, and went to another for help. When they returned Graham was dead.

He was a former resident of Owen county, and was returned there for burial.

Services were held at the Hopeful Lutheran Church Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock, by the Rev. H. M. Hauter, pastor, interment following in the nearby cemetery.

Funeral Director Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

We were glad to welcome our very good friends, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. McGlasson of the Constance neighborhood as brief callers at this office Tuesday. Mr. McGlasson reports everything fine in his section, with the exception of the roads which are badly in need of repair.

HUNTING SEASON OPENS NOV. 24TH

RABBITS, QUAIL AND DUCKS MAY BE HUNTED—THOUSANDS WILL ENJOY THE SPORT ON OPENING DAY.

Thousand of Kentucky sportsmen will take to the field next Wednesday ,November 24th, in celebration of the hunting season on rabbits, quail and wild duck, according to predictions, and there seems to be a fair amount of game in most parts of the state. However, locally, the supply seems to be rather short.

In view of the fact that additional game wardens will be on duty during the hunting season, it would be advisable for hunters to familiarize themselves with the hunting laws by securing a hunting license in advance of the opening day.

Information has been received that wardens will be on the lookout in all border counties for out-of-state hunters who flock into this state for the better hunting and "meat" hunters who attempt to turn the open season into a slaughter house, disregarding bag and possession limits, will be checked carefully.

At the present time there are more farms officially posted in Boone County than has been recorded in years. This is due to the fact that many hunters (not sportsmen) have abused their privileges in the past, destroying both property and livestock, and consequently the land owners here have become disgusted, and have taken away the right to hunt on their property. A list of these property owners can be found on another page of this issue, and before starting out for your hunting trip, it is advisable that you check this list carefully as you will be prosecuted if caught violating this notice.

The following hunting season information should be of value to all hunters:

Licenses: All persons must have a license to hunt in the state of Kentucky, except resident land owners, tenants and members of their families may hunt or fish on their own land or leasehold without license. Women and minors, who are residents of Kentucky may fish without license. Trappers must have hunting license.

Resident fishing license, $1.00; non-resident fishing license, $2.50; days only $1.00. Resident hunting license $1.00; non-resident hunting license $10.50. Federal duck stamps must be attached to hunting license for taking of migratory waterfowl, obtained at your post office for $1.00.

Rabbits: Open season starts Nov. 24th, ends January 9th.

Quail: Season opens Nov. 24th, ends Jan. 9th. Daily limit 12, possession limit 24, season limit 75.

Duck: Season opens Nov. 1st, ends Nov. 30th. Daily limit 10, possession limit 10.

Raccoon, mink, fox, skunk and Opossum: Season opened Nov. 15, ends Dec. 31st.

When you start to the field to hunt, remember these few things:: 1. BE CAREFUL. 2. License does not convey a right to hunt or fish without landowner's permission; and 3. Landowners permission does not convey the right to hunt or fish without license.

CONSTRUCTION OF ROUTE NO. 25

FORECAST, PROVIDING FOUR LANES—WORK TO BE DONE BETWEEN LEXINGTON AND FLORENCE IS PLAN.

Confidence that the proposed four-lane highway from Florence to Lexington, on United States Route No. 25, eventually will be constructed was voiced Thursday by O. M. Rogers, Covington, and John Juett, Williamstown, President of the Dixie Highway Association in Kentucky. They spoke at a meeting of city and county officials and representatives of civic organizations and the Northern Kentucky Automobile Club, with the Covington Real state Board, at the Covington Chamber of Commerce.

Juett said he had been assured by the Kentucky Highway Commission that the highway would be built. The plan now being considered by organizations interested in the project provides for two concrete lanes on the side of the old road and resurfacing of the old highway.

Warner Sayers, who has been appointed promotion director for the project by the highway association, said he believed work on the project might be begun as early as next year.

NARROWLY ESCAPES SERIOUS INJURY

Mr. Ed Easton narrowly escaped serious injury Tuesday while working at Cress' Blacksmith shop in Burlington. He was operating the metal drilling machine when his coat sleeve caught in a shaft. He struggled for several seconds trying to release himself, but finally was forced to call for help, and the belt was thrown off the drill.

The drill is operated by a large gasoline engine, and had it not been for a loose set-screw in one of the pulley, allowing the pulley to slip, his arm would have probably been torn off before help could have reached him.

His arm was badly bruised, and the sleeve in both his coat and shirt were torn into threads.

LESLIE D. COX

Leslie D. Cox, aged 76 years, passed away at his home No. 114 Elm St., Erlanger, Wednesday night, after a short illness with bronchial pneumonia. The remains were removed to the Tailaferro Funeral Home for preparation.

He had retired on August 15, after 46 years continuous service with the Southern Railroad. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, Kehoe Council at Ludlow, as well as the Holy Name Society of St. Henry's Church, Erlanger.

Mr. Cox is survived by one brother Will E. Cox and one sister Miss Mary C. Cox.

Funeral was from the late residence Monday at 8:30 a. m., with requiem high mass at St. Henry's church at 9:00 a. m. by the Rev. Edm. Corby, pastor, interment following in new St. Joseph cemetery, Cincinnati, O.

Joe Walton, former resident of Boone County, was seriously injured last week while working on a construction job in Cincinnati.

He was working on a scaffold, about 12 feet from the ground when a broken board permitted the entire scaffold to callapse, breaking his leg and causing considrable body injury.

A LETTER

The following letter was received from W. W. Gaines,, Attorney, of Atlanta, Ga.:

November 10th, 1937

Editor Boone County Recorder,
Burlington, Ky.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I am enclosing you herewith check for my renewal. I left Boone County 46 years ago this past October with a view of settling somewhere in the South for the practice of law. I stopped a day in Georgetown, a day or so in Lexington, a day or so in Chattanooga, but the lapse of a week found me in Atlanta, where I have been ever since.

During all these years I have been a subscriber to the Recorder. I look forward to its coming from week to week. While I have made frequent visits to my native community, yet I have depended more on the Recorder to keep posted as to relatives and friends, and the general happenings of the splendid old county.

Indeed, my relationship to the paper ante-dates my coming away. When I was in my teens I was your Bullittsville correspondent.

In my opinion the paper is now quite as good as it has ever been.

Very truly yours,
W. W. GAINES.

YOUNG MAN IS CRUSHED BY WHEELS OF TRAILER

Robert Snelling Injured Fatally Tuesday Morning When He Fell Beneath Trailer Carrying Large Steam Shovel—Was Employed By J. E. Harris

Robert Snelling, aged 20, was injured fatally Tuesday morning when he fell beneath the wheels of a large trailer carrying a steam shovel.

The accident occured about three miles west of Burlington, on the Burlington and Belleview road. According to J. W. Trailor, driver of a truck which was following the steam shovel and trailer, Snelling either fell of stepped in front of the wheels, which passed over his head, crushing his skull. He died instantly. Witnessed said his features were mangled beyond recognition.

Mr. Snelling was employed by Jay E. Harris, contractor, of Erlanger, and his part in moving the shovel was to operate the brakes on the trailer. Just how the accident occurred is not known as no one saw him when he fell or stepped in front of the trailer.

The steam shovel was said to be the property of John Extercamp, contractor, of Covington.

He was making his home with his sister, Mrs. Walter Schneider of Erlanger at the time of his death.

The steam shovel was drawn by a large truck and was being moved to Lock No. 38, at McVille where it is to be used in construction work.

Mr. Snelling is survived by his father, William Snelling, of Belleview and one sister, Mrs. Walter Schneider, of Erlanger.

Funeral services will be conducted today, Thursday, at 2:00 p. m. in Belleview. Interment will be in the Belleview cemetery.

Philip Taliaferro, Erlanger undertaker had charge of funeral arrangements.

WALTON MAN VICTIM OF HEART AILMENT

George B. Powers, seventy-two-year-old Walton farmer, died suddenly early Sunday morning at the Kentucky Pines, a roadhouse near Independence. Dr. James P. Riffe, Kenton County Coroner, said Powers suffered a heart attack. Funeral arrangements are being made by Chambers and Grubbs, of Walton.

43 PERCENT INCREASE

IS SHOWN IN SEVEN DEMONSTRATIONS WHERE HYBRID SEED CORN WAS USED, ACCORDING TO REPORTS.

Experiment Station Hybrid Corn Seed Strain No. 69 gave this year in seven demonstration test in the county a 43 per cent increased yield, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Strain No. 72 gave 1.9 percent decrease yield, while Ky. Experiment Station strains 75 gave a 22.2 percent increase, strain 76 a 39.7 percent increase, strain 79 a 22.4 percent increase and strain No. 82 a 30.5 percent increase. The above figures are based on measured plot checks on six demonstration and estimated yields on one demonstration. Cooperators in these demonstrations were H. E. White, Harold Crigler, C. H. and Harry Tanner, Prof. D. H. Norris, Noel Walton, Davis Gaines and Luther Smith.

Kentucky Strain No. 69 figuring on a 40 bushel yield for the check plot would have averaged 57.2 bus., increase per acre. Figuring a bushel of seed for eight acres and corn at 75 cents per bushel hybrid seed corn of this strain would be worth $1.032 more per bushel than the regular seed used. The value of other strains could be figured in proportion.

The wide variation in the adaptability of hybrid seed is shown by the fact eight Utpoia Club members each grew on their farms one acre of strain No. 69 that was purchased in Western Kentucky. This seed on the eight farms gave an average increased yield of only 17.8 percent. The seed in the adult demonstrations came direct from the Experiment Station at Lexington and gave a 43 percent increase. A number of farmers also purchased hybrid seed in other states and none gave the increased yield that the Kentucky strains gave.

Boone County Utopia Club members in their corn breeding project this year have produced approximately 30 bushels of the Kentucky Strain No. 69 seed for sale. This seed should be of excellent quality. Farmers interested in purchasing strain 69 local grown seed should contact Lloyd Seikman, Burlington Utopia Club Chairman of the hybrid corn project.

IT HIT'S EVERBODY

An average 100-mile trip in an automobile costs $1.50 for gasoline, 20 cents for oil, 19 cents for tires, and 71 cents for accidents. Consider this last item, as it represents more than one-third of the cost of that 100-mile trip.

The local driver who has never had an accident, or at least a serious one, may think that these figures do not apply to him. But the law of averages has a habit of catching up with all of us sooner or latter, and the figures quoted above are average figures. The accident bill in this country last year totaled $1,640,000,000, which was just about half the amount American motorists spent for gasoline. This accident cost averages $12.75 per capita or $43 per family. These costs may not have hit you last year, but you may not be so lucky this year or next.

The fact that more persons died in traffic accidents in this country last year that there were American soldiers killed on the battlefield of France during the World War has been mentioned so often that it has become an old story. Few pay any attention to it nowadays. But by reducing the monetary costs of such accidents to terms that will fit the average pocketbook, it may be that the different viewpoint will cause us to be a little more careful on the highways. It's hard to get the average driver to think in terms of life and death, so maybe he will give the matter of safety more serious thought if he will stop to consider the costs of accidents from a dollar and cent standpoint.

TOWNS ARE BEST

During his recent trip to the Pacific coast Pres. Roosevelt made a prediction that should be of interest to every citizen of this county when he said.

"It is because I am thinking of the nation 50 years from now that I venture the prophecy that, as time passes, we will do everything in our power to encourage the building up of the smaller communities of the United States. Today many people are beginning to realize that there is inherent weakness in cities which become too large, and inherent strength in a wider distribution of population geographically."

It is a recognized fact that our large cities have grown too big. They make for higher living costs, poorer social conditions and concentration of foreign elements of our population into districts where the making of good and loyal citizens of them becomes constantly more difficult. The style no longer runs to mammoth factories in big cities. The growing practice is to split these huge industries into units, with smaller factories located in the smaller centers of population and over a wider area. Every year sees more and more factories springing up in the smaller towns.

The small city, the town, the village and the hamlet continue to form the backbone of America. Realization of this fact may have come slow, but the prophecy of the President indicates that it is certain. Wise are the young people of the nation who resist the lure of the big cities and are content to cast their lot with the America of tomorrow.

A SIMPLE PROTECTION

How often has the average letter writer wondered, when he failed to receive an answer to his letter, if it was properly addressed, or if it really reached the party for whom it was intended? Maybe, too it contained something of value, something he would very much like to have back in case the party addressed did not receive it. And yet all such worries are simply and easily avoided. The use of printed return cards or, in lieu of this your name and address written in the upper left-hand corner of the envelope will insure its return in the event the address is wrong, the party has moved or it cannot be delivered for any other reason. When he finds he can't deliver it properly, Uncle Sam will return it to you—providing your name and address is on the envelope. This day in time when printed stationery is cheaper than blank paper and envelopes used to be it is unwise to be without it. It is your one and only insurance against worrying over whether your letters reach their destination or not. And it is your only way of being sure that you will get back whatever valuables are in the letter in case it cannot be delivered. Use printed envelopes.

BE CAUTIOUS

It takes more skill to handle your car in reverse than in any of the speeds ahead. Scores of motorist who are prefect drivers when going forward are little better than amatures when it comes to "backing up." And that is true of motorists everywhere, and accounts for thousands of accidents—and many deaths every year. Failure to make sure the way is clear in all directions before going into reverse is dangerous. Backing in and out of parking places is ticklish business, for besides the safety of pedestrains passing traffic must also be reckoned with. As a precaution, sound your horn and especially look to the rear on both sides before backing—a child or some other pedestrain may have stepped into the path you are about to take while you were getting behind the wheel. Be cautious, always back carefully, and follow that safest of all rules—"Take it easy."

—o—

TAKE YOUR CHOICE

On the occasion of Premier Mussolini's recent visit to Herr Hitler in Germany the Italian dictator traveled in an armored car along tracts that had been cleared for 24 hours between Rome and the Austrain border, and gaurded by soilders stationed every 100 yards along the entire route. During that same week the President of the U. S. toured Yellowstone Park in an open car, unattended by any gaurd except his usual secret service followers, and watched with othres while his little granddaughter fed sugar to bears begging on the roadside. Is it necessary to point out to citizens of Boone County the lesson contained in these two extremes? We dwell in peace and good-will in our democracy, in strange contrast to the perils continually surrounding the autocratic demagogs of the Old World. There's nothing to prevent any dissatisfied citizen from moving to Europe if he wants to. But it would be a good idea for him to first read this—and then take his choice.

JOIN THE RED CROSS:

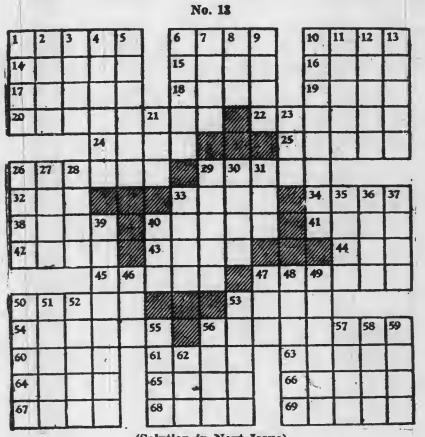
We urge the people of this country to give their help to the American Red Cross by joining it and paying their $1 a year membership dues between now and Thanksgiving Day, when the annual rollcall in Kentucky will end. We hope most earnestly that the quota set by Red Cross workers in Kentucky — 100,000 members — is reached, for if any state owes the Red Cross loyal support that state is Kentucky.

This newspaper has consistently suppored Red Cross campaigns in Kentucky for many years, giving freely of its space to news of what the Red Cross is doing—and it is always doing something for somebody in need. Its service has been intended for those who were unable to help themselves and not only in Kentucky but all over the United States and in many parts of the world outside it has been an angel of mercy in time of disastor and flood and famine to millions of sufferers.

When the Red Cross workers, all of whom are giving their time without compensation to the annual rollcall, call on you give them your dollar with a smile and tell the how proud you are to have a part in such a great work as the Red Cross is carring on.

RIPENING METHODS TRIED FOR BURLEY

Favorable results from the use of belters or deadeners in ripening burley tobacco in Hart county is reported by John W. Irvine, assistant county agent.



Following a tour, in which 25 farmers inspected fields of belted tobacco, 20 hand-made belters were ordered from a blacksmith in Uno community. Interest spread rapidly and a belter was placed on the market, about 25 more being sold in the county.

Belting has three main purposes, says Mr. Irvine. In the first place, tobacco which is mature and partly ripe is deadened in order to prevent second growth from taking place following rains. Secondly, the use of belters hastens ripening of crops which are late maturing and which might be damaged by frost. Finally, belters are used on crops which are "spotted," in an effort to even up the ripening.

Tobacco on which deadeners or belters were used was ready to be cut and housed in about 10 days or two weeks. Most Hart county farmers trying deadening or belting this season believe the extra expense and work paid well in giving a more uniform and better ripened crop, according to Mr. Irvine.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 3:10-15; Galatians 6:6-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.—Galatians 6:9.
PRIMARY TOPIC—In Our Church.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What Can I Do to Help?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Can I Do for Christ and the Church?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Need for Christian Workers.

"Laborers together with God"—such is the glorious and distinctive title of true Christians, according to the verse just preceding our assigned text. Unfortunate is the all too common error of regarding only pastors and missionaries as the workers in God's vineyard. While we recognize that there is a special calling for some men to leave their vocations and devote their entire time to the Lord's work, let us be sure properly to stress the importance of every Christian's being a worker for God.

The portions assigned for our study present the privilege and responsibility of Christians as fellow-workers with Christ, under the figures of builders and of seed sowers.

I. Builders of the House (I Cor. 3:10-15).

The first requisite of a building is a foundation and it must be strong and true. Builders for Christ have a sure foundation stone in Him.

1. The Foundation—Jesus Christ.

There is only definite assurance in Paul's word concerning the foundation. It is perfectly clear to him that there can be no Christian faith without Jesus Christ. Such a statement sounds almost childish. One might well assume that no intelligent person would claim to be one of God's builders, and reject his foundation stone. But, alas, many are they who claim to be Christians, who profess to be raising a structure of Christian life and testimony, but who have set aside the only possible foundation on which to build.

2. The Master Builder—and his builders.

Paul was a pioneer. He declares his ambition and calling to be "to preach the gospel not where Christ was named, lest I should build on another man's foundation" (Rom. 10:25). Such a privilege does not come to all men, but let those who thus serve learn of this "wise master builder" that they may lay only one foundation—Jesus Christ.

"Let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon." It is a serious matter to serve the Lord as a builder, for it is possible to go badly astray at this point as well as in laying the foundation.

3. The materials—good and bad.

Whether we apply Paul's words to the building of our personal spiritual life or to the work we do in the church they are equally serious and urgent. "The day"—when Christ returns, and we shall stand before him to give account of the deeds done in the flesh—will reveal by flaming fire whether we have been faithful, true and diligent in preaching God's Word, in prayer, in sacrificial service for Christ, or have sought to introduce into our lives and into the churches we serve the "wood, hay, and stubble" of unspiritual schemes, neglect of God's Word, prayerlessness.

Saved? Yes, but entering into God's presence as a man who has escaped from his burning house with nothing but his life.

II. Sowers of the Seed (Gal. 6:6-10).

The figure changes. No longer are we builders—but rather sowers of seed. Would that it were all good seed that were sown—but we see the sowing to the flesh as well as to the Spirit. This is true

1. In our own lives. The inexorable law of sowing and reaping prevails in the moral realm as truly as it does in the physical. Men who would never expect wheat to grow where they have planted thistles, seem to expect that they may sow in their own lives the seeds of selfish indulgence, of careless neglect of the things of God, and still somehow reap the fruit of good character and noble living.

2. In the lives of others. We may be tempted to take attractive by-paths and short-cuts to win the interest and allegiance of men to ourselves and the church, but they will prove to bring but corruption and destruction. Spiritual seed will always produce spiritual life.

3. Waiting for the harvest. Harvest must be patiently awaited. We know it to be so in natural things; the same is true in the spiritual realm.

A Message of Love

One of the last slowly murmured sayings of the American poet Whittier, as he lay a-dying, was this: "Give—my love—to—the—world."

TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT

Start out tomorrow and canvass the county, asking every man you meet how many different divisions of government there are in the U. S., and it is safe to say not one will be anywhere near correct in his estimate.

For two years the job of counting the actual number has been under way, and the result should make every tax-ayer in Boone County open his eyes in wonderment. The total shows that there are in this county 127,000 school districts, 20,000 townships, 16,000 incorporated cities towns, boroughs and villages, 3,000 counties, and 8,600 misscellaneous sewer districts, park districts, levee districts, etc. It must be remembered that each of these 175,418 districts has its payroll, and also that each district has the power to tax.

This is, as all must admit, a most wasteful setup. There are at least ten times too many of these governmental subdivisions. Because they are centered in Washington, federal employes draw a concentrated fire of criticism because of their numbers. But, in reality, their numbers are significant when compared with the great army of overlapping employes of lesser political and governmental units. Residents of every state cry aloud for economy in public affairs and reduction in taxes, and never turn a hand toward consolidating some of their units of state government and abolishing those for which there is no real need. Until there is a nation-wide move in that direction we must continue to live in a country that suffers from too much government.

HANDY HINTS:

Leaky pipes may be repaired by wrapping around a strip of cloth which has been dipped in melted paraffine—Oilcloth may be renewed by washing with borax water followed by rubbing with a flannel cloth dipped in milk—To tighten a sewing machine or other belt, slip several large rubber bands over the smaller wheel of the machine. This will keep the belt tight temporarily but is not a permanent repair.

Ever notice how much quicker a job is done when everybody connected with it minds his own business?

WHAT RED CROSS DID PAST YEAR IN STATE

MORE MONEY EXPENDED TO AID FLOOD SUFFERERS THAN ANY OTHER OF ELEVEN STATES.

As the 1937 rollcall of the American Red Cross gets under way in Kentucky—November 11 to November 25-attention is directed to the state-wide accomplishments of the organization in the state the past year, which set an all-time record in disaster health and safety activities, according to an accounting of Red Cross work in Kentucky.

Along with these achivements membership in the Red Cross reached the highest point since the World War, with 71,800 members, and Red Cross officials and workers in Kentucky have expressed the determination to reach this year the goal of 100,000 members agreed upon as a fair quota for the state.

In connection with the past year's work it is pointed out that during the January and February flood along the Ohio river the Red Cross gave assistance to 336,549 persons in Kentucky, at a cost of $9,241,500, which constitued the largest amount spent in any of the eleven States in the flood basins. Food, Clothing, shelter, medical attention, replacing ruined household goods, replacing damaged homes and building new ones for those who lost everything in the flood were a part of the service the Red Cross rendered.

The past year Red Cross classes in first aid, life saving and hygiene were increased to meet the demands of communities interested in these activities Red Cross public health nurses made 7,580 visits to patients who were under the care of physicians and assisted in examining a large number of children in the schools for physical defects. In conducting these examinations Red cross nurses found many children in need of medical attention, which was provided.

The Red Cross in Kentucky continued its aid to disabled ex-service men and their families, giving assistance in more than 5,350 cases. On the highways of Kentucky sixteen emergency first aid stations to care for persons injured in automobile accidents were set up, and the establishment of more of these stations in every section of the state and on every important highway is being planned by Red Cross, chapters in a number of counties.

And yet, according to an official of the Red Cross: "We have not yet begun to meet all of the needs with which we are confronted. What we need today is more partners under this Red Cross emblem—more members to share in the work that we are doing."

SHOULD REPORT SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT NUMBER

It was announced today by Frank B. Decker, Jr., Manager of the Social Security Board office, for this area, located at 414 Coppin Bldg., Covington, that before the tobacco season closes every person who has been working in a tobacco warehouse or processing plant should have reported to each employer, for whom he has worked, his Social Security Account Number, which is the number of his Old-Age Insurance Account with the Social Security Board.

This, he said, will assure that wages are properly credited to the workers accounts; will be a means of saving employers considerable time and trouble in making reports to the Collector of Internal Revenue, and will avoid the delay involved in numerous last minute applications which the Social Security Office may not be able to handle with the usual speed. The amount of the Old-Age Benefits, he pointed out, depends on the amount of wages reported by employers, therefore, the Account Number is most important to the worker.

Application forms may be obtained from your Postmaster, or from the Social Security Board, at 414 Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky.

RURAL GROUP TO MEET IN KENTUCKY

At the American Country Life Association's annual meeting, held recently in Manhattan, Kans., 35 persons from five Kentucky counties were in attendance. Counties represented were Jefferson, Warren, Christian, Pike and Fayette. The theme of the meeting was "The People and the Land," and organizations holding meetings at the same time were the National Home Demonstration Council and the National Rural Forum. Miss Mary Byrd Kendall ,of Cynthiana, was the official delegate from the Home Economics Club of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, while Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity, has as delegates Harold Binkley, Fulton; Paul Barnett, Bagdad; James Quisenberry, Winchester, and Charles Barrett, Sacramento, Ky.

PACK HORSE LIBRARY PROJECT

Last year the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers endorsed a project entitled "Pack Horse Libraries." Eightythree P. T. A. units in 45 different towns participated, donating 7,120 books and magazines and 1,040 pounds of reading materials. One hundred and one dollars and seventy cents ($101.70) was contributed to the Penny Fund with which 131 new books were purchased and sent to these libraries. The units also spent $11.59 for transportation of materials.

This project is os unique and intriguing that people from 19 different states have participated in supply reading materials for it.

Thorugh the cooperation of these and other agencies and individuals thousands of books and magazines have been made available to people in eight counties in eastern Kentucky. The circulation of these books amounted to 100,000 and magazines.

NEEDED WILD LIFE ON THE FARM

By Lucy Furman

In the preceding article, we took up the Rodent destroys, principal ones of which we saw to be the weasel, red fox, mink, opossum, and mousink hawks, owls and snakes.

The foremost natural destroyers of insects are the birds. "The digestion of birds," says Dr. Funkhouser, "is very rapid. They can eat almost constantly. The number of insect pests fed to young birds is almost unbelievable, and the adults are voracious eaters. In the stomach of a raincrow were found over 200 caterpillars; in that of a cedar waxwing, 100 canker-worms; of a chicadee, nearly 500 plant lice; of a nighthawk or bull-bat, 60 grasshoppers; of a flicker, 1000 chinchbugs. A scarlet tanager was seen to eat 630 gypsy-moth caterpillars in 18 minutes, a yellow-throat, 3500 plant lice in 50 minutes . . . The army worm has 43 different bird enemies; the chinch-bug 24, codling moth 36, bill-bugs 67, cutworms 98, potato bug 28, white grub 67, and so on."

Every common bird—robin, catbird, thrasher, mocker, cardinal, bluebird, phoebe, swallow, wren, meadow-lark, quail, dove, is an invaluable servant, working all day long for the farmer, destroyed his enemies. But what is his response? He first cuts away all their forest cover, and, next, every tree, bush, briar, vine, and weed along his fence-rows, roadsides, creek banks and gulleys; and then the birds seek a last refuge in his orchard and around his home, he permits every nearby small boy, and roving pothunter, to shoot at them at all times, and, worst of all, turns loose upon them a family of cats, to climb the trees nights and eat up all their young, and watch for busy adults during the day (each house cat is estimated to eat at least 50 birds during a year, and each stray cat many more). Is it any wonder that with this criminal indifference, the birds of the United States have now decreased to two to the acre, and that, in Kentucky, 50% of our birds have disappeared in the past 20 years?

The other great insect destroyer is the skunk, wonderfully fitted by nature to hear and smell, many inches down in the ground, the harmful grubs that the birds cannot reach, and to dig them out before they can come up and breed and multiply, as well as to catch the perfected insects after they emerge. The skunk has been the object of much prejudice because the first settlers in America, solely on account of its bad odor, mistakenly named it after the European polecat or fitchet-weasel, a vicious little beast that lives upon poultry and birds. In vain biologists have long told us that the skunk is nothing like the polecat, —that it is gentle, friendly, slow, never throws its scent unless attacked, and is so heavy and clumsy that it cannot climb to a roost, but must get all its food from the ground; that it seldom or never kills poultry, or robs game-bird nests (see Farm Bulletin 587). The recent Michigan researches have now proved all this. In all the 1700 skunk stomachs, not one trace of a game-bird egg was found, and the entire percentage of birds and poultry was only 2 per cent of its rations and, as it loves carrion, might well have been thrown-away parts of fowls in the garbage piles it frequents. The skunk is the best single enemy of army worm, tobacco worm, cutworm, tomato worm, hopworm, white grub, locust, grasshoppers, cricket, sphynx-moth, many caterpillars (Bul. 587). It is the only destroyer of the tobacco worm except the turkey, not only digging the grub, but picking the worm off the plants as high up as it can reach. The hop growers of New York have had it protected by law there for similar labor in the hop fields. It should be protected everywhere—taken off the fur list and put on the farm protective list along with the song-birds.

The other valuable insect destroyers are the small grass, garden and garter snakes, which should never be killed.

Our next article will be a summing-up of what we have found.

GOOD WIRING OF HOUSES STRESSED

Good wiring of houses and other buildings was stressed at the recent conference on rural electrification at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington. Many problems connected with the farm electrification program now under way in the state were discussed. About 10,000 farms now have electricity, and it was predicted that the number will be doubled by the end of next year.

Speakers urged farmers to employ reliable contractors, and have wiring officially inspected, in the interests of safety and economy. Poor wiring may have to be done over, in part or in whole, and also may result in the waste of electric current and be expensive in the end.

Location of lights and other outlets in the house should be planned carefully, it was said, so relocation or additions may be required at later dates. Care in buying fixtures and equipment also is advisable.

With 36 percent of Kentucky farmers owning automobiles, it was declared at the conference that electricity will not be more expensive than cars.

Electric lines are being constructed or being planned in 52 Kentucky counties. Lines have been erected in several counties, and current has been turned on in Henderson county.

SIX HERDS AVERAGE 450 POUNDS PER COW

Six herds in the Bluegrass Dairy Herd Improvement Association recently completed a year on test with an average production in excess of 450 pounds of butterfat. Five of them had more than 20 cows each.

The Guernsey herd owned by Howard Oots in Fayette county topped the list with a production of 8,541 pounds of milk and 469 pounds of butterfat.

A herd of Guernseys owned by Ed Pruett of Clark county produced 8,489 pounds of milk and 468 pounds of fat, and S. B. Smoot's Jersey herd in Mason county averaged 8,909 pounds of milk and 465 pounds of fat. Composed of Holsteins and Jerseys, the herd at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington averaged 9,479 pounds of milk and 459 pounds of fat, and the Berea College herd of Guernseys, Jerseys and Holsteins averaged 11,739 pounds of milk and 454 pounds of butterfat.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

Kentucky's Democratic Party did right well for itself in the November 2 election . . . Several Republican strongholds, which had in the past, withstood all invasions since the party's inception, are now flying the Democratic banner for the first time in history . . . It sums up simply to this that when the General Assembly convenes at the State House here in Frankfort early in January 1938, to ponder over statutes and such, there will be 75 Democrats to 25 Republicans in the House of Representatives and 28 Democratic Senators to 10 Republicans . . . Last year the Democrats number 66 in the House and twenty-five in the Senate . . . The question now is "How many members of the new General Assembly are lined up with the Administration?" . . . That's another easy one. There are enough that the Administration need not fear. There will be no less than 60 members of the House and 24 Senate members on the side of the Governor . . . And for the first time in a quarter century the Governor of this Commonwealth can say that his side controlled both sessions of of Legislature during his tenure of office.

Hubert Meredith did the fanciest piece of running that has ever been done in the state, to win the Attorney Generalship . . . His margin of victory, was over 100,000 over his republican opponent. It was an all time high . . . even better than the high margin established by Governor Chandler in 1935 . . . This mark is more remarkable in that fewer voters went to the polls in this general election than did in 1935.

* * *

Another toll bridge was added to the Highway Department's Collection during the week . . . The Milton-Madison span over the Ohio River 12 miles below Carrollton has been purchased for approximately $915,000 . . . This was a bargain considering that the bridge cost $1,750,000 . . . The bridge is less than 8 years old and is in good condition . . . Upon announcing the purchase of the bridge Robert Humphreys, Highway Commission said that under the present set-up it would pay for itself in 7½ years and would be freed . . . This is the only bridge over the Ohio between Cincinnati and Louisville.

Last week the voters went to the polls and showed great disapproval of two Constitutional amendments. . . . They didn't want them . . . At the same time the original constitution of the State was being sent back to the Commonwealth's archives where it is hoped that it will forever rest . . . The State's original Constitution has been romping around under chaperonage other than that of Kentucky since, nobody knows when. . . . It is said to have disappeared early in this century, maybe about 1909 . . . Just exactly where it went or what the circumstances of its disappearance is still a mystery . . . Some say that it was lost during the moving of documents from the Old State House in North Frankfort to the New Capitol in South Frankfort . . . It apparently turned up at the University of Chicago and was brought back from there.

Mr. James W. Martin, Commissioner of Revenue has announced a thorough reorganization of the Revenue Department . . . He has been working for almost a year on plans for the reorganization and has so worked them out that the functions of the department has been so co-ordinated that none overlap . . . Revenue collection from all sources formerly handled by different ones in various sections of the Capitol building have been fixed so that all receipts will be delivered to the same department and only bonded employees will handle the money . . .

Random Shots—Up at Union, Ohio the Merry Villagers are proud of the fact that they elected William E. Norris, a 22-year-old grocery clerk as mayor of the city . . . He is hailed as the youngest mayor in Ohio . . . Without much ado Whitesburg, Ky., in Letcher County went out and elected Bill Collins, an undertaker's apprentice to the chair of Mayor. Bill is just 21 years old . . . In each of the Commonwealth's burley tobacco sales points, the big warehouses are being made ready for a record handling of crops. In Lexington all warehouses are either being remodeled or otherwise changed to take care of larger sales. Meanwhile, out on the farm, the business of stripping the weed and preparing it for market, has begun . . . Four and one-half miles of four lane highway will be built from the City limits of Versailles to the Fayette county line, so announces Drake Naive, Advisory Highway Commissioner of the Sixth District. It is to be all concrete and will be another link of concrete in the all important U. S. 60 . . . 64 Prisoners from the state's two main penal institutions, were out on parole this week. The parole board approved papers for 45 at the new farm at LaGrange and for 19 more at Eddyville . . . A. C. Carter was reelected to the post of Mayor of Prestonsburg, polling as many votes as did both of his opponents . . . Mayor Carter is under a two-year sentence for mismanagement of Federal relief funds. . . . Democrats were unopposed for 45 of the 100 vacancies in the House of Representatives . . . There were nineteen senate races Tuesday, Nov. 2. . . . Eleven Democrats ran without opposition . . . The Court of Appeals is all Democratic now with the election of Virgil Baird of Glasgow.

QUESTIONS OF SHEEP RAISERS SUBJECT OF STATE-WIDE MEETING

Sheep raisers have been asked to submit questions for answers and discussion at a meeting to be held at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington December 8. There will be no set speeches, it is announced, but expert sheep raisers will be asked to answer questions which farmers send in.

The College of Agriculture, thru its extension division, holds meetings over the state, and then an annual state-wide meeting at Lexington, in its educational program for the state's most important livestock industry. Kentucky has a national reputation for its high-quality lambs, and the sheep business is one of its most important farm enterprises.

Richard C. Miller, who is arranging the Lexington meeting, is asking farmers to think over their problems, and then submit questions which they would like answered. These questions may be given to county agents or sent directly to Mr. Miller at the Experiment Station. The plan this year is to build a program for the state meeting entirely around ideas furnished by sheepmen themselves, he said.

IN THE KITCHEN:

When cupboards or closets are damp they can be kept dry and sweet by placing a small pan of lime in them—To clean coffee or spice mills after grinding strong spices, grind a handful of rice through it and all flavors will be removed—Cracks in dishes are rendered almost unnoticeable if dish is boiled in sweet milk to cover for about three-quarters of an hour.

AN INSPIRATION

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destined end and way;
But to act, that each tomorrow

YOUR WASHINGTON and MINE

By James E. Pope

Washington's Amateur Columnist

Washington—"I do not want public office", says former President Herbert Hoover in his Boston speech. . . .

Such an empty and equivocal statement serves to more hopelessly entrammel the already sorely beset minority party, and to detract from the dignity of one having been honored with high office. It clearly and definitely brands Mr. Hoover as a furtive seeker after additional honors, and strongly implies that not only is he willing, but that he is anxiously waiting to be "drafted" as the Republican nominee in 1940.

On the other side of the fence President Roosevelt has given utterance to nothing in propria persona to reveal yearnings for a third term. But his official spokeman, Mr. James A. Farley, has said plenty. Likewise, the President's newly wedded son Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., has issued a portentous statement.

Mr. Farley lately declared that "Roosevelt could carry all the 48 states in 1940". This, in itself, constitutes a highly significant statement. Coherent with Mr. Farley's buoyant summation, but fraught with still greater meaning and loaded with political dynamite comes the not even thinly veiled declaration by the President's son and namesake, as contained in that letter to Mr. Joseph Leib. Mr. Leib—quondam New Deal partisan—had sought the son's reaction to the third term question, to which young Roosevelt replied, in part: "———concerning a third term for my father—the necessity for deciding such an issue has not AS YET arisen, since what we feel today MAY HAVE TO BE REVISED two years from now in the light of CIRCUMSTANCES BEYOND OUR CONTROL, such as the foreign situation". (the captial letters are mine).

It is far from the fantastic or the unreasonable to assume—as thinking persons must assume—that the illustrious father possessed phecise and authentic knowledge of both context and portend of his son's letter before it was sent out—if, indeed, he did not guide the hand that wrote it.

Such declarations, one by Mr. Farley, the other by a member of the President's immediate family, the nature and tenor of both having surely been foreknown to Mr. Roosevelt, both emanating from sources regarded as authoritative, come dangerously near constituting outright official notification that F. D. R. has decided to be "drafted" for a third term.

It is high time for the President to take the public into his confidence concerning his plans and ambitions for the furture. Mr. Farley's not facetious implication, and young Roosevelt's almost direct and perhaps authorized intimation leaves no other reasonably satisfying course. When a Roosevelt hints that "circumstances beyond our control" may lead to a state whereby our feelings and regard for precedent may have to be revised" to the extent that we would give his famous father a third term, the people are forced to wonder. They should wonder. If Mr. Roosevelt is dreaming no dreams around new political worlds to conquer in 1940, why does he not give coup de grace to all this third term propaganda? The answer is to be had in the fact that New Dealers within the scarred portals are sold on the idea of a third term—that it is already "in the bag".

What the political weather map needs and must have, before any feeling other than nervous disquietude can swell the bosom of the average citizen, is a forthright declaration from each of our three living great Americans—Roosevelt, Hoover and Landon. They should bespeak their minds in terms not ambiguous. If they are willing to close and lock the 1940 White House doors behind them they should equivocate no longer. A famous personage gave birth to a noted slogan; it carried no hidden meaning. The originator neglected to have his words copyrighted, so today, whosever will may use them for his own. This declaration, "If nominated I will not accept; if elected I will not serve", would be easy to interpret if adopted by any or all suspicious political characters of current front page history.

What a beautiful and happy serenade it would be, to fill our nights with gladness and our days with peace, if Messrs. Roosevelt, Hoover and Landon would band themselves together in a renunciatory triad, and with the words of that famous declination for their swan-song, pass from the 1940 picture, carrying with them their pristine glories yet untarnished—into self-imposed and commutual political expatriation!

Vaccination checked outbreaks of hog cholera and blackleg among cattle in Floyd county.

Jessamine county homemakers made an extensive exhibit of refinished furniture at county shows.

PROF. LENTS APPOINTED

DIRECTOR OF SALE OF TUBERCULOSIS CHRISTMAS SEALS IN BOONE COUNT—HALF OF PROCEEDS TO REMAIN IN CO.

R. V. Lents, principal of the Constance school has been appointed director of the sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals in Boone County. According to Mr. Lents 50 percent of the net proceeds of te sale is to be kept in Boone County.

The Boone County Protective Association was organized last year to conduct the annual sale of the Christmas seals. Mr. Lents is the Executive Secretary of the organization, and D. H. Norris, Superintendent of Boone County Schools is the Treasurer.

According to Mr. Lents, 70,000 seals will be released in Boone County Friday following Thanksgiving. Every school in Boone County is cooperating i nthe sale. The schools of the county have been divided into three classes, and for each class there will be a first and second cash prize for the school that sells the most seals per pupil enrolled. The pupil of each school that sells the most for his school will also get a handsome prize with his name printed in gold.

Mr. Lents has mailed hundreds of seals to individuals. They may be purchased ,the money be sent to Mr. Lents, Ludlow, R. 2 and the school district in which the purchaser lives wil lreceive credit for the sale.

Tuberculosis is the greatest destroyer of life in the active period. It took 2065 of our citizens last year. Tuberculosis robs childhood, wrecks youth, blights manhood, and womanhood, and has no regard for one station of life.

Education is the greatest weapon to fight this white plague. The Kentucky Tuberculosis Association is the only state organization dedicated entirely to the fight against tuberculosis. The sale of Christmas seals is its only support. This organization cannot take care of all tuberculosis cases in Kentucky because its funds are inadequate.

Open your hearts, your homes, and your communities to this harbinger of better health. When you receive seals or some child offers them to you for sale open your pocketbook and purchase all that you can. Help to the limit to stap out this dreadful disease.

DOORS OPEN ON MONDAY NOV. 29

OF KENTON LOOSELEAF TOBACCO WAREHOUSE IN COVINGTON—FIRST SALE SCHEDULED FOR DEC. 7.

The door the Kenton Looseleaf Warehouse in Covington will be open Monday, November 29th to receive one of northern Kentucky's largest tobacco crops in years, and one that Herbert Whitley, general manager warehouse said "is in a better position to handle than ever before."

The first sale will be held on Tuesday, December 7th.

Mr. Whitley, who comes to the local market after a successful career on the Ripley, O., market, outlined a program he believes will offer more service at the Covington market for farmers selling there, than ever has been afforded.

One of the features of his program for the market this year is what Mr. Whitley terms "free grading," which will afford the farmer the best opportunity possible to receive the best and fairest price for his crop and will avail the buyers of information on the exact grade and value of all tobacco placed on the market.

According to the manager, the Kenton warehouse will have sales every day. except Saturdays and Sunday this year. A set of buyers representing all large and small companies will attend the sales.

Last year, nearly 2,000,000 pounds were sold on the Kenton floor, and Mr. Whitley expects this year's sales to be far above that of last year, inasmuch as a greater number of farmers are expected to bring their crops to the Covington market this year, and also because this year's crop is estimated to be approximately 25 per cent larger than last year's. This latter increase was brought about by the fact that the federal government did not reduce the acreage as greatly this year as last year.

The plan of having a sale at the Kenton warehouse every day except Saturday and Sunday is being made possible by the fact that there is only one warehouse in Covington.

By having sales five days each week, farmers will meet with less delay in selling their crops, and more tobacco can pass over the floor than in recent years.

Col. R. G. Kinman, noted auctioneer has been employed by this warehouse to cry the sales, Mr. Kinman is well known in Boone County and northern Kentucky He is classed among the best in the profession of auctioneering.

In completing arrangements for this season, Mr. Whitley has named John Staton, Brooksville. sales manager; Fred Constant, Felicity, O., floor manager.

A son, Claude Rouse, Jr., his mother, Mrs. Mary Rouse, and three sisters, Mrs. Bessy Rouse and Mrs. Grace Irwin, Elsmere, and Mrs. Sadie Fisher, Moore's Hill, Ind., survive him.

Services were conducted at 1:30 Friday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Bessy Rouse, Dell and Garvey Avenues, Elsmere, followed by services at the Hopeful Lutheran Church at 2 o'clock. Burial was in Hopeful cemetery.

The annual payment for street lights in Burlington is over a month in arrears and if we are to have lights in town this winter it is necessary to chip in and pay the light company before December 1. Your usual contribution may be left at the bank or handed to one of those who usually receive the money for transmittal to the light company. It is important that this matter be taken care of at once.

LEGISLATION SOUGHT TO EXTEND FEDERAL AID

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 19—Garth K. Ferguson, Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture, announced today his department would actively support legislation to extend Federal benefit payments to livestock breeders who use purebred sires.

Ferguson returned today from Washington, where he attended the meeting of the National Association of Commissioners and Directors of Agriculture. A resolution he sponsored, asking Congress to extend benefit payments to stock breeders, was adopted by the association, he said. The resolution was supported by the Kentucky Livestock Improvement Association.

"Under present plans," Ferguson said, "benefit payments are provided for soil conservation and improvement, and it seems just as important that the breeding of better livestock be encouraged by similar payments."

The New Haven Boosters' Club leads the southern group of clubs in completion. The Booster's Club is the largest in Boone County with a total enrollment of 62 members. Much credit must be given to the club officers, leaders and project captains for their fine work in securing these good records.

STATE BRIDGES GET HIGHWAYS

KENTUCKY WILL ROUTE NUMBERS 25, 42, 27 AND 10 OVER C. & O., AND L. & N./SPANS—ENABLE STATE TO PAY DEBT

Thomas H. Cutler, chief engineer of the Kentucky State Highway Department, said in Frankfort Saturday that U. S. Routes 25 and 42 will be routed exclusively over the Chespeake and Ohio R. R. Co. bridge between Covington and Cincinnati, and U. S. Route 27 and State Route 10 over the Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co. bridge between Newport and Cincinnati "as soon as we can get the signs changed."

He said that he had communicated with the Ohio highway department officials asking them to "pick up" the routings there and continue them through Ohio.

At present the routing of roads 27 and 10 have been optional over either the L. & N. and Broadway bridges in Newport, and in Covington signs have guided traffic over Highways 25 and 42 into Cincinnati over the Suspension Bridge and along those routes through Ohio, over the C. & O. bridge.

Mr. Cutler said that should Ohio wish to purchase the other two bridges he would be willing to make a compromise with them on the routings. But, at the present he plans to make the highway routings over the C. & O. and L. & N. bridges, both of which the state owns, in an effort to free them as soon as possible.

BUSINESS IN SMALL TOWNS SHOWS GAINS

Daily average sales of general merchandise in small towns and rural areas for October were about 3½ per cent above October of last year and, with the exception of December 1936 and December 1929, were higher than for any month during the past nine years. These changes were revealed by estimates, just received by the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department, based on rural chain store and mail order sales. Total sales for the first ten months of the year showed an increase of about 8½ per cent as compared with the corresponding period in 1936.

210 FARMERS SOW ALFALFA

REPRESENTS LARGE INCREASE IN ALFALFA ACREAGE SOWN ANNUALLY IN BOONE COUNTY.

Two hundred and ten farmers cooperating in the A. C. Program sowed 884.5 acres of alfalfa this year, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. This represents a large increase in the alfalfa acreage sown annually. One hundred ninety-one of these farmers sowed their alfalfa in the spring and 11 sowed in the fall.

Similar figures completed on other soil building practices show that 61 farmers sowed 2830.2 acres of red clover, 6 farmers sowed 70.9 acres of crimson clover. Only 141 sowed lespedeza alone or in sufficient amount in mixture for lespedeza classification. A much larger number sowed lespedeza in mixture.

One hundred and fifty farmers or approximately 12½ percent used 3980 tons of limestone for credit in the program this year. A large number of the above farmers used limestone for the first time.

Phosphate amounting to 526,725 pounds was used on 3608.4 acres of soil conserving crops. This represents by far the largest use of phosphate in soil building practices on record. Walton and Verona communities led all other communities in use of both limestone and phosphate. Forty-nine farmers treated 473 acres with limestone and 94 farmers treated 1027 acres with 155,300 pounds of phosphate. Hamilton and Carlton communities used the smallest amounts with only five farmers using limestone and 10 farmers using phopshate.

HOMEMAKERS DECORATE HOME

With the correct arrangement of furniture and the service and comfort derived from each piece, the New Haven Homemakers exercised their knowledge gained from the project of the year, by doing over the home of Mrs. Walter Ferguson last Friday, November 19. A most noticeable improvement was the mantle decoration in a guest room where vases were placed to balance two portraits hung on each side of an antique clock.

The dinner was in keeping with the holiday of the week, following, each member contributing her favorite dish. Some twenty women were present at the business session with the president, Mrs. Sam Sleet presiding.

Ligon-Sullivan

Miss Ruth Ligon and Mr. Earl Sullivan were quietly married on Saturday, November 6th by Rev. R. Lee James. Virginia Sullivan and Gene Jones, were the attendants.

The happy young couple will make their home with Mrs. Sallie Ryle of McVille.

The Recorder joins with their many friends in wishing them much happiness through life.

HIGHWAYS SLIPPERY

AFTER SNOW FALL FRIDAY AND SATURDAY — TEMPERATURE DROPS TO 17 DEGREES—WARMER FIRST OF WEEK.

Northern Kentuckians, who felt they had experienced a fairly good taste of winter Friday, decided Saturday that the Old Man with the icy breath had just been playing around, for he settled down in dead earnest, the mercury scudding still farther down the scale before his chilling onslaught. The low Saturday morning was 17 degrees.

Roads throughout Boone County and northern Kentucky which were already very slippery were made even more so by the snow Saturday, and were difficult to travel in many parts of the county. No major traffic accidents were reports, but motorists were compelled to creep gingerly over slippery roads in many places.

Sunday morning the mercury climbed somewhat and weather forecasts for the early part of the week indicate slowly rising temperatures.

FINEST QUAIL SEASON IN YEARS REPORTED BY GAME COMMISSION

According to a report of the State Fish and Game Commission, this year will be the finest quail season in many years. The department said: "We are happy to point out to you that we are going into the finest quail season we have had in years, brought about by the planting of 5,200 brood quail in open shooting territory under the strict supervision of this Division."

The general report on the rabbit crop is good and in several sections they are more than abundant.

In making their report the commission wishes to point out the absolute necessity for you to buy your license in order that this work can continue as the sale of licenses is the only source of revenue to this division.

The commission also requests hunters to treat the farmers and property owners courteously, thereby making a friend not only for yourself but for the Division of Game and Fish, of Frankfort, Ky.

The commission has compiled a report outlining the various sections of the state and showing the counties which will afford the best hunting ground. The report is in our office, and we will be glad to show it to anyone who is interested.

Mrs. Addie Aylor, of Hebron, spent last Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Jones and family.

THANKSGIVING

Again the harvest season reaches a close, and again comes America's day of Thanksgiving.

Into some hearts rain may have fallen since last this national holiday was celebrated, but despite this there also must have come some sunshine, and it is for the sunshine everyone in this county and the nation in general now offers up a prayer of thanks and a plea for another year fraught with such blessings as a kindly Providence has seen fit to bestow in the year now nearing its close.

Blessed by crops more bountiful than in normal years; unhampered by shattered peace or warfare with any sister nation; heartened by steady steps toward normal industrial and financial conditions America has much cause for thankfulness at this time. To those who enjoy the greatest of all blessings—good health—there is the greatest reason for returning thanks on this great national holiday. To those who havv suffered, or across whose path the dark clouds of adversity have fallen during the year, there still is left the blessing of hope for brighter days ahead. In fact, in a country numbering its blessings as generously as this one, there should be no heart without cause for thankfulness.

With the past, and whatever regrets it holds, behind us; with the future steadily growing brighter and confidence and hope growing stronger, this community joins with the balance of the nation in offering up its prayers on this Thanksgiving Day. Each prayer will be in the same spirit of hopefulness which has made America great, and each prayer will be from a heart that is thankful for the privilege of being permitted to shart in her greatness.

JOIN THE RED CROSS!

On the eve of the 1937 Rollcall of the American Red Cross, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued a proclamation—after renewing his own membership for the year—calling upon citizens everywhere to respond generously and promptly when called upon by the doyted workers of the Red Cross.

In his proclamation the President said, in part:

"It is with a feeling of deep pride and gratitude that we look back upon the accomplishments of the Red Cross during the year, when the country was faced with the garvest disaster in its peacetime history. Acting as our national relief agency, the Red Cross gave practical assistance to more than a million people driven from their homes by the floods which swept through the Ohio and Mississippi River valleys. During the same twelve months, the organization brought speedy and efficient relief to the victims of more than one hundred other disasters which visited our people.

In order that the ever increasing calls for Red Cross service may be met promptly wherever and whenever they are sounded, it is of the utmost importance that we further increase the popular support always given to this great organization. I therefore urge our people everywhere to respond generously and promptly to the Red Cross membership roll call."

According to preliminary reports from many Kentucky chapters the opening day of this year's rollcall has been more successful than any opening day for many years. This is as it should be for a state which has fared so well at the hands of this great and beneficient organization, which has never failed to respond to the call of distress in this state and which generally has been first on the ground in every crisis which required its help in the past.

Let us all join the Red Cross and thus manifest our own appreciation of what it has done for the people of Kentucky in times of need.

GOOD SERVICE

Reports from Washington indicate that more young men are now quitting the camps of the CCC to enter private employment than at any time in the last four years. And this is a good sign, for two reasons. First, it shows that private industry is still reaching out for additional help. Second, it shows that the young men trained in Uncle Sam's forest camps have made themselves one of the choicest reservoirs of labor in the country.

It should be of interest to all Boone County citizens who have kept in touch with this new institution to learn that during the first eight months of this year 100,000 of the 316,000 young men enrolled in the CCC have been released before the end of their enlistments to take private jobs.

More than 2,000,000 young Americans have been in these camps since they were established, and not only did they and their families receive help at a time when it was sorely needed, but they have done constructive work for the nation that is now yielding results and that will be of untold value in the years to come. Forestry protection, the building of hundreds of miles of highway, the erection of thousands of miles of telephone wires into heretofore inaccessible places, the saving of forests and farm land from soil erosion, all have made the CCc a valuable institution and one that American citizens now appear, willing to foot the bill for since it is possible to see results.

HUNTING DON'TS

Here are some timely and sensible don'ts for Boone hunters who may be inclined to grow careless with firearms along about this time of year—learn them by heart or paste them in your hat:

Don't pull a gun carelessly thru a fence. Don't use your gun to club game from the brush. Don't carry it cocked—it's always closer to you than it is to the game. Never point a weapon at anyone in fun. Don't walk ahead of an inexperienced hunter—let him go first. Don't leave a gun where children can reach it; all weapons are popguns to them. Don't leave a loaded gun in the house; bears are not coming into the living room this year. Never allow your gun muzzle to clog with mud or snow.

Hunting accidents caused 2,000 deaths in 1936. If everyone obeys the above rules closely there won't be any around here in 1937.

—o—

WALK IN SAFETY

The idea that it is safer to walk with traffic than against it still exists in the minds of a good many citizens. Despite the repeated warnings of traffic authorities pedestrians continue to turn their backs on vehicles bearing down on them, instead of facing cars coming toward them. In walking against traffic one should walk as closed to the edge of the road as possible. Then, if he keeps his wits about him, he won't be caught unawares and hit—except in such cases as when a car for some reason or other suddenly swerves from the road. If you are walking against traffic you have the advantage of seeing cars that are coming toward you; you have the protection of your own eyes as well as the eyes of the driver. If you have to walk on a highway, walk against traffic. Then you will live to walk another day.

A WORD OF WISDOM

We are not trying to tell you business, or regulate your affairs, but a sensible suggestion is never out of place—and here is a timely and sensible one. Before you are tempted to answer the alluring mail-order ads offering Christmas gifts or holiday goods, wait a little while and see what local merchants will have to offer you. They will no doubt show about the same type of goods, and there's always the chance you will see something here at home you will want more than you'll want the mail-order merchandise after it gets here. It's only home-town loyalty to do this, but for your own satisfaction, and with a view to making your own Christmas a happier one, it's the sensible thing to do. It won't be long now until local merchants will be displaying their holiday wares, and advertising them. So be patient, be loyal to your home-town, and be economical at the same time. Let the mail-order ads go this year and buy all your Christmas merchandise in this section.

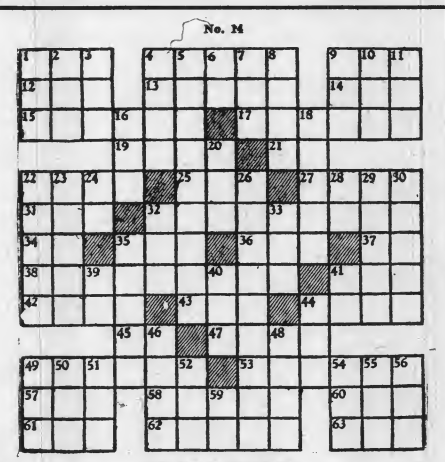
Date-Stuffed Apples—4 apples; ½ cup chopped dates; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; ½ cup water; 1 egg, white beaten stiff; 4 tablespoons sugar; ⅝ cup tart jelly. Peel and core large firm apples. Fill center with dates. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar and dot with butter. Add water and bake in moderate oven (350 degreeF.) until apples are tender. Remove apples from oven and set aside to cool. Just before serving beat egg white until stiff then gradually add sugar and continue beating until smooth. Add the jelly and continue beating until jelly is dissolved. Place on top of apples and serve.

ON CLEANING DAY—

Rub enameled beds with turpentine to clean them . . . To tighten loose dresser handles, place rubber washers on inside between handles and bolts . . . Bran-water is useful for cleaning rush-seated chairs. The water is prepared by adding a handful of wheat bran to one pint of cold water and simering a half-hour. Strain and add a pint of cold water.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Nitrate of silver will often cause corns to disappear. Keep hard corns softened by touching with vaseline night and morning; hard corns should be rubbed smooth with fin sandpaper, never cut. Soft corns should be carefully washed, dusted with talcum and a piece of cotton placed between the toes to separate them.



AN INSPIRATION

"Life is not so short but there is always time for courtesy."

Another thing well worth remembering is that real Christians do not carry their religion. Their religion carries them.

Lesson for November 28

CHRISTIAN FRUITFULNESS

LESSON TEXT—John 15:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples.—John 15:8.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Rule of Love.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Loyalty of Love.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What May We Expect to Achieve?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Christians Become Fruitful.

Thanksgiving day has just afforded each one of us a special opportunity to return praise to God for the fruitfulness of America's broad acres. It is appropriate that we think today of the Christian life as manifesting itself in the bearing of fruit.

Christian work of which we spoke last Sunday may (at least in a measure) be imitated, but fruit cannot be imitated. It is the result of life and only those who know the new birth bear the fruit of Christianity.

The chapter before us is a portion of Scripture which has been the peculiar favorite of God's children in all generations. It is at the center of our Lord's words with his disciples immediately before his death on the cross.

Many are the expositions of this passage, but a beautifully simple one which came to the writer from Dr. W. Graham Scroggie is suggested as most helpful.

I. Life and Fruitfulness (vv. 1-8).

Life results in fruit and there can be no true fruit where there is no life. Christ is the vine, the Father is the keeper of the vine. We who are Christ's are the branches abiding in him, that is, living our whole life in and for him in such close union with him that his life as the vine brings forth fruit in us as the branches. That is real Christian living.

But, alas, there are branches that seem to belong to the vine but they lack the one indispensable evidence of life which is the normal bearing of fruit. These the Father must take and cast away to be destroyed. While we must not read into these words more than our Lord intended, let us beware lest we explain away their serious import. These are grave words of warning to false professors of Christianity, but they are not spoken to distress and disheartен true followers of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Fruit in the Christian is undoubtedly first of all the fruit of character but that character is also to show in conduct. Note the progress—"fruit" (v. 2), "more fruit" (v. 2), "much fruit" (v. 5). In order to bear more fruit there is need of pruning and cleansing (vv. 2, 3). Pleasant? Not always, but always profitable. Let us thank God for even the pruning knife when its work is needed.

Do not miss the prayer promise in verse 7. It is an unlimited promise with a closely limited condition. Let us meet the condition and claim the promise.

II. Love and Friendship (vv. 9-16).

"This is my commandment that ye love one another." In verse 10 we read that to abide in the love of Christ we must keep his commandments and now we learn that it is his command that we love one another. We are not to await the impulse prompted by the beauty or kindness or propinquity of someone, but we are to love one another. Many a Christian who has obeyed the commandments against stealing, adultery, and blasphemy has never noticed that he is commanded to love.

The joy of Christ was fulfilled on the eve of Calvary by the love of his disciples for one another and for him. He rejoices today when we love the brethren and love him, for thus we enter upon the beautiful relationship of friends.

Dr. Scroggie says, "We may be God's children without being his friends; the one is based on his gift of life to us; the other, upon our offering of love for him. Are you a friend of God? You cannot have God and the world for friends at the same time. The friendship of the world is enmity with God. The world hates Christ, and therefore will not love you if you are like him."

But, oh! the sweet intimacy of fellowship with him. Read verses 14 to 16. Chosen and appointed by him, for "he first loved us," we are not kept in the distant position of servants but are brought into his circle of friends with whom he shares the glorious secrets of his Father, and our Father. It is a great thing to be a Christian, a friend of the Saviour.

Intellect

Every man should use his intellect not as he uses his lamp in the study, only for his own seeing, but as the lighthouse uses its lamps, that those afar off on the sea may see the shining and learn their way.

The Past

The wise man must remember that while he is a descendant of the past, he is a parent of the future, and that his thoughts are as children born to him, which he may not carelessly lct die.—Spencer.

THE SEWING ROOM

A chest of drawers—the bigger the better—is fine equipment for your sewing room. The larger bottom drawers should be used for larger remnants, but have the handy man around the house partition the supper drawers into small compartments for ribbons, buttons, trimmings, knitting needles, crochet hooks, scissors and all the accessories that collect in a family sewing room.

Freedom is your right, provided you are old enough to restrain yourself and respect the rights of others.

It's a question which is the biggest nuisance in this country today—the wolf at the back door or the tax collector at the front door.

KITCHEN KINKS

Eggs will not cause the grease to spatter when they are dropped into the hot frying pan if a little flour is added to the hot grease first . . . Foods fried in deep fat will not absorb too much of the grease in which they are fried if a teaspoonful of vinegar is added to the hot lard . . . To coat doughnuts with sugar, put sugar in a paper bag, shaking doughnuts in bag to coat them.

Some old-timers can remember when the only time a woman appeared on the streets with as little on as she wears now was when her house caught fire.

If you want to see an old-timer wiggle with delight just let a good looking woman tell him he has a fine forehead.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

The general election of November 2 has been written, printed, bound, cataloged and shelved. It is now history . . . Most of the Commonwealth's political backlashes have been untangled and the Governor is assured a friendly legislature when the body convenes for its regular biennial palaver in January . . . Now someone asks, "Why was Governor Chandler so anxious to have a general assembly that would act favorably to him and the administration?" . . . Is he going to ask the Senators and Representatives to make new appropriation bills which would necessarily have to be backed by new tax measures?" . . . In other words they want to know what is back of it all . . . Here's the answer. . . . The reorganization bill, passed in 1936, is his pet bill and he wants to be certain that it is not molested. He wants it to stand, as is, until it becomes deeper rooted . . . The Governor declared this to be his only motive for wanting a friendly group in the house and senate, long before the August primaries . . . Now that he has the legislature that he wants he still says that he wants nothing more than the assurance that the Reorganization Bill will be left alone. So, folks, up to now, there is nothing startling on the docket . . . The Governor has asked that his political aides and his political enemies declare an Armistice until after the General Assembly has done its 60 day stint in January, February and March . . .

• • •

Dame Rumor, the old gal who whispers down rain barrels, ad libs over the party line and keeps the neighbors all adither with her startling back fence information, took one on the chin this week . . . Mills Logan, Kentucky's Junior Senator wafted the garralous lass into a state of semi-consciousness when he notified this department that he would NOT vacate his Senate seat to take a Federal Judgeship, a lifetime job . . . He declared that the rumor that he would do such was unfounded and that he was elected to a full term by the people of Kentucky and that he fully expected to serve the full term despite reports to the contrary and that any talk of his resignation was just so much talk . . .

Mark December 6 on the calendar . . . That's the day that Tobacco, Kentucky's Money Crop, starts to market . . . . The Lexington markets open that date. . . . The following day all other markets in the state that handle burley, will be open . . . Looking over the situation this tobacco season we find that, as advertised, the crop is a record breaker . . . At that it will not exceed last year's crop by more than 300 million pounds . . . That's a lot of chewin' and smokin' but not a lot considering that the bulk last year was approximately a billion and a half pounds. Central Kentucky farmers have been slow in stripping . . . The weather has been adverse, however, a few rains last week helped considerably . . . Experienced hands to strip the weed, are at a premium . . . Top daily wages are being paid in Fayette, Woodford, Boyle, Bourbon, Garrard, Shelby and Madison . . . . Most of the farmers are wondering just how much they will get this year and if the crop will be below last year's averages . . . The only criterion is the prices paid on earlier markets say in Georgia and in Virginia . . . A report from Richmond Va., this week declared that the poorest quality in the Old Belt, sold at Danville, Va., averaged $3.76 . . . . In Georgia the price was $25 . . . . Kentucky burley is a better burley and it is the general belief that the prices here in Kentucky will keep the Tobacco farmer aglow . . . Tobacco thieves have already started working in some sections of the Central portion of the State, especially where burley grows best . . . These thieves who worked so diligently and effectively last year, driving up to a barn near a roadside, taking the stripped tobacco off the sticks as it hung in the barn, crowding it into large passenger cars and making away in the night loads of 1,000 pounds or more, now have the farmer sitting up at night with a loaded shotgun . . . .

All over the state the tobacco farmer is running a temperature over the coming season at the sales warehouses . . . Tobacco festivals have been held in all parts of the Commonwealth. Down at Princeton the good folks held the first one. Hailed tobacco in the big way, crowned a queen and anticipated good times. More recently was festivals at Paris, Versailles (Kentucky not France) where homage was paid to the weed and more queens were crowned.

Random Shots—Announcement has been made at the State House that the Game and Fish Commission has negotiated for 1,077 acres of land in Franklin and Owen counties. The deal was made by Major James Brown, head of the Commission . . . . This land, not the most fertile on earth, was optioned for $25 an acre. Although no mention was made of what use it would be put to at the time the negotiations were announced, but it is generally believed that it will be made into some sort of a game preserve . . . Interesting to note that Nelson County does not have any bonded indebtedness and its floating debt is hardly discernable. It levies only the customary 50 cent tax rate. . . . Outing sheriffs in the state, to qualify to collect back taxes must make bond to the incoming county judge. This ruling was made by Assistant Attorney General Guy Herdman . . . . All troops have been withdrawn from Harlan County according to a late report from Major Joseph M. Kelly, Assistant Adjutant General. . . . There are still a number of distilleries in the State idle . . . They shut down during the late summer month and watched corn skyrocket and come back down. Some are afraid that the ticket on corn is still too high. Others are buying and running off a batch of merry mucilege. . . . The state is losing tax revenue every day a still house is idle.

BALLARD FARMERS USE TRENCH SILOS

It is estimated that 75 trench silos were filled in Ballard County this year. Facts gathered by County Agent S. C. Bohanan about 47 of them indicated that about a fifth of the farmers used sorghum as well as corn in filling their silos this year. One man used half corn and half cane.

The trench silos range in capacity from 8 to 85 tons. The silage stored in them will be used almost wholly for dairy cattle feed. Most of the silos are located on general farms where 6 to 20 cows are milked.

Fifty years ago citizens didn't have the "advantages" we have today, but they had a lot more time to enjoy those they did have.

DISPELLING THE FOG

By Charles Michelson
Director of Publicity, Democratic National Committee

Ever since President Roosevelt launch the life raft which rescued the business of the country from the depression shipwreck and brought it again to the land of profits and dividends, the crusted reactionaries of America have been prophesying disaster. Durning the periods of their salvation on the New Deal lift-raft they were for the most part silent. Indeed, reviewing their comments at the time, there were perceptible even expressions of gratitude. Once, however, when they were back in the realms of prosperity, they began the barrage that continues to the present day. Just now stocks have receded from the comparatively recent high level, they again summon the ghost of disaster and are trying to frighten the people with the notion that a continuation of the policies that saved them before means the destruction of everything.

Translated into simple words, the business buccaneers whose reckless pratices left them adrift and almost hopeless in 1929 are taking the position that, unless the government re-establishes them on board their pirate craft with a charter to resume their predatory policies, the whole country is going to the devil and that Roosevelt is responsible.

The mere circumstances that unemployment is being wiped out, that many of our leading industries have more orders than they can fill, that the revenue of our whole people continues to go up, has no meaning to these critics of the administration. They are doing their utmost to re-establish the domination of fear, with the idea that in this way they may blackmail the administration into restoring to them their oldtime privileges of loot and larceny.

The Liberty Leaguers and the other subsidiaries of the Republican party have all joined in the chorus.

I note, for example, a most alarming recital by my favorite Mr. Frank Kent, of the consequences of the New Deal. Knowing that everybody appreciates the terrible plight of China, fighting for its national life against Japanese invaders, this commentator gravely recited for a column that so far from the New Deal being in any respect new, it had been tried out in China long ago. The obvious corollary is that, because the Emperor Shen Tsung enacted certain laws looking toward the limitation of crops in order that the farmers should obtain higher prices for their products, and a wage and hour law to raise the pay of the working population, China now finds itself in a terrible plight. Carrying out the thought this suggests that because the Roosevelt administratio is pursuing some of the same objectives, the United States is bound for the same disaster. As the Emperor's policies were enacted nearly a thousand years ago, I suppose the idea is to convey that a thousand years hence the United States of America will be engaged in a death struggle against foreign domination. The thought of what may happen to this country in the year 3000, or there abouts, doubtless sends chills down the backbone of intelligent Americans in 1937.

Return Special Privilege, Real Aim of Opposition

The floundering minority party is being criticized for or being sympathized with—acording to the views of the person voicing the sentiment—because it has no policy, no program, and no leader. That is not an adequate survey of the situation. There is a policy and a program all right, only the spokesmen do not dare to voice it. The Liberty League leadership is still there. The policy is to bring back the era when the government, instead of distributing relief to the needy, awarded plums to the richest among us.

It is not supprising that nobody has the hardihood to promulgate openly such a doctrine. Nevertheless, that is what the old outfits is driving at.

Stocks go up and stocks go down The fortunate or the skillful make profits either way. The ordinary speculator who just takes a flying gamble may make some money on the bulges and lose it on the recessions. But as long as industry continues to function and people have their jobs, as long as the farmers and the working folks retain their purchasing power to consume these products, the mutations of the stock market mean very little, beyond the circumstance that they aford an opportunity for the political panic-makers to beat their breasts and tear their hair and gravely assert that the end of everything impends unless the President and Congress again take orders from the princes of privilege.

Stock Fables and Bogies

When they are not talking about the hopeless viciousness of the New Deal principless nowadays, they are invoking the old favorite fable of Roosevelt's seeking a dictatorship. And then they trot out the old bogey of a third term. Now, I know no more about what conditions will be three years hence than the next man. I only know that I can conceive of nobody being eager or even willing to take an additional four years of the exasperating drudgery of the Presidency after eight years of that anxiety and servitude. I have no doubt that at the present moment the President is looking forward with a great longing to the peace and rest that will be within his grasp on January 20, 1941. He has said on several occasions that his only ambition was to turn his desk over to his successor with a country at peace and in content.

However, nothing is going to stop the speculation on this subject, perhaps up to the time of the next Democratic national convention. Obviously, the President cannot in advance decline a renomination that may never be offered him. Just as obviously, the world in such a turmoil as it is today outside of this continent, it annot be forecasted whether the American people would permit him to lay down his burden in view of possible eventualities.

As I have said, I don't know any more about it than the next man, but we may look forward with certainty to a lot of expressions of the most positive character from the commentators, with their exclusive information, from "an intimate advisor of the President," and "a White House confidant" who got his inside dope at "a private and intimate conversation." The more I read of these amusing disclosures, the more I marvel at the columnists' imagining for a moment that they can make their readers belive that the President of the United States discloses his personal or his political secrets to anybody capable of rushing off and whispering the confidential communication to those most hostile to Roosevelt.

COVINGTON MERCHANT SPENDING SOME TIME ON VACATION ABROAD

Bernard Landwehr said to be northern Kentucky's oldest established hardware dealer, accompanied by his two daughters are visiting in Germany, Italy and France. Mr. Landwehr says he was very much surprised in their mode of living in the European countries. The streets are mostly made of cobble stones and one cannot traverse them, unless he or she is wearing wooden shoes. Living is somewhat cheap, but clothing is very expensive.

In Germany all eating places, charge an extra fee for bread and butter. A hotel room costs an equivalent of 65c in American money, and you are required to take breakfact or pay for it. One of the thrills to the visitors is the old fashion chimney sweep with his brush, another is the greatest number of people from 3 to 10 ride bicycles as their mode of transporation.

Although says Mr. Landwehr after seeing all these old customs, antique structures and historical places of interest, there is still no place like America, the home of the brave and the free. Mr. Landwehr expects to arrive home sometime during this month.

SEN. LOGAN SEEKS LEAF TAX REDUCTION

Washington, Nov. 11—Senator M. M. Logan of Kentucky expressed hope Wednesday Congress would return $4,446,255 collected in 1934 and 1935 as penalties from growers under the Kerr-Smith Tobacco Act.

A bill providing for the refund passed the Senate August 19. The regular session adjourned two days later without the bill being referred to a House committee.

As originally reported fro the Senate Claims Committee by Logan, the measure provided surrender of tax exemption certificates for cotton and tobacco would constitute payment of penalty taxes. The Treasury protested, asserting any refunds be confined to actual penalty payments on cotton and tobacco. It said redemption of the certificates would give cotton growers an additional $5,000,000 and tobacco growers an additional $3,000,000.

The bill, as it reached the House provided for return of penalties actually collected from tobacco growers and from ginners and growers of cotton. Repayment on cotton, the Treasury estimated, would be $1,562,097.

Winter injury to garden plants comes from two main sources. Alternate freezing and thawing has a tendency to either tear or expose theroots. Mulch does not prevent freezing, but it does prevent the rapid changes which cause these things and will prevent freezing to too great a depth.

MORE GRASS AND LESS CORN

George Roberts, Kentucky College of Agriculture

The most needed change in the cropping systems of many parts of Kentucky is more high grade pasture and hay and a smaller acreage of corn and other tilled crops. Where the land is put in condition to produce good pasture and hay and a smaller acreage of corn and other tilled crops. Where the land is put in condition to produce good pasture, stock can be grazed earlier and later, and the pasture will be nutritious than that produced on depleted land. Less harvested feed will therefore be needed. Grass and legume hay produced on soil so treated is also more nutritious than that produced on depleted land. Such hay can be more largely used during the feeding season and further reduce the amount of grain needed, enabling the farmer to retire more of his steeper land to grass and legumes for pasture and hay. Then, if the land is to go to corn is properly treated and a good rotation is used the yield can be greatly increased, further reducing the acreage for corn and increasing the amount that can be kept in grass.

In parts of the Bluegrass region that are naturally adapted to grass as much as 80 percent of the land is kept in grass, because with good pasture and hay so much corn is not needed.

The results of the Fariston (Laurel County) soil experiment field show what can be done to improve poor land. The average yield of corn in Laurel county for the last four census years since this field was established in 1916 was 17 bushels per acre. The average yield on the unfertilized and unlimed check plots on the experimental field was 8.8 bushels per acre for the same years, but where limestone and superphosphate were used the average yield was 46 bushels. The corn was grown in a rotation of corn, soybeans, winter grain (rye or wheat) and clover until 1931, when the rotation was changed to corn, wheat and two years of mixed grasses legumes. No manure was used on the first nine of the eighteen corn crops that have been grown (sorghum for sirup was substituted for corn part of the time), but was used on the last nine crops in amounts approximately equal to what the crops grown would produce if fed. It was used on both unfertilized and fertilized plots at these comparative rates. Cowpea and soybean catch crops were turned under for corn previously. The average yield of eighteen crops of corn on the check plots was 9 bushels per acre, and on the plots treated with limestone and superphosphate it was 45 bushels. For the nine corn crops on which manure was used, the average yield was 11 bushel on the check plot and 51 bushels on the one treated with lime and phosphate. The comparative yields of other crops were: soybean hay 1,270 pounds and 4,380 pounds; first cutting of clover and grass, 170 pounds and 2,470 pounds. For the eight years that the hay crop has been affected by manure used on the corn, the average for the first cutting has been 270 pounds and 3,100 pounds. Often good second cutting are obtained from the treated plots. Also, the second-year hay has made good yields. The average yields of wheat since manure was used have been 1.5 bushels and 14.7 bushels.

On the Campbellsville (Taylor County) experiment field, started in 1920, the average yields of crops on the unlimed and unfertilized check and on the limed and phosphated plots were

Corn 30 bushels and 57 bushels
Wheat 4.8 bushels and 13. 2 bus.
Hay 1568 pounds and 3720 lbs.

GARRARD 4-H CLUB AGAIN WINNER AT FAT CATTLE SHOW

For the 13th time in 16 years, the Garrard county 4-H club had the grand champion carload of baby beeves at the recent 16th annual fat cattle show at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville. The 15 prime calves brought 19½ cents a pound at the auction sale following the show.

The grand champion single calf was shown by Jack White, Clark county, member of the future Farmers of America. It sold for 90 cents a pound. Reserve champion and best calf in the 4-H club division was owned by Robert McConnell, Jr., Woodford county. It brought 35 cents a pound.

Other winners of first places in the 4-H club division were: Economic production, Lucille Layman, Grayson county; record books, Kathleen St. Clair, Grayson county; five calves from county carloads, Garrard county; calves raised and bed by owners, Kenton Ross, Garrard county; 10 calves from counties not showing carloads, Cunberland county; five calves from counties not showing carloads, Henry county; single calves from counties not showing carloads, Forrest Carr, Henry county. Oliver Bunnell, Hart county had the best carload, best five calves and best single calf in the Utopia club division.

BROWN SWISS COWS FOR BRECKINRIDGE

Several Breckinridge county farmers have purchased Brown Swiss cows, believing this hardy, rugged type of dual-purpose cattle may be particularly well suited to their needs. A purebred bull also was brought in from Indiana. Brown Swiss cows give a heavy flow of milk and produce big calves that sell well as vealers.

They say the less a man has of anything the prouder he is of it. This seems especially true in the matter of brains.

LIME, PHOSPHATE UP WHEAT YIELDS

Applications of limestone and phosphate to wheat land in Grayson county this year increased yields enough to pay the cost of using these materials and $4.63 an acre in addition, according to John H. Ewing, Jr., assistant county agent.

Twenty-four farmers tried using limestone and 43 percent superphosphate. Land without treatment averaged 7.17 bushels to the acre; where two tons of limestone alone were used 9.6 bushels; where phosphate alone was applied, 14.7 bushels, and where two tons of limestone and 200 pounds of superphosphate were applied, yields jumped to 19 ¼ bushels to the acre.

Applications of limestone and 43 percent phosphate therefore increased yields more than 12 bus., to the acre over yield on land given no treatment, thereby more than paying the cost of treatment. Yields also will be increased for several years more.

What the future has in store for you depends a good deal on what you put in store for the future.

CONTROL OF EROSION PAYS EXTRA DIVIDEND

Replanning his farm for control of soil erosion returned an extra $200 to Leland Dawalt of Grant county, Kentucky, he reports to a Soil Conservation Service project at Falmouth. The extra profit resulted because he had alfalfa pasture for lambs.

"Bluegrass makes poor feed for lambs after it toughens up around the middle of May," Dawalt explained, "but they surely did well on alfalfa." During the summer he also had Korean Lespedeza for pasture while his alfalfa regained some of its growth. The advantages of alfalfa over bluegrass pasture, the Falmouth project officials explained, is that alfalfa makes fairly uniform growth and remains palatable throughout the summer. Alfalfa also produces from two to three times the forage per acre and it also is the best known nurse crop for bluegrass. The heaviest bluegrass sods in the Grassy Creek area are those which follow good stands of alfalfa.

Dr. J. J. Marshall of Crittenden also pastures lambs on alfalfa because the practice helps to get them to an early market. Marshall avoids grazing alfalfa continuously and changes livestock from field to field at relatively short intervals. He has experienced no loss from bloating on alfalfa and attributes this to the fact that stock is never turned into the alfalfa when hungry.

The Soil Conservation Service officials point to the fact that considerable erosion has occurred when alfalfa was grown in a pure stand. They are overcoming this advantage by using a mixed seeding of grass and alfalfa, the grass producing a thick turf close to the ground, thus slowing the runoff of water.

SMALL BIRD BETTER TURKEY RAISERS HEAR

More than 100 farmers from all parts of Kentucky attended the third annual Kentucky Turkey Show, held recently at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, and entered approximately 150 birds in the competition. Five sweepstakes awards were made, as follows:

High point award went to Ralph Lusby, of Lusby Turkey Farm, Owenton, who had a total of 389 points. W. E. McCauley, Cynthiana, won the sweepstakes on a yearling female and also on a dressed carcass. O. C. Rankin, Cynthiana, won two sweepstakes when he placed first with a young tom and a yearling tom.

Speakers discussed the market situation, breeding for profit, judging, and the types of birds in demand. It was pointed out that a smaller turkey can be used by the average homemaker better than the large bird formerly in demand. However, hotels and restaurants will use large turkeys.

The show was under the general supervision of Dr. J. Holmes Martin, head of the University of Kentucky poultry department. Cooperating in the show were the Kentucky Poultry Improvement Association, and the Poultry Club, a student organization.

GRAYSON WOMAN MAKES HENS PAY

Poultry is profitable for Mrs. R. A. Probus of Grayson county, who this year made a profit of $2.54 per hen from a flock of 139 layers, after making allowance for feed and other expenses, except her own labor, according to County Agent Robert T. Faulkner.

For the laying year which began October 1, she has 163 pullets, the cream of a flock of 439 chicks which she put into a brooder April 1. After selling broilers, culls and reactors, she has a flock which cost her only 20 cents per bird.

WATCH YOUR LAND

(George Roberts, Kentucky College of Agriculture)

If all farmers in Kentucky could be persuaded to watch carefully this winter the land on their own farms and that of as many others as the opportunity may afford, they would be in an attitude of mind next spring to start the most effective program of soil improvement and conservation the State has ever known.

Some things that should be observed are: First of all, the difference in the amount, speed and color of water running off from land well covered with grass and land of similar slope that had corn, tobacco and other tilled crops on it although some of it may have a cover crop on it.

Second, the difference in erosion of tilled crop land with and without cover crops.

Third, the difference in the amount of erosion where the cover crop was drilled with the slope and drilled across the slope on the contour as nearly as possible.

Fourth, the difference in erosion on bare land cultivated with the slope instead of on the contour.

Fifth the vast acreage without any cover crop.

Sixth, the acreage on which cover crops were sown and made such poor growth that they did not effectively prevent erosion, because the soil was so depleted it would not nourish the crop.

Seventh, after making these observations, then look at lands that were once badly exhausted and have been restored through the use of lime, phosphate and legumes and the use of farm manures.

After such observations as these, those who are not sure of exactly how to proceed to improve their worn lands should call upon the county agent for information and obtain from the College of Agriculture at Lexington circulars on soil management, cover crops and engineering methods of erosion control. Even many gullied lands can be restored to a profitably productive condition, particularly for pastures.

There may be plenty of ways to make a living without working, but most of them won't work.

Wonder how many people in this county ever pause to consider that they belong to the generation that their parents worried about.

You don't have to go into the back yard and whisper over the fence if you have a message that's really worth delivering.

Every man knows how a wife should be managed but few seem able to act on the knowledge.

Most girls want to marry an economical man but few of them like to be courted by that kind.

Dad's Birthday Party Raises Note Problem

DEAR Mrs. Post: Will you please write a form of invitation for us under the following circumstances? I am one of four children, only one of us married, who want to give a party in honor of my father's birthday, although I suppose it would be better not to mention the occasion. We would like to write the invitations by hand on small sized note paper stamped with our house address. While we are asking at least 75 people we want the invitation to sound as friendly and informal as possible.

Answer: I would suggest that each one of you write notes to your own personal friends, and that whoever has most time and perhaps neatest handwriting also write those to your father's friends and relatives, following this general wording: "Mary, Jim, Bob and I are having a party for father, on Sunday afternoon, January 31st. Won't you come in between four and six o'clock?" As you notice, I have left the birthday out, but this does not mean that I think it improper to write, "Mary, Jim, Bob and I are having a birthday party for father . . . " because those who know him very well and know it is his birthday will probably bring him a present, and this might make others who are very fond of him and would have liked to remember his birthday feel that they have come empty-handed. On the other hand, in going to a birthday party of any size no one should feel obliged to take a present.

Deaths in Business

DEAR Mrs. Post: At various times our company receives notices of the death of people who are connected with business firms with which we do business. We don't know whether we should make any acknowledgment of this announcement or not, and if so, what.

Answer: This is probably only intended as a notification so that you will no longer address business letters to this name, and no acknowledgment is necessary. On the other hand, if you happen to know someone in the company whom you feel will be really upset by the loss of this associate, it would be kind to write to him.

SEE SELF-ANALYSIS AS HELP TO WOMEN

A well-dressed person is more effective than one not attractively costumed, and so women need not be self-conscious about making themselves attractive. Miss Frances Seeds of the home economics department of the University of Kentucky says that until women know how they look, they can't possibly improve themselves. A friend willing to give honest criticism, or else a full-length mirrow placed in a strong light, may be a big asset. A careful study of proportions and features enables one to emphasize the best points, and draw attention away from the worst.

Many women straighten up and look a hundred percent better after they've caught a glimpse of themselves in a full length store window. Scales, tape measures, and mirrors do not lie. Compare actual measurements, as they are taken, with average or ideal measurements. Width of shoulder, bust, waist, hips, calf, ankle, and upper arm should be studied, and also the lengths between each of these points. The size and shape of the head, face and hands are all important. Women will find that the hip and should relationship is significant; the hip and shoulder should be about alike.

Analysis of physical make-up is important but it tells only half the story. The mental make-up is just as important, declares Miss Seeds. To dress to suit one's personality, it is necessary to know what it is. No one is ever exactly one special type, such as daramatic, athletic, etc. To determine one's type ,think over interests and activities, mental attitudes and personal mannerisms.

Admit that what a thorough examination reveals is true. An analysis of this type is the basis of being well-dressed.

SCIENCE FOR FARMS

As if raising one of the biggest wheat crops in history wasn't enough to thrill the farmers of America, now comes a bulletin out of Washington City to the effect that still greater results may soon be made possible by recent scientific experiments. It is said that a perennial wheat has been discovered in Canada which provides a new forage crop and promises to restore those sections of both Canada and the U. S. rendered sterile in recent years by the ravages of drouth.

While the government of neither county will venture a prediction as to the value of the perennial wheat until further tests are conducted, the bulletin is sufficiently optimistic to warrant the belief that the discovery is actually going to be of great value. It is explained that new plants have been developed of a vigorous type with large wheat-like seeds which can be seeded down in dry lands where small-seeded thickly to bind the soil and prevent drifting. It is expected to produce grass each year, with a good yield for hay or pastgrage. Eventually the land so seeded would be restored to wheat planting.

Farmers around Boone County may or may not profit either directly or indirectly from the new discovery, but they will welcome such news just the same. Anything that tends to solve farming problems, no matter in what part of the country the problem exists interests all who have the welfare of their fellowmen at heart. And farmers in this community are certainly of that stripe.

TEST EVAPORATION IN CURING TOBACCO

In tests in fire-curing dark tobacco at the Western Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Substation at Princeton, the average loss of water was found to average 800 gallons to the acre, by the time curing was complete.

For each 100 pounds freshly cut and hung on sticks, 75 pounds remained when wilted, 53 pounds when yellowed, 25 pounds when colored and 18 pounds when the leaf stems were dry but the stalks still green. Or, for a single stick of tobacco weighing 30 pounds when cut, 22½ pounds remained when wilted, 16 when yellowed, 7½ when colored and 5½ when the leaves and midribs were dry. Approximately two-thirds of the original weight was lost by evaporation of water during the first 10 days the tobacco was in the barn.

Ever notice how a lot of people waste a lot of their time worrying over things that never happen.

Six Russion officials were shot for wasting the taxpayers' money. Consider the slaughter there will be if that idea ever becomes popular in this country.

The old-fashioned man who never thought anything of walking 10 to 12 miles in an afternoon has a grandson who never thought of it either.

W. B. COTTON

SHERIFF OF BOONE COUNTY, KENTUCKY

DO YOU REMEMBER?

By An Old-Time Boone Countian

To the Edtior of the Boone County Recorder.

Dear Sir:

Being an old resident of Burlington, having been born and reared there, and having been requested to write what I know about a crime that was committed near Burlington, and the outcome of the trial following it.

* * *

Henry Hoffman and wife lived on the farm known as the little Jonnie Duncan farm. The house sets at the top of the hill on the left hand side of the road as you go from Burlington to Petersburg, about two miles from Burlington. About 4 or 5 hundred yards down the road to Petersburg was the home of an old colored man, Uncle Fisher Aylor, and Cad Sullivan's home now stands about where the old cabin house stood. Now later on you will find that this old darkie has a place in this story.

Mr. Hoffman had a boy he adopted from the Orphan's Home and the boy was about 7 or 8 years old. He also had a man hired to work on the farm. The man's name was Pete Blimm. Now this crime was committed in 1870, sixty-seven years ago, but I remember that Hoffman's wife was always la fear of Blimm.

On the day the crime took place Blimm was in Burlington and was drinking and had a quarrel with several people. Now, Jerry Blythe, (Jink, as everyone knew him), Geo. Blythe and my brother Tenie Fowler and myself went squirrel hunting right after dinner, and I was glad to get away for I was afraid of Blimm, and he was there when we left. We were about three or four hundred yards west and back of Hoffman's house when the boy was killed, but we knew nothing of it until we came out on the road just below the house, now called the Nattie Carpenter place. As we reached the road we saw two men on the same horse riding at a fast pace down the road toward us. They said they were hunting Blimm who had cut a boy's throat and told us where it was done. Of course, we went back to the Hoffman house, and by the way, the young men on the horse were Charlie Riddell and Charlie Sherill. When we reached the place, there were a good many people there, and they had carried the boy up to the house and laid him on the floor of the back room. He was covered with a sheet, and I never want to see such a sight as I saw when that sheet was raised. His head was cut almost off, being fastened only by the skin on the back of his neck. I took one good look, and being only 13 years old, I have never forgotten the dreadful sight that lay before me. Now by this time a big crowd had gathered, armed with any weapon they could find, including shotguns, rifles, hatchets, axes, pitchforks and clubs, and had Blimm been found that day or the following day, he would have never come to trial. They hunted in groups of 3 to 5 men for over 48 hours, and I know the plan was to kill on sight, but Blimm was not found for about a week, but will tell you more of that later on, for I want to give you Mrs. Hoffman's story of the crime, as Hoffman was on the back part of the farm and knew nothing of it.

As I told you in the first place, Mrs. Hoffman was afraid of Blimm and when he came home that afternoon, she took the boy and went to her room. Blimm walked into the room and offered her some candy, but she said she did not want any candy and he went out. After a while he called the boy and gave him some candy and took him down to the old barn lot in an old rail pen back of the barn, and there cut his throat. I saw the place, and it looked as though hogs had been butchered there.

Mrs. Hoffman saw Blimm coming to the house without the boy, and she ran out to the pike and started down toward the old colored man's house, and this fiend after her. As I said before, it was 4 or 5 hundred yards, and she just reached the yard and fell into as old Fisher came to the door. Blimm seeing the old man, turned and ran across the road and down into the woods, where we were hunting. We did not see him, but remembered hearing the noise, but thought it was a wild hog for it made much more noise than a squirrel. We knew he went that way for he left the knife with his name on it stiking in the top rail of the fence. So you see, Mrs. Hoffman would have met the same fate as the boy had it not been for Fisher Aylor.

All we know about how Blimm escaped the law as long as he did, was his own story. He said he hid in a brushpile all that night, and just before day he came up the hollow to what was then the first covered bridge, and up just across the branch in front of W. T. Jerman's house, who lived where Clarence Easton now lives. On a high point of ground, just north of the old Dick Minor place there was a large sinkhole with briers around it, and there he lived until he was discovered by Mr. Jerman as he was getting some apples early one morning. He was caught while getting the apples, as Jerman was at one time deputy sheriff and at this time was constable, and a man that was not afraid of a regiment.

He brought Blimm into town horseback, riding just behind him on another horse. Mr. Hoffman heard he was on the road with him, and he overtook them at the old tollgate near town. He rode past them and came into Burlington telling the news, and shouting that he was going to kill Blimm when he came in. It took 3 or 4 men to hold Hoffman as Jerman brought him in. But after Blimm was off the horse and in about 6 feet of Hoffman, a little man, Jim Smith (Earl and Russell's father) held him with one hand.

Blimm was lodged in the old jail, a brick that stood in front of the home where Mr. Cy Cowen now lives, and old Jimmie Perkins was jailer at that time. He was tried at the next term of court. Jerry Lillard was the prosecutor at that time and I think that Judge Pryor was judge. Oscar Hagerty was appointed by the court to defend him. The jury found him guilty of murder in the first degree, and he was sentenced to be hanged. On the morning of the day set for the hanging, people began coming in before daylight. The scaffold was erected, and the grave dug just south of the first bridge on the Belleview road, on the land now owned by Stanley Eddins. By 8 or 9 o'clock, the hillsides were black with people, a crowd estimated at 10,000, and by odds the largest crowd ever gathered in Burlington, and the two hotels fed people all day. But Mr. Blimm was never to use that scaffold or grave for he had been granted a new trial, and had been taken out of jail and moved to Warsaw where he was tried and given ten years in the reformatory for cutting a little boy's head nearly off and chasing a woman with no other intentions than to kill her.

There was one incident that caused a great deal of excitement. The Taylorsport ball team played the Burlington team right back of where Herbert Snyder now lives, and word came over there that Blimm was being brought back for execution. The ball game broke up and everyone ran to where three men rushing with a man down to the place of executing. However, it was only a dummy, which was hung and then cut down and thrown into the grave.

The scaffold stood there for years until it fell of its own accord, and the grave could be seen for years, and I expect there is a low place there now, as I don't think the hole was ever filled up.

Later on, I will describe the old jail and the old courthouse if the people are interested.

AN OLD-TIMER.

NEEDED WILD LIFE ON THE FARM

By Lucy Furman

In foregoing articles we have seen, from actual scientific records of the contents of many hundred stomachs, that the smaller furbearers, along with the mousing hawks, owls and snakes, are the destroyers of that menacing farm enemy and vermin, the rodent, while the song and game birds, the skunk and the smaller grass and garden snakes are destroyers of the other chief farm enemy, the insect.

But many of these destroyers have themselves been regarded as vermin, and others killed on sight, or trapped almost out of existence, until, as Dr. Anthony, of the American Museum of Natural History, says, "The fur trade threatens to bring to a close the Age of Mammals which began three million years ago," and another biologist, Mr. J. M. Johnson, writes, "There will soon be left on this continent no mammals larger than rats."

In the light of the new facts (not guesses', let us see how truly the small furbearers deserve the title of "vermin."

Take first the Weasel, chief rodent destroyer. His food record is rodents 83 percent, insects 7 percent, birds 9 percent, which includes poultry. It would seem that he is 90 percent friend and only 9 percent vermin.

The Red Fox. Rodents 65 percent, insects 10 percent, birds nearly 6 percent, bird eggs 1 percent, wild fruit 17 percent. He is 72 percent friend and 7 percent vermin.

The Mink. Rodents 37 percent, insects 2 percent, birds, 3 percent fish, crawfish and frogs, 56 percent. His record is 39 perecent good and 3 percent bad.

The Opossum. Rodents 23 percent, insects 16 percent, birds 24 percent, wild fruits 30 percent. Even though his bird percentage 24 percent, is higher than any of the others, his good services are greater, 39 percent.

The skunk's year-round record shows rodents 10 percent, insects 57 percent, birds 2 percent, wild fruit and grain 30 percent. He has the best record of all, being 67 percent friend and only 2 percent vermin.

The mousing Hawks and Owls show large proportions of rodents, rising to as high as 90 percent. No figures are available as to mousing snakes, but they are valuable.

Because the Weasel and Mink do on rare occasions, get into a henhouse and kill large numbers of fowls which they can not eat, (apparently from the same blood-lust that leads men to kill game unnecessarily,) and because the Opossum does eat, for a quarter of its ration, poultry and young birds, none of these three can be recommended as a farm protector,—though the slight precaution of raising all chickenhouse floors from the ground, and putting wire netting over all windows, ventilators and apertures, would insure perfect protection of fowls not only from their chief enemy, the rat, but from all night prowlers.

The Red Fox usually does his work by day, and can easly be easily shot i fseen pursuing fowls. The same can be done with the skunk, if he loses his mind and pursues poultry. But both these animals are far too valuable as friends ever to be trapped or shot unless caught in the act of destruction. And their dens should never be disturbed. They are worth many times more money to the farmer, living, than their pelts can ever bring him. Both should be taken off the fur list and put on the farm-protective list along with the song-birds.

The American railroads remain the outstanding transportation industry of the country—dependable—progressive—safe. Despite higher operating costs, increasing taxes and strict regulation, they are giving 50% faster freight service, have reduced loss and damage 80%, and are today hauling all kinds of freight—from sand to silk—at an average cost to the shipper of less than one cent per ton per mile. And although some higher rates have just been granted and others are being sought, if all are allowed the price of railroad transportation would still be cheaper than in recent years.
Freight rates on the L & N are down, too. In 1936 shippers over the L & N saved $28,000,000 in freight charges, compared with what they would have paid at the average rate of 1921.
The L & N is proud of its 87-year record in serving the people of the South and hopes to merit their continued patronage.

Burlington P.-T. A. Presents "Miss Blue Bonnet" Dec. 2-3

A three-act musical comedy, "Miss Blue Bonnet," will be presented at the high school auditorium at 7:30. Admission 15 and 25 cents, reserved seats 25 and 35c.

The play will be given on Dec. 2nd and 3rd.

This is a Wayne P. Sewell Producing Co. play, directed by Nina Kelly.

Miss Blue Bonnet our heroine is a psychologist teacher invited to the Evans house to help Magnolia win her heart's desire. Burton Hills, a gospel singer, the hero. Blue Bonnet also helps the girls and boys of the community.

Blue Bonnet and Burton Hills met about a year ago and fell in love with each other, but hadn't seen each other since, nor did they know each others name. They meet at the Evans home the second time and Blue Bonnet, on finding that this man is the man Magnolia is in love with leaves for Texas on the night train.

In the meantime, Hickory Stout, who raises frogs, is in love with Magnolia, but Mrs. Evans, Magnolia's mother seriously objects to him and Magnolia, and doesn't like him.

Magnolia and Burton become engaged and Blue Bonnet returns for the wedding. While Magnolia is visiting her friend Kate Branaham she meets Stout and she gets terribly angry because he said she only imagined she was in love with him. She tells Blue Bonnet of this when she reaches home and Blue Bonnet advises her to go tell Stout what she thinks of him. Magnolia goes and Stout pushes her in his frog pond, and she finds out she is in love with him after all. In the meantime Stout has made a fortune from frog legs.

If ends happily, with everybody happy. Burton and Blue Bonnet are happily reunited and Magnolia and Hickory Stout.

WALTON EDITOR DIES AT HOME

HAD BEEN IN ILL HEALTH FOR SEVERAL YEARS—R. D. STAMLER WAS FOUNDER OF WALTON ADVERTISER.

R. D. Stamler, editor and publisher of The Walton Advertiser, passed away last Friday at his home in Walton at the age of 52 years. He had been in ill health for several years.

Mr. Stanler had not been active in the publishing of the newspaper for the last seven months, being confined to his home with heart trouble.

Twenty-three years ago The Advertiser was found by Mr. Stamler. At first the paper was very small, in the form of a four page folder. But later as business increased Mr. Stamler increased the size of the paper until he had it built to where it is today.

He was well known and loved by all who had the pleasure to come in contact with him. He was of a quite disposition, and while editor of The Advertiser made many lasting friends.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edna Stamler, and his mother, Mrs. Arthur Stamler. both of Walton:

The body remained at the home until 2 p. m. Monday, when funeral services were conducted from the funeral home of Chambers and Grubbs.

False Report

It was reported in several parts of the county last week that Ernest Webster, deputy game warden was shot while attempting to make an arrest of some hunters before the law officially opened. This report is entirely false, and Mr. Webster would like this thing corrected.

It was reported that Webster was shot by Hahn, the landowner, after being told not to make any arrest.

Edwin Johnson, our game warden reports that he has been working with Webster almost every day since the law opened, and that they have made six arrests of persons hunting without license.

FESTIVAL HELD AT NEW HAVEN

SCHOOL WELL ATTENDED—WAS ENTERTAINING AND EDUCATIONAL—COSTUMES MADE BY STUDENTS.

A Pilgrims Festival was the appropriate close to a most enjoyable day at New Haven School last Wednesday, Nov. 24. The appointments of the day were sponsored by the fifth and sixth grades with the assistance of the lower grades. Mrs. Lillian Caldwell, Mrs. Ora Presser, Mrs. Mattie Utz and Mrs. Corrine McCormac supervised the pageant, with Miss Collins directing the musical numbers and accompaning on the new Student's piano. Leonard Maddin and Mary Poole were the King and Queen of the Harvest, occupying an improvised throne in the center of the stage. Students in costume depicting Pilgrims were preceded by Indians, Snow Flakes and the Wind. All of these costumes were made by the students. A large number of parents were present and joined the chorus in singing songs of Thanksgiving.

Light from candles made by the pupils in the fifth grade cast a holiday spirit over some one hundred and fifty youngsters as well as oldsters as they gathered in the kitchen at different periods during the noon hour. Molding the candles was a project made possible by securing the candle mold, which was loaned to the class by Mrs. Anna Judge Ruffra, it being used by her family years ago.

The tables were festooned with fruits and Jacob squash, the center of the main table holding the traditional bird, the turkey, baked to a golden brown. The dieticians of the school, Mrs. Alva Dickerson and Mrs. Grace Abdon had prepared food which was in keeping with the festive board of the Pilgrims: rabbit pie, hominy, squash, egg corn bread in remkin and pumpkin pie.

The waitresses were dressed in black with white collars and white off-the-face bonnets were assisted by Norma Laibly and Betty Rivard.

SHORT SESSION IS IN PROSPECT

FOR ASSEMBLY — ROUTINE BUSINESS MAY BE DISPOSED OF IN FOUR OF FIVE WEEKS—SPECIAL CALL UNDECIDED.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 29—The routine business confronting the Kentucky General Assembly may be disposed of within four or five weeks, if plans of Governor A. B. Chandler and some of his advisers bear fruit. This plan is similar to that of two years ago when the regular session was cut short, but followed by a number of special sessions.

Of course, the General Assembly is the judge of that question, with regular sessions being limited only to 60 days.

But there is no doubt that a well-organized drive on the part of administration officials could cause that branch of the government to work hard for four or five weeks, rather than dilly-dally along for 10 or 11 weeks.

The plan would be that if some public-pressing move came along, the governor would agree to call a special session. But little is expected of the General Assembly this winter. That is, little that would stir up a controversy of major proportions.

The administration is committed to a policy of finding feasible means of freeing the state-owned toll bridges at an early date if a practical method may be found.

MILK MARKETING HEARING IS HELD

A number of Boone County farmers attended the milk marketing hearing held at the Hotel Alms in Cincinnati on Monday of this week. The purpose of the hearing was to secure information on whether or not the Federal Government should supervise a price agreement between producers, dealers and consumers in reference to a market pool in the Cincinnati area.

Because of disagreement among certain dealers' organizations, the hearing was not completed and the meeting was continued until a later date.

Zone Meeting To Be Held At Corinth Church

Rev. and Mrs. Baldwin of Hughes Chapel will sing. Mrs. Logan Blaine, District Secretary will speak. Other churches are on the program and other zones are invited. Bring box lunches.

The cast is made up of local talent, and promises to be very entertaining throughout. The early part of the week was devoted to extensive practice work, and according to the director, the characters have mastered their lines very good, considering the short period in which they have had to study.

Everyone is asked to come out and support the local P.-T. A.

Baker-Dickey

Miss Alberta Baker, only daughter of Edward Baker, of this place and Sterling Dickey, of Florence, Ky., were united in marriage Saturday, Nov. 27, 1937 at 2:30 p. m. at the Lutheran parsonage, with Rev. H. M. Hauter, officiating.

The bride is a graduate of the Hebron High School in the class of '31. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. S. Dickey, of Paris.

Mrs. Arnold Eberhardt (nee Ruby Baker) cousin of the bride was the bridesmaid, and Russell Dickey, brother of the groom was best man.

The bride was gowned in blue crepe, wearing a corsage of white chrysanthemums, while the bridesmaid was gowned in black crepe, wearing a corsage of orchid chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony the happy young couple went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Eberhardt, of Dayton, Ky., where a wedding dinner awaited them.

They will make their home in Covington.

CERTIFIED TOBACCO SEED BEING RAISED THIS YEAR

Seventeen Kentucky farmers this year are producing certified Kentucky Experiment Station No. 5 and No. 16 Burley tobacco seed. These varieties are root-rot resistant and the producers obtained their seed directly from the Experiment Station and planted the seed plot in an isolated spot so that it would not be crossed with any other tobacco. During the growing season the tobacco was gone over frequently and all diseased plants were removed from the patch. These plots have been inspected by the Kentucky Seed Improvement Association and the College of Agriculture and are waiting for final certification. which will be made when germination tests are completed in the State Seed Laboratory.

Bourbon County farmers are fortunate in having one of these seed plots grown on the farm of Mr. C. R. White, by James M. White, and he will put a quantity of No. 16 seed on the market for Bourbon County.

No. 16 is the latest developed root-rot resistant seed of the Kentucky Experiment Station and although at present in its experimental state, many good reports have been made as to its quality by those who have used it.

Other growers in Kentucky and the addresses are given below: W. J. Baxter, Nicholasville, Ky., No. 16; Brewer & Graham, Harrodsburg, Ky., No. 5 and No. 16; Ray Brown, Route 8, Frankfort, Ky., No. 16; Robinson Cook, Danville, Ky., No. 5 and No. 16; Dixie Stock Farm Lancaster, Ky., No. 5 and 16; W. RAIN AND SNOW WELCOMED HERE

WATER SUPPLY REPLENISHED BY RAIN AND SNOW SUNDAY MORNING—FARMERS ABLE TO BULK TOBACCO.

Boone County farmers welcomed the rain and snow which fell here Sunday morning, replenishing the water supply in all parts of the county.

A dry fall had let supplies dangerously low, but the rains and snows of the past week helped considerably.

The damp weather also aided farmers in bulking their tobacco, and many growers will be busy for the next few weeks stripping the supply they now have bulked.

According to reports many farmers had never stripped any of their leaf this year due to the dry weather which had prevented this work.

The rain which fell here Sunday morning will probably mean that the greater part of Boone County's tobacco crop will be placed on the market before the Christmas holidays, which put many thousands of dollars in the pockets of the growers of this county. The crop is said to be of fine quality and is expected to bring a good price.

His presentation to large crowds of children and grown-ups who lined the streets over which a special parade proceeded, marked the formal opening of the Christmas shopping season in Covington. Many persons from Boone County attended the event and found Covington stores fully stocked with all kinds of merchandise to stimulate early Christmas shopping.

The Jansen Hardware Co. invites every farmer and his family to attend this free entertainment.

TOBACCO MART OPENS DEC. 6TH

AT LEXINGTON—OTHERS MARKETS HAVE OPENING SALES DECEMBER 7TH AND 8TH—WAREHOUSES RESPACED.

Lexington, Ky.—The sing-song chant of the auctioneer on Monday, December 6, less than one weeks hence, will signal the beweek hence, will signal the beginning of another marketing season for burley tobacco, the brown gold of more than 100,000 farmers in Kentucky and adjoining states.

On December 6 the Lexington market, with five sets of buyers operating this year on its 24 warehouse floors, will begin the burley season, with the other 40-odd markets in Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, West Virginia, Virginia and North Carolina following suit Tuesday and Wednesday, December 7th and 8th.

This year burley producers will bring to the warehouses their largest crop in several years, estimates on the 1937 production ranging from the governments' 360 million pounds upward to over 400 million.

Already more than a million pounds of tobacco has been placed on the Lexington warehouse floors which formally opened Monday of of last week to receive leaf for opening sales. In general appearance the tobacco this year does not quite measure up to that of a year ago, there being a more decided red cast this year. However, in general smoking quality this crop is considered very good, most of it being of good texture and thinness. Practically all the tobacco is weighing very light in the bulk.

All warehouses on the Lexington market have been respaced this season and now every sales floor will be cleared every sixth sale day, eliminating any long waiting for farmers who have delivered crops to this market. No tobacco will go unsold on a Lexington floor during the coming season for longer than a week, and with the addition of a fifth set of buyers, Lexington this season will dispose of well in excess of two million pounds of tobacco daily. When full, the market has a capacity of 12 million pounds on its floors.

SEVENTY-TWO ATTEND MEET

OF TOBACCO GROWERS HELD IN GRANT, HAMILTON, BURLINGTON AND VERONA LAST FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

Four tobacco grading meetings held in Grant, Hamilton, Burlington and Verona communities Friday and Saturday were attended by approximately 72 farmers, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Mr. H. B. Terry, Federal Tobacco Grader, was the principal speaker at each of these meetings.

Mr. Terry advised farmers to make two grades of flyings and trash in stripping their tobacco with the second grade being the dead leaves or throw out. It does not matter much if a few flying leaves get in with the trash or a few trash leaves in with dugs as all three types bring about the same price, but great care should be exercised in not getting bright leaf mixed in the hands with red leaf leaves or read leaf leaves mixed with other grades as the latter two types are used for distinctly different purposes and vary greatly in price. Terry strongly recommended the neat tying of hands and careful handling of the crop as careful management increases the price the crop brings.

Federal grading of tobacco will be conducted on a number of markets again this year. Federal grading simply means that the grower at the close of the sale will know if the individual baskets of this crop brings what the average tobaccos of that grade are selling for in the current market. It in no way attempts to set the price paid but tends to standardize prices so that each growers comes nearer getting the same price for the same grade of tobacco.

Mr. Terry further pointed out that growers should cooperate in controlling production. The 1932 crop with no control and 172 million pounds above consumption, the crop brought only an average of $8.70 per hundred pounds; the 1933 crop with 100 millions pounds excess brought only $10.50 per hundred; the 1934 crop with adjusted production of 50 million pounds under annual consumption brought $16.90 per hundred; the 1935 crop with adjusted production brought $19.10 per hundred and the 1936 crop with adjusted production brought an average of $35.80 per hundred pounds.

GAS CAN SETS FIRE TO AUTO

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE TO CAR—ERLANGER FIRE DEPARTMENT EXTINGUISHES BLAZE.

An unsual accident occurred Monday at Erlanger, resulting in a fire that caused considerable damage to an auto driven by Mrs. John Steffen, wife of Councilman-Elect John Steffen, of Erlanger.

A Standard Oil tank-truck driven by Lon Tanner, of Florence, turned off the Dixie Highway onto Erlanger road. The steep grade at that point caused a five-gallon can of gasoline to roll off the truck, into the path of the car being driven by Mrs. Steffen.

The wheels of her car straddled the rolling can, and it became wedged beneath the car. Apparently sparks caused by the container striking the concrete ignited the gasoline.

The Erlanger Volunteer Fire Department responded but was unable to remove the can. An attempt to pull it loose with a wrecker from a nearby garage also failed. The fire was extinguished, but not until the rear end of the car had been ruined, according to reports.

A CALL TO ARMS

One of the unnoticed by-products of the depression, unnoticed except by those directly involved, has been a rise in the death rate from tuberculosis. Dr. Kendall Emerson, manager of the National Tuberculosis Association, points out that the death rate from this disease in the U. S. rose from 54.5 per 100,000 in 1935 to 55.4 in 1936. The rise is small, of course, but it is significant and should be taken as "a call to arms." This country has made great strides in its fight upon the white plague in the last few years. It cannot afford to rest on its oars now. Citizens of this county should remember this when the Red Cross Christmas seals go on sale ,as they will in a short time. Their pennies, added to those of millions of their fellow-Americans is the most powerful answer that can be made to this newest "call to arms." Now that the white plague shows signs of regaining its old foothold those pennies must be given generously, and without delay.

GOOD CITIZENS

Blessed are those citizens who plant trees and shrubs in their yards and along our streets, for future generations will enjoy their thoughtfulness. Blessed are they who appreciate God's gift of birds and flowers and who encourage their growth. Blessed are they who scatter flower seed and keep others from destroying the wild flowers along the roadsides. Blessed are they who banish billboards from their property, for they are protectors of outdoor beauty. Blessed are they who keep their property in repair and their houses painted for they beautify the town in which they live. Blessed are they who speak well of schools and churches, and of the men and women who give them their support. Blessed are they who greet the stranger with a smile and their neighbors with a handshake. Blessed are they who do all these things, for there shall be joy and happiness in their hearts the whole year round.

OLD AS THE HILLS

A few days ago there appeared in American papers a news item from London in which it was stated that excavators who are bringing to light the secrets of ancient and buried Carthage recently found a clay lamp in a temple erected centuries ago, before Christ came upon earth, and that engraved on the bottom of the lamp is this legend: "Why not buy our lamps; they are the cheapest in Carthage." The price, one drachm was also cut into the clay. Can the fellow who thinks advertising is a new and costly fad want any better evidence that it is as old as the hills? And can't he find a lesson in the fact that if advertising was good in the early days of the world when it was difficult to get an ad. before the public that it ought to be better now that millions read them? It's worth thinking over, anyhow, and we pass it on for the consideration of our non-advertising friends with the hope that they will decide to show as much enterprise as the old merchants of Carthage—that they will make the balance of 1937 and all of 1938 the best months in their history —a thing that can be done thru the use of printers ink.

NOT LIKE OLD TIMES

How many old-timers ever pause to wonder whatever became of those comfortable chairs that used to stand invitingly on the sidewalk in front of most small town, village and cross-roads stores and hotels? Mostly they have disappeared in the tempo of the motor age, but the fellowship for which they stood in the horse-and-buggy days has not been entirely forgotten by old residents.

Tilted back against the wall in one of those rush-bottomed chairs a man could rest and watch the world go by. There was serenity, right on Main street, and a comfort this modern generation does not feel. No unhurried talk, plenty of time for the spinning of yarns and discussion of anything from village news to the state of the nation. Occupants of those old chairs—most of them now gone with the chairs—got something out of life that their descendants must forever live in ignorance of, something that made life in general more leisurely and agreeable.

Alas, if a chair or two stood out in front of a local store today it would soon be deep in the dust of passing automobiles. And yet, if they could be brought back their return would perhaps be hailed by the present generation as heartily as it was by the sidewalk chair-brigade of years gone by. Who knows but what there might come back with them too, that fine old spirit of friendship so characteristic of the men who occupied them, as well as the men who paused as they passed to offer words of greeting. If that sort of spirit could be brought back with the old chairs that once stood in front of store and hotel, then their return would be in the nature of a blessing.

CHRISTIAN REST

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 11:28-30; Hebrews 4:1-11

GOLDEN TEXT—Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.—Matthew 11:28.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When We Are Tired

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Great Invitation.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Christ Gives Us Rest.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Rest.

"Time, like an ever-rolling stream, bears all its sons away," so sang Isaac Watts in 1719. One wonders what he might say today! The mad rush of modern life—its relentless drawing of us all into its terrific tempo—leaves us distraught, nervous, overanxious. Nervous disorders are on a rapid increase, even among children. The condition prevails in the country as well as in the city, although it is aggravated in metropolitan centers.

Let us lay down the burdens of the universe for a bit and counsel quietly about that almost forgotten Christian virtue, rest. Nowhere can the troubled spirit find calm of soul as surely and as quickly as in God's Word—and in the One revealed there, for true rest is

I. Found in Christ (Matt. 11:28-30).

Rest for our souls is found not in the cessation of activity, but rather in joining with Christ as our yokefellow and in going on with him in meekness and lowliness of heart. Most of life's restlessness is the result of pride, of driving ambition to be somebody or to attain something. True humility removes all such disturbing factors.

But we do have a yoke and a burden to bear. Yes, it is true that not all is easy in the Christian life. But as someone has suggested, the burdens are like the burden of feathers on a bird. They may seem to be too heavy for his little body, but as a matter of fact they are the thing he flies with! Such are the "burdens" of Christ.

II. Received by Faith (Heb. 4:3).

Those who believe enter into rest. Faith in God through Jesus Christ brings a man into an abiding place that the storms of life may beat upon but can never move. Fair weather followers of Jesus who fall into a frenzy of fear and worry when sorrow or loss comes upon them need to learn to walk by faith. "Be not dismayed whate'er betide, God will take care of you," is more than the pious expression of a hymn writer, it is a statement of fact.

III. Rejected by Unbelief (Heb. 4:1, 6-11).

"The worst thing in the world" is unbelief — because it effectually closes the door to God's blessing. Jesus could not do "many mighty works" in his home town of Nazareth "because of their unbelief" (Matt. 13:58). Unbelief will keep us from the rest that God has prepared for his people, for it not only hinders men from coming to the Saviour, but keeps them from resting in him after they are saved.

IV. Necessary to Useful Living (v. 11).

Only when the follower of Christ appropriates that rest of soul which results from turning from his own efforts and trusting himself fully to Christ will there be that absolute surrender of every detail and problem of life to him which will bring out in daily living the glorious beauty and power of a life at rest with God.

A poem by Fay Inchfawn which has blessed the writer's soul is here passed on, with the prayer that it may help you who read these notes:

"Well, I am done. My nerves were on the rack,
I've laid them down today;
It was the last straw broke the camel's back.
I've laid that down today.
No, I'll not fume, nor fuss, nor fight;
I'll walk by faith a bit and not by sight,
I think the universe will work all right,
I've laid it down today.

"So, here and now, the overweight, the worry,
I'll lay it down today;
The all-too-anxious heart; the tearing hurry;
I'll lay these down today.
O eager hands, O feet so prone to run,
I think that He who made the stars and sun
Can mind the things you've had to leave undone.
Do lay them down today."

How true it is that we are prone to bear all the burdens of the universe when God's Word has told us to cast all our care upon Him, for He careth for us (I Pet. 5:7). It is a powerful testimony for Christ when distraught and worry-ridden non-Christians see God's children walking steady and true in the midst of disappointments, trials, and sorrows. And the opposite is also true, that failure to trust God is a practical denial of our professed faith.

WOMAN'S PRISON TO BE CONSTRUCTED AT PINE BLUFF IN SHELBY CO.

Work has been started on a new $130,000 cottage-type woman's prison at Pine Bluff in Shelby County, Commissioner of Public Welfare Frederick A. Wallis has announced.

The new institution, which will be Kentucky's first prison for women, is being established on a 280-acre tract deeded to the state a few years after the World War by the Federation of Women's Clubs of Kentucky.

Mr. Wallis said that the farm had been purchased during the war by the federation as a haven for unmarried mothers but later was donated to the state.

The new woman's prison will be located approximately 15 miles from the new men's prison being built in Oldham county, Mr. Wallis said.

Contracts for the first buildings already have been let and ground for the new structures was broken last week.

The new institution will provide facilities for instruction in arts, craftwork, needlework and domestic science. It also will include an infirmary and administration building.

At present, the state has approximately 100 women convicts who are quartered in an old school building at Frankfort. They will be moved to the new prison as soon as the first housing structures are completed. Other women convicts are being held in the various jails in the state, Mr. Wallis said, as circuit judges have hesitated to send women prisoners to Frankfort since the flood forced female convicts to inadequate quarters. He said that women prisoners held in jails would be sent to the new prison as soon as it was completed.

WEED MARKETS OPENED MONDAY

IN LEXINGTON — COVINGTON MARKET OPENED TUESDAY WITH AVERAGE OF $21.55 PER HUNDRED.

Tobacco took its place as a major money maker for Northern Kentucky Tuesday when 80,596 pounds were sold at a record opening of the Covington market at the Kenton Looseleaf Warehouse, Second Street and Scott Boulevard.

The sales placed $17,367.20 in the pockets of growers who had trucked their crops to the floor of the warehouse for the opening sale.

Average for the opening was $21.55, a drop of $4.20 under the average of $25.75 for opening day last year, but an increase of $4.50 over the $17.05 average for the first day's sale in 1935.

The high basket sold for $40.00 per hundred.

Lexington, Ky. The flow of millions of dollars into the pockets of burley tobacco producers in nearly a dozen states begun Monday with the opening of the market in Lexington, followed Tuesday and Wednesday by the initial sales at all other markets in the burley belt.

Sales will continue throughout the belt until December 22, when all markets will close for the Christmas holidays, resuming sales Monday, January 3. Thus, Lexington will have 13 days of sales before the holiday season begins.

The initial sales in Lexington presented an excellent cross- section of the 1937 burley crop. In addition to many counties in all sections of Kentucky, Lexington sold tobacco from Tennessee, Missouri, Indiana, and Ohio on its warehouse floors.

Estimates on the 1937 burley crop range from 350 to 425 million pounds and even more, but it is the consensus of Lexington warehousemen that the crop will total around 375,000,000 pounds. Of course at this early date estimates on the average price are only guesses, but most close market observers have indicated that, in their opinion, the 1937 crop will average between $20 and $25. On a basis of these figures, the crop will bring to producers a total financial yield of between $70,000,000 and $90,000,000.

Democrats To Hold Meeting

The Young Men's Democratic Club of Boone County will hold their regular monthly meeting at the courthouse in Burlington, on Monday night, December 13th.

All members are requested to attend this meeting as it will be the regular election of officers for the club for the ensuing year of 1938.

The membership of the club has been growing very rapidly in the past year, and at the present time this organization has something over 200 members from all parts of this county.

The club has accomplished much in the past year, having donated several hundred dollars to worthy causes throughout the county, and at all times willing to lend a helping hand to worthwhile projects.

The success of this organization in the coming year will depend somewhat on its leadership, and it is therefore the duty of every member to be present and have a voice in the selection of officers.

COURT CONVENES HERE MONDAY

LENGTHY SESSION IN PROSPECT — THREE CRIMINAL CASES TO BE HEARD BY JUDGE VALLANDINGHAM.

The December term of the Boone Circuit Court will convene here next Monday, December 13. Hon. J. G. Vallandingham will be at his usual post, and Ward Yager, will fill his regular duties at Commonwealth Attorney.

Three criminal cases are on the docket for this session and will no doubt cause the term to be somewhat longer than usual. Two men and one woman are awaiting trial. The two men are charged with robbery and housebreaking. The woman is being held on a charge of robbing the home of Joseph Huey, near Union, taking a large number of jewels which were valued at approximately $1000.

In view of the number of witnesses which have been summoned, the grand jury is expected to hold quite a lengthy session.

Several warrants have been issued on forgery charges, but no arrests have been made.

Hearne-Riley

Miss Bell Hearne, of Frankfort, and Mr. Edgar Riley, Lexington, were quietly married at Frankfort on Thanksgiving Day by Rev. Hampton Adams, formerly of Boone County.

Mr. Riley is a native of Boone County and has a large number of relatives and friends here. He has for the past several years been connected with the Kentucky Female Orphan's School, Midway, Ky., but has made his home in Lexington.

The bride, Miss Hearne, has also been connected with the same institution for several years, and has been making her home in Midway. They will reside in Lexington.

We join with their many friends here in wishing them a very successful married life.

Livestock Tour Scheduled For Wednesday

The Boone County livestock tour of the Cincinnati stock yards and meat packing plants will be held next Wednesday, December 15, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The tour is open to livestock producers interested in seeing the processes their livestock goes through from the time it reaches the yards, is sold, killed, dressed and prepared for delivery to the retail store.

While the tour is open to all who wish to attend, only a limited number can be taken care of at one time. A full day is spent inspecting the various steps. Those who wish to attend must notify the county agents' office not later than Monday, December 13th. The first applications will receive first places in making up the group for the tour. The tour is free and strictly educational in nature. The tour starts at 8:00 a. m. (slow time) at the stock yards.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Rouse and son Jack, of Petersburg, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Porter and son.

FORMER CITIZEN LEADING BREEDER

OF CORN IN INDIANA—WON FIRST PLACE ON HYBRID SEED CORN EXHIBIT AT SHOW IN CHICAGO.

Jesse C. Jones, Aurora, Ind., R. 1, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones, Sr., of Florence and former Boone County farmer won first place on his hybrid seed corn exhibit made at the grain show held in connection with International Fat Stock Show at Chicago last week.

Mr. Jones has developed into one of the leading corn breeders of Indiana. This past year, he produced 683 bushels of certified seed of Indiana's double crossed hybrid strain No. 845. This hybrid, under Indiana tests, has proven one of the best. The strain is a yellow dent of high productivity, sound, drouth resistant and is a 120 day strain. The seed is for sale, and farmers desiring seed of this strain should contact Mr. Jones at an early date.

Mr. Jesse Jones' son, a graduate of Purdue University, has also received achievement in corn breeding work and at the present time is in charge of corn certification work in Indiana.

Farmers desiring a white strain of hybrid corn should contact Lloyd Siekman, chairman of the Utopia club corn project. The Utopia club members have approximately 25 bushels of Boone County produced seed, that has not been sold. This seed is in the Kentucky double crossed hybrid No. 69. It is the highest yielding and best hybrid produced in Kentucky. Every farmer should plant a few acres of hybrid corn in the field with other corn this year to secure a comparison in yields. Hybrid 69, in Boone County the past year, gave an average increase of 43 per cent over other varieties grown in comparison. Put on a 40 bushel per acre basis, this variety would have yielded an average of 57.2 bushels or a 17.2 bushel per acre increase. A bushel of hybrid seed will plant about 10 acres.

Farmers are urged to use great care in the purchase of hybrid seed, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Not all hybrids give increased yields and not all are adapted to Boone county. Seed should be purchased only from known sources. The one source that can be recommended is the strain 69 produced by the Utopia Club members. Mr. Jesse Jones' yellow dent strain 845 should be adapted to Boone County conditions and has made a most creditable record under the strict supervision of Indiana Experiment Station and field trials of the college.

P.-T. A. PLAY IS HUGE SUCCESS

LARGE CROWD ATTEND BOTH PERFORMANCES — PROCEEDS TO BE USED IN PAYING PART OF COST FOR NEW CURTAINS.

When the patrons and friends of a school are interested enough to spend every evening for two weeks in preparing a dramatic presentation, and when those not in the cast are interested enough to fill an auditorium two evenings to see the production, that production needs no better proof that it is successful.

Such was the case regarding the play sponsored by the Burlington School P.-T. A., which was given December 2 and 3. The financial success of the play is evidence that it was well liked by all. The fact that there was a larger crowd the second evening than the first is a splendid tribute to the cast and to Miss Nina Kelly of the Sewell Producing Company who directed the play.

The cast was well supported by six colorful choruses which were composed of children from the school from the first grade through the twelfth grade. These boys and girls in beautiful costumes added brightness and zest to the pointed lines of the play.

The P.-T. A., an organization working directly and consistently for the children of the community publicly thank all who helped in making "Miss Blue Bonnet" a production of merit. It will be of interest to know that the proceeds of this effort will be used in paying part of the cost of new curtains and scenery for the school stage. Previously this year the P.-T. A. has purchased one hundred new song books for the boys and girls aside from sponsoring a cafeteria and other activities connected with the school program.

With purposes like those mentioned, no one can fail to be successful with effort properly directed along any line of activity.

LEADERS WILL MEET TUESDAY

AGRICULTURAL PROGRAM WAS ORGANIZED THREE YEARS AGO—LEADERS WILL AID IN PLANNING PROGRAM.

Boone County agricultural leaders will meet at Burlington courthouse, Tuesday, December 14th to assist in the county agricultural planning program started three years ago, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent.

The County Agricultural planning program, started three years ago as a national project, represents a study of agricultural leaders in the county on a recommended long time trend for agriculture. The committee met last February 10th and discussed the program from three main points:

1. Encourage a better understanding among farmers as to what their problems are.

2. A long-time land use program for each type of land is needed, providing efficient use for every acre.

3. Encourage farmers to recognize each type of land and how the plans set up fit each type. The application to each farm can be appreciated.

The committee at that time, felt that agricultural planning for greatest agricultural achievement in the county should involve the following points:

Grow 75 percent of tobacco base acres.

Reduce intertilled crop.

Lengthen rotation.

Increase hay and pasture crops.

Improve hay and pasture crops.

Any reduction in intertilled crops will come about largely from reduction in corn or in a limited way in soybeans.

Increase alfalfa.

Cover all intertilled land even though the grain is not to be harvested.

Increase sheep.

Improve dairy production and poultry production.

A slight increase was recommended for beef cattle on large farms in the general farming section.

Increase broilers for sale.

Increase horses for use and sale.

Increase livestock only when hay and pasture situation will care for increase.

Maintain acres in truck and vegetable, change up or down as market demands, same as in tobacco.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Siekman entertained Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Siekman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Acra and family and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Siekman and daughter, of Hebron.

BOONE COUNTY'S BUDGET UNUSUAL

FORTY-FIVE CENTS OF EACH DOLLAR GOES TO BUILDING OF ROADS — GENERAL EXPENDITURES LOW.

By James W. Martin, Commissioner of Revenue

Frankfort, Ky.—Boone County's budget for 1937-38 is unusual in the amount it sets aside for road construction and maintenance. Although thirty-seven counties exceed Boone County in the amount of their locally taxable wealth, only thirteen spend more on roads. Road expenditures account for 45 cents of each dollar spent by the county. Proposed expenditures for general administration are unusally, accounting for only 13½ cents of the county dollar, as also are expenditures for health and welfare activities, accounting for only 7 cents. Twenty-five and one-half cents will be spent for debt service, and the remaining 8 cents held as an emergency reserve.

Boone County has an assessed valuation of $10,700,000 and levies a tax rate of 70 cents (distributed irregularly, slightly under 20 cents being designated for the sinking fund). The poll tax rate is $1.50. The county expects to raise a 1937-38 budget of $77,650, each dollar of which will be derived approximately as follows: 71 cents from general property taxes; 15 cents from franchise property taxes; 3 cents from poll taxes; 1 cent from minor tax sources, and 10 cents from other sources ,including the county's share of the state truck license distribution. The county derives slightly less than usual from franchise property taxes and more from general property taxes.

Boone County's bonded debt promises to offer future difficulties. The amount outstanding is $329,000, or $3.06 per $100 taxable wealth. The proceeds of the current sinking fund levy fall nearly $10,000 short of interest and principal requirements for the current year; during subsequent years, assuming no change in assessed values, the annual deficiency will range between $6,000 and $10,000. The sinking fund balance as of June 30, 1937, reported as $35,952, will be sufficient to make good these annual deficiences for the next four years; in 1941-42, however, unless the receipts from the sinking fund levy increases, this balance will be exhausted. Diversion of funds from the road fund or elsewhere, it appears, will then become necessary if default or refunding is to be avoided.

ANTEN'S STORE ROBBED SAT.

THIEF GAINS ENTRANCE THRU REAR WINDOW BY BREAKING BARS—OVER $300.00 LOSS IS REPORTED.

A thief or thieves entered the grocery store of Ben Anten, Florence Saturday night and took approximately $275.00 in cash, $25 in checks and cigarettes valued at $20.00 were stolen.

The store was broken into between closing hours and morning. The thieves gained entrance by breaking several bars in the rear window of the store. Mr. Rouse, who resides over the store building heard the noise, but only supposed it was someone returning home, and gave it no further thought.

Nothing was stolen from the store other than the cash and cigarettes.

No clue as to the identity of the culprits was left.

All merchandise, Mr. Anten reported is fully covered by insurance, but no insurance was carried on the cash.

Achievement Meetings Held

All 4-H clubs in Boone County are holding achievement meetings as a completion for the year's work. Nine achievement meetings have already been held with approximately 95 percent completions, according to David Colville, assistant county agent. Only one club has not held their achievement meeting but they plan to do so next Monday.

Probably the most outstanding accomplishment has been made by the New Haven Boosters club. Not only has the club achieved a high completion but fourteen members of the Boosters club have been in club w[illegible]ve years or over. This in[illegible]s a fine accomplishment. Much credit must be given to the local leaders, Mrs. Jake Cleek, Mr. A. B. Moore, Mr. Jake Cleek and the present officers and project captains of the club.

The organization meetings for 1938 will be held sometime in January for the purpose of enrolling for the new year and the election of club officers and project captains. The schedule of meetings will appear at a later date.

SANTA AND HIS PACK

With Christmas just around the corner, toymakers announce that the volume of business has been greater this season than at any time for the past seven years. They have manufactured a quarter of a billion dollars worth of toys for this Christmas and distributed them to the trade, so it is evident Santa's pack is going to be well filled this year, especially for the children.

It should be of interest to citizens to learn in connection with this report that the toymakers have this year steered clear of war toys, which have been the rage in years gone by. Through an agreement reached early last spring they reduced the manufacture of toy cannon, guns, soldiers and all other type of toys that smack of war and instead have turned out more toys stressing scientific, industrial and transportation lines. They consist of many ingenious mechanical features, and the airplane, the auto, the streamlined locomotive along with toys that do marvelous acrobatic stunts will this year direct the childish mind away from war and its destruction.

This is good news, and it reflects the sane judgment of the men who design and manufacture the things which go to make up Santa's pack. It is high time that American fathers and mothers turned the interests of their children away from thoughts of war and direct their minds more toward the worthwhile things of life.

—o—

A HAPPIER HOLIDAY

The Postmaster General has addressed a timely appeal to the people of the United States. He says: "The government will be thankful to you if you will shop early, wrap carefully, address plainly and mail promptly all of this year's Christmas merchandise."

This is a reasonable and a sensible request and we feel sure everyone can profit by following it. Shopping early means getting the best of everything in stock before it has been picked over, and also more time for making selections. Wrapping carefully means the goods will go through the mail without breakage and without loss. It also means quick handling, and getting the things you are sending into the hands of those for whom they are intended in good condition. Addressing plainly and mailing promptly go hand-in-hand with the other two suggestions.

Taken altogether, these suggestions mean a happier Christmas for the ones who carry them out. Merchants have more time in which to wait on you, and also time in which to personally help you solve your buying problems, if you will do your buying early and not wait until the last minute. Postoffice employes can be relieved of the heaviest part of their annual burden if you will only cooperate with them by following the Postmaster General's suggestions.

But, best of all, shopping early, wrapping carefully and mailing promptly brings happiness to those who do it. It will help to make your own individual Christmas happier, too. And that is why there should be more of it done.

A total of 10,644 quarts of vegetables and 24,600 quarts of fruit were canned by Hart county homemakers last summer.

Lesson for December 12

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

LESSON TEXT—I John 1:1-7; Revelation 21:1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT—Our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.—I John 1:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Heavenly Home.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Great Family.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Comradeship with Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Daily Fellowship with Christ and Christians.

Fellowship—the word is rich in meaning, even as it concerns the ordinary relationships of life. It speaks of the association of man with man in a common enterprise, a sharing of problems and of victories—a partnership. Such relationships are very real and helpful. They lead to friendships which bind the hearts of men together in noble purpose and in tender consideration.

It is, however, a long step forward when we add the prefix "Christian" to "fellowship." For by so doing we not only bring men into the most glorious partnership with each other but we do two other very important things: (1) we limit those eligible to this fellowship to those who are followers of the Lord Jesus Christ; and (2) we broaden the fellowship beyond the association of men with each other, and bring them into the circle with Christ. What a high and noble fellowship! Do you belong? Christ says, "I am the door: by me if any man enter in he shall be saved" (John 10:9).

Our Scripture selections for today are from two books of the Bible. Both speak of an eternal Christian fellowship but the first stresses its present expression in a life of holiness and the other its future of blessed communion.

I. Christian Fellowship—Now (I John 1:1-7).

The First Epistle of John presents fellowship with God as depending on three things "which form in their combination a very beautiful picture of truth . . . God is light (1:5), hence fellowship with God depends on our walking in the light. God is righteous (2:29), hence fellowship with God depends on our possessing and manifesting love" (James M. Gray).

Every clause and phrase of the passage before us is so full of spiritual truth that it should have our full time but we must limit ourselves to pointing out one outstanding fact; namely, that Christian fellowship is made possible because we have a Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ. He it is who reveals the Father—the One in whom there is "no darkness at all" (v. 5). If we follow him we must "walk in the light as he is in the light" (v. 7). This allows for no dark corners, no crookedness in word or act, no backbiting nor evilspeaking.

Let us open the hidden recesses of the heart to the light of God and put every evil thing under the "blood of Jesus Christ which cleanseth us from all sin" (v. 7).

II. Christian Fellowship—for Eternity (Rev. 21:1-7).

Our present communion with God and with one another is most precious—but how often it is marred by sin and disturbed by the wickedness that surrounds us in the world. We look forward to that day when we who are the followers of Christ shall be delivered not only from the penalty and the power of sin, but also from its very presence.

There will be "a new heaven and a new earth" from which every evil thing has been taken away, in which all has been renewed in righteousness. Then will come the glorious consummation of all things when God shall come to "dwell with them and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them and be their God" (v. 3).

That communion shall never be disturbed by the falling of any tear. There will be no mourning, no crying, no pain (v. 4). Little wonder that these words have been the comfort of God's people in their darkest hours. They are not the futile words of human solace. They come from the eternal God.

Three questions have intrigued the curiosity of man: (1) Where did I come from? (2) why am I here? and (3) where am I going? The Christian is the only one who has a satisfying solution for the problem of the origin of all things, "In the beginning God"; a reason for the existence of all things, "To me to live is Christ"; and a satisfactory consummation of all things, "And God himself shall be with them." It is a great thing to know Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord.

True Religion

True religion extends alike to the intellect and the heart. Intellect is in vain if it lead not to emotion, and emotion is vain if not enlightened by intellect; and both are vain if not guided by truth and leading to duty.—Tryon Edwards.

Values

I am told so many ill things of a man, and I see so few in him, that I begin to suspect he has a real but troublesome merit, as being likely to eclipse that of others.—Bruyere

Maytag, builders of the first washer engine—the gasoline Multi-Motor, now gives you a new-type engine—an engine that will make washer history. There is no other engine like it—none that compares with it. The twin-cylinder engine gives you the following advantages:

• Steadier, quieter, operation. • Smooth, vibrationless power. •Easier starting—built for a woman to operate. • Simple—only six working parts. • Compact—interchangeable with an electric motor. • Economical—does a big farm washing on one quart of gasoline.

OTHER ADVANTAGES OF THE MAYTAG WASHER

Only a Maytag washer gives you the one-piece, cast-aluminum tub with extra washing space and handy, hinged lid. Only the Maytag gives you the Roller Water Remover with enclosed, self-reversing drain. Many exclusive advantages make the Maytag the choice of farm women everywhere.

A CHEERFUL goodbye wave—the vestibule door swings shut—and the family's away—visiting on the L & N. And as their Home Sweet Home on Rails glides off, you know the most precious of all your valuables are safe in a treasure chest of steel.

Along the right-of-way and on the train itself, millions of dollars worth of automatic signals and safety devices guard them. Thousands of efficient employes are always on the job—alert to extend the 20-year record of no passenger fatalities in a train accident. This peace of mind for you—this safety for them—isn't it the greatest of all transportation bargains at 2 to 3 cents a mile?

Every foot of the way, Friendly Service surrounds them. They relax in air-conditioned comfort, sleep in deep restful berths, dine on foods so tempting that our Southern Chefs are asked how they are prepared.

When the family leaves on the L & N—they're just over at the neighbor's. Won't you drop in too, Neighbor, next trip you make out of town?

YOUTH SUCCUMBS FROM POISONING

WAS ILL ONLY FEW HOURS—CAUSE OF DEATH IS UNKNOWN—SERVICES HELD AT FUNERAL HOME SUNDAY.

Francis H. Shears, 15-year-old student of the Florence high school died at his home Friday, after only a few hours' illness.

According to physicians who attended the youth, poisoning was the cause of his death. All indications pointed to either a bite from a Black Widow spider or some other poisonous reptile.

At first it was thought that the youth had contracted infantile paralysis or spinal miningitis. However, a test of these two diseases showed negative.

It was reported that the youth had been playing under an old building near his home in Florence and when he returned home complained of pains in his arm. After standing beside the stove for a few moments, he collapsed in the floor unconscious. His temperature registered 108 degrees (the extent of the reading on a thermometer) and then dropped to nothing.

He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Shears; three brothers, Raymond, Robert and Harold Shears, and seven sisters, Mabel, Margaret, Agnes, Kathryn, Nellie, Gladys and Anna Belle Shears.

Private funeral services were conducted at the Tharp and Stith funeral home, Florence at 2:00 p. h. Sunday.

MILK PRODUCERS FAVOR CONTROL

DEALERS WOULD BE SUPERVISED AND REPORTS MADE ON FLUID MILK—FARMERS TO BE PAID UNIFORM PRICE.

The Milk Producer Organizations in the Cincinnati area favor Federal Supervision of the Cincinnati Milk Market according to reports of the Cooperative Pure Milk Association, the K. I. O. Milk Producers' Association and the Milk Producers' Union.

Two benefits to farms should result from Federal supervision:

First—The dealers would be supervised to see that proper reports are made on fluid and surplus milk and that farmers were paid a uniform price on these grades.

Second—Additional supervisors would be given dealers on weighing and testing of milk.

A second Federal meeting will be held in a few weeks to decide on whether or not supervision will be given the market. A number of dealers and dealer organization are expected to strongly oppose the move. The producer organizations are expected to strongly favor the move.

Albert William Weaver entertained Sunday, Misses Ruby Cotton, Carolyn Cropper, Mr. Alvin Clore and Mr. and Mrs. John Conner of Hebron and Miss Mary Laubisch. The occasion was in honor of Albert William's 23rd birthday. He received several useful and beautiful birthday presents.

SLEET CAUSES TRAFFIC DELAY

IN SECTIONS OF NORTHERN KENTUCKY BLANKETED BY SNOW AND SLEET—SCHOOL BUSES DELAYED.

All Boone County motorists were slowed down considerably Monday morning due to the sleet and the conditions of the roads through the entire county. Roads were almost impassible unless motorists were equipped with chains. Driving was very difficult, due to the fine mist falling on windshields creating a layer of ice, which was impossible to see through. Those who were not equipped with defrosters, were compelled to stop every few minutes to clear the ice from their windshield.

Although conditions were at their worst for the motoring public, few accidents were reported in this county, and those reported were only minor accidents, with little damage done.

School buses hauling students to the various schools of the county arrived at school late, due to the slippery roads and traveling conditions in general.

Certification Corn Brought From Indiana

Boone County is a deficit corn producing area importing corn each year from outside areas. Corn coming into Kentucky on the ear must be from outside European corn borer quarantine areas. Many farmers in recent weeks have requested information of the county agent's office on corn coming from Indiana. The following information has been secured from the Kentucky Secretary of Agriculture and the Indiana State Entomologist.

1. Corn on ear coming from Indiana must be south of the quarantine, which is a line between Aurora, and Lawrenceburg, Ind. across toward Indianapolis.

2. If the corn is outside the infested area, authorization to bring across the river into Kentucky will be issued by the Indiana State Entomologist.

3. Farmers desiring to purchase corn near Aurora should contact C. A. Alcorn, county agent in Aurora, who can secure authorization from the State Entomologist provided the corn is not grown in the quarantine area. It will take about three or four days to secure authorization.

TOBACCO SHOW SCHEDULED 17TH

WILL BE LARGEST AND BEST 4-H TOBACCO SHOW AND SALE IN HISTORY—WEED TO BE JUDGD FRIDAY.

Northern Kentucky 4-H tobacco clubs, cooperating with the Kenton Loose Leaf Warehouse in Covington this year, will put on the biggest and should be the best 4-H tobacco show and sale in the history of this event, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The tobacco will be judged on this Friday, December 17th and sold Saturday morning the 18th.

Cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded for best baskets of flyings, trash, lugs, bright leaf and red leaf. Prizes will also be awarded the best crops and best record books. These awards will be made both to county winners and to sweepstake winners of the show. approximately seventy-five percent of the awards will go to county winners and twenty-five percent to sweepstake winners. Each member exhibiting will receive a mechanical pencil as a special award of the show.

Boone County 4-H clubs are expected to be represented by approximately fifty members and 20,000 pounds of tobacco. Last year 36 members sold 13,740 lbs. of tobacco in the sale. Boone, Kenton, Campbell, Pendleton, Bracken, Grant and Gallatin county 4-H members will be represented.

The 4-H tobacco show and sale offers one of the finest educational features of club work. It is the climax of the member's project year's work. He delivers his tobacco to the terminal market, his crop grades are rechecked and grades of like quality are placed on separate baskets. He sees the comparison of his tobacco with that of his fellow club member and notices the quality resulting from growing, curing, careful stripping, grading and tying. He sees the rapid rate at which it is sold and the expertness with which the buyer sees the color at a glance and judges the quality with his fingertips. Finally he gets the report on how his crop rated and how his 4-H project record book compared with that of his fellow members.

Four-H club tobacco quality for quality does not always bring a higher price than tobacco sold thru the regular sales. It does offer one of the finest educational features of the tobacco project program.

The W. M. U. of the Baptist church observed the Lottie Moon prayer service Thursday of last week, and the annual election of officers was held. Those elected for the ensuing year were: President, Mrs. R. L. Gaines; First Vice President, Mrs. Annie B. Gaines; Second Vice President, Mrs. Lula Tolin; Third Vice President, Mrs. M. A. Yelton; Secretary and Treasure, Mrs. W. B. Cotton.

D. E. CASTLEMAN DIED WEDNESDAY

AT HIS HOME IN ERLANGER AFTER SHORT ILLNESS—WAS FORMER COUNTY ATTORNEY OF BOONE COUNTY.

D. E. Castleman, aged 69 years, prominent member of the Boone County Bar Association passed away at his home in Erlanger Wednesday morning, after a very brief illness of pneumonia.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Lee Castleman, two sons, David and Ben, 4 daughters, Mrs. J. L. Stelkenkamp, Mrs. S. H. Griffin, Mrs. John Bramlege and Mrs. Wm. Lake; two sisters, Mrs. Edw. Utz and Mrs. T. J. Turley and two brothers, Dr. T. B. Castleman and Myrix Castleman.

Lawyer Castleman was born November 27, 1866, in the town of Glencoe, Gallatin county, and received his high school education there. He entered Georgetown College and graduated from this institution of learning in 1883, and subsequently graduated from the Cincinnati Law School in 1885, and was admitted to the Gallatin Bar immediately thereafter.

In political life his strength to Democracy has been a factor of great importance to the party—always for the party—always for a Democrat. In 1884 he resigned his office of Master Commissioner of Gallatin County and moved to Burlington, Boone County, and in 1901 was nominated for the office of County Attorney of this county, but was appointed to fill the vacancy of this same office when Judge J. M. Lassing resigned. At that time he was a member of the Baptist Church here, and was clerk of the North Bend Baptist Association.

In 1885 he was married to Miss Mary Lee Hawkins, of Lawrenceburg, and to this union six children were born. Later in life Mr. Castleman and his family moved to Erlanger, where they have made their home since.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. fast time at the late residence, with brief services following at the Taliaferro Funeral Home. TOBACCO PRICES SHOW INCREASE

ON COVINGTON MARKET—WEED OF GOOD QUALITY AND EXPECTED TO BRING FAIR RETURN TO GROWERS.

Covington's tobacco market opened Tuesday of last week showed increase in sales and prices as the week progressed, and many farmers who delivered their weed were very optimistic as to the average for this year's crop.

With a few damp days, which would bring many crops in case every market in the state probably would have full floors, with trucks on the waiting list. Many farmers have their crops ready for the market but are unable to deliver the weed on account of unseasonable weather. Most farmers say that their crops are too dry to load on trucks, and are only waiting for some damp weather to bring the tobacco in case.

In all probability, the weather will be suitable for the loading of tobacco this week, and many thousands of dollars will be in the pockets of the farmers for the holiday season.

Carrollton and other tobacco markets have been reported as steady with averages from $18.00 up to $25.00.

WALLIS EXPLAINS OLD AGE ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

"More than 40,000 persons in the 120 counties of the state are receiving monthly old-age assistance through the department of welfare, aggregating a total monthly distribution of $408,000." Welfare Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis said in an address before representatives of the various federal emergency agencies of the state assembled here at the Brown Hotel Friday, November 19th.

Wallis, in explaining the present program of the welfare department, said that at present all the approved old-age assistance cases are undergoing "a careful readjustment and realignment for the express purpose of a broader distribution of state funds and because of the urgent necessity of keeping within the budgetary allowance as fixed by the legislature.' '

To date the division of public assistance at Frankfort, Wallis said, has received more than 80,000 formal applications for old-age assistance, a large number of which "show conclusively that the applicants have no visible means of support and so come under the classification of the state's program to aid the needy and destitute."

"These are to be sympathetically considered in the allotment of state assistance," the speaker continued. "The re-examination of the 40,000 cases of recipients of state checks now on the rolls shows that circumstances surrounding many of them have rendered them ineligible for further state aid within the meaning and intention of the act providing for old-age assistane," he said.

"For instance," Wallis explained in citing an illustration, "those whose living conditions have improved and who are no longer pauperized citizens . . . can be provided for by their own families, who at the time the grant was approved were unable to aid their aged relatives. Still others, since approval of the grant, have come into inheritances of various degree, which automatically removes them from the state roll of old-age assistance."

"Thousands of these cases," he said, "must be readjusted immediately to keep the ratio of payments on a fair and just basis to all who come within the scope of the intent of the public assistance division."

Referring to the literal flood of applications received weekly by the state division, Wallis stated that "the saturation point is not yet in sight."

"Little reliable data was available two years ago when the state legislature fixed the appropriation, estimates on the probable number who would be eligible for old-age assistane ranging from 5,000 to 25,000."

Wallis added that while more than 80,000 formal applications have been received, the additional number of informal applications brings the total number well above the 100,000 mark. The applications are being filed according to the date received, he said, and are being investigated in that order.

TROUT CAUGHT FASTER THAN THEY ARE PLANTED

Just pouring a few cans full of trout into a stream and leaving the rest to the anglers isn't enough, according to advices to the Commerce Department's Louisville District Office from the Bureau of Fisheries. Unless that method is improved upon, there will be more dissatisfied fishermen, the Bureau believes. In Furnace Brook, Vermont, where the Bureau has kept a check on anglers and their catch for three years, the catch has been declining steadily since 1935. In that year the total catch was 8,589 trout; in 1936 is dropped to 6,995; and in 1937 it was only 6,385. This decline took place, moreover, in spite of heavy stocking. An especially surprising feature of the decline, is the fact that it has been confined almost entirely to brook trout, which the Bureau has stocked; while rainbows, which have not been stocked, have held their own fairly well. Operation of the test streams has convinced the Bureau's fishery experts that stocking must be supplemented by a scientific plan of stream management if adequate stocks of trout are to be maintained in fishing waters from year to year.

KENTUCKY 4-H CLUB NEWS

A baby beef club has been organized in Boyle county for the first time since 1928. Plans are to feed 40 calves; 16 members have already agreed to buy 30 calves. The Farm Bureau will help in selecting and buying the stock.

Buena Vist and Oddville clubs in Harrison county held community exhibits recently, showing work in foods, canning, clothing, poultry, corn and tobacco. A total of 450 persons saw the two exhibits, which were judged by local home economics teachers, farm agents and home agents.

New clubs have been organized in Sacramento, Leachman and Beech Grove communities in McLean county. Despite trouble in getting leaders, the boys and girls feel that they will have a program of work well under way by Dec. 1.

The high price of feed for beeves, before the barley crop was harvested, cut into profits on the project for Montgomery county club members. They made money, however, because the calves were bought economically and were finished.

In Christian County, 290 projects are being successfully completed by 354 club members. A wholehome attitude toward play, realizing that it develops character, health and poise, is hailed by the county president as the year's best achievement.

Harlan County Club members are enrolling for projects with the understanding that they will be run and judged as business enterprises—whether they "pan out" in dollars and cents. County Agent Gray H. Williams feels that a project should pay financially as well as otherwise.

BETTER TIMES FOR POULTRY RAISERS

With fewer hens on farms, and with lower feed prices, times will be better for poultry raisers during the first half of 1938, says the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Egg prices probably will be higher than they have been this year. Supplies of poultry also probably will be lower during the first few months of next year, because of present small flocks and light hatch last spring. However, relatively low feed prices may be expected to stimulate a heavier hatch next spring, which would bring larger receipts of both eggs and poultry in the fall and winter of 1938.

ALFALFA MEAL FOR CHICKENS

Many farmers like to include alfalfa hay in mashes for chickens and laying hens. It has been found at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station that leaf meals of korean lespedeza, alfalfa and sericea lespedeza can replace mixed wheat feed when equal quantities of protein are included. These leaf meals with dried skimmilk or meat scrap cannot replace wheat feed, however, on a basis of equal quantities of protein. Experiments with leaf meals are described in Circular No. 48, obtainable by writing to the Experiment Station at Lexington.

FARM HELP

It may come as a surprise to the average citizen to learn that despite the fact that the relief rolls of this nation still carry the names of several million able-bodied men, there is a serious scarcity of farm help. So serious has this shortage become, according to farm paper editors throughout the country, that it now forms one of the chief topics of conversation wherever farm residents assemble to talk over farm life and agricultural conditions.

One editor suggests that relief from a farm help shortage can be worked out by neighbors cooperating in the ownership of farm machinery. If farms are located so this can be done it is one way to have a large investment in labor-saving machinery without each one spending a lot of money. Banding together to help each other during rush seasons is another suggestion.

At any rate, it's a strange situation. During the depression men who lived in the city were glad to get back to the old farm because it afforded a living for them. With prosperity returning they are going back to the city because it offers shorter hours and what seems to them to be better wages. It is too bad that more young people cannot see that the farm offers an opportunity for building a more successful life than in the city. If more boys could be made to realize this the farm help problem would be solved, and the future welfare and comfort of those same boys made more certain.

Some of the girls around here who get married these days know just enough about housekeeping to think that an electric iron does its own ironing.

NINE TOBACCO SHOWS FOR 4-H CLUB BOYS

Nine tobacco shows for 4-H club members are announced from the College of Agriculture at Lexington. The first will be at Danville Dec. 14. Another will be at Carrollton Dec. 16, and on Dec. 18 there will be shows at Harrodsburg, Covington, Horse Cave and Lexington. Others will be held at Bowling Green, Shelbyville and Owensboro.

It is expected that club members from at least 60 counties will enter a total of probably half of a million pounds of tobacco in the nine shows. Several thousand dollars in cash, and trips to Junior Week and other prizes will be awarded. The state champion will receive a trip to Chicago.

Classes will include exhibits of individual crops, exhibits by counties, record books, and the like, for both 4-H and Utopia club members. The tobacco will be sold in the regular way following the shows.

Only bona fide club members regularly enrolled in a tobacco project are eligible to enter tobacco. A complete and accurate record book must accompany each crop.

The shows will be sponsored by board of trade, warehouse owners, merchants and other local interests.

P-T. A. GIVE PROGRAM

The approaching Christmas season was the theme of the program presented at the meeting of the New Haven Parent-Teacher Association on December 7. Mrs. Geo. Kearns, who is in charge of the entertainment of the association brought together a group of students and who are known as the "New Haven Chorus," having sung in the tournament at Florence. They chose as their songs, "Silent Night," and "Hark, Hark the Lark." Mr. John Newman, also a contestant at Florence gave a reading.

A letter composed by the students in the second grade was read to the group, in which they wished to thank the association for the purchase of the "Weekly Reader," a periodical which has proven much benefit to the young readers.

ERLANGER WARSAW CARROLLTON

A CHRISTMAS-SPIRITED HOUSECLEANING
By Eleanor Roosevelt

Here is a new idea for those of us who dread spring housecleaning; combine it with the Christmas spirit. Why wait until spring? Why not make a festive occasion of the weeding out and sharing of our usable surplus possessions? Things which have ceased to be useful to us, things we are tired of, could begin life all over again under our neighbor's Christmas tree. Why not do it now, and make housecleaning a joyful, generous, friendly act?

Mother should not do this Christmas salvage work alone, however. Every member of the household should join in a hunt through closets, neglected drawers, the attic. All of them should overhaul their books. If it is put in the light of an opportunity for Christmas giving in which all members of the family can join, they will probably be surprised by the things which turn up on the pile to be given away. Here, for instance, is an overcoat which father has treasured for years, thinking the time might come when he would wear it again. But there are shivering men walking the streets without any coats at all these days. Or here is an old quilt, preserved in mothballs as befits an heirloom. You thought time and time again that it was too good to part with, but remember that there are children who go to bed wrapped in newspapers, and still are cold.

Be very careful about one thing. Don't give rubbish. Rubbish is no good to anyone. Clean and renovate what can be salvaged. What you are looking for is gifts, something you can enjoy giving, something you would be proud to see someone else enjoy. A good test of what to give is whether you would be glad to receive it yourself.

To collect and distribute these gifts effectively should not be difficult, if one person in each community makes it his job to provide leadership, and if the rest of the community is willing to cooperate. A committee should be formed to work with the organizations which know who the needy are, so that the gifts may be properly apportioned and distributed.

Everyone who reads this appeal can help push the campaign. The time for organization is now. Take it up with your clubs and your churches, draw upon the energy and civic pride of the Rotary, the Kiwanis and the Lions Clubs, and on the experience of the welfare agencies.

One of the agencies best qualified to cooperate with your local committee is, of course, the Salvation Army, which has excellent facilities for collecting such gifts and responds quickly to a telephone call. There are many others. The Volunteers of America distribute things to the families of men in prison. The social service departments of many hospitals dispose of clothing. The Goodwill Industries, from Maine to California, recondition clothes and household equipment in their shops, and serve the double purpose of giving employment and salvaging discarded articles. Tuskegee and Hampton Institutes, the Penn School in South Carolina and the Calhoun School in Alabama know the needs of Negroes and are eager to receive all kinds of useful goods. The American Merchant Marine Library Association, the Seamen's Church Institute and the American Library Association have branches in many cities and welcome good books and magazines.

This movement could be made to echo through every community in the United States. It would help to draw communities together, whether large or small; it would make them conscious of the needs of those who have too little, and it would offer the chance for a real community Christmas. Ministers would surely be glad to announce this campaign from their pulpits; local radio stations and newspapers would gladly give information about it. In many communities firemen have for years generously helped similar campaigns. Merchants, Boy Scouts Girl Scouts, would surely be helpful volunteers in the work of collecting the gifts.

On Christmas morning some attics would be emptier, but some bare homes would be better furnished. Moths might have less food this winter, but many human beings would be warmer.

Here seems to me an idea which would be both far-reaching and good fun. Surely Americans have the organization, common sense and good will to carry out successfully.

Christmas is the time of year when we ought to remember how much more blessed it is to give than it is to keep!

Telephone This Year

"Yes, This Is Santa Claus"

"Aside from its purely business and emergency uses, the telephone is something that every member of the farm family can use and enjoy. It keeps Mother in touch with her friends and neighbors and the social activities of church and school. The children plan their dates and parties, and visit one another by telephone. And of course, they all profit by its time and money saving services. If you are thinking of a gift for the whole family, and haven't a telephone, get one."

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

The citizen who contends that "you can't get something for nothing" is wrong. All he has to do is catch cold and he will realize that he can get enough free "cold remedies" to fill a book. Of the number, some may be beneficial, yet all of them are worthless to those who know how to avoid catching cold. Comfortable clothing, fresh air in the sleeping room, careful attention to the elimination of waste matter from the system and drinking plenty of fresh water daily will, it has been determined go far toward preventing what we know as the common cold. But even this fails at times—and then is when a cold becomes dangerous. In that case the best possible advice is—go to bed. Don't try to wear it out. Better the loss of a little time spent in bed than contracting one of the many serious conditions that common colds are capable of bringing on. Don't look lightly on a cold. Go right after it the moment you feel it coming on, and don't stop doctoring it until you have it under control.

A SAFETY STUNT

A Cleveland, Ohio, man has suggested that it might help to reduce auto accidents if every time a motorist kills a pedestrian a bright red license tag be substituted for the regular one he has on his car. The number would remain the same, of course; only the color would be changed, and that it be a bright crimson. In this way the public would know, he points out, the moment it spied a car with a crimson tag that it had been the agency through which someone met death, and other drivers, fearing the publicity and comment such a tag would bring, would naturally drive far more carefully. We have heard many suggestions for safer driving offered by motorists, but never anything touching on this line, and while such a suggestion will probably never be adopted by any state in the union, it shows to what extremes those who make a study of safety are willing to go to cut down the nation's annual death roll.

IT ALWAYS WORKS

Everybody knows the story of Robinson Crusoe, how he was stranded on an island with only a goat, a parrot and a black man as his companions, and how badly he wanted to get off that island. But most people do not know that it was advertising that got him off. He had only a ragged shirt with which to do his advertising, but he stuck it on a pole, planted the pole in the ground, and waited. He didn't get discouraged when no one came the first day—no good advertiser does. But he kept advertising his predicament by means of that old shirt waving in the air—and finally he got results. If Robinson Crusoe with one old shirt could reach the people he sought, how much more easy is it for merchants in this territory to reach the people they want to sell goods to through the columns of a modern, home-town newspaper? Now that the winter buying season is in full swing, this is a pretty timely subject to devote a little study to.

ARE YOU PROTECTED

Did you ever ask yourself this question: "What would happen if my automobile, while one of my family or I were driving it, killed or injured some one? What would it cost me to satisfy the injured party or to pay the family of the one who was killed?" These questions are pertinent ones to every automobile owner. Suppose Mr. Car Owner, when you went down to buy that automobile, the salesman were to say to you, "Yes I can sell you the car, but before I do you will have to sign the following agreement." The agreement would read as follows:

"I _____ agree that if I am allowed to purchase this automobile that I will reimburse any one whose property this automobile damages, that I will pay the doctor bills and hospital bills of any one, who is injured by my car and I agree to pay to the family of any one killed by my car the amount of money that they demand. In addition to all these, I agree to pay all the court costs, lawyers fees, and all judgments rendered against me. To guarantee this payment I hereby pledge all my property both real and personay, also all the property I may acquire during the next fifteen (15) years.

(Signed) _____

Would you buy a car and sign this? The answer in a great many cases would be "No." Yet you agree to all these things when you buy an automobile. There is only one answer to the thinking man. That is "Protect yourself and your property by the purchase of an automobile liability and property damage policy in a good reliable automobile company."

HOMEMAKERS' TRAINING CLASS WELL ATTENDED

Twenty leaders, representing ten local homemakers' clubs, attended the third leaders' training class on "Furnishing the Livable Home" last week. The lesson was conducted by Miss Ida C. Hagman, Home Improvement Specialist, University of Kentucky. Mary Hood Gillaspie, Boone County Home Demonstration agent assisted in giving the lesson.

Miss Hagman talked about "Picture Selection" and the use of pictures in the home. She demonstrated how good copies in magazines may be framed for use in the home. An exhibit of Japanese prints was shown to the leaders. Reports of work done in each club was given by the leaders. Every club stated that their members were remodeling furniture.

The next leaders' training class will be held January 5.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION ANNOUNCED

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an open competitive examination for the positions of assistant fishers statistical and marketing agent, $1,800 a year, and junior fisheries statistical and marketing agent, $1,620 a year in the Bureau of Fisheries, Department of Commerce. Certain education, and experience in fishery work are required.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office or customhouse in any city which has a post office of the first or second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

The treasury department says it can't produce dimes and quarters fast enough to supply the demand. And it's the same way with a lot of fathers.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE

The annual Christmas seal sale is being conducted, and the question has been asked by some people, how the proceeds of the sale are used. That is a question we will gladly answer, as those who purchase Christmas seals have a right to know what disposition is made of the funds.

The sale is sponsored by the Anti-Tuberculosis Commission and approximately 50 per cent of the proceeds go to that organization to aid them in the figiit against tuberculosis. When the Boone County Red Cross Chapter disbanded the Anti - Tuberculosis Commissoined asked the schools to carry on the sale and gave them the privilege of using the county's part of the fund in any way it sees fit.

Mr. R. V. Lents was appointed county chairman by the commission and he conducts the sale of the seals. Out of the county's part of the proceeds the first item is the expense of the sale. This consists of postage and prizes for the pupils in each school selling the most seals, and prizes for the schools rating highest in the sale. There is no part of this paid to any individual for handling the work of conducting the sale. The part that remains after expenses are deducted is placed in the School Library Fund and is used for the purchase of books for the circulating library for all the schools of the county. In case some emergency arises this money may be used for any purpose the county committee may direct. During the flood last January $50.00 was contributed from this fund to the Red Cross. The remainder was used to purchase books which were placed in every school in the county system.

D. H. Norris, Treas. of Fund.

Lesson for December 19

THE BIRTH OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:8-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.—Luke 2:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Came.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When Jesus Came.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Birth of Our Saviour.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Gift of a Saviour.

Few indeed are the stories that will bear retelling or the books that are worth re-reading. Rare is the song that we care to hear more than once. How significant then that we come to the observance of Christmas each year with hearts full of delight in the story of the birth of Jesus, eager again to hear the account from God's Word, and to listen with attentive souls for the sound of the angel's song in the Christmas music.

The birth of our Lord as the incarnate Saviour of men is still front page, headline news, even in 1937. The glad tidings of his coming still color the thinking and living of a world that has gone far from him, that lives today in hatred and enmity, even while outwardly recalling the coming of the One who was to bring peace on earth. We have even gone so far that men feel that the way to promote peace is to use the sword. Until the Prince of Peace himself shall reign there may be no other way. But let us be certain at this Christmas time that the tender baby hand from the cradle at Bethlehem has reached our hearts and lives, bringing us peace with God and good will toward men.

The first seven verses of our chapter relate the coming of Mary with Joseph to God's appointed place at his appointed time, for the entrance into this world of the Son of God as the "Word" that "was made flesh and dwelt among us" (John 1:14). Our lesson opens with the proclamation of the blessed good news to the shepherds in the field.

I. "Unto You Is Born . . . a Saviour" (vv. 8-14).

Christ was a great teacher, one whom the common people heard gladly, "for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes" (Mark 1:22). He was a leader among men, and lived a life which was an example beyond that of any man. But mark it well, this was not the central and essential purpose of his coming. He came as a Saviour. His mother was told before his birth that she should "call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins" (Matt. 1:21).

It is not enough to be among the countless thousands who superficially observe Christmas with greetings and gifts. We must with the shepherds go and present ourselves in personal devotion to him. If you have not met the Lord Jesus as your own personal Saviour do it now. And if you know him, make this a Christmas in which Christ is supreme.

II. "Let Us Now Go . . . and See" (vv. 15, 16).

Their fear changed to assurance by the words of the angel, the shepherds at once "go" and "see." Would that all those who heard today did likewise. The shepherds might well have found all manner of excuses for not going. They had sheep to care for, they were not prepared for a journey. No, the urge was upon them "and they came with haste . . . and found" Jesus.

III. "When They Had Seen . . . They Made Known" (vv. 17-20).

Mary the mother of Jesus had special reason to ponder these things in her heart. But the shepherds "returned, glorifying and praising God for all that they had heard and seen."

"Let the redeemed of the Lord say so" (Ps. 107:2). When we have found the Lord Jesus we must not simply rejoice in the satisfaction and peace that has come to our own souls. We are saved to serve. The normal expression of the new life in Christ is the proclamation of the gospel to the ends of the earth. Only in that spirit do we truly keep Christmas!

To every one that sees these lines—whether editor, typesetter, or proofreader—whether a reader in the midst of the clamor of the great city or in the quiet of a distant countryside, whether old or young, whether well or on a sickbed, whether alone, far from family and friends, or in the bosom of your family, the writer of these lines extends in the name of Christ a most hearty good wish for a blessed Christmas.

Lesson of Experience

Experience teacheth many things, and all men are his scholars; yet he is a strange tutor unteaching that which he himself hath taught.

A STYLE HINT

For the high school girl, a wool plaid dress, very gay in colors, is attractive. There are plaids now for school girls of all ages. Do not seek to emulate your elders in the matter of shoes. Remember that you are leading an active life, and can easily ruin your feet wearing high-heel shoes. Cling to the low-heel, sturdy models as long as you can.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS—

To remove mustard stains from table linens, boil stained part in a quart of water to which one teaspoon of washing soda has been added . . . If a teaspoon of molasses or brown sugar is added to griddle cake batter the cakes will brown more easily . . . If soup gets too salty, a pinch of brown sugar added to it will take the salty taste away.

And just to think that down in South America they are just beginning to dig dandelions out of the front yard and sharpen the lawnmower.

Foot Comfort Specialist
People's Foot Comfort, 828 Madison Avenue, Covington, Ky.

Oft times people ask themselves:
1. Can that severe headache be coming form my feet?
2. That backache is almost killing me . . . I wonder if my feet have anything to do with it?
3. My feet are calloused very heavy under the ball of the foot . . . when I step on a pebble with that part of the foot I get a pain almost up to my head . . . How can that be corrected?
4. My ankles puff out almost over the shoe tops...They are not that bad when I get up in the morning . . . Now if being off my feet reduces the swelling there must be a shoe to displace weight even when I'm on my feet . . . then there would be no swelling—

ON WASH DAY—

Do not throw away laundry starch when it becomes cold, thinking it cannot be used because it is lumpy. By putting the cold starch into very hot water and stirring it briskly the starch becomes as smooth as ever. The hotter the starch is used, the easier and neater is the resulting ironing job.

OPEN REAL ESTATE OFFICE

W. A. McLoney asd William Spradling, Covington residents, have formed a partnership to sell all kinds of real estate and general insurance. They will operate as the Pike Street Realty Co., 318 Pike Street, Covington, where they opened an office this week. The firm invites farmers in particular to list their farms for sale, as they already have some potential farm buyers on their lists.

DRESSED TURKEYS COST MORE

Since turkeys lose about a fourth of their weight in dressing, consumers must expect to pay considerably more for dressed birds than for live ones, points out the State College of Agriculture at Lexington. A turkey that weighs 16 lbs. in the field may be reduced to 12 pounds when fully dressed. If the price is 25 cents a pound on foot, it should be about 34 cents when ready for the oven. There also is a charge for the labor of dressing and for refrigeration.

It's natural for other nations to think only of war, for they don't have championship fights and world series and nerve-wracking football contests.

You can tell when some men have gone as far as they'll ever go. They begin to get independent and sassy.

A New York judge says men should not be allowed to pin diapers on babies, and the babies probably think the same thing.

LIME AND PHOSPHATE NOT ENOUGH FOR SOIL IMPROVEMENT

By Geo. Roberts, Kentucky College of Agriculture

Too often farmers think that when they have limed and fertilized their land with phosphate so that legumes can be grown, the continued use of this treatment is all that is necessary to keep their land productive. After growing a good legume crop the yield of corn or tobacco may be so much better than previously that it it would appear that they are justified in their belief. However, when something is added to the soil to make it produce more, obviously the larger yields draw more heavily upon all the plant nutrients in the soil and exhaust those not added much more rapidly. For example, if the yield of crops is doubled, as is often the case when lime and phosphate are used, the draft on potash is twice as great, and unless provision is made for returning potash to the soil a time will come when crops will not get enough and yields will be seriously reduced. Potash starvation shows up quicker on tobacco and alfalfa than on other crops, but even corn will sooner or later be affected.

Fortunately, most of the potash used by grain crops is in the stalks and straw, and much of that used by tobacco is in the stalk. Also about nine tenths of the potash in feed consumed by animals is excreted in the manure, but about two thirds of it is in the liquid manure. If manure is carefully saved and returned to the soil, and all crop residues are carefully saved and used for bedding or returned to the soil, then the potash supply will be maintained on most Kentucky soils for most crops. However, it will usually be profitable to use some potash in the fertilizer for tobacco, unless manured very liberally, and alfalfa grown long on the same land will almost certainly suffer from a potash shortage unless manured very liberally, and alfalfa grown long on the same land will almost certainly suffer from a potash shortage unless the ground is manured or potash fertilizers are used along with other needed fertilizers.

Although good legume crops may be grown in a rotation, they will not keep a sufficient nitrogen supply for other crops if they are removed and no manure is returned. Fortunately, about three fourths of the nitrogen in the feed of animals is recovering in the manure, but much of it is in the urine and can be saved only by using sufficient bedding.

CARD OF THANKS

The sisters and brothers of the late Simeon Lee Craven desire to express their sincere thanks to the minister, Reverend Brown, for his very appropriate and consoling sermon; the choir for the manner in which they rendered the beautiful and well-selected hymns; all friends and relatives who paid tribute by sending flowers and assisting in many ways by expressing their sympathy; the undertaker, Mr. Jesse Hamilton, a life-long friend of the deceased, for the splendid manner in which he conducted the funeral.

TWO NEW FORD V-8 CARS FOR 1938

THE STANDARD 60 OR 85 HORSEPOWER

STANDARD FORD V-8 . . . 112" wheelbase; 85 or 60 horsepower engine; Improved Easy-Action Safety Brakes; Center-Poise Ride; All-steel body; Broadcloth or Mohair upholstery, Mohair extra in "60"; Mahogany-finished trim; One tail light, sun visor; Twin horns; 3 body types; 3 colors.

FORD offers two new cars for 1938—the Standard Ford V-8 and the De Luxe Ford V-8. They are different in appearance—but built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence—on the same chassis.

Because people liked our 1937 car so well, they bought more than of any other make. They liked its looks, its smooth performance, and the way it handled. We have improved on that car in the newly styled Standard Ford V-8.

But some folks wanted still more size and style, with the same Ford advantages. For them, we designed a new De Luxe line.

The De Luxe Ford V-8 Sedans are longer with more room, larger luggage space, and finer appointments all around. De Luxe cars are equipped with the 85-horsepower engine only.

The Standard is even lower priced than the De Luxe. It has graceful new lines and well-tailored interiors—with a choice of engine sizes—85 or 60 horsepower.

Before Ford made V-type 8-cylinder engines available to every one, they were used only in expensive cars. Since then, four million Ford owners have learned the genuine enjoyment of driving an eight-cylinder car with all-around economy. The thrifty "60" engine, especially, makes possible in Standard models a very low first cost and equally low operating cost. With two distinct designs, two engine sizes and two price ranges, you'll find a 1938 Ford car to fit your needs exactly.

PRICES FOR CARS DELIVERED IN DETROIT—TAXES EXTRA

Standard Ford V-8 (60 hp.)—Coupe, $599; Tudor, $644; Fordor, $689. Standard Ford V-8 (85 hp.)—Coupe, $629; Tudor, $669; Fordor, $714. CAPITOL COMMENTS

"Who is going to be what in the forthcoming session of legislature?" Some time ago this fragment bellowed the information that Edwin C. Dawson was to be cast as President pro tem of the Senate and Ralph Gilbert of Shelbyville was billed to succeed himself as majority floor leader. There are no changes there. Now it seems that Ray Moss, Senator from Pineville will again get the call as Republican floor leader. Over in the house John Kirtley is still advertised as the most probable victor in the race for Speaker. Some folk here are wont to believe that Frank Daugherty a veteran of the legislative chambers who is carrying the gonfalen of Nelson county, will be asked to be Democratic floor leader in the house. John Hunnicutt, as before stated here, wouldn't refuse the Democratic leadership. Claud L. Hammons, Barbourville Republican is likely to find stiff opposition in the race for the minority leadership. However, Hammons is the only man whose name has been mentioned directly. There is going to be a grand rush for such jobs as Clerk of the House and Senate, Reading Clerk, File Clerk, Enrolling Clerk, Mail Clerk and George Chinn says that he will not be a candidate again for the Sergeant-at-arms of the Senate. Then there are the cloak room keepers and the doorkeepers in both the house and senate. Of all these the picking of the clerk of the Senate and the Clerk of House are two of the most important job giving tasks faced by the two houses.

This corner can't help but take a line or two to comment of Stanley High's latest literary effort in the Saturday Evening Post under November 20 date. He comments enlighteningly on the disguise of political propaganda as news articles and the sending of it to the editors. Ye Editor wades thru reams of it and maybe culls out a few lines of news and maybe not. He points out the millions that are spent yearly press agenting the things done by governmental agencies. He further points that such mold opinions which in turn influences voters. He simmered it all down to this "That if governmental agencies desire to advertise their good doings they should pay Ye Editor at the regular advertising rate. Ye Editor is in full accord.

Governor Chandler stated from a public platform that the State would build a ten story office building (which incidentally is badly needed) on the site of the old reformatory here at Frankfort. The moving finger has writ and having writ moves on. He said that a new building will be erected on the old pen grounds, now he must be about arranging the proper legislation and arranging the finances to accomplish the deed. Already most of the buildings inside the old pen have been razed. One dormitory and the old shoe factory are no more. One wing of cell block B is gradually "biting the dust." A new office building would be a great aid here. There are a half dozen departments that need room, having outgrown their old quarters.

Pressure is being brought to bear on the new legislators concerning the freeing of the state owned toll bridges. Henry Ward Democratic representative of Paducah is barnstorming over the state holding meetings at which he outlines a proposed bill to free the bridges. He invites the members of the General Assembly to meet with him. He has held meetings in Paducah, Owensboro, Louisville, Lexington, and has Covington, Ashland, Pikeville, Pineville and Bowling Green listed for meetings. Henry, whose ideas have not always been in the general accord with those of the governor, emphatically denies that he is meeting the state's solons in behalf of his own interests. There was a rumor that he was seeking the speakership of the house. He says that he has pledged himself to John Kirtley.

The proposed naming of the new concrete Highway, U. S. 60 from Shelbyville to Louisville the Chandler Highway is almost a certainty. There has been little objection to it. The idea was first broached several months ago by a Louisville newspaper and later given further momentum by the Louisville Automobile Club. Regardless of whether it is ever officially named Chandler Highway, it will always be known as that. That name was the first impression and the first is always the most closing and besides no one has been able to present a better name for the strip.

Here are some potting on the tobacco crop which is now going to market. The dark leaf markets opened in Western Kentucky last week and the first averages was slightly more than a dollar less than the average of last year. This alone gave the farmer high hopes for top prices for his crop again this season. Now for something discouraging. This from various burley warehouses which have been taking in baskets, in preparation for the opening of the market. They say that burley will weigh light, much lighter than usual, this year. A tornado passed through the central section of the tobacco belt last week and the farmers in Clark, Bourbon, Bath, Fleming, Montgomery, Mason, Pendleton, Scott, Harrison and Nicholas felt considerable damage. Most of the crops injured were in the barns and were damaged when barns caved in as a result of the blow. Clark county will send 5,012 acres of the weed to market this season. That is 1,352 acres more than was raised in this county last year. Anyway the auctioneers are busy and the biggest market in years is now being held.

Some weeks back your correspondent told of tobacco thieves who sallied forth in the middle of the night and swiped the weed from its hanging in the barns and made away with many, many pounds. This warning appears to have served a good purpose. There was little thievery or at least there has been but little to date and just a few days ago thieves were apprehended in Cynthiana, three of them, and are awaiting trial for their efforts.

UTOPIA CLUB

The Boone County Utopia Club held its monthly meeting November 18th at the Woodmen Hall. Following the meeting, was the special event of the year, initiation of new members. Out of many new members these eight were initiated: Mrs. Lloyd Seikman, Mrs. Alvin Stephens, Mrs. Robert Graves, Francis Seikman, Mary Carpenter, Joe Rouse, Creed Harris and Virgil Vice. After initiation several games were played under the direction of Mary Hood Gillaspie. The Hebron group was in charge of refreshments.

MICHELS-DAVIS

A beautiful wedding on Thanksgiving Day was that of Miss Mary Catherine Michels, granddaughter of the late John Miller and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Michels, Milford, O., formerly of Dudley Road, Ft. Mitchell, to Mr. Jas. B. Davis, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. B. Davis, of Price Hill, which was solemnized at St. Andrews Church at 8:30 in the morning. Rev. Edward J. Creager officiated at the ceremony with impressive dignity.

The bride made a charming picture in her gown of ivory satin with long train, over which her three-tiered wedding veil was coronet of orange blossoms and pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. E. L. Ivers, the bride's sister was maid of honor. Her gown was a royal blue transparent velvet. her hat coronet in style with lace veil to match her gown. Miss Frances Davis, sister of the groom was bridesmaid. Her gown, rust transparent velvet, her hat and lace veil same as gown. The maids' accessories were carried out in a rich golden colors.

The bride's brother, Joseph B. Michels was best man. The ushers were Mr. E. L. Ivers, Lawrence Rouse and Robert Nordten.

ESTABLISHED 1875

VOLUME 62 | BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY | THURSDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1937 | NUMBER 32

CIRCUIT COURT ADJOURNED SAT.

EIGHT INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY—LUCILLE BURNS GIVEN THREE YEARS —SENTENCE PROBATED.

Boone County Circuit Court which was to convene Monday of last week was postponed until Tuesday, due to the fact that the roads were in such a condition that Judge Vallandingham was unable to get here until Tuesday.

Eight indictments were returned by the grand jury as follows: Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Lucille Burns; Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Earl Silvernail; Commonwealth vs. W. S. Stanley; Commonwealth vs Dave Haynes and four indictments were returned against Willard Sanders.

Lucille Burns, who was indicted by the grand jury for the theft of jewelery from the home of Jos. Huey, at Union was sentenced to three years and the sentence probated.

Earl Silvernail and W. S. Stanley were fined for having slot machines in their place of business.

The case of Commonwealth vs. Dave Hayes, indicted for chicken stealing was held over until the April term of court.

Willard Sanders was tried on three charges and given a total of eight years in the State penitentiary. He was given two years for entering the home of Robert Bradford; two years for stealing the car of Al Rogers and four years for entering the home of H. R. Forkner, county agent. He was also indicted for stealing the county school bus, but this indictment was filed away.

Tony Keefer, who was tried for breaking into the store of Proc Brother was sentenced to two years, with sentence probated. He was returned to his home in Jamestown, N. Y., where he is to report to probation officers each month.

The grand jury examining county property reported that all buildings were in excellent condition, but recommended that the county provide larger quarters for the county agent and his staff.

In the common law and equity division of the court many equity matters were disposed of. Several common law cases were on the docket but were settled without trial. Two common law cases were tried by the jury.

What was expected to be a lengthy session, only lasted five days, which was of benefit to the farmers who composed the juries, as many were very busy in getting their crops ready for the tobacco market.

THIRD ANNUAL MEETING HELD

THIRD YEAR OF WORK IN THE NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL PLANNING PROGRAM STUDIED BY COMMITTEE.

The Boone County Agricultural Planning Committee met at Burlington Tuesday, December 14th to consider the third year's work in the national County Agricultural Planning Program work. The purpose of the committee work is to carry out a study that will be of value to the county, state and nation in dealing with present and future agricultural problems.

Because of the sleet, snow and unusually bad weather on the 14, only a few of the committeemen were able to attend. Those attending the meeting were: A. B. Renaker, secretary of the Boone County Federal Land Bank Association; J. C. Bedinger, Walton community, director of the Cincinnati Livestock Producers' Association; W. G. Kite, Grant community, president of Boone County Jersey Cattle club and D. H. I. A. member; Reuben Kirtley, Hamilton ACP community committeeman; H. E. White, Burlington, chairman of the county ACP committee and president of the Boone County Wool Pool; John E. Crigler, secretary of Boone County ACP association; David Colville, assistant county agent; Bruce Poundstone, farm Management Department, College; and H. R. Forkner, county agent.

Mr. Poundstone led the discussion on the program. The committee, after due consideration submitted the following report and recommendations:

1. Rotation Crops, greater interest the past year has been shown in better crop rotation systems and use of winter cover crops. The only exception to this has been in the flood areas of the river bottom sections where it was necessary to plow more land than would normally be recommended. The more efficient use of a definite soil improving crop rotation system with the use of winter cover crops on all tilled land was recommended in 1937 and recommended to farmers in 1938.

2. Legume stands that are uniformly good have been found difficult to get. Legume seeding mixtures should include one or more of the grasses as timothy, red top or blue grass for this reason.

3. Sheep—Last year recommendations were for an increase in sheep numbers in the county. The committee reported that in their opinion there had been a decrease in sheep numbers and that this decrease was due to losses from dogs. It was reported the present dog fund has a deficit of over $3000.00 to pay sheep claims. It was recommended that sheep raisers organize to control the dog situation. The committee further recommended that additional legislation be perfected to compensate for sheep losses from dogs and that the sheriff collect taxes on 100 per cent of the dogs in the county.

4. Dairy—Increased efficiency in production was considered the greatest dairy problem within the county. This increased efficiency can be brought about through:

(a) Feeding—The more efficient use of home grown feeds, including better pasture, better forage crops. The feed can further be used more efficiently through the following preparation: (1) All grain crushed. Most every dairyman can secure a grain crusher or grinder and through use of an old automobile motor or better power, if available, can cheaply crush his own feed. (2) The cutting up of the fodder (not grinding) would enable farmers to make greater use of fodder. Silage should be used when possible. It is not recommended that hay be crushed or ground. (3) Herds should be culled closely and only cows that pay their way should be kept. There are too many cows that are not efficient enough to justify a place in the herds. The Dairy Herd Improvement Association is recommended as an efficient plan to follow in both culling and breeding up the herd.

5. Poultry—Every farm should have enough chickens for its own use. Commercial poultry production is probably the most delicate of all farm enterprises and should be taken up only by individuals with special interests along this line.

6. Beef Cattle—Beef cattle are much in the same position as poultry. Dairying is to be more generally recommended for the county with beef cattle only to those farmers who have special interest along this line.

7. Truck Crops—Truck crop growing is a specialized business, particularly adapted to the north section of the county. The present acreage of truck crops should be maintained and changed up or down in the future to meet market demands.

8. Tobacco—Tobacco is an important cash crop. It is recommended that the tobacco goals for 1938 be grown. The county has tobacco bases totaling 3365 acres.

A study of the ACP records shows that the farms in the Burlington-Florence districts have an average of 11 percent of the crop land in corn, 4 percent in tobacco and trucks crops, 4½ percent in small grains, 25 percent in hay and the remaining in pasture and idle land. This is considered a good soil conserving ratio except that the acreage sown to small grain cover crops should equal the corn, tobacco and truck crop acreage. Very little of cover crops should be harvested for grain and most of it should be grazed or turned under as green manure crops. Certain other districts are found with a higher soil depleting crop ratio. The committee felt that the soil depleting acres in their communities are too high to maintain a long time profitable agricultural production. The acres of soil depleting crops in these communities should be decreased and the acres of soil conserving crops increased.

The committee, in their study, makes no recommendation to individual farms. Recommendations are either for districts or to the county as a whole.

Correction of Age

In last week's issue of the Recorder we carried an article of the death of D. E. Castleman, stating that he was 69 years of age. His age should have been 79 years.

This error was made due to the fact that we copied his birth from an old historical edition in our office.

Surprised On Anninersary

A delightful tea was given as a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Paddock at their home in Hebron by a number of their friends Sunday afternoon in honor of their 50th wedding anniversary.

They received many nice gifts, among them a check for $50.00 from his brother Truman, and a home-made fruit cake from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lowe, of Dudley Pike.

The guests who participated in the happy occasion were Mrs. Belle Quick, Mrs. Curtie Manning, Miss Ruth Paddock, Mr. Truman Paddock and daughter Clara, of Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Allen, of Florence and Misses Viola and Emily Fay, of Ludlow.

We wish Mr. and Mrs. Paddock many more years of happy married life.

Topping all her triumps of "One in a Million," Miss Henie is more radiantly exciting than ever as she displays new beauty, new daring and new breath-taking thrills.

1937 FARM INCOME SET AT EIGHT AND HALF BILLION DOLLARS

Washington, Dec. 17—The Agriculture Department today estimated 1937 cash farm income at $8,500,000,000 in the final crop report of the year.

This compared with a 1936 farm cash income of $7,920,000,000 and was the largest since 1929. It was almost double the depression-low farm income of $4,328,000,000 in 1932.

AMBASSADOR TO ENGLAND DIES

WAS PUBLISHER OF THE COURIER-JOURNAL AND LOUISVILLE TIMES—SURGERY REVEALS RARE ILLNESS.

Robert Worth Bingham, 66, passed away Saturday night at 7:21 in the John Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, from an illness, diagnoised as "abdominal Hodgkin's disease."

Mr. Bingham was publisher of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, two of Kentucky's largest newspapers, and was also Ambassador to England.

Only after his death did doctors disclose the nature of his illness, which defied diagnosis in European medical centers last summer. Physicians disclosed a hospital staff went to England to bring the Ambassador back to the United States.

Bingham was popular in England. He was the first American to receive honorary degrees from the three principal English universities.

Bingham was a member of the Episcopal Church. He was County Attorney of Jefferson County in 1904, Mayor of Louisville in 1907 and Chancellor of the Jefferson Circuit Court in 1911.

He was very active in politics and was one of Kentucky's leaders. He will be missed throughout the State and the nation.

Will Observe Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Theo Carpenter, Richwood, Boone County will observe their golden wedding anniversary, December 28. Both are life-long residents of Boone County and have spent their entire lives at Richwood, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter are blessed with four children, all boys Eldridge, Chas. Jno. and Earl Carpenter. The last two named, Jno and Earl served in the World War. They are also blessed with five grandchildren.

The Recorder joins their many friends in wishing them many more years of happiness.

FLORENCE HOMEMAKER'S CLUB

The icy weather of Tuesday, December 14, did not deter twenty members and four visitors from attending the meeting of the Florence Homemakers' Club. The visitors were Misses May and Dorothy Victor, Miss Jane Scott and Mrs. C. L. Gaines.

Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent, gave an interesting lesson on "Itallan Hemstitching, and in a short while all were able to do this pretty and useful needlework. After lunch Miss Gillaspie showed some Japanese prints and told how the Japanese painted these lovely pictures.

After the business of the day was taken care of, and the lessons given, a Christmas program was in order. Mrs. Robt. Eades, Mesdames Jane Utz, Pearl Baker, Kittie Tanner, and Mabel Sayre presented a pretty tabelau of "The Angels and The Shepherds." Mrs. Virginia Goodridge played the organ and with Mrs. C. L. Gaines sang Christmas Carols. A number of the members wearing paper caps and carrying brooms marched and under orders of their Captain, Mrs. Mabel Sayre did a very fine Broom Drill.

There was a tree and Mrs. Effie Harrington, taking the part of Santa Claus, gave those present each a small gift. The names of two new members were added, Miss Jane Scott and Mrs. C. L. Gaines.

The next meeting will be January 27th and the roll call will be answered by "My New Year's Resolution."

We Lose A Good Correspondent

Mr. B. A. Floyd, who has served as correspondent from the Gunpowder neighborhood stated that after moving to Florence where he will make his home, he would discontinue his column.

Mr. Floyd has been a correspondent for the recorder for approximately fifty years, and has done his work well.

We are sorry to lose this good man from our list of correspondents, and wish to thank him for his kind and efficient service in the past.

HALF OF WEED SHOWN IN 4-H SHOW AND SALE GROWN IN BOONE CO.

Belleview Boy Wins District Championship Award With Average of $26.98 Per Hundred.

One hundred and fifty-six Boone, Kenton, Campbell, Pendleton, Bracken and Grant County 4-H tobacco club members sold 68,514 pounds of club-project tobacco in the annual 4-H show and sale at the Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse in Covington last Saturday for $17,623.94 or an average of $24.84 per hundred. Seventy-five Boone county 4-H club members sold 33,580 pounds for $8725.36 or an average of $25.98, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent.

Charles Joe Stephens, Boone County member from Belleview 4-H club and son of Mrs. Courtney Pope, was awarded the District Championship of the show. His crop of 482 pounds brought $183.34 for the highest sale average of $38.03 per hundred. His crop was produced on four-tenths of an acre. The total expense in producing his crop was $20.90, divided as follows: Rent $4.00, labor $14.05 and fertilizer $2.85. The district championship was judged both on crop and project record book of the member.

The sale was the largest of its kind ever held in northern Kentucky and members taking part were well pleased with the sale. Because of the rush on the market it was impossible to judge the individual baskets. The club members are looking forward to a bigger and better show and sale in 1938.

Recorder Force To Take Vacation During Next Week

As has been the custom of The Recorder office since it was founded by Will Riddell, this paper will not be published next week. The founder of this paper originated this plan and it has been carried out each year since.

The Recorder force has been working very hard in the past three weeks to give the advertisers and our readers the large issue which was published last week, and therefore deserve a few days' vacation.

All correspondents are requested not to send in their news next week, but to put both weeks together, therefore having a larger column for the first issue in the new year.

We have made every effort during 1937 to give our subscribers a good weekly paper, and have installed many new pieces of equipment in our shop during that time which has enabled us to make our paper better. Our subscribers have been very faithful and the majority have renewed their subscriptions promptly, of which we are very thankful.

At this time we wish to thank all our correspondents and each and everyone who have added their bit to the publication of this paper, and wish them, along with all our subscribers and advertisers a very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

LIVESTOCK TOUR POSTPONED

The Boone County farmers tour of the Cincinnati Livestock yards and meat packing plants scheduled for last Wednesday, December 15, was postponed because of the snow, sleet and unusually bad weather the first part of the week.

The tour will probably be held the latter part of January or early February.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lassing and daughter and Mrs. May Lassing left Sunday for St. Petersburg, Fla., where they will spend the winter.

800 Pound Hog Is Butchered

Probably one of the largest hogs ever killed for home use in this community recently was butchered by Pope and Bachelor of the Burlington-Florence pike.

The animal was too large to be handled by several men present and consequently had to be driven to the scalding box before being killed. After the animal was killed, its head had to be removed before it could be scalded and was lifted by a rope hoist to a nearby tree, where it was prepared for the meat block.

This one hog alone produced over thirty gallons of lard and made a large quanity of sausage.

So far, this is a record this year, but if someone has one that can beat it, we will be very glad to hear from them.

LOCAL TEAM TAKES TILT

DEFEAT FLORENCE FRIDAY NIGHT BY SCORE OF 23 TO 20 IN NIP-AND-TUCK BATTLE—NEW HAVEN, WALTON WIN.

The Burlington high school, playing a slam-bang game, pulled itself from the cellar of the Boone County Conference Friday night by downing Florence 23 to 20, in a nip-and-tuck battle.

The Burlington club, coached by J. F. Moore, came from the rear at the half to win the game. The score at intermission was 15 to 14.

The Burlington reserves won their game, 26 to 21, Florence also furnishing the victim.

New Haven, high in the standing of the conference, went out of the league to show Simon Kenton High a thing or two. The score was 26 to 18. Howard and Griffith were tops for the winners with six each, while Williams and Gregory equally divided 10.

Walton, leader of the Boone County League, journeyed to Beechwood to whip Coach Harvey Mattingly's Tigers, 32 to 29.

The Tigers showed improved form to hold the top-notch Walton team. Osborne was best for the winners while Northcutt added a few stars to his crown as the losers' best.

Hebron, in spit of the good work of Huey and Shinkle, lost to Ludlow High in another game with out-of-the- conference foes. The score was 34 to 25. Shinkle made eight points, Huey dumped in five.

Saturday night, Burlington and Walton tangled in a conference game at Walton with Walton defeating the Burlington boys by a score of 64 to 23 for the first string men and 41 to 9 in the reserve game. This defeat placed Coach Moore's team back in the cellar with the Florence Knights.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

To each and every reader of this newspaper, we present the season's greeting and our heartiest wishes for a Merry Christmas!

It is our sincere wish that in every heart there abounds at this time the peace and happiness and contentment that makes of this the most helpful and inspiring season of the entire year. In each heart we feel sure there comes a kindly and neighborly feeling for all mankind. The Christmas Spirit now finds its way into every corner of the civilized world; into the hovel and the palace alike; into the fastnesses of forest homes and homes set upon the plains; into the hearts of those who possess little of earthly goods and into the hearts of those who possess much. The Christmas Spirit—the greatest leveler of all—now touches the hearts of all mankind alike and kindles therein the beacon light of Hope—a hope that was born beneath the star of Bethlehem almost two thousand years ago; a hope that keeps the eyes of the world turned to the future and the hearts of the world united in a prayer of Peace On Earth Good Will Toward Men.

In this, the most beautiful season known to man, there should be found time for every heart to count its blessings and to give thought to their source. The age-old lesson of the lowly birth of the One the Christmas season honors should serve as a solace to those who feel life's burdens heavy upon them. It should lighten the heart and make it glad.

A season of joy and gladness for young hearts, it is likewise a season when old hearts are made young again, when the spirit of childish innocence is restored by memories, the bonds of friendship renewed and the welfare of our neighbors set with new importance. It is a season for renewing our pledge of friendship for those about us; a season for demonstrating by smile and hand-clasp and cheering words our love for those who make up our individual circle of neighbors and friends. It is a time for thankfulness that we have it in our power to make those friendships endure.

Out of the East comes once more the light that guides mankind to higher and better things and toward a haven that is more magnificent than anything yet built by hands. We see that light—we know it as the Christmas Spirit. And now as hearts grow mellow beneath it, and are filled with it; as it is scattered abroad through smiles and laughter and gifts and gladsome song, we enter the Christmas season with only love and kindliness. We find Hope and earthly happiness born anew within us, and a tender feeling toward those about us. It is this mystic power of the Spirit of Christmas which makes this the most sacred and inspiring holiday of all. It is with this mystic power in our hearts—the wish that this will be for you and yours

A Merry Christmas!

SENSIBLE GIVING

Few things offer more interest at this time of year than a comparison of Christmas merchandise carried in the stores of today with that which the holiday buyers had set before them a dozen or more years ago. By that is not meant the size of the stocks carried, for naturally they are larger since holiday buying has increased with the years. But make the comparison on the variety and service of gift goods offered now with gift goods of earlier holidays, and you will be letting yourself in for a genuine surprise.

In former years it was not considered "good taste" to give articles of wearing apparel to anyone outside the immediate family circle. No man thought of giving a feminine friend something she could wear in comfort and enjoyment, something sensibl eand serviceable. Such things were all right to give one's sister, but for a sweetheart it had to be a manicure set, a bottle of perfume, a set of fancy hair combs, or something along that line.

Today, happily for all concerned, everybody gives serviceable gifts and everybody expects that kind. So merchants stock that kind instead of the shoddy array of useless stuff that once passed as Christmas gifts. Today gifts of clothing, furniture, electrical devices for the home and the auto—gifts that are useful and that add actual comfort to life—form the bulk of all holiday buying. Today's Christmas gift is a sensible gift and it's purchase is in practically every instance money sensibly invested. There has been a radical change in the type of Christmas merchandise in the past few years, as a visit to the local stores will reveal. And the change has been not only for the better but for a happier Christmas as well.

PASSING OF THE WOODSHED

The slipper, the shingle and the barrel stave have passed out of the picture in homes as important instruments in the discipline of children, but there are times when one wonders if it was a good idea to dispense with them. Such punishment tended to be harsh, it is true, but in the hands of a coolly deliberate and not unkindly authority, they had their value. The old woodshed played a very valuable part in the life of earlier generations.

Five young boys were recently arrested in a middle western town for wrecking classrooms in a school building. They counted it a great lark and their only comment on arrest was: "Oh, the taxpayers will have to settle for the repairs." This statement may have been in keeping with present-day ideas of political economy, but it is unsound, nevertheless. And some early training in the woodshed may have prevented such youthful depredations.

There is nothing heroic in being laid over Dad's knees and paddled with a slipper or a shingle. But history has proved that there is something effective about it. And such socially dangerous philosophy as that held by those five boys should still be whacked out of them and others before they become permanent charges on the taxpayers. Growing up to be a bandit or a hard-boiled type of citizen never had a place in very many youthful minds before the old woodshed passed on.

PARAGRAPHS

Christmas turkeys are plumper this year than usual, but that does not mean a thing to the boy who has to be content with the neck or a wing.

Maybe the reason why justice is blind is because she has been socked in the eye so often.

You can safely bet there will always be something to reform so long as we have professional reformers at fat salaries.

Another trouble is that too many people around here refuse to do their good deed for the day unless there are a lot of other people looking.

We are told that the 1938 model cars are so perfect that even a fool can drive them. And a lot of fools probably will.

Census figures show over a million divorced people in the U. S. It is probably the nation's greatest example of long division.

Even at the risk of being called old-fashioned many a man would like to stretch his feet in a pair of old time congress gaiters.

Almost anyone can be a breadwinner these days, girls, but if he happens to be a meat-winner, then you'd better grab him.

If they keep on making scientific studies of farm life it won't be long until most any farmer around here can make a living while still wearing a necktie.

Don't blame the children for howling. All of us might be doing the same thing if we knew it would get us what we want.

Every girl has the God-given right to choose a husband, but she should first make sure whose husband she is choosing.

The country would be better off if all those Americans running over to Egypt to dig for ancient relics would stay at home and dig coal.

In this modern day more than one citizen begins life in an installment-plan cradle and winds up in a partial-payment plan coffin.

Old Adam had one advantage. He roll in at 3 a. m. without being accused of having been out with some other woman.

If you want the truth about whether advertising pays or not never ask a man who advertised for a wife.

If they had an elevator running to heaven some old sinners around this community would probably argue that riding on an elevator makes them dizzy.

PICKED UP AROUND TOWN

Women like to be up-to-date in all but one thing, and that's their birthdays."

Wifie says maybe the big part of that $10,000 paid for a bull at the Chicago live stock show was just plain bull.

Some things never change. You can always have more fun sewing wild oats than you can harvesting them.

"You can always get your wife to agree with you when you tell her Solomon got all of his wisdom listening to his wives.

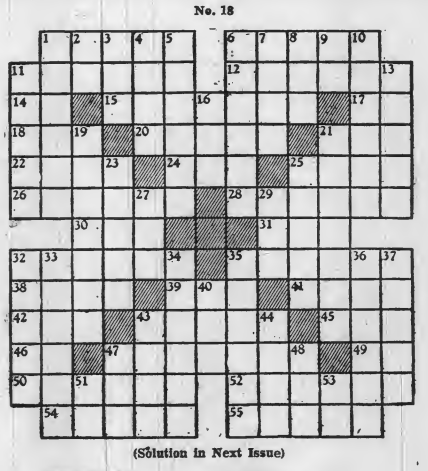
Anybody can shine in society if he will wear the same pair of pants long enough.

My idea is that after a fellow has learned to play a saxaphone he oughtn't to practice so much."

It's pretty hard to make some men believe that a large family and a used car is an expensive combination.

As we see it, a family tree is very often the cause of a fellow having a shady reputation.

The average man has just two objects in life. One is to get rich and the other is to get richer.



We are of the opinion that every time the bottom drops out of the stock market a new class is graduated in the School of Experience.

Lesson for December 26

CHRISTIAN CONSECRATION

LESSON TEXT—Philippians 1:12-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.—Philippians 1:21.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Our Best Friend.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Answering Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choosing a Life Purpose.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Christian Surrender Means.

Consecration is one of the words expressing Christian truth which has been so much used and so often misused that it has lost its savor. The writer remembers many a "consecration service" which meant nothing to those present except the fulfilling of a certain formula or program. The purpose of the meeting was excellent, but results were lacking because it had become a mere formality.

Paul the apostle knew nothing of any theory of consecration. He knew and lived and proclaimed such an abandonment of self to Christ and his cause as really required no statement in words—it was his life.

We close today a three-month series of studies in the Christian life. We began at the right point by considering "Christian Sonship," for no one can live until he is born and no one can live a Christian life until he is born again. We have considered together God's grace in keeping, renewing, guiding, blessing, and communing with his own. All these precious truths call us to devote ourselves to Christ in glad and full consecration.

Men give themselves thus to the building of a fortune, to the propagation of a political or social theory, to the pursuit of an occupation or profession. Why should not the Christian give himself in like measure for Christ and his holy cause?

Paul, in the verses of our lesson, shows that spirit and boldly declares that he follows Christ regardless of trying circumstance—he does so now, "in the body," not later in glory. And it matters not whether it be by life or death—"Christ shall be magnified."

I. "What Then?" (v. 18).

Paul was imprisoned for the gospel's sake. Did that stop him? no; he made the very guards who were assigned to watch him in his house into missionaries of the cross. He won each one as he took his designated period of service and sent him out as a testimony to "the whole praetorian guard and to all the rest" (v. 13 R. V.).

Then, some of his Christian associates taking advantage of the fact that he was imprisoned, went out to preach just to show that they were as good as he. They made their very preaching an expression of their envy of his popularity and hoped to heap more sorrow upon him. Did he get angry and bitterly fight back? No; he thanked God that Christ was preached. We need more of that spirit in our day.

II. "In My Body."

One of the glaring fallacies of human thinking is the idea that at some favorable time in the future we shall be able to enjoy life, do mighty deeds or serve the Lord. For example parents fail to enjoy their children because they are always looking forward to the next stage of their development. The time to enjoy and help our children is now. The time to serve the Lord Jesus is now. The day will come when we shall be glorified with him, but it will then be too late to speak to our neighbors about Christ.

III. "To Live Is Christ and to Die Is Gain" (v. 21).

Humanly speaking when a matter is one of "life or death" it is a question whether death may not intervene. The hope is that this may not be the case and every effort is made to prevent it. How different with Paul. He rightly points out that to a Christian death means entering into perfect fellowship with Christ and unlimited service for him. Every human limitation will then be put aside—knowledge, service, communion, will all be perfect and complete.

He would not, however, turn away from his present privilege and duty. Since it is God's will that he should abide in the flesh he will do it in such a way as to make it literally true that to him "to live is Christ." Every life has a purpose and that ruling passion which controls and directs a life is what should be written into the sentence, "To me to live is . . ." What is it—money, position, pleasure, sin? Or is it Christ? If he is your life, then you enter into the New Year with the assurance that it will be full and satisfying, and gloriously useful.

Spiteful Words

A spiteful word cuts both ways. A slander hurts the man or woman who spreads it in a more deadly, though unseen, way than it hurts its intended victim. Victor Hugo nobly says, "Every sword has two edges; and the man who wounds with one, wounds himself with the other."

Only One Real Failure

There is only one real failure possible; and that is, not to be true to the best one knows.—Canon Farrar.

LOOK over that Christmas shopping list of yours .... Now cross off those gifts that come by express and parcel post; those presents from exclusive shops; toys from far-away places; nuts from California; oranges from Florida .... Too bad, you say. Well, that's what you'd probably have to do if there were no railroads.

Without the railroads many Yuletide pleasures would not be yours today .... Folks coming home; sending gifts to friends; choosing delicacies for the holidays—all these are matters of course to you; they are an essential part of your Christmas pleasure. Satisfying your heart's desire with choice selections from far-flung distances adds a special zest to your Christmas joy .... And that's what the railroads enable you to do .... they have made this possible for you.

As a citizen of the Central South, and as your neighbor, the L. & N. is glad to play its part in making your holidays more enjoyable. Like any other useful neighbor, it tries to play its part better from year to year—by providing better service, faster freight deliveries, safer and more dependable operation.

So Merry Christmas to you, Neighbor—and a fine New Year!

And, say, next time you have a shipment to make, or a trip to take, remember the L. & N., won't you?

Do you "fly all to pieces" when the children are noisy, or when the vegetables burn, or when the jelly won't "jell?" Some mothers are just naturally cranky. Some mothers are cross and impatient because they are nervous.
If you are a natural crank, DR. MILES NERVINE won't do much for you. If you are irritable because your nerves are overtaxed, DR. MILES NERVINE will do a lot for you.
Do you suffer from Sleeplessness, Restlessness, Nervous Irritability, Nervous Headache, or Nervous Indigestion? Do you worry over trifles, start at sudden noises? Overtaxed nerves will cause all these troubles, and DR. MILES NERVINE will help you to relax those overtaxed nerves.
Why don't you give it a trial on our guarantee of satisfaction or your money back? Your druggist can tell you about DR. MILES NERVINE. He has been selling it ever since he started clerking in a drug store. Dr. Miles Nervine comes in two forms—Liquid and Effervescent Tablets. Both equally effective in quieting overtaxed nerves. Both sell for 25¢ and $1.00 depending on the size of the package.

TOM MADSEN sat beside the fireplace and gazed moodily at the blazing logs, as the sparks spiraled upward. Outside flakes of snow beat against the window pane to the chime of the church bells ringing peace and good will to all the earth.

"Peace," Tom muttered. "Was there such a thing on earth? Not for him, anyway." He had staked everything on his boy. Been both father and mother to him—given him the advantage of the best schools, with a law partnership waiting for him in his own office; and what did he get? "Sorry to disappoint you, Dad, but I don't seem to be cut out for law. Sally and I want to find happiness in our own way. I mean to buy the old Wormley farm and Sally and I will be married there, in our own home, Dad, on Christmas eve."

Young Tom had choked a bit as he saw the look on his father's face—"I'm sorry, Dad; I do appreciate all you've done for me, 'but the hand writes and moves on,' and it's all settled. Be a good sport, Dad, and come to our wedding and give us your blessing." But he had turned on his boy "Never!" he cried. "See my son married to a cheap dancer; a common"—Young Tom's face was white. "Stop, Dad, or I might forget you are my father"—and he had rushed out of the house.

That had been three long months ago. An eternity for him. He had been too hasty; had been governed by his prejudices. One couldn't measure the present generation by the one of his day. Tom, Jr., was no fool; he should have trusted him to do the right thing; what right had he to interfere; to say how any life should be lived?

Suddenly he wanted to have a share in the joyfulness. He reached for his hat, but remembered it was too late for shopping, but there was his check book. What if Tom refused his tardy offering? The eager look died. There was a loud ringing of the door bell and the sound of rushing feet—the door was flung open. There was Tom, looking just like he used to when he came to him for comfort. "Dad, we just have to have you. Sally sent me to bring you. It's Christmas." Tom, Sr., held out his arms. "We won't disappoint Sally, son."

THE SEWING ROOM

When sewing shoulder straps to underwear place the front straps about an inch closer together than those on the back. This keep them from slipping off the shoulder. If shoulder straps are dipped in hot starch they will not roll. Attach a tape about two inches long and having the cut ends clasped together to the shoulder seams of each dress. When dress is worn the shoulder straps of underwear may be held up on the shoulder by slipping the small tape around the straps.

PLAN MEETING ON FARM ELECTRICITY

Use of electricity on the farm and in the home will be discussed at one of the special sessions during the Farm and Home Convention at the College of Agriculture in Lexington Jan. 25-28. An electric display also is being planned, through the cooperation of manufacturers and dealers in electrical equipment.

Speakers will discuss the installation and operation of home water systems, the use of electricity in dairying and poultry raising, the lighting of houses and other buildings, and other phases of rural electrification.

Interesting Story Told By Old Timer

I promised to write you a short article relating to a case which was tried here in Burlington, but not earlier than 1878, for it was tried in the old courthouse, after is was remodeled, and that was back in '78, therefore some of the older residents of Walton and Burlington and vicinity should remember it, as it was closely connected with both towns.

It appears that a negro boy broke into a store in Walton, I can't recall his name. You will have to pardon me for not stating it. I am not positive, but I think Mr. Stamler owned the store. Anyway they surrounded the store and caught the boy. I also heard that the colored boy shot at them while trying to get away. At at any rate he was caught and brought to Burlington where he was lodged in the upstairs room of the jail which stood just in front of where the new jail now stands.

On the way over to Burlington, the guard pointed to a walnut tree which stood on the right side of the road as you come from Florence to Burlington, and told him that Smith Williams was hung on that tree, but he made a joking remark and said they couldn't scare him. The trial was set for the next term of circuit court.

The boys of Burlington had a good time talking to him through the grating. He was full of fun, and nearly always had a crowd there. The time for the trial arrived, and a very short trial was held. The jury found him guilty and fixed his punishment at four years in the penitentiary.

All would have been different if he kept his mouth shut, and probably would be living now to tell his own story. He was about 18 years old at that time, but he stood up in the court room and made this statement, "I will burn a house for every man on that jury when I get out." And of course he did not get out, for he was hanging on the walnut tree the next morning on the same limb which Smith Williams was hung.

In a short time after this incident, I obtained a job painting the steel work inside the jail. There was nothing in the upstairs room but a bed and a stove that stood in the corner of the room, and just behind the stove this boy had used a piece of charcoal to draw a picpicture of the walnut tree, with the rail fence under it, and what was intended for himself hanging on it, and this was written under the picture, "The bed bugs made a raid on me last night." If he had said the raid would be made tonight, he would have been nearer correct.

Of course, I was around, as all young fellows are when such things take place and I have never forgotten the way that boy begged and prayed. However, he had said too much.

Now, I hope my friends will excuse my poor way of trying to explain these things, for I did not propose to be a writer, I am just the plain old-fashioned fellow who was your jailer from 1917 to 1930, just a little over 12 years. I feel sorry for the poor fellow who has to get this ready for the press, but remember, that I never went to writing school but about 15 minutes and most of that time I was busy causing the teacher trouble.

MOUNTAIN FARMERS GROW BETTER CORN

Forty-two Knott county farmers who cooperated with the county agent in increasing corn yields averaged nearly 41 bushel to the acre, or more than twice the average yield for the county. Each farmer planted selected or pure-bred seed, used 200 pounds of commercial fertilizer to the acre and practiced intensive cultivation. Nineteen of the 42 farmers applied two to four tons of limestone screenings per acre, 26 sowed crimson clover at the last cultivation and seven followed the corn with rye. Better stands were secured and twice as much growth was made by clover where limestone had been used.

Twenty-eight Knott county 4-H club members who joined in the program to grow better corn averaged 40½ bushels to the acre. Many fields of 4-H club corn were outstanding demonstrations of increased yields and proved to farmers that better corn could be grown. Club members followed corn with crimson clover as a winter cover crop and as a green manure crop to be turned under next spring.

More corn on fewer acres, and more steep hillsides seeded to permanent pastures, are two of the most important needs of Knott county, says William J. Michael, county farm agent.

BUTTER AND EGGS SELL WELL IN BELL

Bell county farm women are finding a ready market for butter and eggs of good quality. Both have been selling well in Middlesboro and Pineville, and the Kiwanis clubs of these cities sponsored shows to encourage the women. Displays of high-quality products right from the farm attracted much attention and increased the demand.

NEW STANDARDS FOR DOG FEEDS SET BY EXPERIMENT STATION

The adoption of minimum chemical standards and other rules and regulations to govern the manufacture and sale of canned dog feeds in Kentucky is announced by J. D. Turner, head of the department of commercial feeds at the University of Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

Effective January 1, dog feeds sold in Kentucky are to contain a minimum of 10 per cent of protein and 2 per cent of fat and a maximum of 1½ percent of fiber and 74 percent of water. Registration forms have been mailed to manufacturers and distributors.

The dog feed business has grown like mushrooms during the last few years and it now is estimated to be about a half-billion dollar business, according to Mr. Turner. "Its operation is in such a chaotic condition that it is a question whether it should be dignified by calling it an industry or whether the term 'racket' would not be more appropriate," he declared.

One hundred and forty-two samples of canned dog feeds were analyzed at the Experiment Station. Many of them, it was reported, contained cheap materials, were incorrectly labelled, and were even short in net weight. Some were 85 percent water, which means that the nutrients would cost as much as 40 cents a pound, according to research workers at the Experiment Station.

COVER CROPS HELP RESTORE FERTILITY

Aloys Poats, a McCracken county farmer, restored fertility through the growing of cover crops and the application of phosphate. In 1919 he abandoned land because it would no longer produce worthwhile crops. The county agricultural agent interested him in sowing the land to cover crops, keeping it in rye, wheat, grass and hay. In 1937 the land was put into wheat and corn and produced 35 bushels of wheat and 40 bushels of corn to the acre.

10 PIGS NEEDED FOR TON LITTER

Records gathered by the Kentucky College of Agriculture show that ten litters produced in that state in 1937 averaged approximately 10 pigs. The 18 top litters averaged just slightly under 10 pigs, and weighed an average of 1,988 pounds. Ten litters weighed more than a ton each, but some of these had 11 or 12 pigs, while the champion litter, owned by Earl R. Glenn, Grayson county, included 13 pigs.

The average cost of 18 litters was $159.10, the average selling price $233.90, and the average profit $74.80.

BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS

You have only a few more days to buy your Tuberculosis Christmas Seals. Every school in Boone County has a supply of these seals. Buy a hundred or more or if you cannot buy a hundred, buy as many as you can. Help to stamp out tuberculosis, the white plague that takes so many lives in our State.

Fifty percent of the proceeds of the seals is left in Boone County. The other fifty percent goes to the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association to be used in the prevention and cure of tuberculosis in this State. The proceeds from the sale of seals is far inadequate to meet the expenses of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association, consequently many cases of tuberculosis in Kentucky go unattended.

According to R. V. Lents, Ludlow, Ky., R. 2, who is in charge of the sales in Boone County, many persons to whom he mailed seals have not as yet made a response. Mail your dollar to Mr. Lents at once, or send as much money as you can and return the remainder of the seals.

CHRISTMAS 1937

We are nearing the celebration of the birth of Christ, from our viewpoint, the greatest event since the beginning of time, establishing a new era of peace on earth and good will to all men. While His principles are not adhered to by all men, all business transactions recognize this date (A. D.)

While there is more unrest than ever known in time of peace, some are so pessimistic as to say the world is growing worse, with which we do not agree. If true, we had as well take down the flag of peace quit celebrating the birth of Christ adopt the principle of every fellow for himself, and the devil catch us all.

The trouble is, there is too much selfishness for greed, gold, and power, which generally is a losing proposition to any Nation, peoples or individuals losing sight of the fact that we are all our brother's keeper, and might is not right.

It is a burning shame that humanity is so unbalanced in our Nation of plenty. Balancing humanity is of more importance than balancing the financial budget, which will never be done until we adopt God's principles and our rulers and the majority learn to consider God's word. We have learned to our sorrow that curtailed production is not God's plan as long as there are hungry people to be fed and clothed. We have learned that high prices without buying power has failed.

Much has been said about horse and buggy days. While we realize that the horse and buggy have been shoved out of the picture, so have a good many horse-sense leaders passed on. The sooner we get our feet on the ground and adopt horse-sense principles and regain lost confidence, the sooner we will work out of the past recession; which are soft-pedal names for the old-time horse and buggy panics (which are always hard on the ones that cannot help themselves). The American people worked out of horse and buggy panics on God's principle, by the sweat of their brow and not by theory.

We are optomistic enough to believe God will bring forth men with horse-sense to help restore confidence, upon which much depends, to get the wheels turning the right way. Our understanding of confidence is having confidence in God, in yourself, and in your fellow-man as long as he plays the game square and tries to help his fellow man and help to make the world better to live in.

NEW YEAR 1938

We are often asked what we think of the prospects for live stock for 1938. From our viewpoint we think all kinds of live stock will bring fairly good prices, not too low nor too high; which is better for all. There is plenty of feed but a shortage of live stock, which should be a good business lesson to live stock producers not to sell their foundation stock at low prices and have nothing to sell when prices advance, which a great many did. Stay in the game. Our observation is, it will win seven times out of ten. There is no 100 per cent business. All business has its ups and downs. Our commission rates have been reduced ten to fifteen per cent. We have no idea of quitting, but will work harder to increase our volume and will depend on our old customers and expect to add new ones which we have done in the year 1937.

Altogether, we number our customers by the thousands, whom we thank many, many times for their loyalty to us. We need your business more than ever and want to merit same so that you will pass the world along that Norris, Brock Co., work for their customers first, last and all the time.

Welcome

Do not fail to make our office your headquarters when in Cincinnati, where we will meet you cordially and render you any service you may need.

While with many others we have met the recession of 1937, which we will put behind us and put our shoulder to the wheels and try to make 1938 a better year.

Thanking you again and again, and wishing you a good Christmas and a prosperous New Year 1938,

Yours for service,
NORRIS, BROCK CO.

CAROLINE told herself a dozen times a day that she did not care whether she heard from Stephen or not. What possible difference could it make now, after all these months of silence?

And here it was Christmas eve. Not a message! Not a card! Oh, well . . . she turned away from the window. One must not allow one's self the luxury of regret.

Fires burned brightly on the hearth. Holly hung above the mantel. Snow outside, cheer within. That was all she required. She hummed a tune in false gayety.

Caroline Was Not Alone With Her Bright Fire and Holly.

A ring at the door. Stephen? No, just a messenger boy with a box. Caroline's fingers crackled the red cellophane unwrapping it. No card. Just crazy dozens of jig-saw pieces.

She walked restlessly about the room. Then she returned to the box. Black and white pieces only. Idly she fitted a few together, leaned closer and frowned. Familiar hand-writing. Stephen's hand-writing!

Excitedly she bent above the puzzle fitting the rest together. Gradually Stephen's clear strong writing stared up at her.

"Dear Caroline," it read, "if you have the patience to put this together, I shall know you are still interested in me. I could not tell you what I wanted to, before I left, because I was not sure of circumstances. But now I know. I can take care of you. Will you marry me, Caroline? A yes would be the most marvelous Christmas present in the world. I love you.

"Stephen."

She laughed a little. She cried a little. Then she went to the mantel and snatched down a photograph of herself. This she cut up into small jagged pieces. On several she wrote a single word, which, when put together, read: "I have gone all to pieces, missing you." Then on the mouth of her pictured face, she added the single word "Yes."

These pieces she quickly wrapped up in the box sent to her, and dispatched it by a messenger, who admitted that a gentleman had given it to him, who was staying at the Inn in town.

In another hour Caroline was not alone with her bright fire and holly. And Christmas eve was what it should be. Stephen declared he had been too scared to come himself and sent the puzzle as a test-case. Then he kissed her.

"And the angel said unto them,

Fear not:

For behold, I bring you tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people."

St. Luke 2:10

ALL YEAR LONG, year in and year out, this, your newspaper, brings you the tidings of the world. Not all of them are joyful, certainly none so glorious as the Christmas story which St. Luke announced 2,000 years ago in the glowing words of promise above. But most of them are important to you, and all of them are as honestly reported and fearlessly, fairly presented as your newspaper's conviction of its obligation to serve all the people can make them.

☆ Fear not, in this world of ominous change and strife, when your newspaper, because it is an American newspaper, can dedicate itself unhampered to a life of truthfulness, education, moral and civic leadership. Fear not for the world when its people can and do still forget their petty selfishnesses in the Christmas spirit of fellowship and giving.

☆ There is no other news we bring you that fills our own hearts with gladness as the tidings of another Christmas fill them. And so, a Merry Christmas to you all, and may the love and peace and hope of the Great Birthday mellow your cares throughout the year.

THE CLOTHES CLOSET

Spots may be removed from felt hats by rubbing them with sandpaper . . . To wash chamois gloves add a few drops of olive oil to the water and that will keep them pliable and soft . . . Use brown or blue paper when grapping garments to be stored. The chloride of lime in white paper will destroy the color of the garment, causing it to yellow.

KITCHEN KINKS

A strip of leather tacked on the wall above the kitchen table is handy for holding knives . . . A greasy stove should be wiped with newspapers while still hot. Wash the stove with vinegar before polishing . . . When applying a new oilcloth cover for the square kitchen table put squares of adhesive tape as reinforcement on the under side where the cloth bends at the corners.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

"Something has to be done about these roadhouses and wayside whiskey dispensaries which mushroom up and dot every highway and byway in this old Commonwealth," so says the State's Legislative Council which will be remembered as that body of senators, representatives and citizens which meets, peruses the peoples' needs and makes recommendations to the General Assembly . . . So saying, the Council has worn its cuticle back to its elbow, scratching its collective head in an effort to figure some sort of sensible legislation which will eradicate these places where hard liquor flows in reckless abandon . . . They are eyesores—to much vulgarity—too many killings and other things which besmirch good communities, declares the legislative council—a law with a full set of razor edged biscupids seems to be the need . . . Any law that is recommended meets with the approval of most of the distillers that make locco lotion. . . . These distillers can see into the future . . . If the good citizens of the communities become offended to whiskey and whiskey is made by distillers and distillers, for the most part, are making money . . So why shouldn't the distiller be for any legislation that might save his business . . . .

Roadhouses which are most remote from police protection must go says the council . . .

* * *

And while on the subject of liquor and liquor control in all phases, the conductor of this pillar had a long talk with John Kirtley speaker of the House in 1936 and due to be speaker again in the coming term which starts January 4 . . . John, a member of the Council was with Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson at the time . . . Both are working on a bill to halt chiselling in the warehouse receipt business. There is no law now to control or guide the sale of whiskey warehouse receipts . . . A lot of folk are not aware of it at present, but some that are wont to dabble in whiskey investments have purchased a lot of phony receipts, receipts from distilleries that have never and will never exist . . . The Blue Sky Law does not take care of this . . . Smart salesmen are making money in the racket and are hurting the legitimate sale of receipts . . . And in the same law there will be something about misrepresenting the receipts . . . When a salesman makes a sale now he does not inform his customer that although the whiskey is there, the customer never sees it and can't sell it to just any or everybody . . . It must be sold to a legal dispensary . . . The salesman does not tell the customer about certain taxes and certain insurances that must be paid before the whiskey is withdrawn. Legislation to curb such practices is the aim of Governor Johnson and his Council.

* * *

Kentucky tobacco farmers who are not satisfied with the prices of their weed on the market could wait until they feel that prices will be better and stil lget money on their crops . . . An amendment to the farm bill was offered by Senator Mills Logan of Kentucky and the Senate passed the amendment which would permit farmers to withhold surplus burley and fire cured tobacco from the market and procure Government loans on any portion of the crop withheld . . Of course you will note that the farmer could do this . . . and please note that the Senate passed only the amendment . . . Next it must pass the bill itself . . .

* * *

The United States Senate has confirmed the appointment of Congressman Fred Vinson of the Eighth Kentucky District as Associate Justice of the United States Court of Appeals . . . The appointment was made some weeks ago and the confirmation was fully expected . . . Now the business of getting another congressman to represent the Eighth District is foremost in the minds of the good folk of that area . . . Right off hand the column would say that Joe Bates of Greenup is a most likely choice . . . Joe would like the post as would several others . . . This conductor talked with a few Eastern Kentucky citizens on this subject and found that there would be at least one other given consideration by the people . . . Although William J. Fields, former Governor and ex-congressman from that district, has made no overtures towards running for the office, it is believed that he would not be a bit backward about accepting the nomination were it offered him.

* * *

Governor Chandler declared to the Legislative Council that he did not feel that the State, at this time, could spare the money for an increase in the scholastic per capita or for teachers' retirement. He pointed out that the school children were now getting $12.00 per child, which is one of the highest per capita in the United States . . . An increase now would have to be cut later, declared the Governor . . . The Governor also said that there had been some criticism because the per capita had fallen a few cents short of the $12.00 during the last two years. "This is the fault of the school officials. They estimated the number of children and we based our appropriation on their figures. The actual number was more than their estimate. The appropriation this year will be approximately $1,000,000 than last if the school population figures are correct."

* * *

And furthermore the Governor took a stand against the freeing of toll bridges at present . . . "It would be a fatal mistake to take three and a half millions in Highway Department funds to free the toll bridges at present. The revenues from the bridges are sufficient to pay the bridges out under the toll bridge act and I believe that it is best to leave the bridges alone for the time being," was the statement made by the Governor. . . . Henry Ward, representative from Paducah, has been barnstorming over the State talking to representatives and senators seeking their sympathy in a bill to free the bridges . . . This would necessitate the incurring of new taxes or would have to cut into the highway funds before it could be accomplished.

CHRISTMAS

Jesus, in a manger lay
Sleeping on a bed of hay;
Mary, sitting nearby, smiled
As she watched her slumbering child.

From the East, the wise men came
To bring Him gifts and praise His name;
For a star in Heaven had showed the way,
To the manger in which the Christ child lay.

The Shepards, too came and blessed the Babe,
For an Angel showed them where He lay;
All through the nation on Christmas born,
These tiding rings, "A Savior born"

Throughout this life of ours may we
Be as lowly, kind and meek as He;
And may our light so shine on earth,
As Jesus did upon his birth.

—Mary Tanner.

More than 1,000 questions were received at the College of Agriculture at Lexington, before the recent annual state-wide meeting of sheep raisers. Farmers had been asked to send in questions about some of their pressing problems, and an effort would be made to have experienced sheep men answer them at the meeting.

Questions came from every part of Kentucky and some from other states, and related to breeding, feeding, disease and parasite control, marketing, and the like. Farmers in the audience were asked to answer questions and to relate some of their experiences with sheep. There were no set speeches.

LOCAL CONTROL IS PROPOSED FOR LIQUOR

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 14—More direct local control of traffic in liquor is provided for in an alcohol control bill being studied by the Kentucky legislative council.

The tentative draft of the bill calls for creation of both city and county control boards in addition to the State board, which would be the final authority. Under terms of the final proposal no license to deal in liquor would be issued by one of the boards without the consent of the other. The State board, for example, could not license a whiskey dealer if the dealer's application for a permit had not first been approved by his local control board and the local board upheld. Neither could a local board grant a license without approval of the State board.

The tentative bill has not been acted on by the council, and was prepared primarily to serve as a starting point in the council's study of the liquor problem prior to the submission of recommendations on liquor control to the General Assembly when it convenes next month.
